As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1897.

REMOVE THE OLD, THEN BUILD THE NEW.

"Error, wounded, writhes in pain," said the poet. Never were words more truthful. And how forcibly they appeal to our judgment, and to observation. No reader can be more conscious than is the writer that the exposures of the vices and crimes of Christianity in these columns repulse at times a class of its patrons. But how can a reform be effected without directing attention to the evils to be remedied? How revolutionize public thought and action without denouncing corruption, and showing the need of reform? Did any one ever know of a grand, palatial temple, with all modern improvements, being reared on the undisturbed site of a tumble-down structure in which owls and bats only dwell? The architect who would attempt the construction of such a temple on the ruins of another would be discharged as an incompetent. Before Congress would consent to erect a new postoffice building in Chicago, it was necessary to convince that body that the old building was unfitted for public use; that it was dangerous to life and limb, and that a more convenient structure was required to meet the country's need. Then its walls were torn down, and not a remnant will be left to endanger the destruction of the new edifice.

Spiritualism cannot be successfully engrafted on the errors of the old churches. Christianity was originally an engraft, else an outgrowth of Paganism, and we know the result. For half a century our press and lecturers have vainly labored to bring about an incongruous union; but they might as well have sought to mingle water and oil, and blend them into one harmonious whole, as to engraft the Spiritual philosophy on a church teaching a material hell, a seductive Devil, a fallen humanity, and a majestic heaven somewhere in the clouds, its streets paved with gold, and an almighty and jealous Terror, called God, sitting on an ivory throne, intent on punishing his enemies and rewarding his friends. The facts are, the new temple must be commenced at the foundation. Its walls, and plinths, and columns, and entablatures, its roof and dome, must all be adapted to the new purpose. When completed it will be the grandest structure ever reared by genius, worthy of its spirit origin, and wholly unlike the old mythological temples, it will endure forever.

The church of to-day, whether Protestant or Catholic, is a survival as already shown of Pagan faiths, revamped and worked over in a futile attempt to unite in one, ancient barbarism, Middle Age savagelsm, and modern thought. They may have served a purpose in preventing the overpopulation of the Eastern continent, before America was discovered; but the revelation of a new world, easy of access, capable of sustaining a population of one thousand millions, so the world can no longer afford to crush out its noblest, bravest, best thinkers and reformers, torture them in prisons, burn them at the stake and confiscate their wealth for a class of drones who falsely claim to represent God on earth, and dole out his benefactions, else damn them forever for not heeding their commands.

A SENSIBLE RELIGION.

Rabbi Weiss, in the Hebrew Standard, tells why the Jews do not employ missionaries to advance their faith. He says the Jews are broad and liberal in their attitude toward other faiths, not proceeding on the principle that every one will be lost who does not accept their teaching. They do not believe that any sect has "a patent right on heaven," but it is left to every intelligent person to discern good from evil. Neither Moses nor the prophets was instructed to send missionaries to convert those of other faiths to their own. Again: The best way to propagate any religion is to show its surpassing excellence in daily conduct.

Wipe out the bloody and wholly fabulous history of the Jews, and their pretensions to being special favorites of heaven, and they have a practical religion with many worthy features which might be emulated without prejudice to good morals.

ADVANCING THOUGHT.

And now Dr. Lyman Abbott of Brooklyn, tells us that out of the one hundred and thirty Psalms, David wrote but fifteen. David, therefore, is not the poet many supposed him to have been. Then comes Rev. William Lloyd, a Congregational minister in New York, who solemnly avers that the story of Balaam and his ass is not literally true. In other words, Mr. Lloyd does not believe the ass spake with the voice of a man.

The secular press seems to delight in giving the advanced thought of scholars in regard to the foolish things given the world as divine revelation, of which the above is a specimen. It was not so a few years ago.

RELIGIOUS CYCLONES.

Chicago has recently received a professional visit from that distinguished evangelist, Rev. Dwight L. Moody, and the populace has turned out in its might to receive and welcome him as an ambassador of the Lord, sent to save the city from impending ruin. It was kind of him to come when Want is in thousands of homes, Destitution is all around, and Despair has filled a multitude of hearts. Without employment, or the reward labor brings, and starvation to many seemingly impending, how very proper to direct attention to the King of Hosts, who holds individuals and nations in his grasp, and can supply every need finite man craves if disposed to open his hand. But is there not danger the Almighty Power will withhold relief, notwithstanding the piteous appeals of the wretched and the suffering? Tears and lamentations accomplish but little, unless directed to generous givers and feeling hearts.

But the idea conveyed is, that this infliction of poverty on the people is in punishment for transgression; so they are commanded to change front, and fly to the Lord for relief. If he fails Hope is gone and Desperation takes its place; then follow Disorder, Violence and Crime!

Did the reader ever pass through a protracted drouth, see the earth dry up, the grass wither, the flowers cease to bloom, all nature seem to decay, while the clouds passed over without emitting a drop of water? Days, and weeks, and sometimes months go by, and yet no rain? The season is near when a rain-fall is almost certain. Then some high church functionary calls on the people to assemble in the churches and pray God for relief, and they are asked to continue their importunities and wrestle with Infinity until the fields are made fruitful. Days may pass, but at last the rain-cloud bursts on the vision, thunders echo along the sky, copious showers fall, earth and vegetation are refreshed, and all life breathes with joy again. The artful priests assure the credulous that the rain-cloud came in obedience to prayer. The generous purse is relaxed to reward the intermediate between God and man, because of his kindly influence with the Divine.

Was the spring-time purposely selected, when winter is gone, business is about to revive, and a demand naturally arises for labor, for Mr. Moody to appear among us to ask help from the dominant powers, just as the priest asked the "windows of heaven to be opened" when the season betokened a storm?

The Progressive Thinker is delighted to see labor done to reform the world, to make men good, and fit them for nobler lives. Properly directed effort may accomplish much for the fallen, and it rejoices when the humblest of these shall rise to their feet again. But it distrusts these emotional efforts. It cannot avoid recalling the woe pronounced on the hypocrites by Jesus: "Ye encompass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, ye make him two fold more the child of hell than yourselves."

Digressing: It seems the Jews never proselyted for their religion. This beautiful employment is characteristically the task of Christians only, though represented as a trait of the Pharisees.

Returning to our subject: Is humanity profited—no reference is here made to the priestly class—by these periodical revival movements? They are reminders of the "dancing mania" of the Middle Ages. They seem contagious. Peter the Hermit preached up the Crusades. All Europe caught the infection, and, say good authorities, six millions of human lives were ruthlessly sacrificed at the behest of this religious maniac, and no good was accomplished in the direction intended.

Good reader, follow if possible, some of the wretches said to be rescued from sin by this man Moody, they who are "washed clean in the blood of the Lamb." They are disappointed. Relief does not come as promised. They lose all confidence in priestly representations. They fall from grace, and, in the expressive language credited to Jesus, they become two-fold more the child of hell than was the preacher. It is not our purpose to follow the disappointed wretch through a life of crime until he swings from the gallows—a terrible penalty for a misspent life—so we conclude with the assertion that emotional religion, like the reading of fiction, is not only profitless for purposes of good, but is absolutely injurious to all concerned, nearly akin to the stimulus of intoxicants, to be followed soon after by depression, almost fatal in its consequences. The tornado is no more destructive than are those religious cyclones which periodically sweep over the country, convulsing the social world for a time, followed by a revulsion which demonstrates the worthlessness of the effort.

INSPIRED AUTHORITY.

The married women of Meade Center, Kan., have entered into an arrangement by which they are to exchange husbands for dinner in rotation. Mr. Jones dines with Mrs. Smith to-night, with Mrs. Brown to-morrow night and with Mrs. Johnson the next night, and so on until each husband has dined with each wife.—Times-Herald.

Was this idea of an exchange of marital partners borrowed from Paul, in 1. Corinthians, 7:5:

"Defraud ye not one the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency."

Several cases of the exchange of husbands and wives have come to the writer's knowledge, one for life, the parties basing their right to do so on the permission of this inspired apostle.

THE VALUE OF PRAYER.

Rev. W. G. Todd is reported to have prayed for divine guidance when Gov. Leedy, of Kansas, was inaugurated into office last winter. Now it is claimed the elder has put in a bill, "To one prayer, $5," for which he wants payment. The commercial value of "one prayer" will probably be fixed when that bill is settled. If the quantum meruit is to be determined by the influence he exerted over the heavenly powers it may be necessary to get the testimony of Father, Son or Holy Ghost before the Kansas Legislature, a thing we opine, which will prove very difficult.

A STATESMAN'S OPINION.

Prince Bismarck is reported by a writer in the American Israelite to have said:

"As far as Germany is concerned the Cretans may cut each other's throats until none of them are left, and European peace should not be menaced by this Cretan farce."

Sympathy for the insurgents in Crete is not because they are oppressed by the Turks, but because they profess Christianity—a sort with which Protestants as well as Roman Catholics have little in common.

THE FREE SCHOOL-BOOK BILL.

The free text-book measure now before the Illinois Legislature, and likely to become a law, is meeting with radical opposition from the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Lutherans of the State. The Foresters say in a resolution:

"We have no desire to attack the existing system of public schools in any way, but we do protest against any further taxation of those citizens who not only pay taxes to support the public schools, but, following the dictates of their conscience, in addition build and maintain their own parochial and private schools. We therefore condemn the bill mentioned above as an unnecessary and therefore irrational, as an unjust, deceptive and un-American measure."

It is a great pity in regard to their "paying taxes to support the public schools" that they do not see fit to patronize for fear their children might be taught to think more of their country than of their religion, and become loyal and patriotic. It is not stated in the resolution just how much property the church owns in this land of the free and the home of the Catholic, the Protestant, the Freethinker, etc., that is used for other than church purposes, now wholly untaxed.

They are quick to cry "un-American" against matters they cannot sanction, and that touch their pockets, and propose that the law shall not strike any of their children, to whom, as attendants of parochial schools, they furnish such text-books as the priests and bishops may dictate. What is more un-American? What, though there are many "rich parents sending their children to public schools who would feel humiliated at having their children supplied with text-books?" It is not the place of the law to discriminate between the rich and the poor, but to see that those who have not the means with which to purchase books can have an equal chance at the public schools with those who are able to meet the requirements, and get an education.

How crafty in an institution like this to cry injustice and deception to the purely patriotic citizens of this country when a bill is about to be passed to provide free school-books for all, books that are secular in their tendencies—unbiased in religion. It would be well to compare the parochial text-books with our public school books and ascertain for instance, in the primary geography, how hard they try to teach their offspring that as Columbus discovered America, and he was a Catholic, this country, of right belongs to the Catholics, etc. It is very singular that no one but Catholics and Lutherans are fighting this bill. Verily, straws indicate the direction of the wind.

DENIES THE MIRACLES.

Rev. T. B. Gregory is reported in the Times-Herald of the 5th inst., to have said in his Sunday discourse the day before:

"Paley asks, if twelve men were to testify to a certain miracle and then go to the gibbet rather than retract their testimony, would it not prove the truth of their testimony? No. When the testimony of twelve men is found to be squarely against the testimony of hundreds of millions of men in all ages and lands, the fair presumption is that the twelve men are mistaken. The notion of miracles was born in a time when men knew next to nothing of the laws of nature, and it is dying now that men are coming to understand those laws. Miracles are never argued down. Knowledge comes and they die from sheer inanition. We are told that Jesus worked miracles steadily for a year—one account says two years—and yet, up to the Pentecost, there were less than 200 believers in Jerusalem. Does this not indicate that the miracles never took place? If a man such as Christ is reported to have been were to come to Chicago and do what Christ is claimed to have done—feed thousands of men and women with a mere handful of food, walk on the stormy waves of the lake and quiet them by a word, give sight to the blind, turn water into wine, raise the dead, and crown all by rising from the dead himself and ascending bodily to heaven—if he were to do this, in plain sight of the people, would there not be more than 120 * who would believe in him? The only thing that keeps the notion of the miracles alive to-day is the mistaken conviction that it is necessary to the preservation of the Christian religion."

From this quotation it will be seen The Progressive Thinker is sustained by the most advanced clerics in its position that miracles are the natural productions of ignorance, and that they fade away and finally disappear forever when knowledge is fully diffused among the people. Heaven hasten the day when the tales of ancient marines shall cease to be received as the infallible Word of God.

* See Acts1:15.

HOBNOBBING WITH THE POPE.

Great complaint was made against the late administration of President Cleveland, by critical political leaders, because that functionary sent the Pope a copy of the Constitution of the United States, the object, doubtless, to show that ours is a government of law, dependent on no man's caprice.

A telegram from Rome of the 6th inst. says:

"In Vatican circles the hope is cherished more than ever before that an understandng will be arrived at with the United States respecting the establishment of diplomatic relations with Washington. An intermediary for these negotiations is understood to be Mgr. Ireland. It is even asserted that President McKinley has in the last few days sent for Mgr. Ireland, who will shortly come to Rome in order to confer with the Pope."

What have the late critics of Mr. Cleveland to say to that? Now is the time to howl.

"GAL FORTY."

To all who where shocked at the idea of "spiking Gal Forty," on the last column of page 4, of our issue of the 17th inst., please accept this explanation: The type, as set up by the printer, are removed to galleys a column in length. To keep trace of the matter until made into pages each galley is numbered at the head in capitals. These numberings are expected to be removed in making up the forms; but in spite of care they are sometimes overlooked, liable to appear anywhere in the paper, to the mortification of the printer, and the mirth, or it may be the vexation of the reader.

ANNIVERSARY REPORTS.

Last week we embodied in one paper all the anniversary reports that came in, in accordance with our usual custom. Since sending the paper out, various other reports have been sent to us. We cannot publish them. One paper only can be devoted to anniversary reports.

A LIVE QUESTION.

THE DISPOSAL OF THE DEAD—A MATTER OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO THE PEOPLE.

The disposition of the dead has in all ages and in all lands awakened a deep interest among the living, not so much because they realized its importance from a sanitary standpoint as their veneration for the memory of the departed. But as we proceed, let us inquire if we have not been deluded by false notions and customs. I am aware that public sentiment is strongly adverse to inroads on the customs of the times. We therefore accept the task of rowing against the tide of popular usage and leave the subject to the criticism of every advanced mind that reads the columns of this ever progressive paper.

In civilized countries five methods are more or less in vogue: Inhumation, immuration, incineration, calcination, and circumcementation; and from a sanitary or humane standpoint we think earth burial the worst of all. But a few feet of earth filter intervenes between an interred corpse and the water which is likely to find its way into our wells and springs, for just like the veins that course but a few feet below the surface forming a complete plexus, or net-work and when the water strikes one of these little veins the process of filtering ceases, and water conveyed this way from a corpse which died of an infectious disease would carry desolation wherever the water was used; and numerous epidemics have been traced to such causes.

By the process of earth burials the surface of the earth is becoming saturated with morbific matter indigenous to the human family which by being planted, and nourished has sprung up, and borne fruit a hundred-fold. And it is generally admitted that diseases transmitted from the cadaver are more fatal than if taken from the living subject. I most emphatically assert, that no dead body was ever placed in the ground, without contaminating the earth, air and water, and a practice so loathsome would not be tolerated for one moment, save for the fact that it is hidden from view. Want of room in thickly populated localities, and love of gold has caused Nature's acres to be planted over and over again.

Some cemetery associations after five years of neglect on the part of friends to look after their burial plots, smooth them off and sell them over again; nor is this practice without the sanction of the law in many countries. Laws have never been made strong enough to hold a gravestone in place, when loving men want the room.

Over one hundred years ago, there was a complete wiping out of the old cemeteries of Paris, and the remains were shoveled indiscriminately into carts and carried away. Many tons of human bones from the depopulated cemeteries of London, England, are annually converted into fertilizers. Within sixty years, shiploads of Egyptian Mummies have landed at Boston, and been ground up and converted into paper. The "Germ Theory," that all contagious diseases are produced by positive definite microbes, without which the contagion could not exist, and would disappear from the face of the earth, if the germs producing them could be obliterated, we think is correct ground and calls loudly for a microbite war of extermination.

Cremation—what is it? And wherein does it differ from inhumation as commonly practiced? One is by a slow lingering process that requires many years for completion, while by the other, the same result is reached in about one hour. By cremation the liquid and gaseous portions of the body (98 per cent) are purified and set free at once, while the remaining 2 per cent, which is rendered innocuous, is neatly urned in a glass or earthen vessel and kept compactly together as long as there is any person to care for the dust of physical man.

Cremation is not a latter day invention. The first case recorded is found in Samuel xxxi.12: "All the valiant men arose and went out all night and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the walls of Beth-Shan, and came to Jabesh, and burned them, and they took their ashes and buried them under a tree at Jabesh, and fasted seven days." History records that Hercules cremated the body of Argius, slain in the Trojan war 1184 B. C., and sent the ashes to the young man's father, to whom he had promised to return his son either dead or alive.

When first known, the Scythians, Celts, Scandinavians and Germans practiced it to a considerable extent. The better class of Greece were cremated, and throughout Asia to the present time it has been a common method of disposing of the dead. Alexander of Macedonia, Hannibal, Capt, Williams and Shelley the poet were cremated. The first white man incinerated in America was Henry Lawrence, of Charleston, S. C., an intimate friend of Geo. Washington. His body was by his own request burned in his garden in the year 1702.

Dr. LeMoyne, of Washington, Penn., was the first to build a Crematorium in this country. He made it imperative on his heirs to have his body burned after death. This was strictly carried out about twelve years ago. If space would permit here, we could mention hundreds of illustrious men and women of the 19th Century who have been cremated. Many American cities have their Crematoriums. The advantages of this method of disposing of the dead are manifold, it being cheaper for poorer classes, less space for the remains and cleaner, and more convenient with but very little publicity.

The masses of the people will first have to be educated up to the demand of the times, before the subject will take universal root. I may here add that many Liberalists and Spiritualists have set the wheels of progression turning in the above matter, and ere the second decade of the 20th Century I predict that cremation will come to reign. Yours for human progress.

J. N. YAKES.

PROPER LEGISLATION.

The Legislature of Minnesota has just passed a bill through the House, by a vote of 63 to 26 prohibiting sectarian instruction or wearing of sectarian garb in the public schools and providing fine and imprisonment for violation of the act.

It is hoped the bill become a law. Similar laws should be passed in every State. A religion built up and sustained by taxes wrung from its opponents, has no place in a free government.

OUR ANNIVERSARY NUMBER.

If any one has had the least doubt as to the great superiority of The Progressive Thinker over every other dollar Spiritualist paper ever published in the United States, that doubt would be instantly removed by carefully and critically comparing our issue of the 17th inst. with them. The superiority of The Progressive Thinker would be apparent at once on examination. The same every week.

STATE CONVENTION.

Held at Syracuse, New York.

THE NEW YORK STATE CONVENTION PROPOSES TO ORGANIZE A STATE ASSOCIATION — DELEGATES ARRIVING FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EMPIRE STATE—OFFICERS OF THE N. S. A. AND SPEAKERS FROM EVERYWHERE MAKE THE MEETING A GRAND SUCCESS—THE MAYOR OF SYRACUSE WELCOMES THE DELEGATES AND VISITORS—SPECIAL REPORT FOR THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

The call for a State Convention of Spiritualists in the Empire State, to meet at Syracuse the 13, 14 and 15th of this month has been long before the Spiritualistic public.

The chief promoter in the movement is Frank Walker, of Hamburg, N. Y., and the chief agitator and organizer is Mr. E. W. Sprague, who has been arousing the people to local organization and participation in this convention. Both are working agents for the N. S. A., and are anxious that the State organization shall be properly constituted a State Auxiliary to the N. S. A.

The Vanderbilt, one of the leading hotels in the city, has offered the delegates reasonable rates, and the headquarters is in parlor 95, where President Barrett and Mr. Walker may be seen, and where speakers and delegates congregate. The hotel already presented quite a lively appearance Monday when the speakers and delegates began to arrive, but it was not until Tuesday morning that the full number appeared.

Frank Walker marshaled his forces and received his "family" who are quite numerous for a bachelor.

Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond arrived from Wilkes Barre and Washington, Monday afternoon; Mr. Barrett, Tuesday morning, from Boston.

April 13th the opening session was at 11 o'clock, a. m. in the Y. M. C. A. room, a very pretty little hall with suitable appointments. The platform was beautifully decorated with ferns and palms, and the delegates wore an air of friendly expectancy.

Mr. Walker introduced Dr. E. T. Butterfield, of Syracuse, as temporary chairman; and G. W. Kates, of Rochester, as temporary secretary. He made a brief but eloquent and encouraging address, replete with wisdom and good feeling.

Professor Whitelow, of New York, gave a violin solo, as only he can give one—soul-full and beautiful. This was followed by an invocation by the guides of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, impressive and uplifting.

Mayor Maguire then welcomed the delegates and visitors in a simple yet genuine and well spoken address, full of the principles of religious liberty and toleration. After extending to them the hospitality of the city, he sat down amid great applause.

The reply of President Barrett was equally generous and tolerant, and in a few words expressed the appreciation of the welcome by the mayor of the tolerant and fraternal spirit that Spiritualism stands for the world over.

Committees on organization of the convention were then appointed.

Afternoon session was not called to order until 3 o'clock. The committees reported: H. D. Barrett was chosen permanent chairman of the convention; Mrs. Walters, of Troy, N. Y., vice-president, and Mr. Whitney, secretary. The convention then proceeded to permanent organization, for which purpose the usual committees were appointed. Your correspondent does not deem it necessary to give all the routine business.

The following is the list of delegates, representing the flower of spiritual thought in the Empire State:

Brooklyn: Herbert L. Whitney, and W. Wines Sargent.

Buffalo: A. G. Atcheson and Mrs. J. H. R. Matterson.

Cortland: Mrs. W. G. Markley.

East Aurora: H. W. Richardson.

Elmira: Dana Blodgett and Frances Breese.

Hamburg: Miss Susan Washburn.

Homer: H. C. Sessions.

Heuvelton: Mrs. S. E. Woodside and Margaret Baxter.

Jamestown: Mrs. E. A. Sprague and Mrs. Clara Watson.

Lee: Mr. H. J. Hitchcok.

Lily Dale: Frank Walker, H. D. Barrett, E. W. Sprague, and Miss E. J. Walker.

Moravia: Mrs. Mary W. Jane, and Jennie Ferguson.

New York City: Dr. Fred. L. H. Willis.

North Collins: Mrs. Eunice Train, Kate Sucher and B. R. Train.

Oswego: George Shaff.

Rochester: G. W. Kates and H. W. Annis.

Syracuse: Dr. E. F. Butterfield and Mrs. M. H. Cowan.

Saratoga Springs: Geo. R. Burroughs.

Troy: Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds and Frank P. Edgerton.

Utica: David Williams and W. N. Brigham.

Waverly: Mrs. S. L. Russell and James R. Stone.

Yonkers: Titus Merritt.

Committees on resolutions, permanent organization, auditory, and program were appointed by the chair from the list of above named delegates.

During an interval when the committees had withdrawn and to fill a half hour before adjourning, brief addresses were made by Mr. Williams, of Utica, and E. W. Sprague and later by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, Lyman C. Howe, and F. L. H. Willis. Convention adjourned to meet at 7:30.

The business sessions will occupy the mornings and afternoons until the organization is effected; mass-meetings evenings, and probably the entire day and evening, Thursday.

PROGRAM.

Tuesday evening, April 13, 1897, 7:30.

1. Music: Marsh's Ladies Quartette of Syracuse.
2. Address—John Eggleston, New York, ten minutes.
3. Music—Violin solo, Professor E. A. Whitelaw, of New York.
4. Address—Mrs. Clara Watson.
5. Music—Soprano solo, Master Clifford Walsh.
6. Address—Lyman C. Howe, Fredonia, N. Y.
7. Music—Marsh's Quartette.
8. Tests—E. W. Sprague.

The above program was carried out to the letter, the musical numbers being especially fine. The addresses were the very best, each in the particular and individual style of the speakers. Mrs. Clara Watson never spoke better. Lyman C. Howe outdid himself as he always does when under control of his inspirers, and E. W. Sprague gave some good evidences of spirit return in his readings and tests.

The flippancy of the reports of some of the papers gives one the impression of lack of dignity in the proceedings, but there never was a better meeting.

Wednesday, April 14, 10:30 a. m.—Convention was called to order promptly by the chairman, H. D. Barrett.

Supplementary reports of committee on credentials added as delegates, Mrs. Carrie S. Twing, Westerfield; Mrs. S. A. Waters, Auburn; Stephen Brown, Lockport; Mrs. W. H. Morse, Dryden; Dr. H. S. Wells, Norwich; Dr. R. S. Mills, Saratoga Springs.

The first business was the report of the committee on organization. W. H. Richardson, of East Aurora, chairman of committee. The plan of organization was in the adoption of Constitution and By-laws. The preamble and two or three articles are sufficient to show the scope, objects and name of this State Association.

PREAMBLE.

We, the chosen representatives from the Spiritualist Association and meetings of New York State, in delegate convention assembled, in order to form a more perfect and powerful working organization, establish intelligent co-operation, insure harmonious action and financial success, provide for the education and protection of mediums and speakers, promote the general welfare of the cause, and secure the blessings of liberty and protection under the law to ourselves and our posterity as a people, hereby establish this Constitution for the guidance of the New York State Association of Spiritualists.

CONSTITUTION.

Article I., Name: The name of this Society shall be The New York State Association of Spiritualists, by which title it shall be incorporated under the laws of the State of New York.

Article II., Objects: The objects of said association shall be to co-operate with the National Spiritualists' Association of the United States of America, as an auxiliary, having jurisdiction from said National Association throughout the State of New York for the organization of the Spiritualists and Spiritualist Societies of said State into one general association for the purpose of mutual aid and co-operation in benevolent, charitable, educational, literary, musical, scientific and missionary purposes and enterprises germane to the phenomena, science, philosophy and religion of Spiritualism.

Article III., Seal: The seal of this Association shall be circular, two inches in diameter, with a design in the center representing the house at Hydesville as it now stands, known as the home of the Fox sisters, the title and date of incorporation appearing in large type near the outer edge.

Article IV., Officers and Trustees: The officers of this association shall be a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary and a treasurer, who shall be trustees, and with four others shall constitute a board of nine trustees, who shall be elected by ballot at a regular annual convention by members and delegates assembled.

The usual designation of duties is regulated in the succeeding articles, followed by conditions of membership, etc., all carefully drawn up, but not necessary to be reproduced in this report. The writer would recommend, however, as soon as the Constitution is officially published by the N. Y. State Association, that those intending to organize in other States send for a copy or copies to aid in their work, as the Constitution is very able and complete.

Between the morning and afternoon sessions news came from Hon. L. V. Moulton, of Michigan, who was expected to arrive tomorrow from Washington, that he would be obliged to go immediately to his home in Grand Rapids, Mich., owing to the dangerous illness of his daughter. Resolutions of regret at Mr. Moulton's absence and sympathy for him and his household were unanimously adopted.

The committee on resolutions, Dr. F. L. H. Willis, chairman, made a most interesting and comprehensive report, and the resolutions as presented were unanimously adopted. As soon as a copy of these resolutions can be secured they will be forwarded.

The nominating committee, (for nominating officers and trustees of the N. Y. State Association for the ensuing year, consisted of: H. W. Richardson, East Aurora; Mrs. E. B. Armstrong, Buffalo; H. W. Sargent, Brooklyn; Mrs. D. L. Russell, Waverly; Dr. Robinson, Glenville; Mrs. Marbly, Cortland; D. W. Blodgett, Elmira; Lyman C. Howe, Fredonia; W. B. Mills, Saratoga; Mrs. Clara Watson, Jamestown.

No more representative body of people could be found in this State than that on the nominating committee, and the convention felt perfectly sure they would carry out the principles of wisdom in their deliberations.

The convention, not being able to finish its business, and in order to give the nominating committee time for perfect work adjourned (its business session) to 10 o'clock a. m. Thursday.

The committee on organization (to which the matter was referred after mature discussion and deliberation) was requested to bring in a declaration of principles which should be incorporated in the organization as a portion of the preamble. They also wished time to make their report.

PROGRAM.

Evening session Wednesday, April 14th.

1. Music—Marsh's Ladies Quartette.
2. Address—Carrie E. S. Twing.
3. Music—Violin solo, E. A. Whitelaw.
4. Addresses—Dr. Fred. L. H. Willis, H. D. Barrett and Mr. Frank Walker.
5. Music—Marsh's Ladies Quartette.
6. Tests—Dr. W. B. Mills.

The evening program was carried out in full, and was most satisfactory in every particular.

The following contains a summary of the resolutions adopted by the Convention:

"First. We recognize Spiritualism as the science of right and the religion of humanity.

"Second. That no property should be exempt from taxation because owned by any religious body.

"Third. We demand that no legislation shall be enacted which seeks a union of church and state.

"Fourth. That while we favor the attainment of the highest education possible for the youths of our land, yet we most earnestly protest against the use of public funds for the support of schools where sectarianism is taught in any form.

"Fifth. Believing that all days are equally holy, we desire that no special Sunday laws shall restrict the right of sects who worship on other days.

"Sixth. We protest against all laws tending to restrict the free exercise of Spiritualist mediumship and magnetic healing.

"Seventh. We are emphatically opposed to all base use of mediumship and deprecate the sensational display thereof, and desire that all who possess this divine gift may use it not for worldly emolument alone, but for the consummation of spirit communion. We believe that mediums should be properly protected by a generous compensation for their time and talents."

The rest of the clauses protested against imitations of mediumship and fortune-telling, recommended the public to read spiritualistic literature and also asked that their speakers be allowed occasionally to exchange services with "the clergy of the sectarian denomination."

At the evening session, when the hall was crowded, Dr. W. B. Mills held communications, and addresses were made by Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, Dr. Fred L. H. Willis, H. D. Barrett and Frank Walker. Music was furnished by Prof. E. A. Whitelaw and the Marsh Ladies' Quartette. At this session subscriptions and pledges were taken for money to carry on the work in the State and about $450 was received.

Formal organization was completed to-day by the election of officers. An interesting program was also rendered, concluding with a mass-meeting in the evening.

Partial report of committee on finance (for the convention).

The amount of money raised during the convention up to Thursday morning was $520

A few remarks were made by G. W. Kates.

Mrs. S. L. Walters made report from the committee on organization of a declaration of principles. Referred to the committee on resolutions.

Music by Ladies' Quartette of Binghampton.

E. W. Sprague made some interesting remarks on organization, lyceums etc.

Committee on resolutions reported the following declaration of principles:

We believe in the Infinite Spirit and Intelligence called God, and the immortality of every human being.

We believe that every individual is a divine germ, capable of infinite unfoldment.

We recognize the universal brotherhood and sisterhood of mankind.

We assert that a continued life is proven by present revelation of positive intercommunion between the mortal and spiritual worlds.

We believe in love, purity and fidelity as the spirit of religion, and justice as the highest moral law.

Signed: Fred L. H. Willis, W. Wines Sargent, G. W. Kates, Sarah L. Russell, Francis M. Breese, Emma Train, and Lyman C. Howe.

Committee on nominations reported a double set of names for every office. The following were elected to the great satisfaction of the entire convention: President, Frank Walker, of Hamburgh; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Carrie S. Twing, of Westfield; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds, of Troy; secretary, Mr. Whiting, of Brooklyn, also secretary of convention, treasurer, H. W. Richardson, East Aurora.

Additional trustees: Dr. E. F. Butterfield, Syracuse; W. W. Sargent, Brooklyn; James R. Stone, Waverly; Dr. D. B. Mills, Saratoga.

The business of the convention being practically ended—except additional reports from the finance committee—the convention adjourned at 1:15, to meet in general session at 2:30.

At the opening of the afternoon session (Thursday) Mr Barrett announced the officers and Board of the N. Y. State Association as elected. Just before the close of the morning session, Mr. Frank Walker, the newly elected president, made a brief address of appreciation of the trust imposed on him. Each of the officers and trustees were introduced, who bowed in response to the hearty applause of the convocation.

The program of the afternoon, as follows, was fully carried out, to the edification of all present:

PROGRAM.

Thursday afternoon, April 15, 1897.

1. Music—Cecilian Quartette.
2. Address—Lyman C. Howe.
3. Music—Violin solo, Prof. Whitelaw.
4. Recitation—G. W. Kates. Reading, by request, of "The Valley of Silence."
5. Music—Cecilian Quartette.
6. Address—Tillie U. Reynolds, of Troy.
7. Music.
8. Tests—Mrs. C. A. Sprague.

PROGRAM.

Thursday evening, April 15, 1897.

1. Music—Cecilian Quartette, of Binghampton, N. Y.
2. Address—H. D. Barrett.
3. Music—Violin solo, Prof. Whitelaw.
4. Address—Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond.
5. Music—Cecilian Quartette.
6. Tests—Dr. Mills.
7. Closing.

The foregoing program closed the sessions of the first State Convention of Spiritualists of New York, amid great rejoicings and mutual congratulations. The association will meet immediately before or after the jubilee, to be held at Rochester next year. Dates to be decided by the board of trustees of the State association.

The speakers present were: H. D. Barrett, president of the N. S. A. and chairman of the convention; Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, vice-president N. S. A. and pastor of Church of the Soul, Chicago; Mrs S. A. Walters, Auburn, vice-president of convention; Lyman C. Howe, Fredonia; Mrs. Clara Watson, Jamestown; Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds, Troy; Mrs. Carrie S. Twing, Westfield; G. H. Kates, Rochester; E. W. Sprague, missionary for the N. S. A.; Mrs. Sprague; Dr. S. B. Mills, of Saratoga; the three last named acting as test mediums at the evening sessions of the convention.

One noteworthy feature was the excellent music throughout the entire convention; the best ever heard at any convocation of Spiritualists. Prof. Whitelaw, of Brooklyn, was soul inspiring with his magic violin. Grace Robbins proved a most charming and artistic accompanist. Marsh's Lady Quartette, of Syracuse, The Cecilian (Lady) Quartette of Binghampton, divided the honors in their beautiful rendering of several musical numbers, although many gave the preference to the Syracuse warblers.

A lad, about eleven or twelve, sang charmingly. Unfortunately your correspondent has lost his name.

Dr. E. T. Butterfield, the noted clairvoyant physician, of Syracuse, was the local patron and in many ways the host of the visitors and delegates.

Mr. E. W. Sprague, through his untiring missionary labors throughout the State for the last two months, was the means of bringing a large percentage of the delegates present. While "it goes without saying" that the "promoter," as some of the Syracuse papers named him was the indefatigable Frank Walker, almost unanimously chosen president of the State association.

The Spiritual Research Society, of Syracuse, representatives in the convention, Dr. Butterfield, Mrs. Cowan and Mrs. Barnes were an invaluable aid in preparing for and receiving the visitors and delegates.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

A golden wedding anniversary, which is reported as a grand affair, was held recently, near Chesaning, Mich., as a surprise at the residence and in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold W. Miller, Sr. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are Spiritualists and have been close observers of the progress of every science for many years. Having been residents of that section since 1854, they were naturally surrounded on this occasion with many warm friends, and were the recipients of numerous valuable presents. The Progressive Thinker wishes them many happy days on earth and a peaceful transition when that time shall come.

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of music entitled "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," music by Chas. H. Gabriel, and words by our esteemed friend and fellow-publisher, Adam Craig. It is a beautiful composition; arranged with chorus, and respectfully dedicated to Ian Maclaren, founded on his beautiful story of "The Bonnie Brier Bush."

FREE THOUGHTS.

SOMETHING ABOUT EVERYTHING —AND NOTHING—A FIRST EFFORT FOR A SPIRITUALIST NEWSPAPER.

To the Editor:—You have often asked me to write for The Progressive Thinker, and I have pleaded excuses of want of time and other employments. The time has come at last when these are not in the way, yet disinclination is still an obstacle. I see so much written on the subject of Spiritualism that ought not to be printed, that I distrust my ability to do any better. And then, the more I learn of the thing we call spirit manifestation or "return," the less I feel that I can convey knowledge. I am inclined to believe that a "sensing" knowledge of spirit force is necessary for a clear conception of its philosophy, just as a practical knowledge of anything in physics is needful to its understanding and application.

Again, I dislike to print things over my name, as to me it exhibits an egotism and an assumption that I do not feel. I so often hear people ask: "Who wrote that?" and then discuss the person instead of the thought, that I will not enter the field as a contributor save under an assumed signature. So if you will take my "stuff" and keep my secret I may from time to time comply with your request. And before I begin to treat on special topics connected with spirit, spirits and Spiritualism, I will tell you about my own feelings as to the general of the matter, and the attitude I have come to occupy as to the features pro and con of the movement and its personnel.

To begin: I am simply a Spiritualist —not a teacher, not a critic, not a champion of anybody or any faction, phase or fad. As you know, I had passed the summit of life's mountain and was well down the shadow side, in the most exacting, and so far as human nature goes, the most disenchanting vocation open to modern life, before I came in contact with the phenomena of modern Spiritualism. From the "Rochester knockings" to 1879 I looked upon the matter as something uncanny, although reading Swedenborg in early manhood and personal association with Swedenborgians, some of the best people I ever knew, had saved me from the vulgar practice of the ignorant, of sneering at what I did not understand—a thing I have ever since my acquaintance with Spiritualism been most grateful for, I was thus saved the mortification of having to retract senseless abuse of a subject I had never investigated.

And right here that word provokes a remark: It is one of the words I have come to listen to with impatience in connection with spirit. Two things give me a nervous shock—an "Investigator," and a "Forty-year-old Spiritualist"—these with their ever on-the-lips "test" constitute to me the nightmare of social Spiritualism. Still candor requires me to say that at one time I thought myself an investigator, until I found my preconceived standards of spirit and the world of spirit were only obstacles. Still I am able to compliment myself after eighteen years' acquaintance with the subject that I never did employ the methods of the police detective as to mediums, nor the cross-examination of the shyster toward spirits. If I were to visit a friend or relative and was met as test-hunters meet their returning friends, they would never find me troubling them anymore. And all that I have ever seen or learned of spirits, they are human and don't drop their humanity with change from one condition of life to another. So you will know the standpoint from which I will write, when I write at all— simply a Spiritualist, without any adjectives or prefixes.

Now, I discard tests for two reasons: They never convince, because a demand for them is from a state of mind that can't be convinced by them—for to exact physical proof of a spiritual fact is itself a stultification. And then an intelligent person who with a moiety of experience cannot tell a genuine manifestation from a "fraud" can never be satisfied with anything that requires intellectual perception.

Again I have no sympathy with the fraud-hunters or with their discussions in the press. Not one exposer in a score has enough spiritual conception "to know a hawk from a handsaw," so to speak. One swallow does not make a summer, nor does one seance make a critic—yet too many who rush into print are of this class. And I do not limit these scribblers to fraud experts, for too much of the "wonderful" seances we read so much about is from the pens of crude and first-time observers. Between the two the sober, thinking reader, and the obliging publisher have a trying time. But above all, deliver us from that class of writers who quote the finding of the modern jury and the charge of the present day judge to prove fraud in mediums.

And further: I do not believe in the growing habit and practice of the platform criticising the seance-room. It is neither fraternal nor sensible, and will sow only discord—and will return to plague the inventor. The spirit world is bringing knowledge to us—not we to them—and as it only can come through natural or human channels, its coming is as varied as the forms of life and as diversified as human mentality and physiologic structure. To "boss the movement" is but to go back to the priestly office from which we are all supposed to desire to escape. The trance, or any of the many forms of objective manifestations, has just as much claim to doubt the "inspiration" of the platform as has it to discredit the "control" of the seance-room. As I once heard a friend say: "Don't let the platform be turned into a pulpit whose only 'test' of 'inspiration' is that it talks better sense with shut than with open eyes." I do not at all endorse the declaration in the spirit of it, and only use it to lift the curtain a little to let it be seen how others may look at things. The platform is the intellectual part of the work —for the public and for the spread of the philosophy of continuous life—and the seeming tendency with some to endow it with the functions of the past or present pulpit bodes no good to the "movement"—if there is such a thing.

Neither do I at all sympathise with the "injury to the cause" so many see—if things do not go their way. There has been no time since 1848 when Spiritualism had so many accept its phenomena, concede its truth or crowd to listen to its platform exponents. All this friction that so exercises some of our people is from the very nature of things. Modern Spiritualism is only forty-nine years old, and 90 per cent of Spiritualists have come from orthodox theology. All the conditions of education and forms of thought are still present. Thus we see "Rev." and "church" still deemed essential to hold people together and even our seances conducted by singing Watt's hymns, and our platforms given over to long "invocations" after the style of the church congregation—these eye-closed addresses to the power incomprehensible, being deemed the open sesame of the lecture. It is all to be expected, it is all natural when we reflect from whence the great hosts of Modern Spiritualism have necessarily been recruited. I am not enamored of these things, but I go along as part of the whole with all the philosophy I can invoke—and because in the beginning I was just like them.

And here is as good a place as any—by way of parenthesis—to remind the critics of another sort, that the spirit world itself, as well as the ranks of Spiritualism is recruited from just such material as is in this world, and that fact is an explanation for a thousand things that bother the unthinking. Just now the political world—our part of it—is worrying over the fact that the foreign, despotic-educated immigration from the old world is becoming a clog to the digestive powers of the American stomach, threatening it with dyspeptic disorder, yet we seem to demand that the spirit world should at once transform a Weyler or a Talmage into a paragon of wisdom and beneficence and send him into the seance-room to teach better people, instead of our taking what they say and do for what they are—proofs of the continuity of life in natural conditions—or that spirits are but human beings—people—changed in conditions of living.

These are a few of the ideas that appear on my plane of perception and from which I look at the development of the modern spiritual movement, as it is so persistently called. I have my own philosophy on the subject and its multiple phases, but they are only mine. I would not dare attempt to "teach" them for Spiritualists do not recognize "teachers." The world has been cursed at least during the historic period, by "teachers" of all sorts, and they will bother the development of freedom from the curse, just as far as they are given power. It seems as if the time had come in the progress of the race, that this power is to be broken, and with this "faith" to sustain them the Spiritualists can be philosophers and—wait.

If I write anything in the future it will be in the spirit of these suggestions, and if you print this it will be taken as a desire for more. If it is not printed you will hear no more from Kansas City, Mo. SARGIS.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

To the Editor:—Dr. H. V. Swearingen addressed the First Spiritual Society of Fort Wayne one Sunday lately in the absence of any regular speaker. He devoted the hour to giving the answer to the question: "What is Spiritualism?" His introduction was as follows:

"The general comment among the non-Spiritualists who heard Brother Barrett's lectures from this platform a few weeks ago, was that they were grand and interesting, but they were not particularly explicit or specially instructive in regard to the claims or doctrines of Spiritualism. They affirmed that Mr. Barrett's lectures could have been delivered in almost every pulpit in Christendom with pleasure and profit to his listeners.

"Now that is just what we affirm. Although Mr. Barrett did not once make use of the term 'Spiritualism' in his Saturday night and but once in his Sunday night lecture, they were both intensely spiritualistic in character.

"It is not necessary for a man who lectures, for example, upon the subject of "milk," to say 'milk' every tenth or twelfth word, or to drink a glass of it at every rounded period he makes, in order to keep his subject properly before his audience.

"The trouble with Brother Barrett's lectures was that they were above the heads of most of us. We failed to share in the spirit and genius of his inspiration. To use a more homely phrase, we failed to 'catch on.' He soared too high above us.

"Now I propose to give you this evening a symposium of answers to the question what is 'Spiritualism?' which I have compiled from the writings of Brothers Barrett, Tuttle, Forster and the guides of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, hoping that our inquiring, skeptical friends may discover therein something that is distinctly pathognomonic or characteristic of Spiritualism as distinguished from the religion of our fathers as yet taught in the pulpits of old-time orthodoxy." COR.

WAITING.

Dedicated to the spirit of Com. W. E. Bushnell, who cast anchor in the crystal sea, one year ago to-day, from the Port of San Francisco, Cal.

I've an angel companion waiting for me
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea;
Not impatiently waits my darling there
For a smile lights up his brow, so fair;
And his song rings out to me so clear,
So soothingly sweet to my listening ear,
And I live on the smile of his precious love,
And await to tenderly join him above.

I've an angel companion waiting for me,
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea;
My heart is yearning and throbbing with pain,
For I fain would clasp my darling again;
But I'll look away from this earthly strand
To the beautiful banks of the summer land,
And I'll think of the one who is waiting there,
And offer to God a thankful prayer.

For one year my darling has waited for me
To cross the strand by the crystal sea;
When death the great angel hath fitted me,
His precious image I again shall see,
In resurrection's robe I'll be dressed.
My soul will then see friends of the blest;
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea
Where my darling is waiting to welcome me.

On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea,
The harpers have gathered to welcome me;
They join in the song my darling sings
And their anthem through my own soul rings.

Oh, angels blest! how long must I wait
To meet my beloved at the jasper gate
That will open its portals to welcome me,
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea.

Sterling, Ill. ROSE L. BUSHNELL.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

MRS. EVA A. CASSELL.

She Is a Prominent Medium,

And Reviews What She Considers a Glaring Evil.

SEVERE ARRAIGNMENT OF SPIRITUALISTS, AND THEIR GULLIBILITY—THE SPIRIT WORLD CALLED TO ACCOUNT—DEGENERACY OF THE CABINET—EMBRACING AND KISSING, NOT GOOD FORM—FUMES OF WHISKY AND ONIONS FROM THE BORDERLAND—HIBERNIANISM AND SPIRITUALISM — INFIDELISM AND SPIRITUALISM—DESPERADOES IN OUR RANKS.

There is always more or less controversy when a so-called materializing medium is exposed; where few find the manifestations fraudulent, many will come forward to vouch for their genuineness. It is breath wasted for one side to attempt to convince the other; each individual must judge for himself.

C. E. Purcell, of Florida, says: "Eva A Cassell writes an article so utterly at variance with the truth and facts in the case, that it might be taken for truth." I am at a loss to understand him. It was not I who is responsible for the exposure of the mediums in question. The case is simply this: on the 29th of November last, the two mediums gave a public seance in Ayer's Temple, an admittance fee of twenty-five cents being charged at the box-office, which drew hundreds of spectators, very few among them being Spiritualists. Some gentlemen in the audience ran up to the platform and pulled aside the cabinet curtains, exposing the male medium peeling off the white robe, which he threw upon the floor, and which was immediately seized and borne off by the raiders. The medium was seen naked to his belt, while his wife sprang before him and endeavored to shield him while he put on his coat. I will call Mr. Purcell's attention to the fact that the truth of this exposure does not rest on my testimony.

DOZENS OF SPIRITUALISTS

who sat in the front rows, testified to this in court; dozens of them who, blushing and feeling disgraced because such a naked cabinet exhibition savored of Spiritualism, yet were compelled to go upon the witness stand and tell what they saw when the curtain was pulled aside. It is absurd for Mr. Purcell to say, in view of the court evidence and trial, that I am at variance with the truth; should the gentleman come to Boston, he can interview hundreds of disinterested persons. Day after day, in the lower and higher courts, going often without my dinner, I spent long hours in listening to the evidence. As much care was taken in trying the case, as would have been had it been a murder trial. The twelve competent jurymen sat in grave deliberation over the evidence, and those among them of the Spiritualistic belief, were compelled, from the evidence, to admit that the two mediums were guilty of fraud. Had Mr. Purcell been present, he must have admitted it also, for certainly this gentleman bears upon his face the evidence of intellectuality and the power of discriminating, and when I first saw him, a year ago, I was impressed with the innate nobility and the beneficence which beamed from his features. I only regret that he has not as high an opinion of me, as I have of him.

And, in regard to the two mediums in question, certain it is, I have no feeling of animosity against them, and the lady in particular impressed me as sweet and interesting. But it is Marcellus Ayer who is most DESERVING OF MY CRITICISMS.

He is old enough to know better. He puts a sensational advertisement in the daily papers, saying that real spirits will come from a cabinet, and invites a motley crowd of curiosity seekers to rush into the Temple, at 25 cents a head. Then he steps forward, and after a set little speech in which he declares that real spirits will apear, the show begins. What conceit and egotism must dominate a man, when he expects that a motley crowd of four hundred persons will believe his statement that the forms are real spirits!!!

Mr. Purcell mentions a recent seance under test conditions, where the two exposed mediums were highly successful! I want to be fair and square in this discussion, so I will answer, "Perhaps they were! It is possible that the forms were genuine. But, on the 29th of November, in Boston, the mediums were detected in fraud. I was not present at the recent seance Mr. Purcell mentions, so I cannot testify as to its genuineness." The fact he states carries no weight with me. What is a fact to one, is not to another, and for that reason it is always foolish for people to tell the public what stupendous manifestations they have beheld. We must all testify to what we have seen with our own eyes, and not to hearsay.

I knew of one medium whom I thought was genuine; she placed her cabinet in the middle of the circle, was searched and placed under test conditions, and her manager sat in the circle and allowed one of the sitters to be manager in his place. All this did away with the suspicion that the manager passed her in a bundle of white apparel, as is often done.

Once at a seance I attended where the medium's wrists were tied together and her hands filled with rice, it was found afterward that the medium emptied the rice into the handkerchief of her manager, who stepped to the cabinet to receive a "spirit," and the manager also untied the medium's wrists so she could personate forms; just before closing the seance, the manager re-filled the medium's hands with rice, and retied the wrists.

Often test

CONDITIONS AVAIL NOTHING.

Once, when the medium was searched and her manager also, before the seance, it was proven afterwards that a bundle of white muslin was fastened under the seat of the manager's chair, where it could be easily drawn forth and handed into the cabinet. Seances held at the medium's rooms, where it is almost always possible for a confederate to operate, are often not above suspicion.

I wish Mr. Purcell would not make such positive statements from hearsay; he affirmed that the raiders carried the robes with them and threw them into the cabinet; and that "many testified to it, not Spiritualists." Now, the gentleman has been misinformed. I was present daily at the court trial, and no one testified to such a thing. But of course, if Mr. Purcell knows all about it, when he was not even present in court, then it is useless for me to say a word.

THIS IS NOT TRUE;

If the two mediums in question have produced forms under test conditions, according to Mr. Purcell, then I am glad to hear it, and it goes to show that materialization should be relegated to the sacred precincts of the home circle, instead of being forced upon the public in a theater where tickets are bought at the box office. That is where I stand on this question, viz: that the public platform, amid motley swarms who do not and cannot appreciate nor understand the chemical qualities nor subtile laws which produce materialization, for materialization; and I, as a Spiritualist, would not expect nor consent to the materialization of any of my departed friends, under such adverse conditions; neither would I drag them forth from the cabinet into such carnal surroundings; neither do I believe that an intelligent spirit would desire to manifest amid such repulsive effluvia, and I would not insult them by expecting them to.

IS NOT THE PLACE

Furthermore, my beautiful spirit mother could never penetrate into such a dense atmosphere as that caused by the emanations of the swarms I mention, in the public theater, and I would not so much as by going to Ayer's Temple, myself, in the hope of seeing her, and desecrating her personality by contact with the adverse influences of the madding crowd.

INSULT HER INTELLIGENCE,

After fifteen years of continual investigation into materialization at Onset Bay and elsewhere, I have grown heartily tired of being pulled around by the nose by the mediums, their so-called controls, and other denizens of the other world, who for wishing for test conditions. Now, I am just as good as any spirit in the other life, and rather than be called to account by them for asking for test conditions, I, in my turn, shall dare to call them to account for bringing about this state of things—this state of fraud, brought about by the spirits crying, "No —no! Test conditions disturb the currents," etc. We, the investigators and students are of as much importance as the denizens of the spirit-world and our wishes should be as much deferred to, and our desires consulted—more so in fact, for we are asked to accept blindly, as genuine, manifestations given in a darkness most calculated to assist fraud. It is not mortals who are responsible for the trickery of to-day, but it is the spirit-world and its mediums, who turn aside the pleadings of mortals for test conditions, assuming a and above-suspicion exterior—as if, forsooth, we poor mortals, floundering in the cess-pool of fraudulent manifestations had not a right to demand proper conditions for investigation, but must needs tremble before the materializing powers that be, and meekly ask in faltering tones for test conditions, and then be utterly squelched by the spirits for our just demand!

CONSTANTLY BERATE MORTALS

GOD-ALMIGHTY RIGHTEOUSNESS

I challenge such denizens of the spirit-world, and declare to them that it to see that I am not humbugged by either mortals or spirits. Because the medium says that real forms come from her cabinet, is no proof that they are so, and I would not believe a spirit any quicker than I would a mortal anyhow. If a spirit tells me that he is my father, brother or uncle, I should not believe it simply because he said so, and I would not believe it until I had tested him, the same as I should test any mortal who came to me and claimed to be so and so.

IS MY INALIENABLE RIGHT

As things are now, we mortals have a long bill of complaints against the spirit-world; if we can't get anything intelligible from a so-called spirit, we are told that he has forgotten his name on materializing; or that the sitter must come again, as it might take several seances in order to give the spirit the necessary strength; that means more dollars in the "medium's" pocket.

SUCH IMPOSTORS

have plenty of flimsy excuses to fly in the eyes, like dust, of investigating mortals, the latter, most of them Spiritualists who are away up in the cloudy regions, lacking proper sense while investigating, are overwhelmed by these dictates of so high an authority as that emanating from an "angel," and, filled with awe and their own stupidity, swallow everything! Anything said to emanate from a spirit, fills them with wonder, amazement, credulity; and they are ready to believe anything. It is time that such Spiritualists began to cultivate proper sense, and demand more light and investigation into part of this materialization.

HORRIBLE REVELATION.

I, myself, was a most credulous believer in this particular phase, once. Many times I have attended seances—stirred to my soul's depths, and, needing a word of comfort from the spirit side of life, and have prayed earnestly that I might get it. One night, a "spirit" came from the cabinet who claimed to be my mother. I accepted her as such and wept in her arms, filled with sweet consolation, and gratitude, and a holy reverence. She passed into the cabinet, and next came forth a "spirit" who claimed to be a male relative, and, as is usual at seances, kissed and caressed me; but, while doing so, unwarrantable feelings overcame him, and unwarrantable words rose to his lips, while he asked me to meet him on the street corner, after the seance. Insulted, affrighted, I pushed him from me, too dazed to speak. No one can realize the shock that came over me, nor know the horror which I felt, sensitive as I was, for weeks and weeks. I was sick for long days. Standing there, before that cabinet, in the holy, sweet state of reverence my supposed mother had just left me in—to be rudely shocked, a second later, by an incarnate devil's obscene words and gestures!

PROMISCUOUS KISSING

In those days of my investigation, I was gullible, full of faith, and—I never thought of asking for test conditions!!! I have had such experiences as this, all adown the fifteen years of my investigation. Right here, I feel to say, no matter how the truth may hurt, that it is a pernicious and disgusting habit we have, that of promiscuous kissing at the cabinet—it is unhygienic, and would not be tolerated in good society and among decent people, and I see no occasion for it at the seance, and much evil results from it.

DEGENERATING.

The seance is fast degenerating into the brothel. Many times I have heard senile old gentlemen, knowing the manifestations to be spurious, say: "I don't care! I got my dollar's worth in hugging and kissing the "medium." What an unholy motive for attending a seance! What strong stomachs some of these old gentlemen must have, when they breathe in the "medium's" breath, laden with the fumes of whisky and onions! And yet we are told that the spirits breaths will naturally smell like the mediums, should she have eaten onions for dinner! Stuff! Pah! Twaddle to blind mortals and get their dollars. When I get to an age that I can swallow such rubbish, I hope that my friends will bury me ten feet under the ground, to cover my gullibility.

A TRADE—A BUSINESS!

Materialization, as it is worked to-day, is a trade—a business. I have been approached by suave, bland, so-called "developers" of mediums, who have sought to add me to the number of impostors; they have said: "Well now; you are so smart, such a cute little lady, we could develop you easily and you could do it as well as the rest, after practice; and the sitters would give you presents and flowers and everything nice and you would have a fine time." Also, these developers have waxed wroth when I exposed them; they have threatened, stormed, and, last summer, hatched a plot to blackmail me; but I had witnesses whose testimony would have landed the evil doers in jail, where they belonged.

While some materializing mediums I have FOUND GOOD AND KIND,

yet desperadoes take up the phase for money and will stoop to anything. The way it is done is this: the medium in the cabinet, dressed in white, projects a small corner of her skirt out from under the curtain, and gradually draws the black curtain away from it, oscillating the white fragment and thus enlarging it, and the sitters exclaim, "Oh, watch that spirit materialize." Larger it grows, and the spirit finally thrusts up her head suddenly, and is fully materialized. I once watched an impostor, covered with a square of black cambric, creep along the wall, behind the sitters and materialize, and a sitter cried out, "Oh! there's a spirit materializing outside the cabinet." The impostor projected a section of her white skirt from under the black cambric, agitated it, and gradually emerging from the cambric, stood "materialized." In the summer camp season, mostly the same old Spiritualists attend the seances and the seance mediums (some of them) know all their private affairs, and, when a fraudulent test platform medium comes to camp, he or she learns from the seance medium the names of parties who frequent the seance, and just what names to spring on them from the platform next day. It is a wheel within a wheel, part of it! I have seen persons perform the ballot test trick, who laid no claims to mediumship. In fact, the religion of Spiritualism has degenerated into a tricks and Indian jugglery! As if the denizens of the other world would descend to the paltry jugglery now posing as Spiritualism, and spend their time hanging around the earth in the guise of fakirs! Heaven knows Spiritualism carries a long trail of "dead beats" in the wake. If a man wants a dollar, he gets into Spiritualism and becomes a "medium," and lots of male and female indigent persons, have only to hang out their shingles as "healers," when in need. The older I am, the more critical I grow concerning the religion I have adopted, and those who are its exponents. Witness this case now in the Boston papers: Dean Conners, of Burlington, Vermont, went to Mexico, in 1894, and at the end of ten weeks, was taken ill with typhoid fever. Later on, the American Consul notified the Conners family of Dean's death. The young man's father went to Mrs. Hannah Piper, a medium endorsed by the Psychical Research Society, and she declared positively that the youth was alive and being held captive in a peculiar institution or hospital or prison; that he had been drugged and taken there, and the motive was robbery and the hope of gain. Mr. Conners sent a friend, Mr. Dodge, to Mexico to investigate; later he sent another emissary, and finally the matter was put in the hands of the Boston Globe, which has been instrumental in finding several lost persons; all this created intense excitement in Mexico, and the search and investigation cost thousands of dollars—all because a "medium" had made a misstatement. Mr. Conners put great faith in the woman, for she was no common seer but a person highly endorsed by the Psychical Research Society, and it was not supposed that she could make a misstatement. Nearly a year was consumed in the search, the medium being consulted at every move, and she declared positively that she saw him held captive in Mexico. (The question here presents itself. Since Dean was really dead, why could not the medium's control see him around his father, when the latter was sitting for knowledge of his whereabouts?) Time and again Mrs. Piper declared him alive. But, as time went on, it was proven that young Conners was dead, and in fact his body was exhumed and his death proven to all. Now, all this trouble and expense and worry was caused by evident untruth, and the newspapers have been full of it, and a great laugh is being had at the expense of Spiritualism.

SYSTEM OF SLEIGHT-OF-HAND

I noted the article written last week by Mrs. J. W. Kratz, of Evansville, Indiana. The impostor she mentions as posing as a medium, is a Hibernian, who, notwithstanding that his face contains a map of the old country, delights in writing after his name, in parenthesis, (Irish) just as if the fact was not apparent in his features!!! He and another Irishman, are making the rounds of the camps, disgusting everybody with their illiteracy and foul, disrespectful language, when pretending to give tests; they being in league with those of the materializing mediums who practice imposture, and obtaining the names and family affairs of their sitters, and working them into tests. Every camp has its ring of impostors materializing and test-giving, and they are in league with each other. I have always found that the geniune materializing and test mediums retire into themselves, are quiet, and do not busy themselves with their tongues.

As for we Spiritualists, we should be ashamed to place upon our summer rostrums, lusty to wound our ears with their brutal manner of giving so-called tests—who have taken up Spiritualism simply to grind out dollars. The best exponents of our faith, are none too good for our rostrums; why then, do we place there, the roughest and most brutal of itinerant Hibernians! What an anomaly! A foul voiced, ignorant Irishman, the teacher and exponent of Spiritualism! I have no objection to an Irish medium, if he is quiet and orderly, and respectful and decent! But I do object to a lusty, able-bodied, lazy son of Ireland creeping into our faith for imposture and the dollars he can filch out of it. And I do object to our religion being made a stench in the nostrils of the public, so that the latter shall be forced to offer resolutions against it, as witness the Presbyterian church of Boston, which printed in the newspapers, a protest against the naked exhibition of the male medium at Ayer's Temple, being dubbed a religion, by Spiritualists!!!

BRAGGADOCIO HIBERNIANS,

How can we be self-respecting when we are overburdened with deceit and trickery and when we know that we aid and abet it by our silence? Why don't we make it difficult for these impostors to exist in our ranks? Why don't we try them, and by severe tests ordeals, make it difficult for them to stay with us? Because we have made fools of ourselves by believing everything that is said to emanate from "spirits" and the latter have dictated and ruled over us; "we musn't do this; we musn't do that;" it will disturb the "conditions," etc., until we have lost our reasoning faculties and become idiots, and imposture has thriven. No wonder people leave our ranks and return to the churches! I myself, go frequently among the so-called Infidels, glad to revel in a pure atmosphere, and get away from the imposture on every hand.

It would be passing strange, if, with all this effluvia, the spirit-world remained longer mute and thus consented to the continued imposture; but I have the evidence that, at this time, there are intelligences "over there," who are making an effort to do away with the

FRAUD DRAGGING ON THE SKIRTS

of Spiritualism, and wherever they can touch upon a brain, it will be useful for that purpose. A change is coming; the fiat has gone forth, and the spirit of righteousness will prevail. The impostors must be full of conceit and egotism, to suppose that intelligences in the other world are doing nothing to stem the tide of fraud. Mark my words —there are

MORE EXPOSURES TO FOLLOW!

We are not have careful enough whom we put on our platforms as exponents of our faith. Each and everyone who claims to be a "medium," Irish or Hottentots, are shoved up on the rostrum, whether they are meritorious or not, and especially in the summer at the camps where thousands of strangers congregate, instead of putting the best before them, we place anything that poses as a "medium"—to our bitter shame and disgrace.

Many Spiritualists say that the faith depends on materialization and such phenomena, for its dissemination; there are thousands who were not converted by phenomena. Spiritualism is a philosophy which appeals to every heart and it would exist and make converts without phenomena, our spiritual lectures giving much knowledge of the soul, in its different paths up to Infinity. If fraud continues, phenomena will kill itself out, in time, and we are pursuing the very course to have it do so, and if Spiritualism is to be loaded down with the sooner phenomena chokes itself with the rope being woven the better for us all. If we can't have genuine phenomena, then let us do without any of it, rather than afford a host of charlatans the chance to get a living by casting discredit upon it. Phenomena is good in its place, when it is genuine; but much of it is given in a darkness calculated to abet fraud.

THIS FRAUDULENT EFFLUVIA,

I have only one more word to say, and that is spoken to those impostors who have TRIED TO SQUELCH ME,

by threats and otherwise, because I have unveiled their methods; their anonymous letters, libels, and bad conduct, have no terrors for me. Desperadoes—yes!!!

Filching from quiescent Spiritualism the dollars to support a lazy existence and trafficking in the souls of the dead to support a nefarious system which yields them the carrion upon which they feed. EVA A. CASSELL.

Chelsea, Mass.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Commentaries on Hebrew and Christian Mythology." By Judge Parish B. Ladd, LL.B., of the San Francisco Bar. This book is of more than ordinary value, giving the results of much patient thought and research by a mind well qualified to sift evidence and arrange facts. In compact form it gives just what is needed on the subject. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"Mahomet, His Birth, Character and Doctrine." By Edward Gibbons. This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. Price, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Bible and Church Degrade Woman." By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three brief essays, on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion; The Degraded Status of Woman in the Bible; The Christian Church and Woman; written in Mrs. Stanton's usual trenchant style. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Philosophy of Spirit, and the Spirit-World." By Hudson Tuttle. A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains a lecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

Mrs. S. J. Cutter, the well-known and reliable spiritual medium, has changed her seance rooms to 941 West Harrison street, where she will give private sittings every day.

W. T. Hamilton, of Iowa, has sent us during the past few weeks fifty-five subscribers. He is certainly wide awake as to the main chance. He has our sincere thanks.

Mrs. Barth, formerly at 786 South Halsted street, has removed to 978 West 12th street. Meetings every Sunday at 3 o'clock and Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. S. M. Lowell, of Minneapolis, one of the older workers in the cause of Spiritualism, recently visited this city, expecting to fill an engagement, but was called home by a telegram because of the severe illness of a friend.

P. E. Keeler writes: "I have enjoyed reading your paper very much, and believe that you are doing a great work for the cause of humanity. Would that there were more such efficient agencies for the dissemination of the truth."

W. H. Shobe writes from Rich Hill, Mo.: "We have had with us Amae Wheeler, materializing, trumpet and independent slate-writing medium. He gave one lecture on the Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism, followed by tests. He gave several seances which were successful."

F. Corden White has a few open dates for fall and winter. Societies wishing his services as lecturer and test medium, address 3058 Calumet avenue, Flat 9, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Carlie Miller writes from South Haven, Mich.: "We have been living under the usual difficulties this winter, that of 'hard times,' but have managed to keep up a pretty lively existence, for all that. Many strangers have attended our meetings, and much interest has been shown. A lyceum has been organized, and the lessons in The Progressive Thinker have recently been adopted, and we hope for much good from them. We have listened with very much interest to the discussion of the Singing Book question, and when, over two years ago a copy each of Mr. Longley's "Echoes from the World of Song" and the "Spiritual Hymnal" were sent us, upon examination, we sent for a quantity of both books, and have found them far superior to anything we have seen since the Spiritual Harp; yet we believe more beautiful songs might be given us, as "The Angels never weary" in giving us grand thoughts and beautiful songs."

The First Spiritual Church of Allegheny, Pa., is to be served during April by Smith Warner, lecturer and test medium. Societies or individuals in the vicinity desiring his services for week-day evenings can secure him by corresponding with him at his address, 215 Robinson St., Allegheny, Pa.

Dr. H. V. Sweringen writes from Fort Wayne, Ind.: "In publishing my response to the toast given to me at the recent banquet following the commencement exercises of the Fort Wayne College of Medicine, you failed to print the quotation marks as given in the manuscript to the latter part of it, the credit of which belongs not to myself but to the guides of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. Please publish this letter in order to set me right with your readers. I do not admire being placed in a false light with them. Literary piracy from disembodied spirits may be permissible, but when guilty of it from the embodied ones, we are very apt to hear from them sooner or later. The opportunity was thrust upon me to introduce the subject of Spiritualism to a promiscuous, skeptical, materialistic and orthodox audience, a heterogeneous gathering representing all shades of thought and belief, and I could not resist the temptation to make free use of the closing part of the presentation of the subject of Spiritualism to the world's parliament of religions, by the guides of Mrs. Richmond, and which to my mind is grand beyond expression."

The Camp-meeting at Bankson Lake, near Lawton, Van Buren Co., Mich., will commence June 5th and close June 28th. The following speakers have been engaged: Mrs. A. L. Robinson, of Port Huron; Mrs. A. E. Sheets, of Grand Ledge; Mrs. Minnie Carpenter, of Detroit, and Mr. E. W. Sprague, of Jamestown, N. Y. Mr. Sprague will act as chairman during the entire meeting.

Mrs. L. M. McKenney, of Levant, Me., shows her deep interest in Spiritualism and the National Spiritualists' Association by originating a scheme for raising funds for the N. S. A. Having a flock of hens, she proposes to take what eggs one hen will lay, and sell them, until the hen wants to set; then set her and raise her chicks and sell them in the fall; and turn over to the treasury of the N. S. A. all the money she can make from that one hen in one year. She suggests that other Spiritualist ladies do likewise. Those that have no hens can try some other practical plan that their ingenuity may suggest. "Don't let us count our chickens before they are hatched, but set the hens and take what we get."

C. H. Figuers, M. D., writes: "I am again in Jacksonville, Fla., but will not remain long—the season is too far advanced; will return to Palmetto in a few days and remain there as long as possible. My guides have done a good work in Florida outside of the camp, as they would not let me go there at all, which is good for the cause, as many have been reached who otherwise would not have had the soul-hunger satisfied."

Mrs. Rebecca R. Maxey writes from Aurora, Ill.: "The boatman will soon come for me. Light, great light is shining on my mind. Holy Trust is on my right side; Joy on my left. The birds sing all day long. 'Tis indeed Beulah Land, to thus walk with the angel world."

E. A. Doty writes from Lockport, N. Y.: "On Sunday and Monday evenings, March 21st and 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sprague occupied the rostrum in Sons of Temperance Hall in this city, and the large audience which greeted these workers were well repaid for their efforts in climbing two flights of stairs. The Spiritualist Society of Lockport, N. Y., was organized, and an application forwarded to Washington, D. C., for a charter. The following officers were chosen: E. A. Doty, President; E. J. Taylor, vice-president; E. E. Philleo, secretary; Mrs. Patie D. Hall, treasurer. E. J. Taylor, E. S. Lusk and Robert Morland, trustees. Stephen Brewer, delegate to State Convention."

Mrs. J. W. Kratz, of Evansville, Ind., desires camp engagements for the coming season; also with societies desiring her services as speaker and test medium. Address her 224 Cherry St., Evansville, Ind.

Mrs. W. H. Calvert writes from Beloit, Wis.: "We find, as each year comes and goes, that we cannot invest a dollar more satisfactorily or to better advantage than investing it in The Progressive Thinker. Each number comes as a welcome visitor, brightening and bettering the home with its benign influence."

A. T. Riedinger writes: "Among those who have been doing a great work in the cause of Spiritualism here in Denver recently, are the "Brockway Family. The platform tests of the wonderful young medium Chas. Brockway are the cause of many new investigators and converts, while those who have had sittings with Mrs. Brockway, report her work as being the best ever seen, in the independent slate-writing line in Denver."

Dr. J. H. Randall who has been speaking for different societies in Chicago since 1st of last December and is engaged every Sunday in April, will answer calls to attend funerals and will make engagements for Sundays and camp-meetings the season ahead. He can be addressed People's Institute, Chicago, Ill.

Miss C. J. Van Alstine writes from Long Beach, Los Angeles, Co., Cal.: "Miss L. M. Cummings came to me here on February 3, 1897. We went to work and have had two lectures on Sundays, two developing classes a week, also a metaphysical class. She has done more to harmonize the liberal thinkers than any one else. Her private readings are of a purely spiritual nature, she is a grand teacher and a rare gem, pure, and and true. I have been a Spiritualist for over twenty years and I never met one better than she is. She is on her way home to Boston, and intends to stop in Chicago. I hope she may have a chance to lecture there."

R. L. Taylor writes from Hopkins Station, Mich.: "I am so greatly interested in The Progressive Thinker and the beautiful grand teachings of the spiritual philosophy, that I desire to do what I can to extend its influence and get friends interested in it. I was trained up in the terrible cheerless, dread-inspiring dogmas taught by old-school Presbyterians, and the spiritual philosophy is so grandly cheering and delightful to me that I ardently wish all my friends might see its beauties and embrace them."

Dr. Joel Watson, of 306 W. Jefferson street, Springfield, Ill., wishes to hear from all good mediums who can do any good for relief of the obsessed.

G. A. Wood writes from West Pullman, Ill.: "I was just looking over your notices of the meetings that are held every Sunday in Chicago. I being the president of the Kensington Society can say that you have not got it quite right. We have a splendid society in Kensington, and we are doing a grand good and noble work, although we claim no pastorate over our meetings. Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond has spoken to us four or five Sundays since we organized, about three months ago. We have now for our instructor Mrs. McIntire, of Chicago. She is a good and noble speaker. We hold our meetings every Sunday at 2:30. We have a good attendance, and we are in a very prosperous condition at present, but we are very desirous of securing a good test medium, and if any of them should happen to see this, they will do well to correspond with our recording secretary, Mrs. Barks, of 2526 116th St., Kensington, Ill."

Samuel Toman agrees with Elvira L. Allen concerning cringing and whining and taffy, to get our spirit friends to talk to us. If friends in the physical body were to visit us, and we should greet them by singing to them an orthodox hymn or two, they would regard the performance as extremely silly, to say the least, if they were sensible people. Sensible spirit friends may properly be supposed to hold similar views. Suppose a street car motorman were to sing a hymn or repeat a lot of orthodox verbiage to get a car to move! Orthodox spirits may love to hear orthodox hymns, until they have progressed into better things. Again if a Spiritualist must use swear words, instead of "G— d—n," it were better that he should say: By the spiritualistic, inter-intelligent, evolutionary, potential principles of the Univercoelum! Selah.

Dr. W. T. Baird writes from El Paso, Texas: "Mrs. E. A. Wells-Bedell, of Denver, Col., is due the successful inauguration of this movement. There are few mediums now before the public so well fitted for missionary work of this character. Her visit to this city will be long remembered, not only for the splendid organization that she has effected, but for the wonderful evidences and test she has given of spirit communion both in her public and private work."

The El Paso (Texas) Tribune, says: "A Spiritual Association has been organized in this city under the name of The D. D. Wells Spiritual Association, of El Paso, Texas, with forty charter members. Applications have been forwarded to both the State and National organizations for charters, and will be received in a few days. Among the charter members are some of El Paso's best people and it is thought that its members will soon reach one hundred. The Society's officers are as follows: President, W. H. Winn; first vice president, Mrs. Leigh Clark; second vice-president, James A. Brook; secretary, Mrs. N. D. Lane; treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Gobler; trustees, John B. Fitch, D. O. Holman and W. T. Baird."

The Secretary writes that at a meeting of the Spiritualists Society of Buffalo, N. Y., held April 4th, a resolution of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kates, was adopted, for their very efficient services during the late anniversary exercises. Mr. Kates was also made a delegate from the Rochester society to the New York State Spiritualists' Convention, held in Syracuse, April 13.

Mabel Kline writes from New Orleans, La.: "The Forty-ninth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism was duly celebrated by a grand and appropriate lecture of nearly two hours duration. The flow of inspiration through the medial powers of our pastor, Mrs. Dr. Hilligross, held an overflowing audience spellbound. A history of the Hydesville rappings in verse elicited a storm of applause. The afternoon of this auspicious day, had been chosen by the association for the annual election of officers, and as an evidence of their appreciation of the work being done in this city, and of their personal esteem Mrs. Hilligross, was unanimously chosen as president of the society to serve one year. Mrs. Hilligross was employed by our society to serve them for the month of January only. Then was retained to work until the 1st of June, and two months before the expiration of this second engagement, they showed their great wisdom in securing her continued services from the 1st of June 1897 until the 1st of June 1898, making in all a continuous lecture course of seventeen months. The following are the names of the new official board: Mrs. Dr. Hilligross, president; Mrs. Peter, vice-president; Mr. Humphrey, secretary; Miss Kline, treasurer; Mrs. Rowley, Mrs. Kline, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Stumberg and Mr. Schultz, trustees. The Ladies' Aid is doing effective work. Has $112 in its treasury and is only two months old. It will give a literary and musical entertainment soon, all to go for the one purpose of raising a Temple Fund. Mrs. Hilligross visited all the newspaper offices in the city, and secured free insertions of her meeting notices in the religious columns of each paper."

Thomas A. Black writes from Cleveland, Ohio: "I note with pleasure in your issue of the 10th inst. the eulogistic remarks of J. C. F. Grumbine in regard to the work and character of our good Brother Hudson Tuttle; to all of which I can respond with a heartfelt Amen: and will add that language can but feebly express, the truth that Brother Grumbine uttered in regard to Brother Tuttle's work not being properly appreciated. From personal observation the past nine years I apprehend that we have too many "Spiritists" and too few "Spiritualists" in our ranks—and I note with sorrow that very many so-called Spiritualists of forty years standing are still feeding on the outside shells, intead of partaking of the inner elixir of life and spirituality—and so long as such is the case; men of Brother Tuttle's character and work will not be fully appreciated."

Mrs. N. Ewan, secretary, writes: "The Beacon Light Spiritual Church held two excellent meetings April 4th at 617 N. Clark street. The quality and quantity of the audience was in accord with the glorious philosophy of spirit return, which lent aid to the grand inspirational lectures by the regular speaker Mr G. F. Perkins, who with the assistance of Mrs. Perkins rendered some beautiful songs and followed with grand tests of spirit return. Compliments from visiting people were numerous and voluntarly given to the speakers. One point being made, was, that of an entire absence of the 'show' features which characterize some spiritual meetings. April 4th, the regular Semi-annual election of officers occurred. The financial condition was reported by the treasurer as being better than ever before. The following officers were elected for the coming term: G. F. Perkins, president; A. W. Bloom, vice-president; Mrs. N. Ewan, secretary; C. M. Baker, treasurer; A. W. Bloom, trustee for eighteen months. The Ladies' Auxiliary is in splendid condition, and we expect that the earnest and honest efforts of our speakers will produce great results that shall give credit to our cause."

Mrs. E. J. Bowtell writes from Canton, Ohio: "Owen Meredith, the young medium of this city who has recently developed the phase of trumpet manifestation, gave a seance not long since that was entirely successful. It augured well for his future success in this, his chosen direction. The voices that came through the trumpet, and also as independent voices, together with the varied controlling forces that influenced the medium, gave abundant proof of his power for usefulness."

D. E. Y. writes from Union City, Mich.: "Dr. H. C. Andrews of Riverside, Mich., spoke for us here three Sundays in February and three in March. Since he left Mrs. Emily P. Beebee, of Spring Arbor, Mich., has been with us one Sunday, March 28, when we held anniversary exercises. She is expected here again April 10."

Rolla Stubbs writes from Long Lake, Minn.: "We had with us Brother John Eonzet, of Eagle Bend, to deliver us a lecture. He is a new worker in the field, and deserves encouragement as he is fast developing in many good phases, as well as inspirational speaking. Some of his hearers here say it was the most philosophical lecture on spiritual phenomena they ever heard here."

Mrs. Maggie Waite can be addressed at 328 Grand Avenue, Detroit, Mich., where she is taking a much needed rest.

Mrs. A. Packbard writes from Centralia, Wash.: "In my communication to you published in The Progressive Thinker of March 27, 1897, you made a mistake in the address. Instead of 'Centralia, Ill.' it should be The First Spiritual Society of Centralia, Washington, that is need of a speaker. We would like to correspond with any well recommended medium who contemplates coming this way, and who would be willing to serve a society very poor financially."

The Spiritual Research Society of Canton, Ohio, has organized with the following officers: C. C. Barrick, president; C. E. Yaley, vice-president; W. B. Slutter, treasurer; C. W. Hartong, secretary. In addition to the above John V. Yolkey and Mrs. Hannah Kinsler have been elected trustees. The first public meeting of the society was held on the morning of April 11, the speaker on that occasion being E. J. Bowtell.

Julia Steelman-Mitchell closes a two months' engagement at Milwaukee, in April. She is engaged for a course of lectures and seances for the first two weeks of May in Missouri. She will engage with societies or individuals for lectures in that State the last two weeks of May. She has June open for engagement; also open dates for camp work. Address her at 109 Van Voast ave., via, Newport, Kentucky.

Mrs. L. M. Brewer writes: "Your valuable paper is worth more to me, in aiding me in my humanitarian work, than all of the twelve papers, including magazines, that come to me monthly, weekly and daily. How I wish that people would become more spiritually minded, and be willing to subscribe for your paper. I believe that if such could take place our city would become a people more civilized."

Mrs. Ellen L. Starbird, of Bangor, Me., writes of J. C. F. Grumbine's method and teachings for development: "The teaching is divine, and you present it in a different light than I have ever understood it. The lessons answer the hunger and desire of my heart. I prize them greatly. In what I have written I have but feebly expressed what I feel."

J. C. F. Grumbine's engagements for the season of 1897 and 1898 are: September, Brooklyn, N. Y., (special opening services in the new hall of the W. P. U.); October, Norwich, Conn, (special dedication of the new Temple); November, First Spiritual Temple, Boston; December, St. Louis, Mo.; January, 1898, either St. Louis or Chicago; February, Chicago; March, Berkley Temple, Boston; April, First Spiritual Temple, Boston; May, Brooklyn, N. Y., while at Brooklyn in September and May he will give a special course of lectures at Mrs. Colville's school of Psychology, and Psychometry and Clairvoyancy. Mr. Grumbine has all the Sundays in June and July open to camp-meetings. August (five Sundays) is taken. Address J. C. F. Grumbine, 7820 Hawthorn avenue, (Station P.) Chicago. While in Boston he can serve societies Sunday mornings and evenings while at the First Spiritual Temple, at special rates.

Mrs. H. L. Bigelow writes: "Newly elected officers for 1897, of the First Spiritual Union of San Jose, Cal.: President, Wm. McMeekin; vice-president, Mrs. E. P. Anderson; secretary, J. U. Spence; treasurer, A. Alexander; trustees, H. H. Hunting; L. W. Dexter and Mr. Hubbard. Of the Ladies' Aid Society: President, Mrs. E. P. Anderson; vice-president, M. J. Holtum; secretary, H. L. Bigelow; treasurer C. Phipps."

Dr. Adah Sheehan would like to engage for May; also the first three Sundays of June, in or near Chicago. She is open for camp engagements for 1897. She will be in Philadelphia for the month of November. She would like to correspond with Eastern Societies for a part of the season of '97 and '98. Address Dr. Adah Sheehan, Elsinore Gate and Russel street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

William Potter writes from 652 Hamilton street, Cleveland, Ohio: "Any good medium wishing a place for giving seances of any phase will be accommodated at my home. We have a large circle here, and also many more in this city looking to the truth."

A. C. Priest, of Spokane, Washington, is not only a thorough Spiritualist, but an active worker. If all our subscribers were like him we would have 500,000 names on our list. He writes: "We are doing all we can to further the increase of circulation of The Progressive Thinker which cannot be too highly estimated as an exponent of liberal and spiritual thought. We are also doing our best to advance the cause of Spiritualism by keeping open our Free Reading Room for which we pay the rent ourselves. We also have our society, organized by myself and wife, but I must say the so-called Spiritualists of Spokane are very backward in joining it, although our monthly dues are small. The majority here of professed Spiritualists are evidently mere Spiritists, and do not seek to have any advanced ideas with regard to the moral and spiritual nature of our grand philosophy, and think more of their petty material interests than in forwarding the cause by subscribing for a spiritual paper, or helping us in any way. Of course there are many honorable exceptions. Our Sunday evening circles are well attended and my wife's mediumship, which is of a spiritual order, has convinced very many of the truth."

Brother Walker writes from Lockport, N. Y.: "Seneca Indian Medium for physical manifestation has just given the Spiritualists of Lockport, N. Y., a series of seances. These seances are given in full light, and consist of independent writing by materialized hands, each message being written in different hand writing. His guides play on a number of musical instruments very nicely. He goes from here to Hornellsville, N. Y., and from there to Titusville, Pa."

Frank T. Ripley's address is Oxford, O., for the present.

Mamie E. Miller speaks highly of the manifestations through the Pettibones at Grand Rapids, Mich.

W. W. writes: "D. B. Jimerson, the Indian physical medium and lecturer, has been at Basom, N. Y., during the winter, and has done a good work in the neighborhood. Before he came I was not a Spiritualist, but now I am glad to say that I am a firm believer; not only me but many others." If they are believers, why don't they subscribe for The Progressive Thinker and thereby not remain in ignorance of passing events.

The Times, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., speaks as follows of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's lectures there: "Mrs. Richmond is a most charming orator, not a word or gesture, but exhibited grace and refinement. Her invocation was majestic in its ideals, yet as simple and beautiful as the running brook or the delicate flower, and impressed her hearers with a sense of deep reverence and a pious devotion to the cause of Spiritualism, and the elevation of mankind."

H. W. Boozer, of Grand Rapids, Mich., writes: "Grand Rapids has a double spiritual attraction in the presence of Theodore D. Price, the versatile lecturer and medium, and the Pettibones. Mr. Price is the ideal inspirational speaker. Hatfield Pettibone is the physical medium, who in the bright light, before large audiences composed in great measure of toughs and know-it-alls, can present the phenomena of materialized hands, accompanied with messages written without pencil on slates, apart from the mediums contact and under the most complete test conditions."

A. P. Roberts, a prominent medium of Milwaukee, Wis., was in Chicago last week.

Capt. H. H. Brown writes from El Reno, Okla. Ter.: "A medical bill was introduced in the Oklahoma Legislature, to regulate the practice of medicine, having all the objectionable features of similar laws in States. In the House this amendment was attached: 'Resolved that none of the requirements or penalties of this bill shall refer to those who practice without use of medicine.' This killed the bill, for the doctors themselves did not want it, and it showed plainly to all that their purpose was to interfere with the healer and clairvoyant. If attention is called to this, it may help to kill the measure in other legislatures."

Amae Wheeler, the materializing, trumpet and slate-writing medium, will answer calls for lectures, seances, marriages and funerals, in cities and towns en route for Seattle as an objective point.

M. A. Congdon writes: "We have held our annual election of officers and have now a good working force. The object of the society is effectual work. Mr. Brooks was with us for two lectures on the 11th inst. Mr. and Mrs. Parker, phenomenal mediums, are holding trumpet seances weekly, calling in investigators. Etherealizations are a part of their manifestations. Mrs. M. A. Congdon is retained as lecturer for the society.

Mrs. Erhardt, who has been holding circles and giving tests in Wisconsin for several weeks, has returned to Chicago, and can be consulted at 716 W. Madison St.

Band of Harmony meets Thursday of this week at Mrs. Stauer's, 107 S. Kedzie avenue near Madison Madison St.

Dr. Mary R. Hutcheson, magnetic physician, psychometrist and medium, late of Kansas City, Mo., is located for a few weeks at Hotel Aldine, 14 Bishop Court, this city.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

Let your every act be truthful, for actions speak louder than words. When dealing with your fellowman remember the golden rule.

It is a sad thought to know that the truth must be told to thousands before one is found that can recognize it.

Spiritualism is the veil that covers Occultism. Remove the veil and all is revealed. These isms are creedless.

Truth only applies to occult knowledge, i.e., a knowledge of spirit. There is no real truth in material things; at best it can only approximate it.

When external wisdom is given to ignorance, the truly wise man appears like a fool in their eyes. This is why at times silence is golden.

Frivolous people and those who have not passed the curiosity stage should not dabble in Occultism. It is like giving razors to children for playthings.

A human symbol should be outward evidence of an inward spiritual possession; otherwise it is deception and misleads the ignorant.

Contentment requires no vacation, no recreation, no pleasure. It is a condition of happiness that the material man cannot comprehend, hence never experience.

Thoughts are things and are visible to an Occultist, but not readily until the custodian opens the door and exposes those thoughts.

From Light, London, Eng.

SPIRITUAL CENTERS.

What the sharp and scornful materialist may call "an unlearning of superstition" may really be a receding from spiritual centers. And this may be so without blame to any one.

MOVING CYCLES.

It is an undoubted fact that in nature everything seems to work in cycles. The very surface of the earth, during millions of centuries, seems as much the subject of orderly change as a meadow during the seasons of a dozen years. Sea and land slowly change places. Tropics and ice-fields alternate.

NO EVERLASTING HILLS.

There are no "everlasting hills." Nothing abides, but nothing is disorderly. It is so in the human sphere.

SPIRITUAL SENSITIVENESS.

There are periods of spiritual sensitiveness and unfolding, and periods of scientific faculty and mechanical skill, during which, in all probability, and quite naturally, the spiritual sensitiveness recedes and the spiritual unfolding almost ceases. It must be so even as a question of habits and the cultivation of special powers; and, therefore, it is quite conceivable that in the time of Christ and in Palestine the possibility of such appearances as are recorded in the Gospels and in The Acts of the Apostles is not the possibility of London or "the black Country" now.

THE ANGELS.

All we ask is that the account between heaven and earth should be kept open. Believe in what you sing, and do not think of those angels as men think of moonshiny poetry, very well for pastime and the church, but quite inadmissible as relating to fact and life." Ah, yes! Why not give the angels the benefit of the doubt? Why not encourage the thought that, though unseen, around every cradle head and by every grave, some angel awaits, to guide, to consecrate, to bless?

From Two Worlds, London, England.

THE ROENTGEN RAYS.

The Roentgen rays are no longer the "X" or unknown rays; their wave length, after a long series of experiments, has at length been determined, and they are found to be only about one-fourteenth part the length of the ultra-violet wave. The vibration period of the ultra-violet section of the spectrum may be taken at a mean value of about 2,300,000,000,000,000 per second; so that this number multiplied by 14 will give us approximately the figure value of those, until lately, unknown vibrations.

ETHERIC PULSATIONS.

These numbers are, however, so great that they convey a very poor impression to the mind of the rapidity of etheric pulsations, and we shall perhaps grasp the idea better if we, for the purpose of illustration, represent the waves that give us the red of the spectrum by 5; the waves that give the violet will be shown by 8; the ultra-violet by 20 to 40; and the Roentgen waves by 300 to 600. The range of the human eye is only about one octave, and as we have seen above, the Roentgen rays are sixteen to twenty octaves higher; therefore to render them visible to normal vision we must employ some means of transforming them down until their frequency falls within that particular octave to which the eye is sensitive. At this level, however, they are simply waves of light, and do not possess the remarkable qualities of penetration which belongs to them at their normal value. This reduction of wave frequently gives rise to the phenomena of fluorescence, and may be brought about in various ways.

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC PLATE.

The photographic plate is peculiarly sensitive to the ultra-violet and Roentgen vibrations, and in the matter of sensitiveness it far excels the human eye—being capable of receiving impressions over a range of at least fifteen octaves, and probably more. In fact, the photographic plate is practically our only means of ascertaining the existence of these vibrations.

ROENTGEN RAYS DO NOT OBEY the same laws as light rays; that is to say, they are not refracted or reflected by ordinary substances such as glass, so that they cannot, in the usual way, be brought to a focus by lenses. Glass is really very opaque to those rays, while aluminium, wood, ebonite and many other substances are very transparent, and allow them to pass with scarcely any absorption. Even flesh is very transparent, and it is this which makes the Roentgen valuable in surgery. The heavy metals—platinum, gold, copper, etc.—and bone are more opaque than most other things, and only allow the range to pass through when in comparatively thin sections.

ROENTGEN VIBRATIONS.

If our eyes, or other receptive faculty, were sensitive to the Roentgen vibrations, the appearance of our surroundings would be quite changed. We would see through each other—the "wall of flesh" would be removed, and we would appear as simple skeletons. Stone walls, wood, and some metals would appear transparent or semi-transparent; while we would find some difficulty in seeing through glass and several other things which are more or less clear to our vision at present.

SIGHT OF CLAIRVOYANT.

Whether this has anything to do with the sight of the clairvoyant is not determined so far; but it is evident that we poor mortals, with our one octave of sight perception, and about ten octaves of sound, far away down the scale of Nature's keyboard, are but poorly equipped to scale the heights and sound the depths of the surrounding universe. We have a slight knowledge of the existence of upwards of fifty octaves of vibration for which we have no receptive or responsive organs wherewith to sense them.

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

PSYCHIC SCIENCE.

The numerous experiments made during the past few years in the field of psychic science, especially in the direction of Thought transference, Telepathy and Hypnotic suggestion, though they have not contributed much to the knowledge of the earlier students of Mesmerism, are of considerable value to the thoughtful spiritual investigator, who is frequently at a loss to account for the conflicting teachings received through different media.

DOCTRINES PLAINLY OPPOSITE.

Where there is much disparity between the intellectual or moral plane of the individuals, he has not much difficulty in deciding which is the most reliable, but it not unfrequently happens that two mediums of apparently equal integrity and intelligence teach doctrines diametrically opposite to each other, and the investigator is in a dilemma which to believe.

THERE ARE TWO EXPLANATIONS for this; one is, that spirits as a rule hold on with considerable tenacity to any dogma or belief that had made a strong impression on them in earth life; and as we find in this life highly intelligent and truthful men preaching and teaching with great force and sincerity opposite doctrines not only relating to theology but to science, it is only natural to suppose that they will retain their opinions for some time after their transition to the spirit spheres, and if they are brought into contact with a plastic medium they will avail themselves of the opportunity to teach what they believe to be truth.

WHEN THE SPIRIT LEAVES THE BODY.

The prevalent idea that when the spirit leaves the body the scales fall from its eyes, and it at once realizes the truth, is erroneous. Even those who enter spirit life unhampered with creeds and dogmas, free from prejudice, and with good moral status, though they seek enlightenment from those more advanced, have to gain many experiences before they progress to the wisdom spheres whence truth is derived, but those who hold positive views on any particular subject connected with man's spiritual progress naturally gravitate together, and knowing (or thinking they know) the truth, do not seek for enlightenment until doubts enter their minds as to the solidity of their belief.

THE SECOND EXPLANATION

is that spirits as a rule impress ideas on the brain of the medium, which the medium gives expression to in words, whether spoken or written. He is the involuntary translator of the idea, and if he (or she as the case may be) has any positive opinions on the subject to which the idea belongs the form of its translation will partake largely of his belief. Again, though the medium be passive, if he is dominated by any positive mind in the circle or by the circle collectively holding some peculiar view or doctrine, the effect will be the same—a mistranslation of the idea whilst the same idea impressed upon the brain of a medium influenced by opposite views would diverge just as much in the opposite direction.

ABSOLUTE CONTROL.

There are instances of absolute control of both the physical and mental organism of the medium where the spirit can express itself literally, but it is very rare that an advanced spirit can associate itself so directly with gross matter, and therefore even what is received in this way is only valuable so far as it can be tested by reason or experiment, as you have no guarantee that the spirit is competent to teach absolute or approximately absolute truth.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of infomation on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Dead Man's Message," an occult romance by Florence Marryat. The author's wide experience in Spiritualism and her study of occult science have prepared her to write this romance, which will be found laden with gems picked up in the course of her investigation and studies. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Universe." What Force Is. The Beginning of Creation. What Matter Is. The Creation of the Earth. The Beginning of Life. Immortality. The Substance of Its Environments. Psychic Science. What the "Soul of Things" Is. Song of Psyche. A pamphlet by L. M. Rose. Contains 71 pages of interesting matter. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"History of the Inquisition." Every citizen of our country should read this concise history of that Romish churchly institution known as the Inquisition. The animus of Romanism against all institutions, beliefs and parties not in conformity with the ruling powers of the Romish hierarchy is plainly shown in these statements of veritable history. The devilishness and murderous malignity of the "Holy Inquisition" is scarcely paralleled in all the world's records of inhuman atrocities. It is for sale at this office, and will be mailed postpaid for 25 cents.

"Mahomet, the Illustrious." By Godfrey Higgins, Esq. (Library of Liberal Classics.) No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbons' work. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"Progression, or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-life." "The Evolution of Man." Two papers, given in the interest of spiritual science, by Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"From Night to Morn, or An Appeal to the Baptist Church." By Abby A. Judson. Gives an account of her experience in passing from the old faith of her parents to the light and knowledge of Spiritualism. It is written in a sweet spirit, and is well adapted to place in the hands of Christian people. Price 15 cents.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT

— AND —

THE SPIRIT WORLD.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Its value is recognized and acknowledged all over the world. Price, cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

MOSES HULL'S BOOKS

A List of His Noted Works.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

Wayside Jottings.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1.

The Spiritual Alps and How We Ascend Them.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents

New Thought.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. Price, only $1.50.

New Thought.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents.

Joan, the Medium.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

The Real Issue.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have.

All About Devils.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents.

Jesus and the Mediums, or Christ and Mediumship.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Spiritual Birth, or Death and Its To-Morrow.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents.

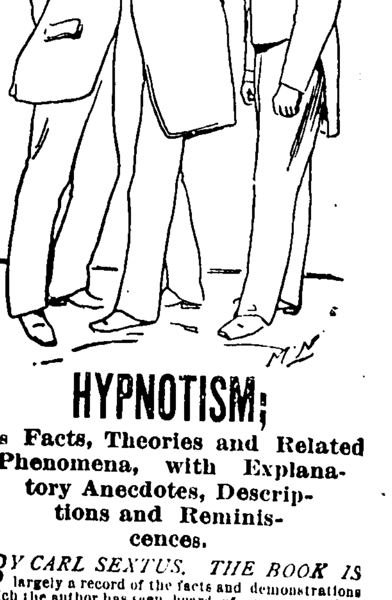
The Quarantine Raised.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. Price 10 cents.

Spiritual Songster.

By MATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price, 10 cts., or $6 per hundred.

The Mediumistic Experience of John Brown.



The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. Price, 50 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By MOSES HULL. Price, 5 cents.

Was John Calvin a Murderer?

Price, 5 cents.

HYPNOTISM;

Its Facts, Theories and Related Phenomena, with Explanatory Anecdotes, Descriptions and Reminiscences.

BY CARL SEXTUS. THE BOOK IS largely a record of the facts and demonstrations which the author has seen, heard of or presented in his own experiments. The history of the various phases of the science is succinctly presented, and the various theories clearly stated. Many of the experiments described occurred in Chicago. The pictorial illustrations add much to the interest and value of the book, which will be found very interesting to the general reader, as well as helpful and instructive to the student. The work is a handsome volume of 300 pages, bound in cloth. Price, $2.00. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though it escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as It Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 82 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 75 cents.

Researches in Oriental History.

BY G. W. BROWN, M. D.

One Vol. 12mo, 407 Pages, Cloth, $1.50.

GENERAL DIVISION.

1. RESEARCHES IN JEWISH HISTORY.
2. RESEARCHES IN ZOROASTRIANISM.
3. DERIVATION OF CHRISTIANITY.
4. WHENCE OUR ARYAN ANCESTORS?

The whole comprises an earnest but fruitless search for a Historical Jesus.

In this volume the Jews are clearly shown not to have been the holy and favored people they claim to have been. The Messianic idea is traced to the Bactrian Philosopher, 2350 years B. C., and its history is outlined, following the waves of emigration, until it is fully developed into Christianity, with a mythical hero, at Alexandria, in Egypt, soon after the commencement of the Christian era.

The book demonstrates that Christianity and its central hero are mythical; that the whole system is based on fraud, falsehood, forgery, fear and force; and that its rites, ceremonials, dogmas and superstitions are but survivals of so-called paganism. It shows vast research among the records of the past; its facts are mostly gleaned from Christian authority; and no person can read it without instruction and profit, whether he reaches the same conclusions with the author or otherwise. For sale at this office.

THE KORAN.

Commonly called the "Alkoran of Mohammed." Translated into English from the original Arabic, with explanatory notes taken from the most approved commentators. With a preliminary discourse by Geo. Sale. Price, cloth, $1.00. For sale at this office.

TREE AND SERPENT WORSHIP

By A. S. Hudson, M. D. Price, 15 cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

Henry Meiselbar: Q. (1) Does not pure logic forever conclusively establish the fact that there cannot be, ex necessitate pei an eternal future for the individual soul of man, without an eternal past?

(2) The infinite source of life being perfect at the time when the entire human race was in its infancy, why was man in that state a mere savage, devoid of mental and moral perception, governed by animal instincts?

(3) If the present and future life of man is progressive, according to the Spiritual philosophy, then according to the soul-germ theory must not the past life of the eternal ego of man have been likewise progressive, and if such progress is eternal, must not the past existence of the ego have been eternal also, and is not this theory refuted thereby?

(4) Why is not the ego entitled to the birthright of all mundane experiences of embodied life, that the human spirit not only deserves but needs?

(5) If there is a divine law of necessary successive embodiments, as the science and philosophy of Spiritualism of to-day is posited on the present and future life only, is not such science and philosophy incomplete if it does not account for or take into consideration the past history of the self-conscious individualized ego of man?

A. (1) The conclusions of pure logic depend on the data from which it starts. Most unfortunately for correct thinking, it has in all past times started with ideas instead of facts. It has taken these ideas as granted truths and then gone to a conclusion. Granting the correctness of the ideas, there was no avoiding the "irresistible conclusions of logic." Now, in the beginning let us write in the clearest sentence, that true wisdom has no use for ideas not based on observed facts. The ideas that have come down the ages from one philosopher to another, and by them rolled over and over, after the fashion of trundle-bugs, have been constantly arrayed by them into arguments of "irresistible logical conclusions," which the next coming philosophers rolled over and rearranged. At last real knowledge came by means of direct investigation and questioning of Nature, but with the persistency manifested by old forms, this method still survives, and the old ideas are rolled over by philosophers and jostle against and obstruct the true interpretation of the phenomena of the world.

The logical conclusions drawn from ideas are idle dreams and of no scientific value. The question has been answered fully recently in this department, in the negative, and we can here only emphasize that negative.

(2) We know nothing of the "infinite source of life," and that man derived his being therefrom is entirely hypothetical. The "infinite source" is an "idea," a will-o'-the-wisp of philosophy, which may or may not exist. That it fails to explain the scheme of creation, for which it is hypothecated, shows how chimerical it is.

Creation came by the method of evolution; by growth from the simple to the complex. Man began as an animal, a savage, and at length reached his present estate. This is the method pursued by the forces of the universe, whatever they may be, or whatever may direct them. Why they did not pursue different courses, was because with the conditions presented, they could not. The grooves along which the processes of this growth must proceed were as defined as the rails which the cars traverse to reach a given point.

(3) The ego, again, is an "idea," not a fact; an assumption that there is an independent, always-existing individuality, which granted gives away the question in debate. If the ego had an eternal past existence, and progressive, there would be an infinite past behind any individual, and in that infinite past would be infinite experiences, that is, all experiences. There would be nothing remaining to be learned, or felt, or gained. Such a past would give an infinitely perfect individuality. That man is not thus endowed brings the conclusion of "pure logic," that he has had no such past—that he has with his spirit and intellectual and moral endowments had a beginning in time. Whatever conclusions this may lead to, we must accept this statement as fact.

(4) Taking the ego as equivalent to the spirit, there may be no question as to its birthright to taking on any and all mundane experiences, but why should it need a desire to do so? The apparent object of creation is to raise spirit out of and above the domain of physical matter, not to draw it down to its level. It is an entirely unwarranted assertion that spirit gains by repeated contact with the physical world. Once freed therefrom, its return must be always a loss, and not a gain.

(5) The past history of every human spirit is the history of the globe from chaos. It is not, however, a history of spirit, but of matter. The modern spiritual philosophy is quite complete without taking for its introductory chapter the exploded theories of reincarnation, re-embodiment, pre-existence and soul-germs. It has blown all these old ideas into the waste-basket of dead things. Its distinctive feature, that which is entirely different from the old ideas, is the supremacy of law in the realm of spirit, and the application of the investigations of physical science. When we place our feet on this firm ground, and inquire for the facts before we theorize, the speculations of philosophers from the famed Greeks to Descartes, are the restless wanderings of the blind, inflated with the belief that they can see.

Among the earliest attempts to account for the origin of man, and the good and evil meted to him in this life, was reincarnation and pre-existence. They were the fancies of the childhood of the race, and like all the speculations of early man, are without truth. It may be stated as a law, that the earlier in time a belief, idea or speculation came, the greater the probability that it is false.

Whatever the consequences, the science of spirit begins with the birth of the individual. The first chapter of the genesis of spirit is the history of creation to the time man was evolved; its great volume is of the spirit's present attainments and future possibilities.

X. Y. Z., Chicago: Q. (1) How do you account for the fact that several honest mediums at several different times and places all have prophesied alike to the same stranger, and continue to do so; each in their own phase see, hear or read the same phenomenal success soon to occur, yet, not a word of it comes true until after an elapse of six years, and still each sees the success at hand?

(2) How do you account for it, that the same several mediums, at several times and places, continue to claim that a certain interviewer is a medium—one capable of seeing, hearing, writing, speaking, etc., and yet after six years of very honest and passive sitting alone, and sometimes in circles, not a single phase has materialized? Is it not a folly to continue?

(3) It is said no crime is committed without being seen by spirits. If so, why do they not reveal and show up the criminal? When they do not, are they not accessory to the crime, (which if proved, in the body, they would be punished for it)?

A. These questions are asked by a great many and form stumbling-blocks in the way of perfect belief. They have been answered in various forms already.

Such promises of mediumship are often made. The spirits are not infallible and cannot know until a trial has been made. Sitting alone, or with a circle now and then, is not a fair test. Only sitting in a well-organized circle for a prolonged series of seances, would prove or disprove the messages received. If nothing came of such sittings, it would be useless to go on. Our spirit friends are as anxious as we are to communicate and it devolves on us to supply the means, without which their presence must remain unrecognized.

If communications came as readily and certainly as messages through the telegraph, all the criticism of the foregoing questions would hold, but it must be remembered that there are great difficulties in the way.

No one denies that it is possible for a hypnotist to control a subject so as to make him think, speak and act as his manipulator desires, yet, probably, not one in a thousand subjects can be perfectly controlled, and not one in ten thousand made to speak the thoughts of the operator. The spirit is in the position of the hypnotist, and influences by the same law and methods, and only amidst many failures are correct messages given and received. You go to a medium and receive a suggestive message. You supply portions and think others possible. You go to another medium, and your influence is stronger than that of the spirits, and you receive a reflection of your own thoughts. It would be useless to go for confirmation to other mediums, for the same result would surely follow.

Although in rare cases there have been spirit communications as to lost treasures, crimes, etc., where it has been absolutely necessary to the welfare of the living, such information is rare and it must be understood that spirits take a different view of affairs from ourselves. It would not be well for us to have them become a detective and police force, and how can we expect it of them, when we know that they have their sphere of activities as well as ourselves.

J. A. Unthank: Q. Have we any authentic account, outside the Gospels, of Jesus and his apostles?

A. It is a most singular thing that in all ancient history, there is not a line, nor a single word of accredited authenticity, mentioning the greatest event that ever occurred in historic time—the advent of God himself in a man! Outside the narrow and unsatisfactory pages of the Gospels, all is silent and brooded over by darkness. Well has it been asked, if it were possible such a remarkable event could have taken place, unknown to the great historians of Rome.

John Lindstrom: Q. What do you know about God, or gods, as they have been represented to man through Scriptures and pamphlets, by so-called inspired writers?

A. This question has been and is repeatedly asked, and has been discussed continually in the columns of the Spiritual journals. It has been answered at length in this department. I am led to regard it as one of the most profitless subjects of thought, and of least concern. Confessedly, as the infinite, we cannot comprehend him, and hence it is waste to make the effort. First let us study man, and attempt to live true to the laws of our being. Man has been made a martyr to the gods or God, the creation of a selfish priesthood. It is time he escaped the chains of superstition. I know nothing about God. I have never conversed with a spirit who did. I, however, do know that in their vain disputes over the nature of God, in their ignorance, men have inflicted more suffering in the name of religion, than has come to the lot of humanity from all other sources. The gods have been the terror and the scourge of mankind, and there is not a crime suggested by fiendish hate and pious selfishness that has not been perpetrated in their name.

INSANITY OF ENGLISH PEOPLE—ONE PERSON IN EVERY 306 INHABITANTS OF UNITED KINGDOM DEMENTED.

Professor J. Holt Schooling, fellow of the Royal Statistical Society of Great Britain, has just completed a very interesting investigation by which he has been enabled to show some curious facts relative to the insanity of the British people. He tells us how many persons go mad and why they do so. He declares that one person in every 306 of the population of Britain is a maniac, and that that ratio promises to increase.

The results of Professor Schooling's mathematical calculation, boiled down into succinct facts, show that in every 10,000 of the English and Welsh population 31.4 people are lunatics. In every 10.00 of the Scotch population, 33.6 people are lunatics. In every 10,000 of the Irish population, 40.3 people are lunatics.

Entering into the causes as to why men go mad, Professor Schooling strikes a mighty blow for the cause of temperance when he makes the statement, solely inspired by his investigations and the accurate results thereof, that drink, liquor, sends mad nearly one-third of all the persons who become insane in Great Britain from the eight leading causes of insanity in that territory.

He places these eight principal causes of insanity and the percentage of each as regards every hundred of lunatics as follows: Drink, 33.6; domestic troubles, 15.1; mental anxiety, 13.4; old age, 13.2; adverse circumstances, 13; accidents, 6.5; religious exitement, 4; love affairs, 3.2.—New York Herald.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col, Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

Better it were that all the miseries which nature owns were ours at once, than guilt.—Shakspeare.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

The rights of government are based on eternal justice.

Subject:—The Rights and Sphere of Government.

For the older groups: The rights of government are said to rest on the consent of the governed.

Not true, for those who make repressive laws necessary do not consent to such laws and are not given a choice.

Nor on the will of the majority, unless the majority comprehend justice better than the minority. The minority may be in the right; and there are instances where one man advocated the truth against the world. The laws as expressions of the wisdom of a few good men may be far better than society. In such cases they will be powerless, unless in the hands of an absolute power, which cannot exist in a republic, unless the majority are on the side of virtue.

A republic cannot endure unless a majority of its citizens are able to govern themselves.

The necessity for a government arises from the necessity for restraint, which makes any form better than none for savage peoples. The safety of those who have advanced, depends on their holding the less advanced and savage element in check—not by individual powers, but by organic force.

Savage people must be governed by an absolute monarchy, represented by chief, autocrat or king. Only an advanced people can rule themselves.

As government does not derive its rights from a divine source, the church and state should remain distinct. The most horrible cruelty has been perpetrated by the church to maintain its temporal power. The best form of government is that of the people—republican: Its danger is in ignorance; its safety is through education.

What is now the most threatening danger to our republican form of government?

Is it centralization?

Is it monopoly?

Is it the encroachment of church power?

Is it the immigration of ignorant millions which cannot conform to our institutions, and become harmonized therewith?

For the younger groups: The leaders explain how the lyceum assembles, and the necessity of there being order observed, each officer having his or her own sphere of duties. If all do what is assigned them, and the members strive to carry out the intentions of their leaders, there are the best results. If they were leaderless, there would be confusion and nothing gained.

Hence there must be government or control. The lyceum by electing its officers is a miniature republic. Its conductor is its president, the leaders are his cabinet.

Why should you obey your parents? For this reason, that the home is a little republic also. (It ought not be a tyranny, as it sometimes is.)

You should obey from love; because having more experience, they ought to be wiser.

Restraint and discipline are essential parts of true education.

We have all to learn not to do as we please, but to do that which reason commands. Just control exerted over us by others, educates us to control ourselves.

You are inclined to trick your playmates, to cause them annoyance. When you resist you grow strong and manly, and show how well you are able to govern yourself.

MEMORY GEMS.

A government by the people, of the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

To be just, government must guarantee the rights of all.

No one should be granted privileges not granted to all.

To the laborer belongs products of his labor, and a just government gives him full reward.

Just laws represent the concrete wisdom of ages.

If we desire to rule ourselves, we must acquire the education which gives self-control.

The good citizen takes an active interest in governmental affairs.

WORK OF ISA WILSON KAYNER.

It has been sometime since I have written any jottings by the way, owing to a very severe attack of "La Grippe" which for a few days held me very close to the borderland. It has been something like two months since I was taken down, and I have not fully recovered as yet. While at Unionville, Mo., we were able to do some good work, both in the hall and at our home, that reached the leading people of the place, many of them never having given any thought or attention to the subject of Spiritualism or the question of immortality.

Mrs. Kayner, through the healing force, enabled to do some good to some that were sore afflicted.

From there we went to Kirksville, Mo., the place where I was taken sick. The town is filled with sickness of chronic cases, it being the home of the Ostaopathy College, founded by Dr. Still, who received his information through his own mediumship.

Mrs. Kayner held meetings there every night for one week, and created quite a stir and inquiry, but I became so sick that I was not able to help her at the hall, and we thought best to work toward home. We then went to Keokuk, Iowa, and Bonaparte, where we were able to reach a few of the people that were willing to learn, but I grew worse and the doctor advised me to return home at once, and keep very quiet, or my time was very short. So we took the train for Chicago, where Mrs. Kayner remained a week, and then started out into the field again. We had left the city over one year before to be gone five weeks and circumstances had kept us away from home nearly thirteen months. As soon as I was able I again joined her at Kirkville, and after finishing the work there came to Ft. Madison, Iowa, where we found kind friends ready to assist and extend a helping hand.

Some of the tests given in the hall last evening were very sharp and created a good deal of wonder. Two or three came forward and asked how she knew those things. This is a very religious city, nearly one-half the population being Catholic, and it is up-hill work to spread the seed. But one thing is certain, that after our departure toward home many will have different ideas of Spiritualism than before we came among them. Would be glad to hear from friends in cities on our way home desiring one or more lectures and test meetings. T. D. KAYNER.

"Poems of Progress." By Lizzie Doten. In this volume, this peerless poet of Spiritualism may be read in her varied moods, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." It is a book to be treasured and richly enjoyed by all who love genuine poetry, and especially by Spiritualists. The volume is tastily printed and bound. Price $1.

LIFE AND LIGHT.

"GOD IS NOT GOD OF THE DEAD, BUT OF THE LIVING."

God is not the God of the dead, but of the living. It is our duty, as teachers of this most beautiful philosophy to tell unto you of to-day, because of truth, that there is no death, but that all is life. All is light, and because of light and knowledge God lives, with you, is of you, and ever shall be.

No theme on which I might speak could be so readily misconstrued as this one, positively proving—not necessarily from a scientific basis, but from a basis of facts—that not one single thing is lost. All is life. All tends upward toward the higher unfoldments, one expression after another.

This word God has been treated in many instances most shamefully, and again reverenced and revered in many of your homes as a person to whom upon bended knees you should go in worship; and yet, as a personality we have never beheld him in the spirit spheres of immortal life. The great Power so generally known to you of to-day as God is the power of attraction which lives, which governs, which moves, which is the all in all of every one of you.

The question might be asked: How shall we know this power? How shall we become acquainted with this power of attraction? Is it necessary for us to leave our houses of clay in order to look upon the beauteous face of the divine power? Must we leave all conditions of to-day, to be in a state of consciousness or a diviner sphere, to behold this God?

Let us see. Consciousness at this time, in this day and age of the world comes to your rescue. It stands out in front of you and dares you to step aside and hold to the dead beliefs of the past. Has a single one them held good? Ask yourselves, and what is the answer? Has one of the dogmas or the man-made creeds of yesterday established for you an abiding place in the next expression? Never! You are your own rewarders, and you are your own punishers.

It is too oftentimes the case that men are brought into this world, or upon this planet, hampered around about because of ignorance, because of conditions the mother knows nothing about. He is brought into this world—or should be so—of knowledge, given the wisdom from on high, and is thrown upon the cold bosom of a merciless shore, as it were, with scarcely one thing to look forward to, and being at swords' points with self—there is not a particle of light anywhere. This condition attracts its own kind. This condition breeds licentiousness, breeds enmity, breeds strife.

Passing from this expression into the next, he meets face to face exactly that which he has sown here. He may find that his cup of joy has been turned upside down, with nothing in it. Scarcely a drop some will have, while others will find their cups full of enjoyment and contentment, because born under good conditions, brought into the world at a time when light might be given.

The question brought before your minds at this hour is a most serious one. I dare say all of you are willing to begin to think, to act and to be something for yourself. The air all around about you is full of conditions from those who were brought into this world and who have passed out undeveloped. I come as a messenger to you from spirit life, and I come not to destroy but to fulfill. I come to bear into your midst the truth which shall live on through time. I come as one of you, teaching and progressing myself at the same time, that we may be at-one-ment with self divine.

The good book has said, judge not thy fellowman, because if thou dost judge, thou, too, shalt be judged. Did you ever think what a serious thing it is to say, "Thou art lower than I?" Oh, deal thou mercifully with thy fellowman. Go out in kindly thought toward him. What would be the result if I could put institute this one thought in your minds. Instead of chaos, instead of disturbances, we might have peace; children of light would be born, and children of lust would be forgotten. This planet would be in harmony, and the to and fro currents of evolutionary thought would be brought to the front as one great massive structure built upon the solid rock of ages, and all time could never overthrow it.

All around about those of you who are gathered here are the voices of your loved ones, imploring of you to seek that you may find. Do not swallow the books of the learned men of yesterday, but stop and think carefully if you are at-one-ment with self. Ask yourself if you have risen to a plane of consciousness where you can send out a thought that will help your fellowman. He that is filthy will be filthy still. Being out of harmony with self, the vibrations that will be sent from that soul will be of a filthy nature. Because it comes from the soul within which is selfish, it comes from a desire for only that which will be good for one man, which will lift him in the eyes of his fellowmen, and tear down A. B. and C., that he may be above them. Is this the teaching of loved ones gone before? Is this the teaching of Confucius who lived long, long ago? Is this the teaching of Jesus of Nazareth? No; they said: "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you." Idleness has brought conditions for long ages that make men rob instead of work to help themselves in this warfare of earthly condition.

Are you who are here at this time willing to go out with me into the great field of activity? Are you ready to march to the martial music of drums and go with me to call recruits to do good to your fellowmen? Stop for a moment and ask soul-consciousness, Are I and my Father one? Does the God of the living live within me, and shall I die, or shall I be born again?

Except a man be born of the spirit spiritual, he will not—or cannot—see the kingdom of heaven. It is necessary, dear friends, for you to become acquainted with self-consciousness from within, else the kingdom will not be attained by you.

Oh, let the light of immortal life as it comes forth brighten your pathways. Let them whom you have called dead come forward and give their words of cheer. Clothe not yourselves in black, to draw around about you conditions that will make you sad, for I assure you that your clothing has a great deal to do with the vibrations that make sorrowful or bright your pathway. Let the light of the higher intelligences come forth. Let them breathe their words of love and good cheer over you. Let your thought be this: that I shall come forth as a flower in the spring time, I shall unfurl and give forth my light. I shall be at one with self. I shall find a resting-place, and I shall have it here to-day, because I am doing unto my fellowmen just exactly as I want them to do unto me. Never have I taken advantage of a single one to raise myself to another plane that my fellowmen might grovel at my feet. This is the power of light. This is the knowledge of him who hath said all is life.

The great power that fills all space is of the highest life, and is born, is incarnate in every one of you alike. No more suffering—no more sorrowing—no more death.

When will it be, you ask, that the human family will cease to be at swords' points with each other. We are near the time when we will no longer be at war, but at peace. When fathers and mothers of love will be united, and that which would bring forth deceit and inharmony will be buried in the past and forgotten forever.

It has been said oftentimes by some of our best theologians that away down there is one who was brought forth, the same as any of you have been, now in torture because of conditions that he passed through while here. It is not necessary for us to go down into the bottomless pit to find this condition, and I fear that many who are here need only to look within to find it, because they have been out of harmony with self. They have felt the condition creeping upon them, and they know not how to throw it off.

Oh, dear friends, go into the silence. Depend not upon the words of learned men, but in the silence of earnest, prayerful thought, ask to be advised aright—ask for that help that shall illuminate your pathway and which brings your loved ones back to you. Let your light shine. It makes no difference under what name you have professed. But this I do beg of you. Let the dead beliefs of the past be forgotten. Let truth be affirmed. Affirm that all is good. I and my Father are one. I am life and light and liberty, and I shall scatter these seeds abroad. Oh, let the light gladden your pathway. Listen to the babble of tongues as they gather around, seeking to impress you aright. I can hear the voices of loved ones, hovering near, asking to come in and sup with you. And around every one of you who are here are the bearers of truth, carrying forth upon the wings of time messages that shall never be forgotten, teaching the human family through the power of impression to do right.

Oh may the angel world come closer to you to-night, go with you to your different homes, be with you wherever you go, teaching you to do good, to have peace and to forget worry. May each one of you come into oneness with loved ones who come as teachers from the shores of immortal.

And remember that the great power known to you as God, is the God of all life, because there is no death.

NORIE LEE CLAMAN.

N. S. A. MEETING.

BOARD MEETING AND MASS-MEETING IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

The quarterly meeting of the Board of the N. S. A. occurred on Tuesday the 6th. As usual there is a stir among the faithful, for the Board meeting means the arrival from several opposite directions of the workers (who are members of the Board) in the spiritual vineyard.

A great loss was felt in the absence of Secretary Woodbury who was called home to Mass., because of the transition of his mother to higher life. The deliberations of the Board were, however, most complete and comprehensive including the consideration of Spiritual reports of committees and agents and the passing upon and granting of charters, and a great amount of routine business.

Among important and encouraging reports, was that of the work of the President, Mr. Barrett, the admission of several new societies as members of the N. S. A.; the report of the good results of the many mass conventions held throughout the country; and the favorable report of progress made by Special Agent Frank Walker, concerning the Jubilee of Spiritualism to be held under the auspices of the N. S. A. at Rochester, N. Y., in 1898.

The business was finished after eight hours continuous work, excepting one hour's adjournment for dinner.

The two sessions of the public meeting held in Masonic Temple Wednesday afternoon and evening constituted an occasion of great interest and benefit, all of the talented speakers on the Board of the N. S. A. being called into requisition, besides local talent in this city and Baltimore. The meetings were interesting and profitable.

That of the afternoon, however, was rather abruptly and prematurely terminated (or rather substantially so) by the funeral services held in honor of Captain Samuel G. Cabell, at 4:30, Mrs. Richmond and Mr. Barrett being called upon to officiate on the occasion. Many of the audience had already gone to Capitol Hill, where Captain Cabell's late residence is located, and nearly all followed Mr. Barrett and Mrs. Richmond, when they left the hall. Mr. Wiggin and Dr. Fuller tried to hold the fort "with about a baker's dozen," but gave it up after a little.

Thursday Dr. Fuller and Mr. Barrett were already off for Massachusetts, to Boston to fill his part as Editor-in-chief of the Banner of Light—a position, by the way, that does credit to both the management of the Banner and to its newly appointed Editor-in-chief. The other, Dr. Fuller, to his home and congregation in Worcester, Mass.

Thursday evening Mr. Moulton and Mrs. Richmond were welcome guests at the Ladies' Aid. On that day Mrs. Pettingill left for Lily Dale, N. Y., and Mr. Frank Walker for his home in Western New York to carry forward his admirable work in arranging for a three day's meeting in Syracuse next week, for the purpose of organizing a State Association. All the speakers who are connected with the N. S. A. officially will be at the Syracuse meeting.

Friday none of the visiting members were left at the Capitol excepting Mr. Moulton, who remains over for a few days, and Mrs. Richmond, who received a few visits and called on old friends, she having leave of absence from her church in Chicago for one Sunday, stops over en-route to Syracuse at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where meetings are arranged for her on the 11th. Mrs. Richmond is the guest while in Washington of Adelaide Johson, the Sculptor, and they truly seem to be "kindred spirits."

These meetings effect great good in the movement here; as added to from the constant untiring energy of Secretary Woodbury at Headquarters, these quarterly meetings being great and encouraging waves of strength from the entire country, ripples of which remain until the next meeting, and indeed a steadily increasing tide which knows no ebbing but increases with each recurring season. WASHINGTONIAN.

April 10th, 1897.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75c. For sale at this office.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Thomas Paine: Was He Junius?" An interesting pamphlet by Wm. H. Burr. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

A REMARKABLE DOCTOR BOOK

HAS JUST BEEN ISSUED, ENTITLED

THE NATURE CURE

BY PHYSICAL AND MENTAL METHODS.

A BRIDGE FROM THE OLD TO THE NEW; THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY IN MEDICAL PRACTICE. A CLEAR, SHORT-CUT TREATISE ON THE CAUSE AND CURE OF DISEASE.

By MARVIN E. CONGER, M. D.
Assisted by ROSA C. CONGER, M. D.

The title page is suggestive of important changes in the methods of curing the sick and maintaining health.

THE NATURE CURE is divided into twelve chapters, as follows:

First—Introductory.
Second—Cause of Disease.
Third—Food and Drink.
Fourth—Exercise.
Fifth—Fevers; Cause and Treatment.
Sixth—Disease Inflammatory.
Seventh—Epidemic and Chronic Disease.
Eighth—Baths.
Ninth—Women and Children. (By Rosa C. Conger, M. D.)
Tenth—Useful Recipes.
Eleventh—Object Lessons and Tables.
Twelfth—Miscellaneous Health Suggestions.

Read their definition of medicine: "Any method or remedy that will remove or modify pain without injury, and restore the sick to a normal condition is practical medicine."

The new and better methods of curing the sick and preventing disease, have never been so clearly stated in plain English, for the plain people, as in NATURE CURE.

It is claimed for this book that it is the most complete doctor book ever published, and sold at the lowest price. It is claimed that disease is not a technical, mysterious, theoretical condition or subject, but only a fact that all may understand. More experience, study and time have been expended to evade and pervert the truth, and deceive the people for obtaining money, than to teach the truth and save life and health. THE NATURE CURE reaches the case of this important subject.

The book has 370 pages, is strongly and handsomely bound in cloth for $2.00, and will be mailed upon receipt of price.

ADDRESS THIS OFFICE, 40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

"THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS."

A Primary Course of Lessons in Celestial Dynamics.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT."

This important primary work is the first practical exposition of the Astro-Magnetic forces of Nature—in their relation to man—that has yet been issued by the American press. It contains fourteen special lessons, embracing each department of human life, in such plain, simple language that a child can understand the elementary principles laid down. And in addition to these lessons is an Appendix, containing a full explanation of all technical and scientific terms in general use upon the subject, thus forming a brief, yet practical Astro Dictionary. This work is illustrated with special plates.

For Sale at This Office. Price. Fifty Cents.

CELESTIAL DYNAMICS,

Being a Normal Course of Study in the Astro-Magnetic Forces of Nature.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT," "THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS," ETC.

A magnificent and complete course of Astro-metaphysical study, embodying Vital Principles of Life, Mental Force, Sickness and Disease. With the only true and really Scientific method of treating the sick successfully.

Mental Healers, Meta-physicians, and all who practice the Healing Art Divine should give "Celestial Dynamics" a thorough and impartial study, and thus learn the real cause of their frequent failures.

No Astro-Student can afford to be without this work, if he would understand the Meta-physics of Astrology.

This work was specially prepared for publication to meet the demands of a large and very earnest class of people who cannot afford to pay for a regular course of instruction under a qualified teacher. And those who can afford this privilege will find the work an invaluable text-book to their studies.

The Price is One Dollar Only, and is within reach of all who seek light. For sale at this office.

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 339 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton

"THE DREAM CHILD,"

A FASCINATING ROMANCE OF two worlds. By Florence Huntley. Price: paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00. Books like "The Dream Child" spur humanity on to make more and more demands of this nature, and will open up new heights and depths of spiritual knowledge.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Will, I believe, take its place beside Bulwer's "Zanoni" and the "Seraphita" of Balzac.—"Daily Capital," Topeka, Kansas. Although simple and unvarnished with any inflammable descriptions, enthralls the mind to the exclusion of other thoughts, until reluctantly the reader closes the last page.—Minneapolis "Sunday Times."

A SEX REVOLUTION,

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER,

Author of "Helen Harlow's Vow," "The Occult Forces of Sex," "Perfect Motherhood," and many other works. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

The Occult Forces of Sex

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

This admirable work consists of three pamphlets embodied in one volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

THE EVERLASTING GOSPEL.

*A COMPILATION OF THE LEC*tures given by the Spirit Band through the mediumship of Mrs. Magdalena Kline. This volume consists of a series of lectures, messages and poems, written and delivered in public through the mental organism of Mrs. Magdalena Kline, a trance, clairvoyant and inspirational medium. Their tone is excellent and their spirit good; and even though one may find some ideas that differ from those he has held, yet he will find much to please, benefit and instruct. The reverence with which Jesus is mentioned will please many, although the ideas advanced concerning Jesus and Christianity are not after the orthodox standard. The book contains 488 large pages, and will be sent postpaid for $1.50. For sale at this office.

HISTORY OF ATHAREL.

LIFE IN THE STONE AGE. THE history of Atharel, Chief Priest of a Band of Aryans. This pamphlet, containing 91 pages, was written through the mediumship of U. G. Figley, and is intensely interesting. Price 30 cents. For sale at this office.

Why She Became a Spiritualist,

Twelve lectures. By Abby A. Judson. This book should be read by every Spiritualist. Price $1.00; postage 10 cents.

COMMON SENSE.

By Thomas Paine. A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

THE QUARANTINE RAISED.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. By MOSES HULL. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

PULPIT, PEW AND CRADLE.

By Helen H. Gardener. One of her brightest, wittiest and strongest lectures against the Bible. Every woman should read it and know her friends and enemies. Price 10 cents.

LIFE OF THOMAS PAINE.

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

HISTORY OF THE INQUISITION

Just the book for those seeking information concerning that most damnable institution known in history—the Roman Catholic Inquisition. Every American citizen should become acquainted with the facts so succinctly stated in this valuable record. It shows the methods used by the Romish Church to exterminate those who reject its beliefs and claims. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents.

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH,

OR DEATH AND ITS TO-MORROW.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

BIBLE MARVEL WORKERS,

AND THE WONDROUS POWER which helped or made them perform mighty works and utter inspired words, together with some Personal Traits and Characteristics of Prophets, Apostles, and Jesus, or New Readings of "The Miracles," by ALLEN PUTNAM. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

LIFE, A NOVEL.

It beams with advanced thought, and is fascinating. Price, 50 cents.

Romanism and the Republic.

By Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, M. A. Every patriot should read it. Price $1.00.

A NEW CHRISTIANITY.

(Continued from page 1.)

ing. The old punishment in an everlasting fire had no meaning; but punishment by the fire of God's love has a meaning, and that meaning is progress. God's children are ever to advance, and it may need a torment which can in no better way be described than as a fire; but always a loving flame, which only burns away the evil, leaving the good more glorious than ever before. Go back as far as you can and then come toward the present time and you see everywhere plainly visible the marks of progress. With this doctrine accepted, you will hear no more of the conflict between science and religion.

"Other articles may be added, but the few which I have given are the essentials of the new religion. Hopeful, uplifting, inspiring are they all, and also accordant with the methods used in nature. Science and religion are no longer enemies; but united to assist in the progress of mankind. Every one can understand this religion, the child as well as the man. I know not and care not what name shall be given to the new religion; but it shall weld those who love into one great brotherhood for the help of those who suffer. Each shall prefer the other before himself. At last the old serpent who has worked much evil, shall be forever subdued, and selfishness shall be destroyed, when the reign of the saints shall begin, and there shall be a purification by fire; but it shall not be a physical fire; it shall be the spiritual fire of divine love, which shall burn out the evil and unclean, leaving brighter than ever the good and the clean."

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST

(Continued from page 1.)

was awarded to Master Virgil Bellows, a son of Conductor B. F. Bellows. The prize was a book of "Portraits of Noted Anti-Vivisectionists of Europe and America," by Mrs. Fairchild-Allen, editor of the magazine and one of the most argumentive workers for the suppression of all forms of cruelty, particularly vivisection. Several packages of her literature on last named subject have been put in the hands of prominent Cleveland people. The facts, and sworn statements therein contained cannot fail to produce an effect greatly needed.

ANTI-VIVISECTION,

The results of the Angell Contest in Cleveland are all for good. The Lyceum Band of Mercy deserves great praise, as does the manager, Mr. Thomas Lees, who is always ready to take up any work for advancement.

ONE OF THE AUDIENCE.

HIGHER SPIRITUALISM.

(Continued from page 1.)

than two hundred communications on tablets and slates. On the latter many pictures and flowers. He has a stack of spirit photographs, all of which are perfectly satisfactory. All communications have been received either upon the original slates or by copying. Among his many tests from the platform, he speaks in glowing terms of some from E. W. Emerson, Mrs. G. Partridge, Ollie Blodgett, J. Frank Baxter, and about all the prominent platform test mediums in the field, many of whom are now in the spirit-land.

Brother Seeley prizes very highly all that has come to him from the spirit side of life, but the pride of the home—and when I speak of Mr. Seeley, his loving and pleasant wife is always included—the great pride of the home are the exquisite paintings of his spirit son and daughter, his father, natural as life, and a beautiful picture of himself and wife on one canvas and in one frame, all of which are framed in gilt. These were obtained through the Bangs sisters under strict test conditions. His spirit daughter was the artist for the picture of himself and wife. All this I get from the brother's own tongue, and such a variety of communications from the spirit side of life as he showed me, it has never been my province to behold before.

Men have cried out against him, and men may yet criticise him, but Brother Seeley lives in as supreme joy with these mementoes, these tokens of love that are as immortal as life itself, as can any man or woman who sees fraud and deception in everything and everybody—most certainly.

Is there any "higher Spiritualism?" Is there anything sweeter in the philosophy? Certainly not to Mr. and Mrs. Seeley, and there are thousands with a like appreciation for the phenomena.

Not all lecturers are fraud-hunters, and not all mediums are frauds, but in getting a "higher Spiritualism" let us give all a chance to select for themselves that which seemeth best to them, and pull together in every phase.

Sterling, Ill. DR. T. WILKINS.

DEMONIAC INFLUENCE.

(Continued from page 2.)

"The hound." "The puppy," "The puppy," "Punch him, Bob," "Kill him." The plan of battle after the first round was highly displeasing to Mrs. Fitz, and in no gentle terms she chided the seconds for not advising different tactics.

"Make him keep punching Corbett's wind and he will win!" she screamed. "You idiots, you don't know how to second a man; you have lost your senses. Do you want to defeat my husband? Do as I tell you now or I'll make you wish you had."

Not once during the entire scene did a shade of pallor cross the woman's face. On the contrary, her cheeks were fiery red and she leaned over the railing in front of her seat, her eyes blazing and her gloved fingers crushed into the palms of her hands, she looked a veritable fury.

At the end of every round, as the New-Zealander stretched himself back in his chair, she shouted to him words of encouragement and advice, continually insisting that he aim the blows at Corbett's body and let the face alone.

"It's the only way to whip the hound, Bob," she cried over and over, "and if you do as I tell you he can't last the round. The whelp is going now; hit on the body; punch him in the wind."

When the end came, and Corbett staid upon his knees until the fatal ten had been counted, Mrs. Fitz was almost mad with joy. Shouting congratulations and endearing terms to the conqueror, she stood upon her chair waving her handkerchief until the tide of humanity which swept down on the sides of the arena toward the ring carried her from the place.

From the time Corbett made his way to Fitz's corner and desperately attempted to continue the fight the new champion's wife, beside herself with rage, clambered upon the platform and frantically struggled to get at the defeated man.

"I'll kill him," she screamed, "I'll kill the coward," and Corbett would have had a woman to deal with, and a rather formidable woman at that, had several of her friends not restrained her. She was also carried back to her husband's corner and then off the stage.

Friendship, of itself a holy tie, is made more sacred by adversity.—Dryden.

IMPORTANT!

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

G. E. WATKINS, M. D., AYER, MASS.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS.

(Continued from page 1.)

not be converted to Spiritualism by lectures or reading the philosophy—such are only converts by faith. Most prefer knowledge, which the phenomena give. However, this is only a difference of opinion, which is easy to settle by each one taking his choice. I shall choose both when possible.

Another item I wish to suggest is that Spiritualists patronize our papers. I am a poor man, but have managed to take The Progressive Thinker since its first issue, and for over a year have taken the Light of Truth. Spiritual papers are my mental food, and as essential to the mind, as food to the body. So all who thirst for knowledge, partake of that which gives light and life to our higher aspirations. May progress and happiness be your constant companion is the desire of yours.

St. John, Ill. WM. A. THOMPSON.

SCANDINAVIANS!

Send for a free sample copy of Den Skandinaviske Spiritualisten. 248 Cedar Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn. 387

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free.]

M. S. Beckwith, for many years the president of the St. Louis Spiritual Association, passed to the spirit world, April 7, 1897. At the crematory where, at his desire, his body was disposed of, appropriate spiritual services were held conducted by Mr. Grimshaw and Mrs. Curts. Our brother faithfully discharged his duties here and has been called higher. SEC.

Born to spirit life, Jennie Perrin, of Buffalo, N. Y., February 17th. Funeral address by the writer the 19th following. She was a firm Spiritualist. A husband, two children, mother and other relatives mourn her loss.

MRS. A. E. SHEETS.

James Dovan, of Buffalo, N. Y., passed to spirit life Sunday, March 28th. He was an earnest and conscientious worker in the cause of Spiritualism. He held the position of treasurer of "The First Spiritual Church of Buffalo" from the time it was organized in 1890, was ever faithful to his trust and enthusiastic in advancing the interests of this association. Mrs. A. E. Sheets of Grand Ledge, Mich., officiated at the funeral. His remains were laid to rest in Forest Lawn cemetery.

L. C. BEESING, Sec.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

CATARRH INHALER FREE.

I will for a short time mail any reader of The Progressive Thinker my new scientific Aerial Catarrh Inhaler, much improved, and medicine for one year, on three days' trial. If it gives satisfaction, send me $1; if not, return it in the original package. Catarrh, asthma, headache, partial deafness, roaring, colds or pain in the head immediately relieved and speedily cured. Address DR. E. J. WORST, Ashland, O 395

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds," By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS.

. . SPECIALISTS . .

In All Chronic Diseases.

Dr. J. M. Peebles is one of the best known physicians, authors, reformers living. Dr. Burroughs is a graduate of the medical colleges, the last being an allopathic college. He has been with Dr. Peebles for some fifteen years, assisting him in his sanitariums and traveling with him abroad, and for the past few years doing most of the medical work.

Our success is the wonder of the present generation.

WE HAVE NO EQUALS

as psychic physicians. Our diagnoses are MARVELS OF ACCURACY. We use only the purest and most etherealized, vitalized and magnetized medicines.

A Cure Guaranteed in Every Case Taken!

For an absolutely correct diagnosis of your case, send name, age, sex and one leading symptom to

Drs. Peebles & Burroughs,

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

NOTES OF FIELD WORK.

April finds me in my home at Grand Ledge, Mich., enjoying a needed rest, and assisting in preliminary work for the opening of our camp-meeting, July 25, for which an encouraging outlook is noted. Our speakers' and mediums' home will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the session.

While serving the Buffalo Temple Society during March, the work was made more effective by the hearty co-operation of the mediums and members of the same. Mrs. Dr. Matterson (my hospitable hostess) whom the regulars of that city can neither crush nor intimidate, is preaching hourly by her marvelous gifts, in medical clairvoyance, while her home at 248 N. Division street is thronged with patients. Mrs. Atcheson is another medium of whom I heard most excellent reports, as being thoroughly reliable. Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Smith, and others whom I had not opportunity of becoming well acquainted with are doing an immense amount of good work in a quiet way, through the use of their respective mediumistic gifts, if one can judge by the words of praise bestowed. I shall remember the Buffalo friends as a brave band of workers, and wish them every success.

One of Michigan's up-to-date societies—that of Flint, has reached out and been so fortunate as to secure that peerless lecturer and inspirational poet, Lyman C. Howe for April and May. He should be retained in the State as long as possible, as he is a power for good, and always on the side of right. Owing to the close monetary conditions, my Cleveland engagements for May is discontinued, therefore that month is open. MRS. A. E. SHEETS.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

"The Prophets of Israel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

"Hypnotism Up to Date." By Sidney Flower. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 25 cents. Sold at this office.

"The Great Roman Anaconda." By Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, Ph. D., ex-priest of the diocese of Cleveland, O. A sharp and pointed letter to Bishop Hortsmann. It is good reading, and should be widely distributed, that people may be enlightened concerning the ways and methods of Rome and its priesthood. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

"The Occult Forces of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. Three pamphlets are embodied in this volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

A new edition of "Three Sevens," by the Phelons, is just issued. The May Arena says: "The gist of such books as Dr. Phelon's 'Three Sevens,' and other works descriptive of or alluding to the various occult societies, which seem to have existed for ages, has never, until recently, been said so openly and plainly that 'he who runs may read.'" Cloth $1.25, postpaid. For sale at this office.

"Angel Whisperings for the Searcher After Truth." By Hattie J. Ray. A volume of genuine poems, of such fine moral and spiritual tone that all will be pleased and benefited by it. For sale at this office. Price $1.

"The Relation of the Spiritual to the Material Universe. The Law of Spirit Control." By Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

"Mediumship and Its Development, and How to Mesmerize to Assist Development." By W. H. Bach. Especially useful to learners who seek to know and utilize the laws of mediumship and development, and avoid errors. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

An abridged edition of "Antiquity Unveiled" gives in condensed form its more important statements and references. It is in stiff board covers, and the price is 50 cents. For sale at this office.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL! . . . . .

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly,

REBECCA LEVY.

8331 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo

SIDE BY SIDE.

CRIME AND ORTHODOXY—THEY KEEP PACE—EACH INCREASING MUCH FASTER THAN OUR POPULATION."

To the Editor:—Mr. Ward Atwood in the last issue of your most valuable paper quotes Judge Culver as saying "murders have increased from 1,000 per annum previous to 1886 to about 14,000 last year. This is indeed "astounding," as he truly says, but it is more astounding to know that other crimes and evils, like intemperance, dishonesty, poverty, prostitution, suicides, bankruptcy and a general deterioration of morals and virtue, are increasing in like proportion. And it is most astonishing (or should be to church members) that orthodoxy, as represented by the popular churchanity of the day, is increasing pari passu.

If proof is needed of such statements it can be had in overwhelming abundance. Secretary Irons, of the National Prison Association said a few years ago that crime was increasing about three times as fast as the increase of our population. Rev. Dr. Dorchester, the great church statistician, says: "The evangelical churches of the United States increased from 364,000 communicants in 1,800 to about 12,000,000 in 1886—a thirty-two-fold increase, while the population increased only eleven fold." Other confirmatory facts might be adduced, but space forbids. Nor has this ratio of increase been materially changed since 1886, as we judge by the statements in denominational year-books and the church papers.

Now conclude from these striking facts; first, that if present conditions continue, contributing to the rapid multiplication of crime on the one hand and churchanity on the other, two or three times as fast as our population, it is only a question of time when we will all be in the churches and we will all be in hell also, that is if a carnival of crime constitutes hell—and that is the worst hell we know anything about.

Second, that the orthodox preachers, theologians and spiritual doctors have utterly failed to correctly diagnose the disease called sin, learn its etiology or estimate its prognosis; hence their efforts at cure only aggravate the disease.

Third, that if these "pulpit-pounders" and "sky pilots" have so signally failed in bringing to pass the kingdom of heaven on earth, how can we afford to take their advice when they profess to point us to heaven hereafter.

Fourth; that their so-called "orthodoxy" is not orthodoxy (from orthos, right and doxa, thinking—right thinking Greek) at all, but heterodoxy of the worst kind, because it is neither true to God nor humanity. It is infidelity; that is, unfaithfulness to the highest interests of mankind, beside which Ingersollism sinks into insignificance.

Fifth; that the time has fully come for every true man and woman, every lover of humanity, of progress and civilization to "come out from among them" and "have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them" as Paul advises.

Spiritualism recognizes the underlying causes of this terrible increase of crime. They are the force of heredity; (the involution of thought concerning rapine, pillage, murder, etc., which took place during and after the war is now being evoluted) the anti-natural teachings of the church, its opposition to science and a correct system of political economy; the steady increase of "hard times" and its causes; intemperance in many ways; an educational system based upon an incorrect philosophy of mind, and many others. Knowing these causes, it points out the only remedy—perfect co-relation with nature, both as regards the microcosm and the macrocosms; harmonization with our environment; the study, recognition and enforcement of all the rights of man and woman in every respect, physical and psychical; a natural religion and a natural system of education; the solidarity of the race, and love and justice as our controlling motives.

S. J. BROWNSON.

Ft. Worth, Texas.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS AND HOW WE ASCEND THEM.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents For sale at this office.

CHURCH AND STATE.

The Bible in the Public Schools; the New "American" Party. By "Jefferson." Third edition. This beautiful pamphlet of 28 pages is the most thorough presentation of the Church and State question that has appeared, Price 10 cents.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

THOMAS PAINE'S Examinations of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old, and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cents.

THE AGE OF REASON.

By Thomas Paine. Being an Investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

GOSPEL OF NATURE.

By M. L. Sherman and Wm. F. Lyon. A book replete with Spiritual truths. Price $1.00.

THOMAS PAINE. Was He Junius?

By Wm. Henry Burr. Price 15 cents.

THE GODS.

By Col. R. G. Ingersoll. A pamphlet of 40 pages. Worth its weight in gold. Price 20 cents.

POEMS OF PROGRESS.

By Lizzie Doten. They are really valuable. Price $1.00.

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Causes and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

PUBLICATIONS — OF — HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.

This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.

Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.

The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1,

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.

English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.

Containing the latest investigations and discoveries, and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.

This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.

A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 30 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.

By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents, Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

For humane Education, with plan of the Angell Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address

HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

"Edith Bramley's Vision." Vivid description of a Jesuit spirit conclave, together with interesting corroborative testimony. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of Humanity, a Philosophy of Life." By J. Leon Benwell. An interesting and thoughtful pamphlet. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Fountain of Life, or The Threefold Power of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. One of the author's most useful books. It should be read by every man and woman. Price 50 cents.

"The Relation of Science to the Phenomena of Life." By Prof Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail $1. For sale at this office.

"Talleyrand's Letter to the Pope" will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts he states, and his keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Sold at this office. Price 25 cents.

FORSTER, DR. W. M,

THE NOTED MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkables success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,

1059 Market Street. - San Francisco, Cal. 383

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,

Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER,

SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

Dr. Mansfield.

Homeopathic Treatment compounded clairvoyantly for each case. Send name, age, sex, leading symptoms for FREE DIAGNOSIS AND "METHODS OF CURE." H. D. Barrett, Prest, N. S. A. and all endorse

W. A. MANSFIELD, M. D.,

152 Cedar Ave. - - - Cleveland, O. 386tf

TO THE SICK AND AFFLICTED.

A POWERFUL HEALER AND PSYCHOMETRIST.

Send address, lock of hair and two leading symptoms for diagnosis and remit two 2-cent stamps for return.

DR. M. E. SELLEN,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 383tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 394

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 3-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 386

MRS. S. F. DeWOLF—INDEPENDENT SLATE writing. 241 Winchester ave., near Van Buren, Madison street car; take transfer at Robey. Ladies' circle, Thursdays at 2:30. Chicago, Ill. 387

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily, 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street. Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN. CLAIRvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 388

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. 67 Thirty-third street, near Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, Ill. 377tf

WANTED.

Frank Walker, agent N. S. A., Hamburg, N. Y., wants the name and address of every Spiritualist in New York State. Reader kindly send him all those you know in your vicinity. 382tf

PSYCHOMETRY—CONSULT WITH PROF. A. B. SEVERANCE in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address North Chicago, Illinois. 383tf

YOUR FUTURE prospects revealed by astral science. Good and bad days, months and years accurately calculated by Professor Geo. W. Walrond, Astrologer, Denver, Colo. 393

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped, addressed envelope to J. C. F. GRUMBINE, Station P, Chicago, Illinois, for terms, reading, circulars, for development in psychometry, clairvoyance, inspiration, healing. The inspirational teachings by correspondence are just what you need. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Psychiscopes $2. 379tf

EMMA RUDER GIVES LESSONS BY MAIL ON occult science, philosophy and astrology. Corner Chestnut and Central Ave., Hamilton, Ohio. 387

Your Friend the .... Kenwood Bicycle

A Wheel You Can Depend Upon.

For Lightness, Swiftness and Strength it is Unsurpassed.

You can learn all about it by addressing

Hamilton Kenwood Cycle Co.

203-205-207 S. Canal St., Chicago.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

422 E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D., Dean

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1825 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O. M.,

502 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.

Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

CUT THIS OUT.—PROF. WALSH READS THE planets of your life. By spiritual power heals. He has no equal. 200 Lexington av., New York City. 389

HOW TO BECOME A MEDIUM IN YOUR OWN home. Will send a pamphlet giving instructions, delineate your phases of mediumship, and a spiritual song-book. All for 25 cents. Address Mrs. J. A. Bliss, Watronsville, Mich. 399

FOR SALE AT LILY DALE, N. Y.—COTTAGE ON Fourth ave., with or without furniture. For particulars call on premises or address H. T. SMITH, Lily Dale, N. Y. 387

A HOROSCOPE OF BIRTH AND ASTRAL READing of your life, with numerous suggestions pointing the way to success; also a copy of "The Law of Life," and one lesson on "How to Prepare the Mind for Healing." A. T. writes: "The horoscope is a wonderful thing; though I cannot conceive how you get such results, yet they are positively correct. It is almost terrible to feel that anyone could have such power to know our minds, but it was quite true." Send date of birth and 25 cents (silver) to URIEL BUCHANAN, Ph. D., 34 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. 387

MRS. M. J. SANDERSON, CLAIRVOYANT SITtings daily. Circle Tuesday evening. Thursday afternoon for ladies. 43 Clybourne ave. 387

MRS. DeLOUX, TRANCE MEDIUM, SITTINGS daily. 2926 Cottage Grove avenue. 367

LIFE READING THROUGH ASTRAL SCIENCE. What business to follow; future mate and many things of value to you. Send date of birth, sex, $1. Trial reading, 50 cents. A. Denson, Greenup, Illinois. 387

MRS. L. A. ROBERTS,

107 S. Leavitt street, Chicago, will hold a seance for materialization, Saturday evening, April 24, at Oxford Hall, 77 31st street. TICKETS 25 CENTS. During the evening the Boy Medium gives physical manifestations in light. Free treatment given at this seance. 387

CURED BY SUGGESTION.

All injurious and disagreeable habits; nervous diseases and functional disorders; nervousness and all other injurious effects caused by wrong development of mediumship. Instructions given for developing self-control (by new method), curing of habits mentioned above, by mail or private lessons. CHAS. D. BROUYETTE, instructor in suggestive therapeutics, hypnotism, magnetism, etc. 6016 South Halsted street, Chicago. 387

Enlightened Mediumship is the Hope of Humanity.

The Silver Chain Developing Circle and Spiritual Culture Classes.

"Links" composed of local circles and individuals, regardless of distance from central circle. Organized and directed by an association of advanced minds in spirit life.

James M. and M. Theresa Allen,

CENTRAL CIRCLE MEDIUMS.

For full particulars, and for circular address them at 1004 W. Chase Street, Springfield, Mo. 388

366—MENUS—366. EACH CONSISTING OF A soup, a savory, a sweet, a cheese course and a beverage (with all suitable accompaniments) for every day in the year. No dish or beverage being once repeated. All arranged according to the season and without the introduction of fish, flesh, fowl or intoxicants, with a "Cook's Guide." Circulars free. 130 pages, elegantly bound in cloth, $1. BLACKSTONE PUB. CO., East Blackstone, Mass. 388

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future, with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair, 605 West avenue, Jackson, Mich. 391

Spiritualism Triumphant!

Biblical theology demolished and original Christianity restored. An exposition of the fraudulent origin of the church, and the ancient origin of spiritual religion, with the long lost lives of Jesus and the Apostles, the authentic gospel of St. John, and authentic portraits of Jesus Christ, the Apostle John and John the Baptist. This work, just issued with a solid historic basis, is sent by mail for two dollars. Address the author, DR. J. R. BUCHANAN, San Jose, Cali. 388

Periodicity the Law of Life.

Just issued. A scientific discovery revealed. Prof. Buchanan the author. It enables one to understand the law of life in himself and friends; the times that are favorable or unfavorable for success, the harmonies and discords of persons due to a law; the dangerous periods for health and business; giving warnings against calamities. Price, 75 cents. Address E. S. BUCHANAN, Publisher, San Jose, California. A good agent can make $5 a day. 388

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

MANSILL'S ALMANAC — OF — PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

OCCULT FORCES!

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces.

Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to be interested in it and 12c. in stamps. Circulars free.

OCCULT PUB. CO., 3574 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

SPIRITUAL SONGSTER.

By HATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price 10 cents, or $7 per hundred. For sale at this office.

THE DEAF HEAR

"Common Sense Ear Drums" Relieve all conditions of Deafness and Head Noises, where Medical skill fails. The only Scientific Aural Sound Conductor in the world. Safe to wear, comfortable, invisible, no dangerous wire or metal attachment. Recommended by physicians. Write for book, Free.

WILSON EAR DRUM CO. Offices: 284 Trust Bldg., Louisville, Ky. 1122 Broadway, New York.

HEALTH AND POWER.

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 35 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

FRONT

PAGE [redacted] MISSING
NOT AVAILABLE

GOD, OR GODS.

SPIRITUALISM A KEY THAT UNLOCKS THE MYSTERIES OF THE BIBLE—A STENOGRAPHIC REPORT OF A LECTURE OF G. H. WALSER BEFORE THE SOCIETY OF SPIRITUAL TRUTH, OF LINCOLN, NEB., DELIVERED MARCH 21, 1897, REPORTED BY J. E. FERRIS.

I apprehend it is the object of all here this evening, and it should be the object of all persons who live, to ascertain, as far as possible, what truth is. I do not stand before you as an exponent of all truths, nor of what I say as being absolutely true, but I do stand before you as an honest person who desires to know the truth as far as possible, and knowing it, I desire to obtain its blessings.

In looking over the history of the world, as far back as the dawn of civilization, we find man in a constant conflict with man. We see disputes and differences of opinion everywhere. Differences of opinion which it seems to me, ought to be solved through the crucial process of the intellect without a dissenting voice, yet the world still asks, who and what is God? I will not embrace the opportunity to-night to attempt to give you a scientific solution of the problem, and I do not wish you to understand by this that I deny the fact of a Supreme Intelligence. I shall simply attempt this evening to explain the Biblical meaning of the word God. This meaning I have obtained through the light of spiritual knowledge; which knowledge has given me the key to the understanding of the Bible in a way I never saw it before I embraced Spiritualism.

There are about one hundred and three thousand ministers in the United States, the majority of them, perhaps this evening, are instructing their hearers as to the powers and beauties of the God of the Bible; and when you follow them with the different readings of the book you find so many different ideas that you stand bewildered. Should a minister ask you if you believe in God, and you should ask him which God he refers to, he would likely become indignant at your question and reply by attributing some bad motive to you. But the question still is: Which God? For there are many. The first chapter of Genesis starts out with God, as the creator of all things, then comes the Lord, the Lord God, Jehovah, Most High God, Almighty God, God of Abraham, God of the Children of Israel, the God of Nahor, I Am, I Am That I Am, The Lord of Hosts, Jah, Jehovah-Nissi, Jehovah-Tsid-kenu, Jehovah-Shamah, Jehovah-Shalom, Jehovah-Jireh and many others. In all there are about three thousand four hundred times the name of God is used in the Bible. The word god is a generic term that was applied by the ancients to the spirits of dead men, in their various manifestations to man and demi-gods, under the general term god. And when it is attempted to harmonize them all as manifestations of one being there arises such an inharmony that the thinking mind turns away unsatisfied. For instance, you may take the different passages of the Bible as to the description of God, and place them together, and you are confronted with a being with a white wooley head, with eyes like unto coals of fire, with smoke issuing out of his nostrils, a two-edged sword out of his mouth, with long horns on his fingers, girdled about the loins with a leathern girdle and standing on brass like unto fire, "there is no god like me." In which I concur. For years, before I got the key to the interpretation of the Bible, I kept this picture in my office, and God's contradictions of himself before my eyes, and my very senses revolted at the idea that such a medley of contradictions and crudities came from the Author of all things. But through the aid of Spiritualism these differences have become perfectly harmonious and consistent with what I know and appreciate of the manifestations of the unseen powers. I now know that Moses, Aaron, Isaiah and all the old prophets of the Bible were simply spiritual mediums, that each had his own spiritual guide, which they called gods while we call them spirits. Hence the different manifestations, different instructions, and different attributes all through the Bible. The mistake in trying to make them come from one and the same God, has driven millions and millions of starved souls into infidelity and skepticism. I come to you this evening with a sincere desire to gleam what little light I can into this great whirlpool of darkness and shed a ray of hope to souls in the trammels of doubt.

In evidence of the plurality of Bible gods I will give you some Biblical quotations that you may judge for yourselves.

In the first chapter of Genesis, God said: "Let us make man. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him, male and female created he them." Who was God talking to? After the six days of creation was over the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground and then made a woman out of his rib, from which sprang the Adamic race. According to this, Adam was not created but was formed out of materials already in existence, and they were the work of Lord God. But God had created a pair during his six days labor. In further proofs of the Biblical plurality of gods we call your attention to the Bible episode in the garden. When Eve looked upon that beautiful tree in the center her mouth watered to taste of its inviting fruit, but she remembered her instructions "not to eat of it, for in the day that thou eatest thereof, then your eyes shall be opened and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." "And the Lord said, behold the man is as one of us, to know good and evil." And he was turned out of the garden for fear he should eat of the tree of life and live forever. When God made the remark that "the man is as one of us, he certainly intended that it should be understood in a plural sense and that he recognized the existence of some one besides himself.

When the children of men had journeyed to the land of Shinar they undertook to build a tower and God said: "Go to, let us go down there and confound their language." I think we have shown enough to convince any one that God himself, recognized the existence of company.

Now in evidence that they went by different names, I will call your attention to a few passages: Gen. 14:23. "And Abraham said unto the king of Sodom, I have lifted up mine hand unto the Lord, the Most High God, the possessor of heaven and earth." Gen. 17:1. "And when Abraham was ninety years old and nine, the Lord appeared unto Abraham and said unto him, I Am The Almighty God." Gen. 33:24,29,30. "And Jacob was left alone, and there wrestled a man with him until the break of day," and Jacob's thigh was put out of place; when morning came Jacob asked him: "What is thy name?" and he blest Jacob and Jacob called the name of the place Peniel, for I have seen God face to face and my life is preserved." Gen. 35:1.

"And God said unto Jacob, arise and go up to Bethel and dwell there and make an altar unto God that appeared unto thee when thou fleddest from Esau thy brother." This was the same God Jacob had his wrestle with.

Ex. 3:1,2,3,4,5,6. "And the angel of the Lord appeared unto Moses in a flame of fire, out of the midst of a bush." "And the Lord saw that he turned aside to see and God called to him out of the midst of the bush." Here the angel of the Lord, the Lord and God are all one and the same personage, and, moreover God said unto him, "I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob."

When Moses was instructed to go to the children of Israel and to tell them that God had heard their cry and would deliver them out of the hands of Pharaoh, Moses said unto God, "Behold when I come unto the children of Israel and shall say to them the God of your fathers hath sent me unto you, and they shall say, "What is his name?" what shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses, I Am That I Am, and you shall say unto the children of Israel I Am, hath sent thee. And this shall be my name forever."

Ex 29:45. "And I will dwell among the children of Israel and be their God."

Ex 33:11. "And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh to his friend." John 1:13. "No man has seen God at any time." Reconcile the two, please.

Ex. 15:11. "Who is like unto thee, O Lord, among the gods?"

Ex. 20:3. "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Ex. 23:38. "I Am, says thou shalt not revile the gods."

Ex. 34:6. "And the Lord passed before him (Moses) and proclaimed, the Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long suffering and abundant in goodness and truth. Take heed to thyself lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be a snare in the midst of thee, but ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves, for thou shalt worship no other god, for the Lord whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God."

That does not comport well with the advice of I Am, above quoted. Now comes a different god with warlike attributes.

Ex. 15: 2, 3. "The Lord is my strength and song and he is become my salvation, he is my God and I will prepare for him an habitation. My father's God, and I will exalt him. The Lord is a man of war. The Lord is his name."

Deut. 10:17. "For the Lord your God is the God of Gods, a mighty and terrible."

Joshua, 24:14. "Therefore fear the Lord and serve him in sincerity and in truth, and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood and in Egypt, and serve ye the Lord."

2 Sam. 6:2. "And David arose and went with all the people that were with him from Baale to Judah to bring up from hence the ark of God, whose name is called by the name of the Lord of Hosts that dwelleth between the cherubim. 1. Sam. 4:4. "So the people sent to Shiloh that they might bring from thence the ark of the covenant of the Lord Of Hosts which dwelleth between the cherubim."

Psalms 68:16. "Why leap ye, ye high hills? This is the hill which God desireth to dwell in; and the Lord will dwell in it forever." Verse 17. "The chariots of God are twenty thousand, even thousands of angels." Job. 23:16. "For God maketh my heart soft; and the Almighty troubleth me." Job. 38:7. "When the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy."

Hosea, 12:6,7. "Therefore turn thou unto thy God, keep mercy and judgment, wait on thy God continually."

Psalms 38:18. "That man may know that Thou whose name alone is Jehovah, art the most high over all the earth."

Psalms, 68:4. "Sing unto God; sing praise unto his name; extol Him that rideth upon the heavens by his name Jah and rejoice before him." Isiah, 30:11. "Get ye out of the way, turn aside out of the path, cause the Holy One Of Israel, to cease from before us."

John 4:24. "God is a spirit, and we should worship him in spirit and in truth."

2 Cor. 3:17. "Now the Lord is that spirit, and where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

Jesus seemed to comprehend the meaning of the writers of the Bible, and defended himeself against the charge of heresy made by the Jews.

John 10:34,35,36. "Being a man, maketh himself a god. Jesus answered is it not written in your law, I said, ye are gods? If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scriptures cannot be broken, say ye of him whom the father hath sent into the world, thou blasphemest, because I said, I am the son of God." Jesus here claimed to be the son of God, on the same principle that the Jews did in olden times.

I think there can be no doubt that the writers of the old Bible were living under the inspiration of spiritual guidance and that the enlightenment which they obtained was in a great measure, from the spirits of dead men and that they so understood it. With that conception the seeming contradictions of the Bible respecting the character, commands and personalities of the gods are perfectly consistent with known spiritual attributes and manifestations; but to attempt to harmonize them with the idea of an allwise Being is confounding the intellect with such inconsistencies that millions of people are driven into the cold and cheerless path of materialism which sees no hope beyond the grave.

Would that the ministers of the land could throw aside their prejudices for a time and preach to the people in the light and genius of the age in which the scriptures were written. If they would only do that the world would sing a new song; man would see a light where there is now but darkness, a hope in the face of despair, a joy in the blessings yet to come, a lamp in the frowning tomb and a smile across the River of Death.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col. Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

THE INVISIBLE REALM.

NEW, STARTLING ATOMIC THEORY—MYSTERY OF THE UNIVERSAL ETHER PROBABLY SOLVED BY WILLIAM HECKERT, MECHANICAL ENGINEER.

There are two things in modern science which are yet not outside the realm of theory—which are still unsolved problems, says the Toledo Blade.

These are: The ultimate constitution of matter, and the hypothetical "ether."

As to the first, the atomic theory of Dalton, the eminent English investigator, affords a working hypothesis; but it is merely a hypothesis; it has not been proved. The question is still an open one.

The atomic theory may be stated, in non-scientific language, as follows: All matter is composed of infinitely small particles, each incapable of further division. These ultimate particles are called atoms. In other words, the atom is the smallest separate particle of matter in existence.

Dalton stated this theory briefly as follows: First, that all matter consists of indivisible, unchangeable atoms, of extreme minuteness; second that all the atoms of one kind of matter—for example, of iron—have the same weight, but that atoms of different elements have different weights; third, that these relative weights correspond with the combining numbers, which therefore may be called atomic weights; and fourth, that these different atoms have mutual attractions, and combine to form chemical compounds—not by interpenetration of their substance, but by atomic juxtaposition.

A molecule is a combination of two or more atoms. These atoms may be of different substances, or they may be of the same substance.

To illustrate the distinction between molecules and atoms, take this: The smallest possible particle of water is a molecule. Divide this molecule, and it splits up into three atoms—one of oxygen and two of hydrogen.

The above is a general statement of the atomic theory of Dalton. The reader will note that he has nothing to say as to the form of an atom, nor ventures any reason why the atoms of one substance will combine with those of certain other substances to form molecules, while they will not combine with atoms of other substances. All he ventures with regard to atoms is that they possess weight, and that the weight of the atom is the same always for the same substance, but differs with different substances; that is, the atoms of one substance are heavier or lighter than the atoms of other substances.

How do the light and heat of the sun cross the millions of miles between us and that luminary, to manifest themselves upon the earth? When it was discovered that they are not substances, but forces, which are transmitted by a motion analogous to that of waves in water, only of infinite smallness, it became necessary to suppose that there exists in the interplanetary spaces a substance which can be set in vibration, through which they are transmitted. This hypothetical substance is called the universal ether.

This ether is the material which exists throughout the universe, and in which the stars are embedded, and is as well the substance which fills in between the molecules of all bodies here on earth. It is finer and thinner than any other known substance, yet possesses density, rigidity, and elasticity. It is simply everywhere and through everything. It is the material means by which light, heat, and electricity are transmitted.

This ether is curious stuff. Vibrations in it of one kind are called light, of another heat, of a third rate or kind electricity, while still distinct from all are the Roentgen rays. The ether carries these different vibrations through various substances differently. Light will go through glass, for instance, but not through rubber. The Roentgen rays will go through rubber, but not glass. Heat will go through both, but not wood. Electric waves will go through brick walls and the side of a house, but not through glass, and so on.

And these varying actions of the ether toward different kinds of rays have furnished a means of studying this unknown substance, which has been eagerly seized by the workers along purely scientific lines. In nearly every branch of science the trend of modern developments have been in a direction which has at length run up against a huge blind wall—the problem of the ether. That has got to be surmounted in some way or science will come to a standstill. Once battered down, heat, light, electricity, sound, the problem of crystallization, the very facts of life itself, all are within reach of solution.

A new atomic theory, and as its correlative, an explanation of the universal ether, is now offered to the scientific world for consideration by Mr. William Heckert, now of Findlay, O., but formerly of New York City. He is well known as a mechanical engineer, inventor, and scientific investigator.

Mr. Heckert's statements, put in plain language in order to be readily comprehensible, are as follows:

First—That the smallest portions of matter of which we can have cognizance are in reality molecules.

Second—That molecules are made up of atoms; that these atoms, no matter of what substance, are all of equal weight. This contradicts the Daltonian theory, which assumes different weights for the atoms of different substances.

Third—That the atoms of different molecules differ only in their geomeric form and different molecules are combined to produce different substances, the same as different letters are combined to form different words.

Fourth—Form is thus the primary law governing the action of matter, and that the combination of different atoms into molecules is because the form of the atoms allows of a perfect joining, while if these forms will not join no combination is possible.

Mr. Heckert's investigations, which have been quite extended, lead him to the belief that the number of forms of primary matter or atoms, is but few. He so far is able to recognize but seven; hence it follows that the sixty-five or more substances now considered as elements are in reality compound bodies, capable of being separated, by analysis, into two or more of the seven (or possibly more) real elements.

Mr. Heckert's theory of the nature of the interplanetary ether follows deductively from his views upon atoms. The ether is simply matter in the atomic state. The atoms of which it is composed have not as yet united to form molecules; and, until they so unite, they are not cognizable by our senses.

This does not deny nor dispute any of the facts stated previously in this article concerning the ether. Mr. Heckert simply offers a theory as to what it is that it is nothing more than matter in an uncombined, or atomic, form.

If one will consider the awful abysses of space which the ether occupies—for light comes to us from stars so far distant that the vibrations require centuries to reach the earth—the human mind cannot attempt to realize the immensity of space. Yet all scientists agree that space is occupied by the ether. Taking Mr. Heckert's theory, then, that this ether is simply matter in its primal or atomic state, and we at once realize that it is the storehouse of matter, and that the quantity which exists in a combined or molecular form in the suns and worlds of the sidereal and solar systems is but trifling in volume when compared with enormous quantities which fill the universe in the form of ether.

Mr. Heckert has also reached the conclusion that all force is the same and he gives this primal force the name of "oso." There is no existence outside of oso and matter—or force and matter, if you prefer that statement.

The Blade is glad to make public this theory, that it may have the consideration of the scientific world. The investigations of Mr. Heckert are too abstruse for the columns of a general newspaper, but they will no doubt soon be made public through some of the scientific journals. The following is a brief statement, by Mr. Heckert himself, written for the Blade, embodying his own statement of his theory:

"In all of nature's wide universe there is no existence outside of the primates, oso and matter. The first is recognized as universal cosmic energy, the source of all life. The second is a single primary matter, through which all life and phenomena of nature are made manifest.

"Primary matter is divided into seven portions, each portion being the basis of one of the seven primary elements. All primary matter is divided into infinitesimal particles or atoms, each having the same weight. The atoms of each of the seven portions, however, have their own distinct geometric form, which constitutes the seven distinct elements.

"The first state of matter occupies universal space, performing all the functions attributed to the hypothetical ether, and forms nature's great storehouse, from which the elements are drawn for the production of all phenomena.

"Form is the primary law giving the respective inherent properties to the different elements; and so permeates all matter, giving to it a universal promiscuous oscillation; which energy is converted by the elementary forms, or properties, into different substances and angles of motion from which all phenomena have their origin.

"Every hypothesis must stand or fall on its relative merits in accounting for different phenomena; and in this connection it is desirable to impress the fact that the new atomic theory rests on a comprehensible foundation; an important factor, of which the generally accepted Daltonian theory is void. That refers to atoms and their different weights, but fails to state what constitutes an atom or gives one a different weight or property from any other atom. It says that different atomic weights cause the elements to unite in fixed ponderable proportions, but fails to tell us what an element is, and all practical demonstrations prove that different weights or specific gravities cause the elements to separate and assume different positions, showing positively that weight does not control the combination of the elements, and that the Daltonian theory is no more than a convenient formula by which passive results are obtained.

"It can be shown that such formula is only applicable to the second or molecular state of matter. Prof. Mendeleff, one of the foremost of living scientists and chemists, has shown us that the elements are divided into six or seven different families; but the laws that govern their different volume, heat, weight, and combination remain a profound mystery under present theories.

"The new atomic theory will remove every one of those profound mysteries, as well as more than a thousand others, and provide us an entirely new basis from which to make scientific investigations. Under its hypothesis, all atomic matter has the same weight. What we term weight being only the difference in weights, atomic matter becomes imponderable. This is a wide distinction from the Daltonian theory. Each atom has, however, a distinct geometrical form belonging to one of seven orders; and such elementary forms produce the only known six or seven orders of crystallization, covering every substance in existence. The respective elementary atomic forms determine the number of atoms that can unite in the different molecules, thereby producing different weights, as well as molecules having different geometrical forms, volumes, and capacities for heat.

"Thus, by admitting form to be the primary law that governs the action and combination of the elements, Prof. Mendeleff's profound mysteries are removed, and we are provided with a hypothesis under which the action of nature in the production of all phenomena may come within the comprehension of man.
WILLIAM HECKERT.
"Findlay, O."

GETTIN' RELIGION.

I ain't much on religion, nor prayer meeting beside,
I've never jined the church as yet, nor ain't been sanctified;
But a tender sort o' feeling draws me nearer to the skies,
Since I got a peep of heaven through a pair of trusting eyes.

Time was when nothing moved my thoughts above this sinful world;
No preacher's words could stir me up,
    in wrath an' fury hurled;
But lately I've been drifting nigher to the better land,
And the force that leads me upward is a little dimpled hand.

Seems like the bad thoughts sneak away, with that wee chap hard by;
And cuss-words that were handy once won't come when he is nigh;
Fact is, it sort o' shames me to see those clear, blue eyes
Look at me (when I'm gettin' riled) in pity an' surprise.

I don't know much of heaven or angels
    an' such things;
But, somehow, when I picture 'em, it ain't with harps and wings;
But with yeller curls, all tangled, and tender eyes that shine,
An' lips that's soft and loving, like that little chap of mine.

Then when he folds his dimpled hands,
    in his little bed at night,
An' whispers "Now I lay me," why thar's something ails my sight,
An' my throat gits sort o' husky when he blesses me an' then I'm dead sure I've got religion by the time he says "Amen!"
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Postoffice address.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York

BIBLE AND MORALITY.

ATTITUDE OF THE CHURCH TOWARD SCIENCE—A PAGE OF HISTORY.

To the Editor:—In your issue of March 27, was an account of the yearly increase of crime in the United States, which plainly showed that notwithstanding the many conversions being made daily by the church, the morality of the nation is rapidly growing worse. But is it any wonder that such is the case when hundreds of people will crowd into a church until there is not even standing-room left to hear a man preach such a doctrine as this:

"Here's a man over here," said the preacher, who tells me he is a moral man; obeys the laws, gives liberally to the church and to the missionary societies. He wants to know if God will count that for anything when he comes to die. I tell you that he will not. God's first milestone on the road to heaven begins at conversion. You may have traveled a long way on a moral road, but go no closer heaven by it. That don't count at all. Past morals are of no avail. You have to begin by being a babe in the womb of righteousness. You say, 'I am a moral man., A moral dog's hind foot! Who does a moral man worship? Nobody unless it is himself. I had rather be a Negro in the jungles of Africa worshiping a stump than to worship myself. Don't talk to me about your morality. No matter what you may have done. Let me repeat, God's one starts at conversion and he never begins counting your deeds until you are converted."

The above remarks were made in one of our leading churches here some weeks ago by Rev. Culpepper, otherwise known as "the Georgia evangelist," who has a national reputation.

THE BIBLE AND SCIENCE.

This same evangelist had the following to say in regard to the Bible and science:

"Conscience will not do for a guide. The Bible is my guide. Some fool says it contradicts science. Moses knew more by inspiration than the scientists have ever learned. Science has confirmed everything taught in the Bible. Moses gave facts which could have been known only by science or inspiration. The scientists have only recently learned that he stated facts. The Bible was hundreds of years ahead of the scientists. It was inspired."

Now if the Bible leads science, the ecclesiastics must have known that the earth revolves round the sun, long before the Copernican system was heard of. So it does seem strange that such an authority as the American Cyclopedia should have the following account of how Galileo was persecuted by the church for believing what he knew was a fact:

"With this period (1612) in his life the philosopher (Galileo) may be said to have reached the zenith of his prosperity, while at the same time the malice of his enemies began to acquire a dangerous intensity. The Copernican system, which he had long taught in public, afforded a good pretext for attacking him. The sun's revolution round the earth was thought to be a truth of Scripture. Certain Tuscan ecclesiastics began to preach against the wickedness of sending our world spinning through space, and a sarcastic Dominican hurled a sermon at Galileo from the text: 'Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye looking up into the heavens?' * * * "His case came before the holy office (the Inquisition) in February, 1616. He was charged with teaching that the sun is the center of the planetary system and interpreting Scripture to suit his own theory. The qualifiers of the Inquisition pronounced the obnoxious doctrines 'formally heretical, because expressly contradictory to Holy Scriptures.' * * * Galileo himself was forbidden ever again to teach the motion of the earth and the stability of the sun. * * * About 1625 he set about composing a work in which he might sum up all the arguments for and against his favorite theory. It was written in the form of dialogue, and accompanied by a preface in which he protested ironically against the idea that the decision of the Inquisition in 1616 was rendered through ignorance and passion. He says that on the contrary, its officers listened with attention to his statements of the scientific arguments on which his theory was based, and maintains that the grounds upon which this decision was justified was entirely religious.

The book was published at Florence in 1632 under the title of 'Dialogue on the two Principal Systems of the World, the Ptolemaic and Copernican.' This being regarded as a violation of the injunction, Galileo was ordered to appear in person at Rome, where he arrived in February, 1633.

"His trial was short. The principal ground of complaint was the disobedience of the command of 1616, and the scientific reasons which Galileo again urged in support of his theory were not appreciated any better than before, but were met with religious arguments. The sentence was solemnly pronounced June 22. It declared him to be vehemently suspected of heresy, required him to abjure his errors and all other heresies against the Catholic church, prohibited his 'Dialogue,' and condemned him to be imprisoned at the inquisition during pleasure, and to recite once a week for three years the seven penitential psalms. Galileo made his abjuration with all the formality which commonly attended such proceedings. Clad in sackcloth and kneeling, he swore upon the gospels never again to teach the earth's motion and the sun's stability; he declared his detestation of the proscribed opinions and promised to perform the penance laid upon him. Then rising from the ground, he is said to have exclaimed in an undertone: E pur si mouve—'It does move, for all that!' After four days confinement under the eyes of the holy office, Galileo returned to the Tuscan ambassador, but for the rest of his life he was kept under surveillance."

Oh! yes, the Bible leads science—by a halter around the neck, so to speak.

But perhaps the writer in the Cyclopedia was mistaken. Surely, it could not be possible for such a "man of God" as Culpepper to make a mistake!

When any of the ministers think there is any danger of any of their congregation becoming interested in Spiritualism, they rise up on their hind legs and howl about what an awful thing it is for a person to believe in its philosophy. Some time ago one of these ministers chose as a subject for a lecture in one of the churches of this city, "Spiritualism—the Invention of the Devil and a Satanic delusion." As usual the Devil seems to be getting all the credit for the best things in the world. This preacher probably expressed the sentiments of the balance of his profession.

Spiritualism is contrary to Holy Scripture, you know.

Talk about the spiritual minded preachers! Why, there is not a more material-minded class of people in the world; they really do not know what spirituality is.

After Modern Spiritualism becomes an acknowledged fact and a world-wide belief, the Church will probably step in and claim it all, and endeavor to show that the Bible taught it all the time.

Springfield, Mo. LIBRA.

Joys Beyond the Threshold

A SEQUEL TO THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH was writen to develop the idea of the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its reincarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of etherial space. "BEYOND THE THRESHOLD" continues on the same lines, enlarging and expanding the idea by reasons and considerations drawn from science and philosophy; claiming that the certainty of a new birth beyond our earthly end is the best means of arming ourselves against all weakness in the presence of death, and that the help offered by science and philosophy to that end is far superior to that of any of the existing religions. From beginning to end it is interesting, entertaining, instructive and fascinating, and whether one accepts it all or not, much will have been learned and much pleasure enjoyed in its perusal. Price $1.25 For sale at this office.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN

—AND—

THE CONFESSIONAL.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

This is a most valuable book. It comes from an Ex-Priest, whose character is above reproach, and who knows what he is talking about. Everybody should read it. Price, $1.00. It contains the following chapters:

CHAPTER I.
The Struggle before the Surrender of Womanly Self-respect in the Confessional.

CHAPTER II.
Auricular Confession a Deep Pit of Perdition for the Priest.

CHAPTER III.
The Confessional is the Modern Sodom.

CHAPTER IV.
How the Vow of Celibacy of the Priests is made easy by Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER V.
The highly-educated and refined Woman in the Confessional—What becomes of her after unconditional surrender—Her Irreparable Ruin.

CHAPTER VI.
Auricular Confession destroys all the Sacred Ties of Marriage and Human Society.

CHAPTER VII.
Should Auricular Confession be tolerated among Civilized Nations?

CHAPTER VIII.
Does Auricular Confession bring Peace to the Soul?

CHAPTER IX.
The Dogma of Auricular Confession a Sacrilegious Imposture.

CHAPTER X.
God compels the Church of Rome to confess the Abominations of Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER XI.
Auricular Confession in Australia, America, and France.

CHAPTER XII.
A Chapter for the Consideration of Legislators, Husbands and Fathers—Some of the matters on which the Priest of Rome must Question his Penitent.

Sent Post-paid, Price, $1.00.

VOLNEY'S RUINS

—AND—

THE LAW OF NATURE,

TO WHICH IS ADDED

Volney's Answer to Dr. Priestly, a Biographical Notice by Count Daru, and the Zodiacal Signs and Constellations by the Editor;

Also, a Map of the Astrological Heavens of the Ancients.

Printed on heavy paper, from new plates, in large, clear type, with portrait and illustrations. One vol., post 8vo, 248 pages; paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

This is undoubtedly one of the best and most useful books ever published. It eloquently advocates the best interests of mankind, and clearly points out the sources of human ignorance and misery. The author is supposed to meet in the ruins of Palmyra an apparition or phantom, which explains the true principles of society, and the causes of both the prosperity and the ruin of ancient states. A general assembly of the nations is at length convened, a legislative body formed, the source and origin of religion, of government, and of laws discussed, and the Law of Nature—founded on justice and equity—is finally proclaimed to an expectant world.

THE VOICES.

By Warren Sumner Barlow. The Voices contain poems of remarkable beauty and force. They are most excellent. Price $1.00.

MARGUERITE HUNTER.

A Narrative Descriptive of Life in the Material and Spiritual Spheres,

Transcribed by a Co-operative Spirit Band, combined with chosen media of earth. It was given through independent slate-writing. The illustrations were given in oil paintings on porcelain plate by Spirit artists. It is not a fiction, but a narrative of real life, without a parallel in the literature of Spiritualism, being a clear and succinct exposition of the philosophy, religion and science of Spiritualism. The book contains 260 pages with six illustrations in half-tone, and twelve pages in original independent writing. It is beautifully bound in blue silk cloth, stamped in silver. Price, $1.25. For sale at this office.

IT IS INTERESTING.

LIFE AND LABOR IN THE SPIRIT-World: Being a description of Localities, Employments, Surroundings, and Conditions in the Spheres. By members of the Spirit-Band of Miss M. T. Shelhamer, medium of the Banner of Light Public Free Circle. Cloth $1.00. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ANTIQUITY UNVEILED.

The Most Important Revelations Concerning the True Origin of Christianity.

Reader, in bringing to your notice ANTIQUITY UNVEILED it is with the sincere hope that you are earnestly looking for the truth, regardless of any other consideration. If such is the case, this advertisement will deeply interest you, and after reading this brief description you will doubtless wish to give the work a careful perusal.

MISS JUDSON'S BOOKS.

WHY SHE BECAME A SPIRITUALIST.
264 pages. One copy, $1; six copies, $5.

FROM NIGHT TO MORN;
Or, An Appeal to the Baptist Church.
82 pages. One copy, 15 cents; ten copies, $1.

THE BRIDGE BETWEEN TWO WORLDS.
209 pages. One copy, bound in cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this Office, 40 Loomis Street.

HYPNOTISM UP TO DATE

BY SYDNEY FLOWER.

An entertaining manual of hypnotism, useful to students of the subject. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 25 cts. Sold at this office.

WAYSIDE JOTTINGS.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

SOCIAL UPBUILDING,

Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity. By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15c. For sale at this office.

JOAN, THE MEDIUM.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

THE DEAD MAN'S MESSAGE.

By Florence Marryat, author of "A Scarlet Sin," "How Like a Woman," "The Risen Dead," "There is No Death" etc. Cloth, $100.

TALLEYRAND'S LETTER TO THE POPE.

This work will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts stated, and the keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

THE RELATION

Of the Spiritual to the Material Universe; and the Law of Control. New edition, enlarged and revised, by M. Faraday. Price 15 cents.

THE PSYCHOGRAPH

—OR—

DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means or developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings, been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Orient, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose grave stones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

WAS ABRAHAM LINCOLN A SPIRITUALIST?

—OR—

Curious Revelations from the Life of a Trance Medium.

—BY—

MRS. NETTIE COLBURN MAYNARD

Together with Portraits, Letters and Poems. Illustrated with Engravings and Frontispiece of Lincoln, from Carpenter's Portrait from Life.

This book will be found peculiar, curious, startling—more so than any work issued since Uncle Tom's Cabin. It breathes forgotten whispers which the rust of time had almost covered, and which have been snatched from the very jaws of oblivion. It deals with high official private life during the most momentous period in American History, and is a secret page from the life of him whom time serves only to make greater, more appreciated, and more understood—"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

Cloth, 12mo, illustrated, pp. 264, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE.

IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 480 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual aliment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

HELEN HARLOW'S VOW;

Or Self-Justice.

By Lois Waisbrooker. Many have read this book, many have re-read it, and many others out to read it. It should be read by every man and woman in the land. It shows the falsities rampant in society in matters of moral and social import, and the wrongs that flow therefrom to innocent victims of social ostracism. It contains a fine likeness of the author. Fine cloth, 280 pages. Price $1.00

The Influence of the Zodiac UPON HUMAN LIFE.

BY ELEANOR KIRK.

This is the only book which states the simple principles of the Zodiac in simple terms, making the entire matter clear to the averge understanding.

This volume indicates the location, characteristics and influence of each sign of the Zodiac, giving the days which each sign governs, and the gems and astral colors associated with each.

The diseases of the body, how to cure them, and the faults of character incidental to the different domains.

The methods of growth for each human being.

The domains from which companions, husbands and wives be selected.

The characteristics of children born in different domains, and the conditions to be observed in their care and education.

The personal ability and talent of the individual with reference to domestic, social and business success.

This work is the result of profound research, and in its preparation the author has been largely assisted by J. C. Street, A. B. N.

Bound in Special Cloth. - - Price, $1.

For Sale at This Office.

Ingersoll's Great Address

On Thomas Paine, at the late Paine celebration in New York City. Price, 6 cents; ten copies for 50 cents.

God in the Constitution.

By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

Memorial Oration by Col. Ingersoll

On Roscoe Conkling. Delivered before the New York Legislature, May 9, 1888. Price, 4 cents.

Echoes From the World of Song.

A collection of new and beautiful songs, with music and chorus, in book form. By C. P. Longley. Price $1.25. Postage 15 cents.

POEMS FROM THE INNER LIFE

By Lizzie Doten. These poems are as staple as sugar. Price $1.00.

ROMANISM AND THE REPUBLIC.

A WORK THAT EVERY LOVER OF his country should have at hand for consultation. By Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, M. A. This is a most able work, consisting of a Discussion of the Purposes, Assumptions, Principles and Methods of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy. The work contains 447 pages, and may be considered a mine of valuable information for every patriot in the land. Price $1. For sale at this office.

SEERS OF THE AGES.

Embracing Spiritualism, past and present. By J. M. Peebles, M. D. An encyclopædia of interesting and instructive facts. Price $2.00.

The Religion of Humanity;

A Philosophy of Life. By J. Leon Benwell. A beautiful paper-bound pamphlet, with likeness of author. A most valuable publication to circulate among Christian people. Price 15 cents.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year..... $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club)..... 7.50
Thirteen weeks..... 25 cts
Single copy..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to add in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1897.

TRUTH IN FRAGMENTS.

The clergy, notwithstanding their constant effort to suppress the truth, make occasional concessions very different from what is the habit of the principal pulpiteers. Here is one, by a Catholic priest, from a Catholic pulpit, a press telegram, which is making a circuit of the secular papers:

"New York, April 10.—Rev. Dr. Henry R. Brann, rector of St. Agnes' Roman Catholic church, quotes statistics to prove that a majority of Americans are infidels.

"The situation is a grave one,' said Father Brann. 'Of the 70,000,000 people in the United States, but 20,000,000 are church communicants according to the last census. Of the 20,000,000 there are 7,000,000 Roman Catholics. How can we call ourselves a Christian nation when confronted by these figures? Apart from the Roman Catholics there are only about 13,000,000 practical Christians out of the whole 70,000,000.'"

It may be replied that membership in the churches has correspondingly increased with the population since the census was taken in 1890; but such statement is not borne out by facts. It is doubtful if the churches in the aggregate have retained their membership; for there has been a constant loss from sundry causes, among which may be mentioned a large mortality, both natural and civil. Of the latter are multitudes of Sunday-school superintendents, convicted of capital offenses who are imprisoned for life, else, like Durant, of California, are awaiting execution. Then come a long list of bank presidents and cashiers, public defaulters, whose long terms of imprisonment are tantamount to a civil death. Scarcely a wretch has swung from the gallows to glory for years without making an inroad on church membership. The names of these offenders—a mighty host of themselves—still swell the list of members in their respective churches for a name is seldom crossed from the roll save for heresy, the most damnable sin known to sectarianism, formerly punished by burning at the stake. Infants, too, are registered and counted as members as soon as baptized. Very few of these in these last days become pillars in the church.

Taking all the facts into consideration it may be gravely questioned if there are 15,000,000 of genuine church members to-day in the United States, say one-fifth of the entire population; and of these full two-thirds are women and children.

We are told of strategic movements of soldiers in times of war. When very few in number, and wishing to prevent a collision they have been known to keep up a continuous line of march on the brow of a hill, in full sight of the enemy, to magnify their numbers. The same soldiers thus making an exhibit of themselves would make a hasty run around the back of the hill from where they were last exposed to sight, quickly rejoining the rear on the other side of the hill. The boastful claim that "this is a Christian nation," is manipulated in much the same way.

CHINESE TO LEARN ENGLISH.

The advances the English language is making indicate the time is probably not very remote when it will become the tongue of all civilized nations. It is said: "The Pekin government has issued instructions to the various viceroys and governors of provinces and of the empire to establish schools for the teaching of the English language and Western sciences in all of the principal cities of China.

"According to the wording of one clause in the general instructions, the reason for this is that China, in order to keep herself on the terms of equality and in touch with the great powers of Europe, 'must educate the masses and encourage inventive genius and foreign learning among her people, together with that love of country and home and that devoted patriotism so consciously engrained in the hearts of those who have studied such languages and sciences.'"

Japan must necessarily follow China in this regard. British India has already made large advances in the same direction. Southern and Central Africa is being rapidly Anglicized.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin has declared compulsory vaccination unconstitutional, because it may be objected to as a matter of conscience. To enforce such a law might interfere with religious liberty, they say.

The Constitution of Illinois, and that of Wisconsin relating to the protection of religious liberty, are substantially identical; so it is very probable the Supreme Court of this State would arrive at the same conclusion with the Wisconsin jurists if a case should reach them. Many physicians greatly question whether other diseases quite as fatal as smallpox have not been transmitted to those who have been subjected to vaccination.

MYTHS AND THOSE WHO MADE THEM.

It is a pleasure to the scholarly thinker to trace the rise of myths. They had their origin way back in the childhood of the race, and like the mountain rivulet leaping from cliff to cliff in its descent to the plane, increasing in size and form by the addition of many affluents, until it becomes a mighty river flowing to the ocean, perchance bearing the commerce of the world on its bosom, so myths, insignificant at first, expanded with the years until they became world-wide wonders, and systems of religion were built on their aggregation.

Take the multitude of myths, having their origin when and where no one can know, pertaining to the creation of the world, the peopling of it with inhabitants, followed by a general deluge, and the destruction of all life, save that of a favored few. Sweep those accumulated myths away, which were attempts to account for the existence of evil, then where are those systems of religion built on them? They must necessarily disappear when their base is gone.

Take the story of a general deluge, believed in by the aborigines of all countries; how came this universal myth? Let the reader imagine any observant people wandering over hills, climbing the highest mountains, or digging in the vales. He finds the crags and pinnacles water-worn, as if a surging sea had dashed for ages against them, the softer parts worn away leaving traces of which no man ought to mistake the cause. Possibly the rock is a sedimentary formation filled with fossiliferous remains. Everywhere he finds boulders which have been rolled together by the tides of an angry sea, polished on their surface and diminishing in size to pebbles, gravel and sand. May we not suppose a body of men, accompanied by a priest, who assumes to know all things, and to magnify his importance, claiming to have gained his information from God, accounting to his inquiring associates in regard to these fossils and abrasions of the rock, on the hypothesis of a universal flood? He knew no other way to account for the phenomenon, being ignorant of the upheaval of mountains and even entire continents by the interior force, so like the doctor or lawyer, who is presumed to know everything in the line of his profession, he projected his story, which in process of ages, was perpetuated by written records and is now received, thousands of years after, as inspiration.

Millenniums come and go; the race increases in knowledge; men dig in the earth, explore the mountains, and make note of their observations. Data accumulate. A theory is formed; the facts multiply, numerous observers reach the same conclusion, and the science of geology becomes a demonstrated fact. The whole surface of the earth has been sometime the bed of a primeval ocean. It has emerged and left evidences of its early condition. Upheavals and submergences have followed in succession, not once but many times. Where now are cities once rolled the ocean tides. Valleys were scooped out, and plains were covered by debris in these mighty convulsions.

The only wonder is that antiquated ignorance is allowed to govern modern thought, and that an educated clergy will not rise above demagogism, and educate churchmen relative to the truths of science, instead of clinging like death in its foul embrace to the errors of an uncultured age.

The true preacher should be a cultured teacher. He should know that science is but another name for knowledge. He should know that all the processes of Nature are heaven-born; and that any book, or any portion of a book not harmonizing with natural law, whatever its pretensions, is not of God. If he was sincere in his desire to teach only truth he would compare the pretendedly revealed with the certain in Nature, and wherein they are found incompatible, whatever their effects on the church, or on his professional career, he would embrace the true, and discard the false and vile.

We know this is called "radicalism," but with us terms of reproach or censure do not become matters of question. Is the position correct? If yes, then without regard to the name by which it may be designated, or its effect on sects or individuals, it should be accepted and taught. Men were forced to accept the false. A while later the cruelties employed to indoctrinate a people were forgotten; then it became an inherited error. Instead of continuing to think as our parents did, who had limited means of knowing the guile of ancient priestcraft, we should go outside of church circles to learn the facts for ourselves. To know how the false originated is to know the best way to build anew on unquestioned data and this must needs be immortal.

FACTS VERSUS FAITH.

The difference between Spiritualism and Christianity is the difference between fact and faith. The former has thousands and probably millions of living, intelligent, and truthful witnesses to attest the certainty of spirit communion with those yet in the flesh—evidences of events coming under their own observation which it seems impossible to gainsay. This evidence has been accumulating year after year for near two generations by daily incidents, while well-sustained traditions carry us back to the earliest history of the race, showing that the immortals have the ability to communicate with active, vital, breathing man, and have been doing so through the past as now.

Christianity, notwithstanding the claims of its adherents, was not a historic religion in its inception, but is wholly a creature of faith. Even the alleged Paul, living when and where are controverted questions, did more to make the system what it is than any other person, yet he was prolific in the use of that indeterminate, suppositious and hypothetical particle "if," which leaves a suspicion in the mind whenever read. "If," said he, "Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."

The difference, then, between the two systems, is that between knowledge and belief; between observation and guesswork.

Take the whole story of Jesus, his beginning and end: We have only the dream of Joseph, an affianced husband, that he was a child begotten by the Holy Ghost. See Matt. 1:18 to 20. And the story of his resurrection is based on the assertion of a reformed harlot, out of whom, says Mark 16:9, Jesus had cast seven devils. Luke's Gospel is predicated on belief, not knowledge. See Luke 1:1. The other so-called Gospel, "according to Matthew," etc., only tells who furnished the information, not of him who wrote the book, or where, or when it was done.

Take it all in all, Christianity is a superstition forced on the people by a Roman emperor, and transmitted from generation to generation, from parent to child, down to our times; while if a religion was ever heaven-born it is that revealed to mortals by the immortals who have laid off their material tenements and survive in spirit form.

PROBABLY NOT TRUE.

The statement that a bill has been introduced into Congress prohibiting the working of wine and cider on Sunday, is probably an exaggeration, for we have not not noted any such procedure in the Congressional proceedings. Had it been stated that clergymen have prepared a bill to that effect, and were circulating petitions, with the view of memorializing that body in such direction, it would have been in full harmony with other measures they are anxious to enact into laws, then we should have given the story full credence.

MAKING SIN OF THINGS PLEASANT.

A Baltimore minister has declared, says the Boston Globe, that all ministers who are spiritually alive must denounce from their pulpits dancing, card-playing, theater-going and bicycle riding. This pastor is evidently pained at the sight of seeing others happy. We think it was Macaulay who said that the Puritans abolished bear-baiting in England not because it hurt the bears, but because it pleased the children.

THE LIAR STILL AT LARGE.

I never make an effort to impede the progress of a lie in its course, especially if it is a good fat one, and I am the subject honored with its notice. I could not stop it if I would; I would not if I could. Occasionally for the sake of a friend who wants an explanation, I refer to some of the numerous reports that an ever industrious public keeps in circulation.

A note reaches me containing an extract from a Cleveland paper to the effect that "Moses Hull, the great Spiritualist lecturer, has sued his wife, Mattie E. Hull, who is also a noted lecturer on Spiritualism, for a divorce."

I believe the above is the latest report concerning my affairs that I have seen. In reply I will say that Mattie and I have somehow managed to worry along together for twenty-five years; and though I claim to be something of an adept in picking quarrels, I have not, as yet been able to pick one with her. She is about the only woman I ever tried to quarrel with where I made an absolute failure. Now I have given the matter up entirely; and have, after due consideration, made up my mind that if we both remain in the form we will try to close out the century together. At the end of the next century, if any change should occur in our determination to remain as we are, I will report through The Progressive Thinker. Until then I remain a "Yoke Fellow" with Mattie E. Hull, in the cause.

MOSES HULL.

A BILL

FOR AN ACT FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF FORTUNE-TELLING AND THE PRACTICE OF OTHER ALLEGED AND PRETENDED ARTS BY MEANS OF SUPERNATURAL POWER OR OTHERWISE; TO PROHIBIT THE ADVERTISING THEREOF, AND TO FIX A PENALTY FOR THE VIOLATION OF THIS ACT.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That every person who shall, within this State, for hire or reward or for any promise or agreement therefore engage in the practice of fortune-telling, the forecasting of future events, the discovery of lost property, or of lost titles to property, or of evidence of any facts or circumstances intended to be used in the determination of any suit or suits at law or equity or other litigation begun and pending or contemplated by any person, or who shall assume for a like consideration to inform any person of his future affairs in this life, in respect of birth, marriage, divorce, or other matters or things by means of the black arts, magic, cards, clairvoyance, divination, palmistry or by means of any other alleged or pretended supernatural powers or by means of any other mechanical or other device, shall be deemed and taken to be a common swindler, and shall upon conviction thereof be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five (25) dollars, nor more than one hundred (100) dollars for each and every offense.

Section 2. Any person who shall by means of cards or advertisement publish in any newspaper circulated or published within the State of Illinois, or by any other print, publication, writing, sign, picture or symbol, represent, or hold himself out to be a fortune-teller, or to be able, by means of the powers of black arts, necromancy, cards, or by any other alleged or pretended supernatural or occult powers, or by means of any mechanical or other devices, to do or perform any of the acts or things enumerated in section one of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than tweny-five (25) dollars, nor more than one hundred (100) dollars for each and every offense: Provided. That it shall be a sufficient defense to a prosecution under this act, for the accused to show, upon the trial, that he is a person regularly licensed by some chartered spiritual society in this State, to perform ministerial acts; which license, together with a certificate of such chartered society, certifying that the accused is a person of good moral character, shall be required to be produced upon the trial.

The above bill is about the same old "chestnut" that has appeared at regular intervals during the last twelve years, and which has in turn been buried in oblivion. It undoubtedly originated in the fertile mind of some one who desires to do a wholesale business in "licensing," and should follow other like bills to the grave.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of infomation on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of Humanity, a Philosophy of Life." By J. Leon Benwell. An interesting and thoughtful pamphlet. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Prophets of Israel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

A VERY DEAR LESSON.

The Nellis Poisoning Case.

SETTLED BY ONE YEAR IN THE PENITENTIARY AND A PARDON FROM THE HUSBAND SHE ATTEMPTED TO POISON—MRS. NELLIS SHOULD FEEL GRATEFUL.

Murder is an awful thing to contemplate. The thrusting of a spirit from its rightful tenement by force; the cutting off of a soul's earthly heritage by means of fire-arms or a drug is terrible, even in suicide, but when the second party comes in with deliberate intent to murder in any manner, one of his or her fellow-beings, according to THE SPIRITUAL PHILOSOPHY, they have left a stain upon their own soul that only time and eternity can wipe away.

The thought is the act so far as the real crime is concerned, but the thought remains unexpressed, unexecuted, in this instance, and the human law makes a vast distinction. In reality the difference is simply that between permitting the fellowbeing to live to a natural end and gain by the little experiences here that knowledge which is his as a birthright or robbing him of that right; between giving him time and opportunity to improve in this life, whither he came for a few lessons in consciousness, and cutting him down as the reaper cuts the grain.

The laws of our land may fix a penalty for attempted murder, when there is indication of premeditation, positive intent or malice aforethought, at from one to twenty, and in some States a much greater number of years, but in the laws of nature the basic principle of

A smile for a smile, a frown for a frown,
A tear for a tear, a crown for a crown, is the inevitable executioner, and eternal justice the judge.

Society laws of to-day are founded upon the old Mosaic laws—"An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth"—and under the cachings of the "end at the grave," at least until the "judgment day," the law is interpreted to mean an avengement—murder for murder—and some severe infliction of punishment to the physical for an attempt to murder.

In the case of Mrs. Nellis, the wife of Peter Nellis, proprietor of a hotel in Girard, Pa., who with the accessories, Mrs. Stowell, (wife of the former editor of Light of Truth) and her son of Cincinnati, Ohio, the history of which has been given in these columns and does not need repeating, according to a dispatch in the Cincinnati Enquirer, "she was sentenced to serve one year at hard labor in the Western Penitentiary, at Allegheny, Pa., under a conviction of having administered poison to her husband with intent to kill, etc.

"Mrs. Nellis was accompanied by her son, and the husband whom she had tried to get rid of with antimony, was by her side in Court. Some time before her conviction friends effected a reconciliation between the couple, who had been estranged for fifteen years, although living under the same roof, and Nellis left nothing undone to secure his wife's acquittal, but the testimony of a daughter and of a dining-room girl convicted the unfaithful wife.

"Mrs. Stowell, a spiritualistic medium, whose home is in Cincinnati, is under indictment with Mrs. Nellis on another charge of conspiracy to kill Nellis, but she has not been apprehended yet. Mrs. Stowell's son, Harry Gardner, who was indicted with Mrs. Nellis in the case tried, is dying of consumption. Mrs. Nellis is highly connected in Erie. She will be taken to the penitentiary as soon as she recovers from the shock of the sentence."

The Progressive Thinker has been severely criticised for having mentioned this sad, sad event, but when so great a cloud of crime comes down upon us—upon Spiritualism—from those so highly connected with the cause, at least publicly, it falls over us like the phantom of an impending woe, the black, outspreading wings of approaching doom, and the only thing to do for the sake of our loved cause, is merely to place the acts of these people before the public, against themselves as individuals, working for their own personal aggrandisement and financial gain, and beat back the arrows of a prejudiced public, hurled at the whole cause—our philosophy, our science, our religion.

In spite of all criticism this paper has stood at the front, ever waving the banner of truth over the heads of all the brave defenders—the lecturers, mediums and honorable cotemporaries—and has ever had the highest motive for those principles of Spiritualism that we should all endeavor to protect and promote—"with charity for all and malice toward none," and, to-day, none can be more willing than The Progressive Thinker to aid in projecting a bright future for all parties connected with this terrible affair; but at best we can only protect Spiritualism from any blame by exhibiting a readiness to publish the plain, unvarnished facts in the case and our words of exoneration for the cause. If we are cursed for this we shall only know that our motives were for the right and for the good of all concerned, and not to assuage the measurement of justice or to satisfy a selfishness, as we are accused.

Peter Nellis has pardoned his erring wife and taken her back to his tender heart; The Progressive Thinker throws the mantle of sympathy upon the ones now in deep sorrow over the wholesale disgrace of a misstep, pulls aside the curtain of Spiritualism that brings to view the reward for right-thinking and right-doing, and the results of wrong-thinking and wrong-doing, and asks the readers to send out their best thought toward the poor, sad soul of Mrs. Nellis, to whom the law of society has given the lowest limit of punishment, in view of the reconciliation between the two parties most concerned. No doubt the Governor of the State will be invoked and a pardon granted, but with all this assuagement, there is a higher and more lasting punishment, or rather, reparation, now being inflicted upon that human soul, and that will ever grind until every semblance of that awful intent is condoned by her own conscience.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

WHEN A HUMAN BEING DIES—A CONTRAST.

When a human being dies,
First are planned the obsequies.
Who shall order flowers and crape?
Put the dead in tasty shape?
Who can sing most plaintively?
Where shall the interment be?
Who shall preach and who shall pray?
Who shall bear the corpse away?

What were better left unsaid?
What would compliment the dead?
Is it well to know alway
What to say, and not to say—
So men's faults are left untold,
While are writ in shining gold
All the virtues they possessed,
When they entered heaven's sweet rest.

Drop the curtains, crape the door,
Bar the sunshine from the floor;
Darkened faces, darkened hearts,
Barred from use all cheering arts;
Sore affliction we have had,
So we make the world more sad;
Suited to our mournful eyes
When a human being dies.

While sonorous church bells toll
Heavenward speeds th' immortal soul;
Trains of angel escorts come
To conduct the spirit home,
Where the Father will bestow
What was never gained below.
Cruel crosses, borne with sighs,
Turn to garlands in the skies,
When a human being dies.

When God's speechless creatures die,
Dowered with true nobility,
Loving, serving, clinging, true,
Sharing troubles, not a few,
Doing just the best they can
For their lordly master man,
Shall we say, if speak we must,
Earth to earth, and dust to dust?

Under the wild cherry tree
Lies my dear dead horse Marie.
You may laugh because I weep,
Laugh that I sad vigil keep.
"Nothing but a brute," you say,
Oh, I beg you go your way!
Leave me here with my stricken friend;
She has reached her journey's end.

Harshly come the serving men,
Drag her down into the glen,
Dig a hole and roll her over—
Spade on dirt her form to cover.
Out speaks one most heartlessly:
"Curse her hide! She balked with me
When she broke that whiffletree,
Hauling home that two-ton load,
Over on the old clay road."

Dear Marie, you did not hear.
All your aches are over, dear;
But through tears of love, I say
You were more refined than they;
Finer feelings lit your eyes
Full of unvoiced mysteries.
Your companionship to me
Dearer was than theirs could be.

Silken-haired and sensitive,
'Tis not strange you could not live;
Crowded and misunderstood
When you did the best you could.
Man is such an egotist,
Some good truths he may have missed.
He is not ordained to say
Earth has closed your life for aye.
Noble brutes, or fiendish men,
Which are fit to live again?

EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

PRESENT EVILS.

The Writer Differs from Prof. Buchanan.

In perusing Prof. J. R. Buchanan's article in April 3d, I can but feel that in his gloomy picture of our national outlook, he ascribes, as too many others do, a great share of the blame for these conditions to the grasping disposition of the moneyed power of our land. Let us look around and see if we cannot trace much—yes a large per cent of our sorrows, to other causes. What proportion of the 50,000 farmers who yearly are ejected from their farms, as he puts it, are free from the slavish appetite for rum, in some of its forms? I saw a statement in the Farm Journal, April date, that there were spent for intoxicants last year in this country $1,456,000,000, enough to wipe out our national debt. No estimate was given of the amount expended on tobacco, tea, and coffee—probably as much more. What sense in it? They are all articles that ought to be dispensed with, the user would be vastly benefitted. One year's abstinence from their use would wipe out every mortgage in our free America and fill our homes with sunshine and happiness. Poverty, rags and destitution would not be seen stalking up and down our fair land. Jails, prisons and penitentiaries could be converted into houses of learning where our youth could be taught to grapple with the problems of life and how to make it worth the living.

Again, in easy-going times, people too oft become reckless in expenditures, running into foolish extremes, purchasing much they had better go without. By and by the day comes when the creditor wants what is his due, he has not the means at hand to meet his obligations and at once he throws the blame on the bloated bond-holders. Now I always enjoy Brother Buchanan's scholarly articles, filled full and running over with love to God and man, but when I see a penny with Caesar's inscription on it, I feel like returning it to Caesar and not to God. Money, with brains, is the life of progress and prosperity; without them we could never girdle the world with railroads, fill our land with literature so cheap that he who runs can read, dot every ocean with the commerce of every clime; convert the barren wastes into an Eden of beauty, measure the distances to distant planets and map out their orbits to a mathematical certainty; and it is money and brains, with muscle, that accomplishes these manifold wonders; and not the chronic grumblers who are steeped through and through with rum and tobacco, spending too great a share of their time at saloons, and the corner grocery, trying to hatch up some revolutionary scheme against capital.

Now this is all wrong. We know that many abuses flow from too great a centralization of wealth, backed by political intrigues, but through the ballot, not revolution, should we seek to remedy those evils. It will take time to root out long-seated corruption but "Ever will truth come uppermost, and ever will justice be done."

Londonderry, Vt. D. D. WAIT.

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

SOULS IN BONDAGE.

SYMPATHY FOR SOULS IN BONDAGE IS THEIR CONSTANT AND URGENT DEMAND — MURDER AND ROBBERY PREVENTED BY A VISION—ELOQUENT PRESAGES IN A VARIETY OF SHADOWS—CASE OF FLOGGING—GASOLINE EXPLOSION—A BEATIFIC PANORAMA EXPOSED.

Shadows have more use than is generally imagined," continued Mr. Samson in the Cincinnati Enquirer, "especially in an experience like mine, which I am aware is exceptional, though by no means exclusive. They have given me hints of great value, coming as premonitions, and have in their way enabled me to avert some dangers. I believe that on a few occasions they have saved my life.

"I was in a city at a considerable distance from my home when the horoscope of fate brought to my eyes the shadow of the house in which I lived, accompanied by tragic events. It was a perfect representation of the residence and its surroundings, as truly as an artist could have painted it, and, although the sun shone brightly at the time, it mirrored a night scene in the home. A solitary lamp cast its reflections upon an upper window—an old custom of the family to show a light through all the silent watches—but the outlines of the place were as clear-cut and distinct as in broad day.

"I had taken in these particulars without unusual emotion, when I noticed that the place was beset by interlopers, and they seemed to be bent on robbery. I recognized their features, for every one was known to me, and marked their progress in entering and going through the house, they having first silenced the dog by a blow on the head with a club. The room of my son was the first occupied apartment reached by them, and the young fellow promptly put in use his athletic qualifications. He was knocked down, bound hand and foot and gagged. Then all his valuables were compactly bundled, ready for removal. Two daughters occupied the room next entered. They were asleep, and so remained while their jewelry and trinkets were secured. The room occupied by myself and wife came next in order. I saw the scoundrels rifle my own pockets, break the locks on closets and chests, and almost denude the apartment of everything worth having, while my double and his partner seemed to be sleeping soundly in the bed close by. Naturally this spectacle aroused my ire, and I felt like going at once to the rescue, but a few moments' reflection informed me that I was not gazing upon the reality, but only upon a reflection of what would occur in the future.

"As if disturbed by the unwelcome presence, which necessarily infused a bad aura into the atmosphere of the room, my other self awoke and sat up in the bed, for a moment dazed and distrait, as any good citizen has a right to be under such conditions; then, comprehending the situation, he leaped to the floor and confronted the marauders, in a tussle which ensued

HE WAS SHOT DEAD.

And at the sight a faintness came over me so subtile and mysterious that the shadows vanished, and I went to my hotel greatly distressed. On the following day I hastened home, and in the night succeeding my arrival there a guard I had set for the purpose surprised the identical persons I had seen in shadowy outline, making an attempt to force their way into my home. They were apprehended, tried and punished by long terms of imprisonment, events which would have been impossible if I had not have been forewarned.

"I was upon my own premises one pleasant day when I saw the representation of my brother's house, three miles away, in fierce conflagration, and the cause of the catastrophe was sufficiently apparent. The flames were started by the explosion of a gasoline stove. Whether the real event was then in progress or the vision merely premonitory involved a question which troubled me, and I hastened to the place for the purpose of immediately appeasing apprehension. Brother was absent, but I found my sister-in-law had on the day previous employed a new cook, who already had startled the family by some carelessness with gasoline. Stating my apprehension and their foundation gave the lady of the house a desired excuse for relegating the dangerous stove to a shed in the yard, and the reinstallation of the faithful though fervid range in its place.

"For a year or two my son felt a strong desire, amounting to a passion, to enter the navy, and I finally withdrew objections, once put forward very strongly, to his adoption of such profession. Arrangements were in progress for his entry at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and the boy was animated in anticipation of realizing his cherished plan to great elation of spirits. He was so full of the scheme that nothing else could attract his attention. But one morning a change in him was painfully apparent. He asked to talk with me alone, and when we went together to his room he hinted that he had been frightened by a dream.

"'Nonsense!' I exclaimed; 'dreams don't count.'

"'Then this was not a dream,' he replied. 'I do not see how it could have been, for I was wide awake, and everything appeared natural to my sense of sight. While I was yet in bed there seemed to come through the side of my room the perfect representation of a man-of-war, with sails set, guns manned and the whole crew alert for duty. Just then as my eyes rested upon this picture there came marching along the deck a young man, bound, and in charge of two midshipmen. He was lashed to a gun, his back bared, and he received many blows from a cruel whip in the hands of a brutal-looking man. Blood flowed freely. In my excitement I had arisen and was sitting on the side of the bed when the whipping ceased. The young man was released from the gun, and he staggered as he stepped away from it. I had not yet seen his face, but in a few minutes he turned it toward me, wearing the most depressed and woeful expression, and then I recognized it!'

IT WAS MYSELF.

I cannot understand it, but that it has a personal and secret meaning for me is certain. It was no dream, for I dressed immediately, and must have been as much awake as I now am. When I looked again the whole thing had vanished. What do you think of it?'

"'Did it appear shadowy or real?'

"'Not altogether either, but partly both.'

"I understood this description, and realized that my son had received a warning—one that he must heed—of the same general character as those which had come to me on various occasions; and now, for the first time, I discussed them and their utility with a member of my family, telling him all I knew and thought about them. To make clear my subsequent action, I explained all these phenomena to my wife and daughter on the same day, and then, at the earnest solicitation of every member of our household, measures were successfully undertaken to release the boy from his engagement at Annapolis. More readily could I have consoled myself at his death than at his entrance into the navy after this revelation. You may say that flogging has been abolished in the navy. Yes, so far as the men are concerned; but, as a healthy discipline for boys, it is retained on the school ships!

"You remember the warning of Lochiel, and the impressive words put into the mouth of the poet, Campbell:

"'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore,
And coming events cast their shadows before.'

"With advancing age the shadow pictures become more frequent, and less alarming. If those which predominate foreshadow conditions to be enjoyed in a future state of existence, their promise of happiness is remarkably encouraging, for they bode forth scenes of bliss and enjoyments too ecstatic for words to describe, where life is roseate and intelligence spontaneously fructifies, and where the very atmosphere is love. What if you were to see an interminable vista arched with a never-ending variety of fruits and flowers, among which brightfeathered birds twinkled and carolled continually, and upon whose azure carpet, soft as velvet, countless millions of happy people, more real and substantial than any of mortal mold, were walking or reclining in the enjoyment of sublime faculties and that great light of knowledge which is destined to burn forever for the salvation of mankind? By 'salvation' I mean that perfect condition which every son and daughter of God is destined to ultimately enjoy—some through great tribulation in that intermediate limbo, where purgation will free them from the effects of sin—whence, finally set free, they will be welcomed where the song of rejoicing is ever new, forever there.

"'New discoveries are made of God's unbounded wisdom, power and love, which give the understanding larger room and swell the hymn with ever-growing promise.'

"This is but one phase of the panorama which almost daily greets my eyes and assures me that are ever in process or redemption and ever made complete. I see in these visions all my relatives who have gone before and many old friends and acquaintances who in this life were true men and women. Some were active in the church and others were noted for the alms deeds which they did and still others were the beneficiaries of these deeds; but now all are upon the same level and actuated by a common purpose.

THE PROMISES TO MANKIND

"It is too sacred a matter to speculate upon, for in these inspiring scenes I have recognized my sainted mother, wearing the benignant smile which always reflected from a heart alive to the best good of her kind; my father, not bent with years, as I knew him in the days of his declining strength, but hale and vigorous as I knew him in my boyhood; my grandfather, equally rejuvenated; grandmother, blooming like a bride; uncles, aunts and cousins full of joy; old schoolmates as cheerful as in the halcyon days we thought would never end, for they have joined that school where love alone is taught and practiced and where its enjoyment is a continual round of most surprising variety. There is always something new for me in these pictures, and they are of intense interest, but too numerous for description. Only one in recent years has indicated other than happy conditions, and this was so peculiar that I will describe it briefly.

"I had reviewed many happy scenes one day, in which friends and strangers were surprisingly commingled, but all happy, when the lights changed with startling suddenness, and the panorama was covered by a half shade. The surroundings were not the same, and out from an atmosphere of gloom came a man with well remembered features, slowly walking. I had known him in mortal life as the richest man in our community, but not as the most liberal. He and I were but slightly acquainted, but he seemed to recognize me gladly and imploringly. I comprehended in a moment that he looked to me for help of some kind, and when this thought had penetrated my mind he smiled as if gratified by the fact that I understood. But what was I to do? When I asked this question there was another smile, followed by a look of intense eagerness, but no other response. I suggested prayer. He shook his head. Communication through me with friends? No. Something about property? Another negative shake and a motion of disgust. Every suggestion I could think of was tried without success, and the beleaguered soul was evidently in sore distress. He remained in this mood for some time, when his attention was attracted by something above his head. Looking up I saw a little bow in a cloud of mist, and upon it sparkled the letter S, as if formed of diamonds. The apparition pointed to it and smiled radiantly. It twinkled out of sight to make room for the letter Y, to be followed in due order by M, and, continuing this process, the word "sympathy" was finally complete. Then my ghost was satisfied. He wanted sympathy. That night I read upon an illuminated scroll stretched across one side of my sleeping room this statement:

"'To souls in bondage human sympathy is a balm and potent help to relieve their suffering. Bestow it always without stint.'

"What man or woman can deny such a boon to one who despairs of help without its aid?" T. P.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

"The Philosophy of Spirit, and the Spirit-World." By Hudson Tuttle. A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

PEN-FLASHES FROM OHIO.

BY C. H. MATHEWS.

To the Editor:—At this critical moment, while the Cubans are struggling for independence and home rule, the following paragraph from the pen of Thomas Paine in his celebrated book, "Comon Sense," addresses itself to every lover of liberty:

"The cause of America is, in a great measure, the cause of all mankind. Many circumstances have and will arise, which are not local but universal and through which the principles of all lovers of mankind are affected, and in the event of which their affections are interested. The laying of a country desolate with fire and sword, declaring war against the natural right of all mankind and extirpating the defenders thereof from the face of the earth, is the concern of every man to whom nature hath given the power of feeling of which class, regardless of party censure, is. THOMAS PAINE."

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 14, 1796.

Note:—The above is respectfully referred to the cabinet of the President, William McKinley.

SPREADS THE LIGHT.

The Fort Wayne, Ind., College of Medicine, at a banquet given March 16, 1897, called on Dr. H. V. Sweringen to respond to the toast, "What is the Ultimate Destiny of Man?" The Doctor is uniformly happy in his responses; and the banqueters, in this instance, probably got more information than they bargained for, in regard to the future life. His eloquent utterances appeared in No. 385 of the "Thinker." Dr. Sweringen does not hide his light under a bushel.

LONG TIME TO LEARN.

In the 16th century the average length of a doctor's life was alleged to be thirty-six years and five months. In the 17th century it was forty-five years and eight months. In the 18th century forty-nine years and eight months; and in the 19th fifty-eight years and seven months. It thus appears that doctors have been 300 years in learning not to take their own medicine. What a happy thought—for the doctors.

THE ANGELS CAME.

There were "several remarkable incidents connected with the death of Miss Cecil Cheek, who died near Black Hand, Licking Co., Ohio, April 1st, 1897." She had been told that she had not long to live, and expressed a desire to see her schoolmates. The school marched to the house, and kissed the girl an affectionate farewell. "Mother, it will not be long now before the angels will come and take me home;" and true enough it was but a few minutes until the spirit was taken from its home of clay to its higher and better home in spirit land. Of course, there was no Spiritualism in this "remarkable incident."

VERILY, WHY NOT?

At the "City of Brotherly Love," April 4, the "Heathen Chinese" were debarred from entering the cemetery to decorate the graves of their dead with roast pigs, etc., a religious rite; but, it seems not to be a religious right. While the Christian Bible is full of sacrifices and burnt offerings, I think the Chinese might be allowed to worship their ancestors and propitiate the gods unmolested, and in their own way. Why not?

A FAILURE.

Upon the crowned heads of all Europe lies the responsibility for the blood that is shed in Armenia.—Pittsburg Dispatch. This is the legitimate result of the attempts of the zealots of Christianity, so-called, to "regenerate" the world. What a miserable failure it has been.

LET US SING.

A regular fisticuff took place in the McKee M. E. church, Allegheny Co., Pa., March 29, between two members of the choir and pillars of the church, as to how a certain piece of music should be sung. An investigation will now be in order, and the belligerents may be expelled, i.e. unless they rank high among the paying members of the church.

AN APOSTATE INSTITUTION.

A few days ago I was expressing my well known opinion of the Christian religion (that we are all unlawfully taxed to help propagate,) when my friend suddenly became offended at my making such "cutting remarks." In a few minutes I picked up the "Commonwealth" newspaper, of New Philadelphia, and my eye caught the following: "The attitude of the dominant churches is at present the strongest bulwark of existing social and legal iniquity. The deadly hatred and determined opposition of the so-called church to all proposed social and political reforms, together with the fact that the public sins and iniquities of the age received the ballot box sanction of nearly the whole body of this so-called church, proves that she is an apostate institution. That which opposes the interests of humanity has not the spirit of the Son of God."—Rev. William H. Guy, 59 Rosewood Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. This beats my "cutting remarks" all to pieces and I felt easier.

A DELUSION AND A LIE.

Then I picked up the March number of the Arena, 1897, and found it replete with interesting matter, as it always is, and my eye caught the following "cutting remarks;" by the editor, entitled, "Democracy—Its Origins and Prospects:" "The new era in Europe and America professes to be Christian. It professes to be intellectual, refined, artistic, poetic, like the Greeks. It professes to possess and to cherish the freedom and independent spirit of the Teutonic races. It professes to espouse the principles of human equality and to promote the democracy of man. But the modern era knows in its heart that its profession is a delusion and a lie.

* * *

The man has become an object of indifference or aversion to every state, and in a measure to every ecclesiastical establishment in the world. He who looks abroad among the nations to find an organic structure under which a residue of genuine democracy is cherished—such democracy as would be agreeable to the founder of the Christian religion, or to Socrates—will search long or search in vain. * * * Every ecclesiastical organization which is not created and kept in the service of man is an inane and baleful portent that deserves extinction wherever the rivers run and the starlight falls."—John Clark Ridpath, L.L.D.

After reading these "cutting remarks" by Ridpath, in the Arena, I thought it unnecessary to apologize to my friend. The truth is, the whole religious outfit has "been weighed in the balance and found wanting," and our duty to the world enjoins us to keep it before the people; to cry aloud and spare not.

FADING AWAY.

Prof. Richard Hodgson, in the April number of the Forum, says: "It is easy to suppose circumstances which would produce the conviction in all rational human beings that there is a "future life," between which and ours there is intercommunication." It is to be regretted that after several years investigation, by the aid of "psychic science," Prof. Hodgson has not arrived at a clearer idea of the truth in regard to spirit return and intercommunication. Spirit photography has done, and is still doing a great deal, to establish these vital truths. "Infidelity" in this regard, I am glad to say is fading away; slowly, but surely.

PEARL BRYAN.

Jackson and Walling, the two young men, who caused the death of Pearl Bryan, near Newport, Ky., in the winter of 1895, were hung on Saturday, March 20, at 11:40. They agreed to "die game." Therefore a clergyman was introduced, who prayed and sang songs with them. It was a very aggravated case. They cut off the girl's head before they were certain that she was dead. If capital punishment is justifiable in any case, it certainly was in this. One of the murderers threatened a reporter of he printed a certain item, he would "come back" and "haunt him." But we are told they can't come back. Nous verrons. Since this was written I have seen a communication from Pearl Bryan corroborating the facts as brought out in the trial. She still lives.

A TRANCE MEDIUM.

Charles Anderson, "a shock-headed boy of fifteen, whose school days have been limited to three short years," has been lecturing in San Francisco, upon the different religious systems of the world, now and in the past. His hearers pronounced his discourses deep and learned. Off the lecture platform he is "illiterate." This boy is evidently a trance medium, and if properly developed, may yet do some good, notwithstanding he is credited with "woeful ignorance of the commonest rules of etiquette." Stick a pin there.

NO BIBLE AT HAND.

When Washington was inaugurated in 1789, says a correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Puritans of New England were greatly shocked that not one Bible was to be found in the federal building. The home of the Christian government had no Bible; oh, horrors! Chancellor Livingston knew of a Masonic lodge near by, and went and got one. Washington kissed the book and said, "I swear, so help me God." It is suggested that since those early days this government has become Christianized; at least if we may believe the utterances of the outgoing president. Some of the descendants of those same Puritans were no doubt badly disturbed when they read that the United States Senate met and transacted business on the Lord's day, Sunday, February 28. By a parliamentary fiction, we are told, the session was a part of the legislative day, which began on Saturday; and took a recess at 2:30 a. m. Sunday, until 3 p. m. The good Christians will call it a work of necessity, which knows no law.

WICKED GLEE.

A facetious New York correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch says: "A handsome apartment house is to be erected on the lot were once stood Talmage's Brooklyn Tabernacle. Since the church burned down the lot has been vacant. Russel Sage held a $50,000 mortgage on the Tabernacle, and as this mortgage was secured by insurance on Talmage's life, instead of fire insurance on the church, it looks as if Uncle Russel has been beaten both ways, as the church is gone but Talmage is still here. Now, if he had taken out a fire insurance on the Doctor, and—but that wouldn't do, either. If Sage is really beaten at last, and by a deal with a minister, Wall street will be thrown into a succession of joyous fits."

SPIRIT DOINGS.

Paris has developed a haunted house, or rather a haunted girl: Rappings, rumblings and knockings, together with fantastic phantoms pursue this innocent French girl. When the whole house was searched by a posse of strong-nerved men, some huge body like an elephant came crashing down the stairs in the full glare of the light, yet invisible. The account adds; "It is impossible to be explained by fraud or by natural causes." Now it may be that the philosophy of Spiritualism would shed a flood of light on these strange doings of everyday occurrence. These knockings, in one house that we wot of, are nearly an everyday occurrence; they create no consternation, and are welcomed as the visits of relatives and friends; and, like Hamlet, with his father's ghost, we bid them welcome.

WARM FLESH AND BLOOD.

Chas. H. Thompson, Chicago, March 20, 1897, writes The Progressive Thinker: "I have yet to know that spirits can take on matter in the shape of warm flesh and blood. If any materializing medium will at any time hold a seance at my residence, and produce a materialized spirit, I will not only make a public retraction, but will give the medium a purse containing $100." There ought to be plenty of takers. As to the "warm flesh and blood" part of the contract, that might depend on the temperature of the seance-room, or the temperament of the medium. But it can be done; has been done thousands of times. Given the proper conditions, the manifestations will be made apparent. Be not deceived.

ONLY TRANSLATED.

"Jacob Knoblauch, of Trenton, N. J., March 16, committed suicide on his wife's grave, by sending a bullet into his head. He had been melancholy since her death. Had Mr. Knoblauch had a knowledge of Spiritualism; that his wife was not "dead," but only translated to another and a better world, he would have bided his time, with the assurance of meeting her again in "that realm where the rainbow never fades; where the stars shall be spread out before us like islands that slumber in the ocean, and where the beautiful beings, that here pass before us like shadows, stay in our presence forever." Beautiful!

RELIGIOUS BIGOTRY.

The Pittsburg Dispatch, March 29, announces that "Edw. Klotz, Jr., son of the Allegheny Spiritualist, died yesterday." It was alleged that the boy was incorrigible. But, how many preachers' boys are notoriously bad? And why the necessity of announcing that his father was a Spiritualist? He was probably educated in an orthodox Sunday-school. Had his father been a Methodist, Presbyterian, or even a Catholic, not a word would have been said, as to his religious views. Such is the religious bigotry and intolerance of the so-called Christian world of today.

MARVELOUS CURES.

The Vitalist School of Medicine.

REPORT OF A VISIT TO DR. DUMAS, OF PARIS, WHO IS PERFORMING WONDERFUL CURES BY A NEW METHOD.

Here is what happened, according to a Paris newspaper, at the visit of a Parisian journalist to the offices of Dr. Dumas, the head of the Vitalist School of Medicine, and a locally recognized authority on occultism. The home of the new medicine is in a magnificent hotel in the Rue de Lisbonne. In answer to the question whether he believed that there was any corelation between the agents of vitalism and the magnetic fluid he replied in words which will better express his meaning by being quoted verbatim.

"Yes; I fully believe there is," he said. "And the exteriorization of will power is nothing else but a part of the changes undergone by the medium. The medium is a person who has the gift of exteriorizing her ambient vital force, as some have the gift of ventriloquism. But with this difference, understand, that the exteriorization of a dynamical contingent of his being will have but a momentary effect on the subject benefiting by the exteriorization.

"It does not follow from this, though, that magnetism does not cure, but it certainly does not cure always, for the reason that the fluid which it possesses and which it exteriorates, may not agree with the subject in whose favor this exteriorization is made. I am not a medium, but I believe in vital dynamism because I can prove its efficacy to you now. I have at the present moment twenty patients waiting for me. I have eight among them whom I will relieve before your eyes, without uttering one word or giving them the shadow of a suggestion."

Touching an electric button an attendant ushered in a mother and child, the latter nervous and complaining of constant pains in his head. His face was pale, his eyes bright with fever, and it could be plainly seen that the little one could hardly stand. The doctor took up a little instrument, about the size of a five-franc piece, and applied it to the right temple of the suffering child, talking to the mother all the time. Two minutes had hardly elapsed before every manifestation of an alleviation in the child's condition was visible, and, in fact, when the doctor took his apparatus away the boy was brighter, gayer and promised a complete cure.

"The child is not cured," said the doctor, "but he will be in a few weeks."

A second patient was then ushered in, but this one was a woman, who had come to relate a marvelous cure, not to seek medical aid. She told of a friend who had been given up for dead by doctors, by the priest even, and for whom another friend, a patient of the new school, had hastened to Dr. Dumas and obtained from him his apparatus, which she had immediately applied to the apparently dead woman's temple.

Hardly five minutes after the application signs of life were discernible, and at the present moment the supposed dead woman was on the fair road to recovery.

"Now, my dear sir," concluded the doctor, turning to me, "are you enlightened on the value of vitalism? I could show you a score of patients under course of treatment. You could question them, did you so desire. You would see consumptives who have left their beds, cured and with no fear of a relapse. And when they turn to me you may rest assured that they have been given up by official doctors. And you would also discover that paralysis in all its forms does not long resist the influence of vitalism."

A CHANGE IN THE PROGRAM.

The Illinois Spiritualist Camp-meeting for 1897 will begin July 15th, and close September 1st, instead of beginning July 1st and closing August 1st, as previously announced.

The Peoria Fair and Driving Park has been secured by the camp management for this our first camp-meeting, and every indication bespeaks success for the enterprise. This park is well fenced with a high board fence and contains 106 acres, forty of which is a beautiful grove. The grounds also has an amphitheater with seating capacity for 7,000 people, and a mile driving track in connection. The management of this camp expect to hold a Bicycle Tournament five or six days during the season, the prize awarded to be presented by the merchants of Peoria. The Central City street car line runs direct to the Park gate and the company proposes to issue 200,000 triple coupon tickets to be used during the season. The first coupon will carry the holder from the depot or any part of the city to the camp-meeting grounds; the second will admit them and the third will pay their return fare. The ticket itself will be a souvenir to the First Annual session of the Illinois Spiritualist Camp-meeting for July 15th to September 1, 1897, and may be kept by the purchaser as a memento of that event.

THE ILLINOIS PSYCHIC SCIENCE COLLEGE will be opened in connection with this camp-meeting with a full staff of competent teachers. Hypnotism, mesmerism, animal magnetism, mind-reading, mental telegraphy, mental, spiritual and christian sciences and mediumship in particular will be taught, expounded and demonstrated.

Mrs. S. C. Scovell, of Elgin, Ill., who has her credentials as a minister of Spiritualism, from the Illinois State Spiritualist Association, is now serving the First Spiritualist Church of Peoria, and will continue her good work as speaker and test medium until the opening of the camp-meeting, at which time she will enter the Illinois Psychic Science College as one of its teachers. She will also appear in the camp work as a speaker and test medium. Full particulars will be given in the "Camp-meeting Bulletin," which will be sent to any address upon request.

H. SCOVELL, Ch'm.
C. T. H. BENTON, Sec.
MRS. S. C. SCOVELL, Asst. Sec.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

MRS. RICHMOND.

A Token of Appreciation.

IT IS INTERSPERSED WITH POETRY AND GOOD FEELING—THE VETERAN WORKER, LYMAN C. HOWE, TAKES A PART.

At the close of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's address the last evening of the Syracuse Convention for organizing a State Association in the Empire State, and just before the delivery of an improvised poem, Mrs. M. H. Cowan, of Syracuse, stepped upon the platform and thus addressed Mrs. Richmond.

"As a representative of the Spiritual Research Society of Syracuse, recognizing in you one of the pioneer workers of our beautiful cause, the cause of truth, the cause of Spiritualism that we in Syracuse love so well, also recognizing the great honor conferred upon us by your presence with us, we desire to present you with these flowers, these Easter Lilies, a token of the resurrecting life of nature; their beautiful spotless white so emblematic of your pure and true life, also representing that higher life which you represent; their beautiful fragrance so emblematic of your own perfect and still growing soul. We take upon ourselves the honor and it affords us eminent pleasure to present to you this beautiful emblem of your life."

Mrs. Richmond said; "We thank you for this gift and the words of appreciation accompanying it, and with our brother we will try to inweave the beautiful tribute in our poem."

Mrs. Richmond had already requested Lyman C. Howe to unite with her in an improvised poem, the first subject having been handed her by a representative of the press, "Easter Morn." The audience suggested, "Immortality;" and last but not least the beautiful tribute from the Spiritual Research Society of Syracuse, these Easter Lilies.

Mr. Walker, presiding officer, asked Mr. Howe to come forward and assist in the poem.

EASTER MORN—IMMORTALITY—THE EASTER LILIES.

Mrs. Richmond;
It sweepeth up from Galilee,
The breath of that wondrous morning;
It cometh from out the northern sea,
Where Odin's Halls with light adorning
Whence Friega comes with magic might
To renew on earth her wanted light.

Mr. Howe:
It comes from out the silent hearts
That wait at Death's pale altar,
And in its breath love's hope imparts
Where the weeping spirits falter;
It rises from the silent tomb,
Clouded with desolation,
Unto the morn of hope and bloom
Which smiles throughout creation.

Mrs. Richmond:
It comes from where Isis (with Hor) remains,
Near the Lotus in its blooming.
It comes across the western plains,
Where storm-clouds brood in glooming;
It cometh from the hearts now torn
With pangs of deepest sorrow,
Breathing the life of the glad New Morn
In the message of the morrow.

Mr. Howe:
It comes in the tender songs of love
Which sweep from shores immortal;
And opens the gates of joy above
Earth's cold and darkened portal;
It comes with a smile of sweet relief,
When the soul is touched with sorrow;
It touches the heart which strives in grief,
And points to the radiant morrow.

Mrs. Richmond:
"There is no death" its message saith.
The great and beloved Teacher
Came out from the shadow of pale death
To be the immortal Preacher;
For where he trode the lilies bloom;
There life and love eternal
Wakened from out the shadowed tomb
As a vision of the Supernal.

Mr. Howe:
And upon these blessed leaves of light
The emblems of the heart impressed
By purity divinely white
Within the soul of each angel breast:
Thus morning sheds its hallowed joy
Over the world's dark portal,
And we see in the bloom of this world's light
The prayer of life immortal.

Mrs. Richmond:
And crystallized in these petals white
From the shadow of death so chilly,
Receive the message of immortal life
Breathed from the heart of the lily;
As your lives grow and expand in praise
So do ye unfold to blossom,
And all along the shining ways,
Upon each angel's bosom.

Mr. Howe:
The soul of the lily smiles to the skies
With a face so sweet and tender,
That the Easter Morn of life replies
In the lilies' vision of splendor;
And the prayers of the soul that brought these flowers,
And the token expressed to our sister,
She'll bear to her life in her beautiful bowers,
The souls of all those who cluster
At this altar of light and sweetness and bliss
In the light of our sun and heaven's warm kiss.

Mrs. Richmond:
(Turning to all the speakers on the platform and motioning them to come forward.)
And these dear friends, who have aided in speech
To unfold the heavenly treasure,
May heaven bring love and hope's bloom to each
In their own sweet welcome measure;
That you as flowers of life may shine
In this wonderful garden of heaven,
Until each with the message all divine
All the Lilies of Life have given.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

AN OUTRAGE.

Arresting Mediums in Milwaukee, Wis.

THE POLICE INTEND TO DRIVE ALL MEDIUMS FROM THE CITY, IF POSSIBLE.

Here in Milwaukee, there has, for the past few days, been much anxiety and excitement on the part of the local mediums, caused by the secular papers announcing that all mediums must leave the city, or be prosecuted—under an old ordinance prohibiting fortune-telling. The first arrested were two women, who, the papers stated, acknowledged to being fortune-tellers and agreed to depart. The third was a man who is said to be a medium. Learning of this case, the president of the Unity Society and the writer called upon the Chief of Police to learn his intentions toward mediums. We were informed that mediums, clairvoyants and fortune-tellers—especially all mediums holding dark circles—would be classed under one head—humbugs—arrested and prosecuted, as fast as evidence could be obtained against them; that these people were receiving money from the credulous public without giving its equivalent, and that it was the intention of the authorities to "close out the business." We were then kindly given a half-hour of this gentleman's valuable time, in which I said to him in part:

There is the greatest possible distinction to be made between a spiritual medium and what is known as a fortune-teller. The former being one, who, by the development of the psychic power, can commune with the so-called dead—our fellowman in spirit life—receiving the benefit of their experiences thereby assisting us in our search for light on the subject of life, and proving the fact of immortality; while the latter deal in chance and superstition. And as for prophecy, all mankind is constantly predicting the future—all professors assuring their students of their future success; judges telling the prisoner of what he may expect when next he appears at the bar of justice; salesmen selling goods by predicting that this or that is to be all the rage the coming season; speculators prophesying a short crop and the price of grain; the astronomer informing us of a coming comet, the preacher, who, for a salary, tells us of the coming of Christ, the end of the world, the judgment day, the resurrection, etc., etc. All prophecies which time alone can prove true or false. As for dishonest people, we shall be glad of your assistance in closing up their business; and while you are at it, bear in mind there are others who take the people's money without giving its equivalent. Go up on Chestnut street and there behold the largest brewery on earth and look over its hundreds of saloons. Think you the wives and children of those who leave their week's earnings in these saloons, feel that they have received its equivalent? Were it not for this traffic, Sir, honesty would be contagious and far less frauds on every hand in every kind of business.

As for the medium the genuine spiritual medium—he is here, sir;

HE HAS COME TO STAY!

In this city—in all cities, he is the student of psychic science, believing it to be his religious duty to develop and practice the spiritual gifts according to the teachings of Paul, the apostle, I. Cor., chap. 12. He is backed by millions of Spiritualists throughout this country, hundreds of churches and societies, with a National Association—all recognized by the Constitution of the United States as a religious—religious because seeking to improve the race—philosophical and scientific body of people, with the right of religious freedom which our Supreme Court is bound to respect.

I then stated that, being a missionary from the N. S. A., I should look after the interests of the local mediums who could prove themselves such, and as for myself I was constantly predicting of the future, in messages from spirit life, and before the public, during religious services; and asked him what he was going to do about it.

He replied that concerning all I had said, he took the position of the agnostic but would proceed to prosecute all who were obtaining money under false pretences.

In this, of course, we wished him success, and thanking him that we had been given a respectful hearing, we took our departure. Since then the man spoken of as the medium arrested, has had his trial, had a lawyer to represent him, and was dismissed for want of evidence.

This morning we read that another medium has been arrested. Now these people arrested may and may not be mediumistic enough to prove themselves such, for good mediumship is a result, a growth, a development—and how are they to develop without practice? The truth is, there should be schools connected with our societies, where the experienced ones may assist those developing, and all mediums should be connected with some society—that society demanding of each medium honesty and sobriety. All societies should be connected with the National organization—for in union we know there is strength. We have succeeded in connecting the Unity society with the N. S. A. This society is destined to do a grand work in this city. We have had large audiences during our services here and hope to return to meet again with the good people next season.

Our anniversary services were all that could be desired—the stage a perfect bower of palms, pot plants and cut flowers; the walls of the large hall decorated with motto-banners; "Sweet Spirit, Hear my Prayer;" beautifully rendered by Miss M. Lane, the soloist for the season. The Daily Sentinel gave us a very good half-column report of our lecture, which was listened to by an audience that filled the spacious hall. We regret to state that our secretary, Mrs. VanHorn—beloved by all who know her—has been very ill. It is now believed that the angels are whispering: "She will recover."

Our engagement here closes with April. Our next point will be a course of five lectures—consecutive nights—in Indiana. Thence to southern Missouri.

JULIA STEELMAN-MITCHELL.

"Commentaries on Hebrew and Christian Mythology." By Judge Parish B. Ladd, LL.B., of the San Francisco Bar. This book is of more than ordinary value, giving the results of much patient thought and research by a mind well qualified to sift evidence and arrange facts. In compact form it gives just what is needed on the subject. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains a lecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

Drs. Maybe and..... Mustbe.

You choose the old doctor before the young one. Why? Because you don't want to entrust your life in inexperienced hands. True, the young doctor may be experienced. But the old doctor must be. You take no chances with Dr. Maybe, when Dr. Mustbe is in reach. Same with medicines as with medicine makers—the long-tried remedy has your confidence. You prefer experience to experiment—when you are concerned. The new remedy may be good—but let somebody else prove it. The old remedy must be good—judged on its record of cures. Just one more reason for choosing AYER'S Sarsaparilla in preference to any other. It has been the standard household Sarsaparilla for half a century. Its record inspires confidence—fifty years of cures. If others may be good, Ayer's Sarsaparilla must be. You take no chances when you take AYER'S Sarsaparilla.

THE ELIMINATOR
—OR—
Skeleton Keys to Sacerdotal Secrets.
BY DR. R. B. WESTBROOK.

Profoundly reverent, but thoroughly radical; exposing the fabulous claims of ancient Judaism and dogmatic Christianity, containing many startling conclusions never before published, showing clearly the mythical character of most of the Old and New Testament stories, and proving that Jesus was an impersonation and not a person. A genuine sensation.
Price $1.50. For Sale at this Office.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.
For the Home, the Lyceum and Societies.
A Manual of Physical, Intellectual and Spiritual Culture.
COMPILED BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

A COLLECTION OF MUSIC AND Songs, Golden Chain Recitations, Memory Gems, Choral Responses, Funeral Services, Programs for sessions, Parliamentary Rules. Instructions for Organizing and conducting Lyceums, Instructions for Physical Culture, Calisthenics and Marching; Banners, Standards, the Band of Mercy, etc.; a book by the aid of which a Progressive Lyceum, a Spiritual or Liberal Society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. It supplies the wants of Spiritual Societies for fresh Spiritual songs, with music free from the dismal tone of the old hymnology. It furnishes a unique selection of choice readings and responses such as no other selection contains. It gives a practical system of graceful calisthenics, every step of which is made plain by engravings. It gives instructions how to make the badges and banners and instructs in marching. It shows how to establish a Band of Mercy as auxiliary to the Lyceum, and has all the most beautiful songs which have been gathered up by that movement.

The author and compiler of this Guide is eminently prepared for the task by years of devoted labor in the Lyceum. The book is the result of practical work and tested by the interest awakened in the actual session of the Lyceum.

While intended for the working Lyceum, the guide is admirably adapted to the needs of the family, supplying 76 pages of new spiritual music and words found nowhere else, except in sheet form at many times the cost. The book has been placed at the remarkably low price of 50 cents, sent postpaid.

For Sale by The Progressive Thinker,
40 Loomis St., Chicago.
Also by Hudson Tuttle,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

GLEANINGS FROM THE ROSTRUM.
BY A. B. FRENCH.

This work is one that every one should read. It beams throughout with rare gems of thought, practical as well as profound. There is sunshine and beauty in every sentence uttered. The work is dedicated to the author's favorite sister, Sarah French Farr, now passed to Spirit-life. Hudson Tuttle, of Berlin Heights, Ohio, gives an interesting sketch of the author's life.

CONTENTS:
Dedication.
Sketch of the Life of A. B. French.
William Denton.
Legends of the Buddha.
Mohammed, or the Faith and Wars of Islam.
Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon
Conflicts of Life.
The Power and Permanency of Ideas.
The Unknown.
Probability of a Future Life.
Anniversary Address.
The Egotism of Our Age.
What Is Truth?
Decoration Address.

PRICE, $1.00, POSTPAID.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRITUAL INTERCOURSE.

This work contains an account of the very wonderful spiritual developments at the house of Rev. Dr. Phelps, Stratford, Conn., and similar cases in all parts of the country. This volume is the first from the author directly upon the subject of "Spiritualism," and has stood the test of many years. Cloth, $1.25. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE TEACHINGS OF JESUS
Not Adapted to Modern Civilization, with the True Character of Mary Magdalene. By Geo. W. Brown, M. D. Price, 15 cents.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.
By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This little book will be read with intense interest by thousands. Price 25 cents.

The Religion of Spiritualism,
Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

The Science of Spirit Return.
By Charles Dawbarn. Price 10 cents.

THE SOUL.
Its Nature, Relations and Expression in Human Embodiments. Given through Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, by her Guides. A book that every one who is interested in re-incarnation should read. Price $1.00.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.
BY S. WEIL.
Cloth, $1.25. - - - Paper, 50 cents.
This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.
The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede moral confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

Outside the Gates, and Other Tales
and sketches. By a band of spirit Intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price $1.25.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

W. H. Hawkins writes from Lima, Ohio: "We are having a Biblical 'feast of reason and flow of Soul' from your friend Moses Hull, and to say that the current is strong, puts it mildly. It seems incredible that creedalists will persist in fanning themselves into security upon the most important issue of their existence, 'If a man die shall he live again,' with an interpretation of a foreign language, now dead; by a subsidized priesthood whom they then permit to expound it for them; but the sledge hammer strokes of our friend compel them to display the consternation that proves an awakening to their insecurity, and we gather them in."

Mrs. Maggie Waite, platform test medium, who created such a furor when here two years ago, is to occupy the rostrum at Army and Navy Hall, Cleveland, Ohio, during May. She will have a warm welcome.

Frank T. Ripley, test medium and speaker, can be engaged for the months of May and June in Ohio, Michigan or Pennsylvania. Address all letters to P. O. Box 331, Oxford, Ohio.

Dr. M. Critchley writes from Leominster, Mass.: "Enclosed you will find 15 cents for a trial of your Progressive Thinker for a friend of mine. I am desirous of helping you reach your 1,000,000 mark. I could not get along without the Progressive Thinker, and there is not a column in it that is not worth the price of the whole paper. I have loaned it to this friend of mine, and he is becoming very much interested."

Simcoe, Ont., April 20.—Professor Ferris, hypnotist, placed a subject in a trance here yesterday afternoon and buried him six feet under ground, there to remain three days. Sheriff Jackson and a posse of officers appeared on the scene as the grave was filled in and ordered Ferris to take the man out or suffer arrest. The professor refused, stating that he is violating no law. After consultation with the county attorney, the sheriff found he could take no action. The subject is supplied with air through a box. His face can be seen. It resembles that of a corpse, but has not the extreme pallor. There is a great deal of excitement over the case.

There will be a Grand Indian Council at Lakeside Hall, S. E. Cor. 31st. street and Indiana avenue, on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, April 29th. An excellent program will be prepared consisting of elocution, music and dancing; also speeches from different controlling Indians, who will be present with the mediums. The whole will be concluded with a Grand Ball. Admission 25 cents. All mediums who are interested in the workings of the Children's Lyceum and the Progressive Church are invited to take part and build their wigwams around the side of the hall, give readings, making a small collection for same, which is to go to the Lyceum. The Progressive Church holds services every Sunday, at 3:00 and 7:30 p. m. Pastor, Rev. G. V. Cordingley. Lyceum at 2 o'clock.

Paul Haug writes from little Rock, Ark.: "In January last, Dr. Isaac S. Lee came here and commenced laboring among us. By persistent personal efforts, his eloquent lectures and pure honorable life, he has organized a new society here. It is now so growing in numbers that we will be forced to secure a larger hall. He has also organized a growing lyceum here. The true Spiritualist, Ben. F. Campbell, is president of the society, and sister Ella Campbell, superintendent of the lyceum. Both are enthusiastic in lyceum work, and more noble hearted people live not on the continent. Dr. Lee has also organized a class of Spiritual and Occult Science, that is fairly patronized by our truth seeking people. We have elected Dr. Lee chaplain of our local and also of the State Society. Judging by the increasing numbers at his meetings, he is the attraction of the liberal and orthodox public alike.

Wm. F. Langdon writes from Omaha, Neb.: "We have just succeeded in starting a large and interesting meeting here in Omaha. Mrs. Goodrich came here last month from St. Joseph, Mo., and finding the Spiritualists in a very unsettled condition, and with no organization whatever, she went to work with a will and soon succeeded in getting the people together, and now we have a large hall crowded every Sunday evening. She has also been the means of interesting a class of people who have never before taken any interest in Spiritualism. Last Sunday she was joined in her work by Mrs. Annie Wagner, who has just returned here from Denver, where she has been working for some time. She was welcomed on her return by many admiring friends. She is a splendid test medium. Mrs. Goodrich intends to be here for one month longer, and has made no engagements ahead, but will go wherever she may be called. Her present address is 207 S. 24th street."

A. Millsap writes from Magnet, Mo., "We have had Dr. Rothermel with us lately. The manifestations of spirit power given through him are marvelous. Two years ago, when there were but two of us Spiritualists here, it looked as though they would hoot us out of existence; but Spiritualism took root here and to-day her head stands above their human dogmas. Our intention now is, after we get through our busy work, to organize so we can work more harmoniously together, and show to the world that there is reality in Spiritualism."

A correspondent writes from Springfield, Mo.: "The South Side Spiritual Society and its friends were most agreeably entertained last evening by Mrs. H. O. Hawkins, at her residence on W. Walnut street. The attendance was large. The occasion was enlivened with fine musical selections, comprising duets by Prof. J. Madison Allen and Mrs. M. Theresa Allen, vocal and instrumental pieces by Mrs. Farman, music teacher, piano selections by Mrs. Nettie Woodruff, violin solos by Prof. Allen, etc. 'The Classical Parson' was recited with fine effect by Mrs. Allen, and 'The Donkey's Dream' by Prof. Allen. There were several mediums present, among them Mrs. Lyman, of St. Louis. Spiritual messages of loving remembrance were received. Sister Farman departs in a few days for England, her native home. A delightful lunch of fruits, cake and other delicacies, with a magnificent floral accompaniment, concluded the entertainment."

F. H. Barnard writes from Jacksonville, Fla.: "Dr. C. H. Figuers, the noted trance and test medium, has been giving a number of seances with great satisfaction to skeptics and Spiritualists including many visitors who gather here from all parts of the United States, proving to them the truth of Spirit return. The Doctor is certainly doing a good work for the enlightenment of humanity."

Annie Lord Chamberlain writes from Pomona, Cal.: "I am here for a few weeks' stay. Am pleased to say I am still improving in strength, and am very grateful to Mrs. Clark and her spirit doctors for the assistance so cheerfully given me. I hope to do a little good during my stay here. All I meet are very kind to me."

Dr. J. M. Peebles, the indefatigable worker and traveler writes from Melbourne, Australia, indicating that he has started on this long contemplated trip around the world for the purpose of obtaining a much needed rest from overwork, and to recuperate his physical condition. Here is a sample of the way he rests: "At Auckland, New Zealand, he was received and spoke; at Sidney, was given a fine reception and spoke; at Melbourne, the home of the Harbinger of Light, edited by Mr. W. H. Terry, was received with instrumental and vocal music and recitation. Here he spoke to about thirteen hundred people every Sunday, and sometimes two or three times a day. In fact he constantly has his harness on, and his armor and helmet, with that weapon mightier than the sword. He lectures without money and without price. According to appointment, about this time he is a guest of Col. J. S. Olcott, the well known Theosophist, at Madras. From there he goes to Calcutta, then to Darjeeling and Thibet. He proposes to visit Afghanistan and Persia, Egypt and to Palestine, and hopes to complete his travels around the world within the year, and promises The Progressive Thinker many communications as time will permit and interesting spiritual items justify.

A. B. Miller writes: "Mr. C. J. Barnes has just closed a week's engagement which was very satisfactory to all who attended his seances. Mrs. Jennie Donnovon is with us now and will remain for some time, giving slate-writing and trance sittings. Much interest is being taken in our city lately, and many of our good citizens are becoming interested and anxious to learn the truth. April 4th the Canton Spiritual Progressive Club was formed and Judge J. M. Underhill elected president, A. Katsenburg, treasurer and A. B. Miller, secretary. The club meets twice each month at the homes of the different members."

A. C. Doane writes that he has come to the conclusion that there is but one Divine Healer whose name is Law; who is never absent; whose handwriting is upon all organization; to whom sickness cannot come; who never deals out the wrong medicine to his patients, and never fails to make a cure; who makes no mistakes and consequent corrections, etc. In his declaration of principles to The Progressive Thinker which space forbids the full publication of, he waxes poetic. His ideas are the same as those repeatedly published, but are his ideas just the same.

Marguerite St. Omer-Briggs writes: "I met with a curiosity yesterday in the shape of a caller, a gentleman who has been a resident of Denver, Col., New York, Boston, Baltimore and Washington, an ardent Spiritualist, but one who had never seen 'The Progressive Thinker' until I gave him one last evening. He, after perusing it, pronounced it the best spiritual paper he ever saw, and I think will become a subscriber." The statement above is undoubtedly true, and it seems strange at first glance, but if there are millions of Spiritualists and but forty thousand readers of The Progressive Thinker, it stands to reason that many have not heard of such a paper; which, also, accounts for the size of the subscription list that is probably larger than the combined lists of all others in this country, but that should be doubled and redoubled many times. It needs but to be perused to be admired. What is two cents a week for such an advocate of your religion, your philosophy?

Emily G. Hort writes of "The Next World Interviewed:" "I have read this volume with deep interest, knowing the lady through whose mediumship the spirits of philosophers, scientists, explorers, dramatists and millionaires have given in characteristic language their impressions of the life beyond. To the unprejudiced mind, this book is in accord with scriptural teaching, and tends to substantiate the saying 'Here we see as through a glass darkly:—there shall we behold each other face to face, and know, even as we are known.'"

The camp-meeting at Bankson Lake, Mich., commences June 5th and closes June 28th 1897. The speakers are as follows: E. W. Sprague, Jamestown, N. Y. lecturer also chairman during the meeting; Mrs. Anna L. Robinson, Port Huron, Mich., June 6th to 9th; Sunday, June 13, Mrs. Abbie E. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich., until Thursday 17th; Mrs. Marion Carpenter, Detroit, June 20th to 24th. Lectures every day except Saturday and Monday. For further information, address Leon L. Fellows, Lawton, Mich.

J. C. F. Grumbine will be at Princeton, Mo., May 16th and 23d. He has May 30, open for responsible people in that vicinity, or any week evenings from the 16th to 30th. May 2 and 9 are the only dates open now except the Sundays of June. The months of December 1897, January and February 1898 he prefers to be in the west and are open for western societies or responsible individuals. Address 7820 Hawthorn Ave., (Station P.) Chicago, where the school of Metaphysics is now in session.

Mrs. J. S. B. writes of her own peculiar mediumistic unfoldment from sitting alone at her home, that she takes a pencil or crayon and is controlled to draw faces, scenes, etc. Also that a beautiful pinkish colored matter or oil is emitted from her hands and wrists. She has had some independent oil paintings, and is very much encouraged with the success of her development. We would advise her to continue to sit alone, and with the highest aspirations for her beautiful, promising gift.

"Sophia" writes that she has heard of people cutting up The Progressive Thinker for the purpose of making a scrap-book of the select articles, and says: "But as for me my religious conscience would not be guilty of such a mortal sin, as to mar or take an iota from the divine, holy Progressive Thinker. I give every one of my papers to others, and I think what large eyes Mr. Francis will have when the veil is drawn and he views his labor and its effect," etc. Thanks for your kindly feeling, but the desire to see The Progressive Thinker do a greater missionary work in the cause of truth is the incentive to the energy put forth toward making the paper superior to all others, and not to gain laurels beyond

(Continued on page 8.)

Items Suggested by, or Gleaned From, Spiritualist Exchanges.

The Banner gives some excellent advise as follows: "In notices of Sunday meetings, especially where the writer is speaking of himself or herself, we ask that all fulsome flattery be omitted. We wish to give credit to whom credit is due, but we cannot be a party to an imposition upon the public by lauding any one person to the skies, thereby becoming responsible, to a certain extent, for such engagements as may result from the reading of the notice. Modesty is commendable in every way, and a little less praise of self in giving accounts of one's own services would be a refreshing change, indicating a return to that innate modesty that is born of true soul worth. To such of our contributors as feel aggrieved because of our elimination of this objectionable flattery of self or of friends, we wish to say that we have obeyed the voice of a long-suffering public, and have no apology to offer for our course. We are anxious to publish brief accounts of all meetings, but our columns cannot be used to praise any one beyond reason, even if such person has appeared twenty-one hundred times before the same audience. A word to the wise is sufficient. When a speaker or medium has done well, we wish to say so, in order that he may receive due credit for his work, and take his true place in the history of Spiritualism. Beyond this we cannot and will not go."

If men would but believe that they are in process of creation, and consent to be made, they would ere long find themselves able to welcome every pressure of the hand upon them, even when it was felt in pain, and so recognize the divine end in view—the bringing of a son into glory.

Each mortal has an equal right to these two thoughts—right or wrong. He is their master, and can produce them, and they will bring happiness or misery. The right leading direct to heaven, while the wrong leads one to heaven through the circuitous route of hell—both being a condition only.

Memories, in so far as they are disagreeable, come up to trouble us until we have made restitution for our errors. How otherwise can one reach heaven? Restitution and reformation go hand in hand.

The individual who is depraved in tendency and taste, who indulges in the exercise of perverted habits, is unfitted, when he passes to the spirit world to enter a truly spiritual life, either of locality or condition. Conceded. How could it be otherwise?

Spiritualism is infinitely merciful and as rational as it is merciful.

Spiritualism knows absolutely nothing of hopeless condemnation and final loss.

Spiritualism believes in order, and therefore in harmony, and therefore in progress everywhere.

Spiritualism is compelled to admit that we must all reap hereafter what we sow here; but there is no vengeance in this solemn law, there is only order; there is even harmonious mercy.

Hon. L. V. Moulton's daughter, Miss May, is dangerously sick, and not expected to live.

Geo. A. Bacon alludes to Geo. A. Shufeldt, who lately passed to spirit life from Oak Park, as follows: "He was known as an active advocate of Prohibition and other reform questions, in behalf of which he wielded a trenchant and vigorous pen. Becoming deeply interested in the Spiritual Philosophy nearly a third of a century ago, he was ever after a valiant and consistent 'defender of the faith'— to him a conscious truth. A man of quick sensibilities, large sympathies and unsparing generosity, his unnumbered practical deeds of goodness must now shine as stars in his crown of rejoicing."

Spiritualism is infested with a lot of parasites, known as tricksters or frauds; they are the legitimate fruit of credulity on one hand and dishonesty on the other.

Spiritualism is a religion and philosophy.

Spiritualism is based on the fact that there is intercommunion between the terrestrial and celestial worlds, and its adherents are the most moral people on this earth.

The Spiritual Medium of St. Louis, Mo., seems to have subsided; at least a number has not come to this office for some time.

The mental or spiritual eye is restricted by no distance, no limitations.

"We understand by God's laws those laws which govern our being and the Universe," and of which the wisest know but little.

The idea, of special intervention in answer to prayer or the performance of miracle in answer to prayer, could only exist among men who believed that the world was governed by caprice.

Joseph Adams says: "It's no use your kicking for it's true what Shakespeare says, 'There's a Divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them though we may.'" That is sublime fate, as nearly as the human mind can estimate it. That bloated sot and wife-whipper had better been left unhewn—hadn't he?

No man, says Geo. McDonald, can order his life, for it comes flowing over him from behind.

The one secret of life and development is not to devise and plan, but to fall in with the forces at work— to do every moment's duty—that being the part in process allotted to us; and let come—not what will, for there is no such thing— but what the Eternal Thought wills for us, has intended for each of us from the first.

Chas. A. Campbell, now in Denver, will soon visit Chicago, then on to Lily Dale.

To inquirers and Spiritualists.—The Members of the Spiritualists' International Corresponding Society will be pleased to assist inquirers, and correspond with Spiritualists at home or abroad. For explanatory literature and list of members, address, J. Allen, Hon. Sec., 115 White Post Lane, Manor Park, Essex, England.

It is said that the Rochester Jubilee, 1898, is an assumed success. It is expected that Prof. Alfred Russell Wallace, Prof. Wm. Crookes, Camille Flammarion, Alexander Aksakof and Karl Du Prel will be present. It has an excellent general manager, Mr. Walker.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail $1. For sale at this office.

"The Dead Man's Message," an occult romance by Florence Marryat. The author's wide experience in Spiritualism and her study of occult science have prepared her to write this romance, which will be found laden with gems picked up in the course of her investigation and studies. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

THE IDEAL LIFE.

It will be now apparent that religion without politics is very much akin to "piety without practice." Politics is religion in practice. By politics I do not mean that system of cunning, sophistry and lying, illusion and self-aggrandisement, in the furtherance of which our public men are so busy under the euphemism of "political duties," but the practice that is prompted by our religious principles, viz., to so arrange society as to approach the ideal life as nearly as possible upon earth.

ANY CONSIDERATION

of religion without an equal consideration of politics is inadequate; it is the false ideal of being good without doing good. It is the natural and inevitable out come of the "save yourself" doctrine; the doctrine of a narrow soul that is undermining the very foundations of the church, so that its collapse as a powerful and authoritative body is well within measurable distance.

It is no more possible for a man

TO BE GOOD AND NOT DO GOOD

than for an evil one to do good. One is the natural guarantee of the other. It is only the evil or indifferent who would scorn "politics."

The full, pure religion is that which says: Be good and do good. The religious philosophy which is based on that message is the philosophy of the future.

PERFECTION OF THE RACE.

The living, growing doctrine which is the end and aim of all ethical science, has its climax in the perfection of the race, the brotherhood of man. The ethical system or religious philosophy of the future will not merely seek perfection in the individual; for while the majority of mankind are low, debased, greedy, cruel, and treacherous, anything resembling perfection in even a single individual is an impossibility.

OUR ENVIRONMENT

is a very persistent factor in our condition; by it we are affected in every way—mentally, morally, materially, and therefore spiritually. It is not enough to cry for the brotherhood of man; we must work for it. We shall never instill a brotherly feeling into men by merely endeavoring to lift ourselves out of poverty and wretchedness; by using our abilities and talents for self-gratification; by looking at success in business or professions as essentially worthy, without regard to the methods by which success was attained; by persistently pointing out our good qualities, and telling the word we are saved; by telling them to walk in our footsteps and they will be saved. That is cant of the worst kind. We must make salvation possible by improved environment; by giving all the opportunity of being good, and living sweet, wholesome, worthy lives.

TO-DAY THIS IS NOT POSSIBLE;

it is no longer true, in fact, that "there is something within reach" to fill every mouth that is brought into the world.

It is true that in the wealthiest city in the world there are a

HUNDRED THOUSAND PAUPERS.

Do you, dear reader, grasp the full significance of that? Can you form even a hazy notion of the suffering, misery and wanton waste of human life and human energy going on in our midst? But there is more to come. The number of paupers is rapidly on the increase.

AN APPALLING PICTURE.

One in every four of the working classes dies a pauper; one out of every two who reach the age of sixty-five are buried in pauper graves. More than 50,000 children go breakfastless to school in London every morning; more than half-a-million children in the United Kingdom attend school with bodies half-starved.

A HORRIBLE FACT.

Tens of thousands of our sisters can find no better way of getting a living than by a life of shame. Thousands of others have to eke out a scanty wage by the same means. I don't want to shock you, dear reader, or I would considerably lengthen this list of horrors. But these things exist, right under our very eyes.

As the ostrich

BURIES ITS HEAD IN THE SAND,

so we bury ours in prejudice and platitude, or cover our eyes with our hands, trying to persuade ourselves that the evil is removed, or has never existed, salving our conscience with the reflection that if it does exist we are not responsible; we always do our duty. But all this time the evil is growing and the misery increasing.

IDEALISTIC.

The teaching of spiritual beings, as revealed through modern Spiritualism is highly idealistic in character. There is nothing more calculated to supply the desire to bring in a new era, with higher forms of life and living. There is nothing more calculated to generate in man that energy from which alone emancipation and liberty can arise, or from which man shall come to realize his duties and responsibilities, his position in the universe, in relation to God and his fellows, his place on earth as a man.

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

THE DIFFICULTIES IN THE WAY.

What we wish to do is to point out difficulties in the way and assist our readers to meet and overcome them. The great essential in medium and circle is passivity: no one should enter a circle where religious or ethical teachings are sought or descriptions of spirit life expected, with any desire for the endorsement of their opinions, but they should come with minds permeated with the one desire for the acquisition of truth by the circle, each giving a quota of influence to make up one harmonious whole whose emanations could be utilized as a channel of communication, and just in accordance with their harmony and purity of aspiration will be the result.

ALL SPIRITUAL

communication is 'by Law' the results are dependent upon the conditions given.

PRIMARILY

there must be the mediumistic aura or emanation before any manifestation can be given.

SECONDLY,

the volume of this aura determines the strength of the manifestation.

THIRDLY,

the harmony of the aura determines the fluency of communication or the steadiness of physical phenomena.

FOURTHLY,

the purity of aspiration determines the plane of the response.

A MAGNETIC FOCUS.

The object of a circle is by the blending together of individual auras to create a magnetic focus about the most sensitive or mediumistic person present, and unless the minds of all present are filled with the one unselfish desire their emanations will not blend; each one out of harmony detracts from the power and is a source of weakness rather than strength, affording an opening for mischievous spirits to operate through, which they not unfrequently avail themselves of.

ACTIVE POSITIVE MIND.

There should be only one active, positive mind, that of the communicating spirit; all others should be negative or passive, and just so far as they are otherwise will the communications be distorted or warped by suggestion.

From Light, London, Eng.

ANIMALS IN SPIRIT LIFE.

I perceive that Dr. Peebles has apparently made out a strong case against the immortality of animals; but if his argument is carefully examined, it will be found to be mere rhetoric. No argument in the world will upset a fact, if it is a fact. Dr. Peebles is under the impression that if animals have immortal souls, then lions, tigers, venomous reptiles, insects, and other creatures would retain in the spiritual world their cruel and destructive propensities. This inference does not necessarily follow; they may be so transformed and endowed as to fulfill some very useful and pleasant purpose. On this subject we are not well informed, and, therefore, its discussion can only be academical.

DO ANIMALS SURVIVE?

In reply to your correspondent's question, "Do animals survive?" I can offer my testimony to the fact, after that of others, given in a recent issue of "Light." A few years ago, I was staying with my friend, a clairvoyant lady in Sussex, and while standing talking the first evening by the lighted fire, she stooped down and said, "Here is a dark dog lying before the fender. Is it yours? I have none in the house." As I could not see the dog, I asked what it was like, and she said, "Oh, it is a long-backed dark dog." Soon after this, and while we were seated talking, I heard the dog close to me, crooning with the sense of comfort that pets do, and when I moved into the dining-room, he followed me there, yapping with pleasure. I knew the voice and sound to be that of my late dear Dachshund which had died a few years before. All through my visit I could hear the dog follow me about the house, though I could not see him, and when I returned home I heard the same crooning sound of the dog from under the drawing-room sofa, the next evening; but never since then, in this house.

THE DONKEY.

Allow me, through your columns, to thank Mr. Joseph Swinburne for his valuable letter. This is precisely the kind of evidence we are in need of, and his assertion, "I have seen, heard and felt," is most satisfactory. The facts cited by Mr. Newton Crosland are also very interesting, and it is pleasant to imagine the patient and much abused "donkey" having a good time on the other side of the stream. It is amazing to me that lovers of animals are so indifferent on the subject of their survival.

BIRDS, BEASTS AND FISHES.

I notice there is some correspondence in the pages of "Light" touching upon the question of animals in the spirit world. I do not doubt but that there are large numbers of seers, mediums, and psychometrists who can give their testimony as I give mine, to the effect that in the spirit world there are "birds," "beasts," and "fishes." I have "seen, felt, and heard" them just as Joseph Swinburne has done, and could give many stories of animal existence "over there." I have scores of times seen and described animals, and given their names and cause of death to their earthly owners and friends, who in all cases have been delighted to hear of their lost pets.

COMPLETE TRANSFORMATION.

Some years ago I was traveling through, to me an unknown country, resolved to see all there was to be seen, and, to do this, I frequently went out alone, rambling amongst the hills and rocks, and one day it occurred to me to look clairvoyantly at the surrounding country. I seated myself on a huge boulder of rock, and, inducing the clairvoyant state, in a few seconds a new and strange world had opened out before me. There was a complete transformation of the scene. Not a house or sign of man. Dark forests were spread for miles around me. On the hills and rocks about me I saw wild and strange animals, enormous red cattle with huge horns and manes, larger, but exactly like the pictures of buffaloes one sees to-day. Deer, but of immense size, with antlers spreading like the branches of trees from their heads. Small animals like the antelope leapt from rock to rock. Serpents glided through the long grass and into crevices in the rock. I saw numbers of animals which were exactly like wolves, but much larger and with more fur. One animal like a lion, but with a pouch like a kangaroo, in which was a young cub, came close to me, looked into my face, and slunk away. All these were wild animals. I saw no sign of any of our present-day domestic kind. But I had been taking a peep into the past, when these were the only inhabitants of the island. They had lived and had died, and passed into the sphere in the spirit world to which they belonged and suited.

It seems to me that the general opinion entertained is that the spirit world exists for man alone. All that has life has spirit, for the spirit is the life; the spirit is the Divine part and never ceases "to be." When physical existence ceases the spirit is free and passes to one of the many spheres with which it is in affinity.

THE "SPIRIT WORLD,"

we have been told, is a replica of this, the natural world. My experience has shown me that there everything which has ever been in earth life now exists. I have seen there birds, beasts, and insectes, etc., whose every trace is lost to this planet, but which at some far distant epoch lived here, served their purpose, and passed hence.

AS LIKE ATTRACTS LIKE, it seems to me quite natural that up to now records of the appearance of domestic animals only have been published, simply because very few persons care to ramble about with a train of wild creatures at their heels, unless, indeed, a good many of us are Lord Georges in a small way.

SPIRIT DOG.

My eldest sister, who never in her life had a pet animal, has, for more than thirty years, seen constantly running by her side, or lying at her feet, a huge dog, which she describes as being a black retriever, only very much larger than any dog she ever saw on earth. It is her constant companion.

"Thomas Paine: Was He Junius?" An interesting pamphlet by Wm. H. Burr. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

Coming events cast their shadows before; and the wise will study the events from the shadows and will not waste time offering his "opinion" of what those events should have been.

The way of destruction is sweet and the great majority are traveling that way.

Seek the spirit "God" and the spirit will find itself in you, while you are seeking.

No man has a right to become the critic of another until he has proved himself better in respect to that which he would criticise.

I am never governed in what I write by what other mortals may, or may not, say; but I am moved by the power within me, which while I "seek" finds itself in me.

Concentrating a person is not in the knowledge given them, but in preparing them spiritually so that their spirit eyes will be opened to see the wisdom before them.

That which is divine never casts a shadow.

THE DREAM-TOWN SHOW.

There is an island in Slumber sea
Where the drollest things are done,
And we will sail there, if the winds are fair,
Just after the set of the sun.
'Tis the loveliest place in the whole wide world,
Or, anyway, so it seems;
And the folks there play at the end of each day
In a curious show called "Dreams."

We sail right into the evening skies,
And the very first thing we know
We are there at the port and ready for sport,
Where the dream folks give their show.
And what do you think they did last night
When I crossed their harbor bars?
They hoisted a plank on a great cloud bank
And teetered among the stars.

And they sat on the moon and swung their feet
Like pendulums to and fro;
Down Slumber Sea is the sail for me,
And I wish you were ready to go;
For the dream folks there on this curious isle
Begin their performance at eight;
There are no encores, and they close their doors
On every one who is late.

The sun is sinking behind the hills,
The seven o'clock bells chime;
I know by the chart that we ought to start
If we would be there in time.
O, fair is the trip down Slumber Sea;
Set sail and away we go;
The anchor is drawn, we are off and gone
To the wonderful Dream-Town show.
—ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN.

Two soldiers lay on the battlefield
At night when the sun went down.
One held a lock of thin gray hair
And one held a lock of brown.

One thought of his sweetheart back at home,
Happy and young and gay,
And one of his mother left alone,
Feeble and old and gray.

Each in the thought that a woman cared,
Murmured a prayer to God,
Lifting his gaze to the blue above,
There on the battle sod.

Each in the joy of a woman's love
Smiled through the pain of death,
Murmured the sound of a woman's name,
Though with his parting breath.

Pale grew the dying lips of each,
Then, as the sun went down,
One kissed a lock of thin gray hair,
And one kissed a lock of brown.
—Town Talk.

SEANCE WITH THE BANGS SISTERS.

To the Editor:—If the many readers of The Progressive Thinker are half as much interested in what I experienced in Chicago during the holidays, as I was, I will be more than paid for writing it up. The day after Christmas I called on the Bangs Sisters for a slate-writing. I tied my slates in a handkerchief and hung them on the gas bracket, putting my ring on the slates. The money my wife had when she passed out went to pay for the ring. I got a beautiful slate, all written in gold, the same shade as the ring. The message read: "Dearly loved husband, John:—In lines of gold I pen you to-day in commemoration of the season of festivity, and that you may know that under proper and harmonious conditions almost everything is possible with the spirit. I am with you each day in the home, with you always when your thoughts turn to me and with you deeply interested in our loved ones, and that their lives may be more perfect, desiring that they, too, should come to the light. Life with me is indeed beautiful, and I look forward to your coming. Be assured I shall be first to welcome you there, and that in coming all shall be like a sweet, refreshing dream to you. With undivided devotion, your affectionate wife, Cynthia."

In the communication, where she speaks of being deeply interested in our loved ones, she means our children. We have four. Where she says, "desiring that they, too, should come to the light," she means to the light of Spiritualism.

I stayed to their materializing seance in the evening; had good results, four forms came for me that I knew, and one that I did not. My wife came. She asked for paper to write; it was furnished. Then she asked me for my pencil. She wrote a short communication. My sister and brother came that have been in the spirit-world forty years, and my little grand-daughter came. If her mother had been there I should not have been surprised to see her; as it was, I was much surprised. I knew her the moment I saw her. I said: "Why Beulah! is this you?" She could not or did not talk—she nodded her head twice. I asked: "Did you come with your grandma?" She nodded twice. I asked: "Can't you and won't you kiss me?" She nodded and put up her mouth and kissed me as nice as she ever did in her earth-life. I told her, if she was strong enough I wished she would step up in the curtains so the sitters could all see her. She did so. One lady said: "See that little thing."

My brother was strong—he locked arms with the medium that was in the seance-room and with me, and stepped out in the seance-room three or four feet, and I introduced him to the sitters. DOC DICKINSON.

Battle Creek, Mich.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

ANGEL WHISPERINGS
For the Searcher After Truth.
BY HATTIE J. RAY.
All who love genuine poetry, of excellent moral and spiritual quality, should read this book. This work is handsomely bound and is clearly printed on good paper. For sale at this office. Price $1.

MEDIUMISTIC EXPERIENCES OF JOHN BROWN,
The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

IMMORTALITY.
A poem in five cantos "If a man die, shall he live?" is fully answered. By W. S. Barlow, author of Voices. Price 60 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.
An Adventist Attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By MOSES HULL. Price, 5 cents. For sale at this office.

AN INTERESTING BOOK.
The Candle From Under the Bushel; or Thirteen Hundred and Six Questions to the Clergy. By Wm. Hart. Price 40 cents.

HOW TO MESMERIZE.
By Prof. J. W. Cadwell, one of the most successful mesmerists in America. Ancient and modern miracles explained by mesmerism. An invaluable work. Price, paper, 50 cents.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing;
A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

POEMS.
By Edith Willis Linn. A volume of sweet outpourings of a gentle nature, who has no thought of the bitter cruelty of earth-life. These are sweet, winsome and restful. Price $100.

Fifty Years in the Church of Rome
By Rev. Chas. Chiniquy, ex-priest. A remarkable book. Pages, 832. Price $2.25.

PAINE'S POLITICAL WORKS.
Common Sense, The Crisis, Rights of Man, etc Illustrated edition. Post 8vo., 650 pages. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 20 cents.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.
Have you promised yourself the rare pleasure of reading this beautiful work by the good, old-time writer, Hudson Tuttle? Price, 50 cents. Contains a fine portrait of the author. For sale at this office.

STANDING UP FOR JESUS,
Or what the editor of the Freethinker's Magazine thinks of him. Price, 4 cents; twenty-five copies for 50 cents.

The To-Morrow of Death.
...OR THE...
Future Life According to Science.
BY LOUIS FIGUIER.
TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH
BY S. R. CROCKER.
A VERY FASCINATING WORK.
This fine volume might well have been entitled Spiritualism Demonstrated by Science. It is written in that peculiar interesting style in which French writers excel when they would popularize scientific subjects in adaptation to the needs of the general reader. The author is not a Spiritualist—he even mentions Spiritualists as "devotees of a new superstition," etc., etc., in which he manifests the usual animus of the "scientific class," yet he says again: "There is a true and respectable idea in Spiritualism," and regards as proved "the fact of communication between superhumans and the inhabitants of Earth;" and he goes on to relate instances of fact in evidence. There is, to a Spiritualist, a manifest discrepancy in the author's ideas, but the well-read mind will readily select and arrange the pros and cons, and out of the whole will find not only good mental culture, but much valuable information. The author holds the theory of reincarnation. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Evolution of the Devil.
By Henry Frank, the independent preacher of New York City. The most learned, accurate, scientific and philosophical analysis of His Satanic Majesty ever published. The book contains 66 pages, and is beautifully bound, with likeness of author on title page. Price 25 cents.

Mahomet, the Illustrious.
BY GODFREY HIGGINS, ESQ.
This work is one of the Library of Liberal Classics. No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbon's work. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

THE REAL ISSUE.
By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have. For sale at this office.

SPIRITUAL HARP.
A Collection of Vocal Music for the Choir, Congregation and Social Circles.
By J. M. Peebles and J. O. Barrett; E. H. Bailey, Musical Editor. New edition. Culled from a wide field of literature with the most critical care, free from all theological bias, throbbing with the soul of inspiration, embodying the principles and virtues of the spiritual philosophy, set to the most cheerful and popular music, (nearly all original), and adapted to all occasions, it is doubtless the most attractive work of the kind ever published. Its beautiful songs, duets and quartets, with piano, organ or melodeon accompaniment, adapted both to public meetings and the social circles. Cloth, $2.00. Postage 14 cents.

INGERSOLL'S ADDRESS
Before the New York Unitarian Club. The first time in the history of the world that a Christian Association ever invited a noted infidel to lecture before them. The lecture is a grand one, and was received by the Club with continuous applause from beginning to end. The pamphlet contains 12 pages, beautifully printed. Price 6 cents; ten copies, 50 cents.

THE TALMUD.
Selections from the contents of that ancient book, its commentaries, teachings, poetry, and legends. Also brief sketches of the men who made and commented upon it. By H. Polano. 359 pp. Price, cloth, $1.00.

MAN —IN THE—
PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.
A POPULAR ACCOUNT OF
Results of recent scientific research regarding the origin, position and prospects of mankind.
From the German of
DR. LUDWIG BÜCHNER,
Author of "Force and Matter," Essays on Nature and Science," "Physiological Pictures," "Six Lectures on Darwin," Etc.
"The great mystery of existence consists in perpetual and uninterrupted change. Everything is immortal and indestructible—the smallest worm as well as the most enormous of the celestial bodies,—the sand grain or the water drop as well as the highest being in creation, man and his thoughts. Only the forms in which being manifests itself are changing; but Being itself remains eternally the same and imperishable. When we die we do not lose ourselves, but only our personal consciousness. We live on in nature, in our race, in our children, in our deeds, in our thoughts—in short, in the entire material and physical contribution which, during our short personal existence, we have furnished to the subsistence of mankind and of nature in general."—Buechner.
One vol., post 8vo., about 850 pages, vellum cloth, $1.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD;
Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve.
BY LOIS WAISBROOKER. THIS IS a novel written with a purpose, and that purpose is not merely to enable an unthinking, idle mind to while away the time in a state of idle blessedness, devoid of earnest thought or care for either self-improvement or the good of humanity. It is a book designed especially, primarily, for mothers and those who are to be mothers; and secondly, through the mothers, to effect the well-being and happiness of the race. It brings strongly and clearly to view the result upon the child of proper surroundings and influences bearing upon the mother previous to maternity. Incidentally the author touches upon various things in modern social and business life, which are unjust, and fix unequal burdens upon the individuals composing society as a whole. The book is trenchant, instructive and very interesting, even when regarded merely as a novel, and is especially commended to "women everywhere," to whom it is dedicated. It also thoroughly shows up the Jesuitical spirit of the Catholic Church; advanced ideas relating to the Spiritual philosophy are introduced. It contains a fine likeness of the author. It contains 345 pages, neatly bound in cloth. Price by mail, prepaid, $1.

CHURCH AND STATE.
The Bible in the Public Schools; the New "American" Party. By "Jefferson." Third edition. This beautiful pamphlet of 28 pages is the most thorough presentation of the Church and State question that has appeared. Price 10 cents.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, MAY 8, 1897, NO. 389

SPIRITUALISM.

SPIRITUALISM AND THE NEW CIVILIZATION, INSPIRATIONALLY GIVEN BY THE GUIDES THROUGH THE MEDIUMSHIP OF J. C. F. GRUMBINE AT BROOKLYN, N. Y., MARCH 28, BEFORE THE WOMAN'S PROGRESSIVE UNION — STENOGRAPHICALLY REPORTED FOR THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

We believe that in the dispensation of what may be regarded as specious forms of Spiritualism there is a divine intent, and that the aim of nature is subserved and outworked when all these varieties of revelation, are conserved to illuminate the path and career of humanity. God has no uniform or one way of manifesting or revealing himself to His children. Human consciousness works its way up through all the variety of processes of thought and experience, of involution and evolution, toward the true expression of the divine. And what may be the revealments of the Spirit and of spirits to the Orient may not necessarily be the revealment of Spirit or spirits to the Occident. But we cannot understand this, except as we realize the universality of humanity in the sphere of Divinity, and the unity of Divinity in the sphere of humanity. We are one in consciousness, in Divinity. We are one in the law of spiritual expression and manifestation.

The celebrated French scientist Comte, sought to introduce to the scientific bodies of Europe what he regarded as a system of science, in the statement that every science bears an integral and collateral relation to every other science. That is to say, that geology has a relationship to biology, that chemistry and physics have a relationship to psychology, and psychology in the higher realm of spiritual science has a relationship to and is, in fact, a collateral of psychometry, clairvoyance and inspiration, as sciences of the spiritual gifts of being. So we teach there is a fundamental basis and a correlative relationship existing between all the sciences which we designate the physics and metaphysics of earth. One may study the unchanging law of nature in all these sciences, or go still higher in the realm of the supernatural, and find a unity of law—of the one law that permeates and governs all manifestation.

VOICE OF INSPIRATION.

This is the revealment also in the realm of inspiration. All rays of light, proceeding out of the central source of light, all rays of truth proceeding out of the central source of truth, adapt themselves, as the rays from the sun, whether electrical or chemical, to whatever they touch or is touched by them, thus infusing that nourishment and satisfaction which hearts and souls need.

It is not necessary for us to seek to orientalize the Occident or occidentalize the Orient, not necessary for us to go to the Orient for our immediate and present inspiration, or for the Orient to come to the Occident to receive inspiration from God or the spirits. Is it not possible and reasonable that to an American people there should be revealed those intelligences who are immediately interested in the American life, ideals, character and civilization? And while it may be true that the catholicity of spirits would draw them to one center—because, if we are rays of thought or of light from one central source of light, however much we may touch an infinite circumference, there is one center that binds all radii from circumference to itself, and there is one sympathetic soul that holds us all to one center—while this may be true, yet we have always emissaries and missionaries, going to and fro over the earth, throwing broadcast whatever seeds of truth have been enshrined in their consciousness. What we wish to emphasize is this: that thought is only the result, not the cause of inspiration. It is simply one of the methods by which men and women are called to scatter their seed; it is not necessarily the reason why they have received these seeds of truth. And therefore the difficulty in understanding Spiritualism is due largely to the fact that we are laboring under certain predilections or prejudices, which make it quite impossible for us to receive a spiritual perception of truth from the realm of truth itself. We are of the opinion that it is necessary for us to go to the Orient or the Occident, or to listen to this or that teacher, to receive our lessons or our guidance: whereas, we believe that the Infinite Intelligence is sufficient for the needs of every child of God on the planet; and if people would only mind their own business the world would be better off.

SPIRITUALISM AND CHRISTIANITY

Now Spiritualism, in this modern age, is in perfect line with all of the revelations that have ever been. It is not new in the sense that it has never been. It is not supernatural in the sense that it is miraculous. It is not a hybrid creation of men and women, that simply comes into life to startle by a sort of sorcery or necromancy or divination; but it is a legitimate product of the forces and laws of nature, under the working of the Spirit of the universe, and it can be explained by what we designate the unchanging law of nature. Its relation to Christianity is its relation to truth. It accepts Christianity only so far as Christianity is a revelation and embodiment of truth. It ceases to follow Christianity, to be guided by it, when Christianity merges into what may be designated dogmatism, ecclesiasticism, or any form of fanaticism. It does not literalize any revelation; it spiritualizes all revelations. The newest revelation is one that is a larger and deeper insight of whatever has been revealed; and therefore Spiritualism should really have the precedence over any form of revelation that has ever been. And if we are truly Western in our thought, and not hybrid creatures living upon the tree of good and evil in the Garden of Eden, we will be Western in our acceptance of a Western revelation. We are thoroughly American in the atmosphere of freedom which seems to encircle us and permeate our thought and life; and yet, at the same time, we are oriental in that we still bow at the fetich and mythology of the East. As we go about, we see shrines erected to many unknown gods; and right here in the City of New York we find a desire to know the inspiration of the unknown God. It is He whom ye ignorantly worship.

MISSION OF SPIRITUALISM.

We believe that Spiritualism has a mission to soul, not to names; a mission to those in the Orient and also to those in the Occident; but, if we were talking to the Hindoos, or Mohammedans, or Egyptians, or the Greeks, we would bring to them a revelation and an inspiration that is in direct line with their own teachings; not something that is simply reared and incubated in the brain of Western civilization. It is folly to try to go to the Orient and christianize it, just as we believe it will be folly for India or Western Asia to come to Europe or America, and try to make us converts to Mohammed or to Buddha, or to Zoroaster. We are led not by men, we are led not by names; but we wish to be led by the inspiration of Divinity from whatever source it may come. We will investigate, we will look into, we will plagiarize, all that may be given us from the Orient, so far as it may measure to us our needs and consciousness; but to assert that its type of inspiration or revelation, as recorded in its sacred books, should be the standard of Western civilization, we are too American for that.

Modern Spiritualism has come into the world through mediumship, in the United States, in France and England, as through mediumship in the Orient, among those who have been recipients of these spiritual manifestations and inspirations, to unify men in the perception of one central truth, which is the source of all their inspiration and guidance. It was not expected, when Buddha or Mohammed or Zoroaster came into the world, that all men would bow at their shrines and say, "Great art thou!" any more than we should have said, "Great is Jesus," and enshrined him as very God. Jesus came into the world to show us the light, not himself; to reveal to us the truth, not the embodiment of the truth; and to point the way to a higher conquest of truth for us to follow. For he said, himself, that the Spirit of truth will lead you into all truth. When he said, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me," he meant unto that spirit which shone in him, and which was illustrative of divinity, of the ideal, the inspiration of life. Therefore we must, in the very beginnings of our investigation of Spiritualism, rid ourselves of the idea that it is going to take away from us our shrines, our convictions of religion, our aspirations for truth and our guidance. Spiritualism has come into the world to give you these more abundantly, not to take anything from you. When it takes away a fraction, it gives you an integar. It takes away evil, only to give you good. It takes away the child sphere and child life, to give you the sphere of the man and woman; and it is in the line of all Evolution.

MATERIALISM AND AGNOSTICISM

There are two forms of philosophy in the world that Spiritualism has had much to do with, for they always manifest themselves in human consciousness and society. On the one side, there is Materialism; and, on the other, Agnosticism. Agnosticism cannot be said to be a philosophy; for that which denies everything and affirms nothing cannot be the basis of a philosophy, which is supposed to have a basis in an affirmed wisdom. Materialism may be a system of thought. It is a system of philosophy, because it concerns itself with the forces and laws of nature as manifested on the objective plane. And it is with Materialism as a philosophic system and as applied to ethics, that Spiritualism has everything to do. Spiritualism is not to blame for what may be regarded as the doubts and nescience of mortal life. Spiritualism is not simply a philosophy that can be logically applied for and made to destroy all these doubts, this agnosticism, this infidelity, this atheism, this inability and inefficiency to know or perceive truth. We believe that Spiritualism comes into the world first of all to strike at the very heart of man, and make him realize his spiritual nature and divinity. And if it can do that, it will make a man not a materialist or agnostic but a Spiritualist, not a dogmatic follower of any specious form of Spiritualism, but one in the highest and truest sense; just as some saints are Christians, as Savonarola, or Charles and John Wesley; saints like Paul or James, who, while in the Christian church, yet are not false to the Christian vision. Do you not remember that John Henry Newman sung, "Lead, Kindly Light," and Jeanne d'Arc was beheaded because she believed the voices that led her and Charles to victory in France. Servetus was more of a Christian than Calvin who had him burned at the stake; because Servetus laid hold of angelic manifestations and had that sweetness in his character which is of inconceivable value to men and women to-day. When men and women realize through the phenomena and inspirations of spirit that their nature is not simply physical, but is physical because it is spiritual, that the essence of their very being is divine—do you think that they will be Materialists or Agnostics?

The worst men and women to deal with are the Agnostics, because they affirm nescience and yet ignorantly deny science or the possible and real knowledge of the soul. And the Unitarians are as bad as the Agnostics. They profess to believe in the unity of God. They talk of angels on Christmas and Easter; but deny them fifty weeks in the year. Agnostics, indeed! And when they tell you that Spiritualism is so materialistic, so crude and sensuous in its manifestations, they commit an unpardonable errror; for if there is any class of people that need material manifestation more than spiritual, it is these Unitarians. There are few among them broad enough to allow a man who takes the platform as a Spiritualist to speak in their pulpit. Just as they drove Theodore Parker and Emerson from their pulpit they make no room for their seers to-day. What they want in liberalism is simply the name, not the thing. They will tolerate the Jew, and Ethical Culturist, and Agnostic and Materialist; but the Spiritualist they will not accept. Where is their liberalism? Spiritualism is the corner stone, the stone which the builders rejected. It is the last thing they will accept; but it will be the last thing they must accept. And as they go through the corridors of eternity, they will perceive this thought, for we believe that real conversion comes at last in the realm of Spiritualism, and they will say, "Thank God for this revelation!"

The speaker is aware that the medium was once a Unitarian minister; and yet if he applied for a pulpit in the Unitarian Church to-day, they would be very careful how they received him. He would be received as a Unitarian, preaching Spiritualism under the name of Unitarianism, but he could not preach in a Unitarian Church as a Spiritual teacher. Why, because they are too fond of their name; they care more for their name than the truth. The statement which the speaker was inspired to make, when he resigned from his pulpit, was, that if this is a Unitarian Church, committed to the Unitarian philosophy of life; if it believes in the Unity of God, against the Trinitarian concept; if it believes in the Unity of Truth, against the idea of a Vicarious Atonement; if it believes in the Unity of Law, against the idea of a supernatural or dual relationship of law; if it believes in the Brotherhood of Man, against the idea of absolute individualism or segregation; if, in short, it believes in the solidarity of the race, then it is committed to a very broad, theistic, humane and ethical platform. And that is the Unitarian position. But do you not see that in seeking to work out the problem of human destiny, the Unitarians practically make the mistake of offering overtures to the atheist and the infidel for patronage? The very class of thinkers, to-day, those who have this new spiritual revelation which we have declared and who make this affirmation on demonstrable grounds, they refuse absolutely to accept; and yet they allow the agnostic to come in and shape the policy of the Unitarian pulpit, and he is compelled to shape it according to the conservative traditions of the church or agnostically and not by virtue of the prophetic vision. No wonder Parker and Emerson left the church, and Channing had his own independent pulpit.

ORTHODOXY AND LYMAN ABBOTT.

In the orthodox church they are trying to get rid of Lyman Abbott, and it will be nothing short of a miracle if it is not found true that the very gravity of the times will compel that congregation to keep Lyman Abbott as the inspiration of Plymouth Pulpit. The times have come when such men will be needed, when, purely on a financial basis, men will be compelled to receive the prophet, because the people have gotten through with the scholar and the scholastic interpreter, the go-between God and man. We have come to the time when we believe that we can think for ourselves, we can receive the inspiration of God for ourselves. We do not need a priest to stand between us and Divinity. When a minister takes the ground that Lyman Abbott has, repudiating the fable of Jonah and the whale, he stands absolutely on truly inspired and scientific grounds, and he has cut the cables from orthodoxy. But what is astounding to us is to find so liberal a man as Dr. Rainsford, in the Episcopal church in New York City, claiming the fallibility of Jesus and the Progressiveness of Revelation, and yet, poll-parrott-like, reiterating a theology and a ritual that the heart or mind cannot receive. The despair of scientific men is indeed largely through the dual position of such a minister. The church holds him to a ritual he has outgrown, and yet the church allows him to be progressive enough to hold his congregation. So a poor clergyman, seeking to ride a horse going in two different directions, makes himself very ambiguous and ridiculous to the world. The church, to-day, is trying to be up to date.

TIDAL WAVE OF INSPIRATION.

You see that in spite of everything, in this age of electricity, we are being carried along by this tidal wave of inspiration, and we must adapt ourselves to it; and it is impossible for us to take any other than the aggressive and positive and progressive position. Here is this ocean of inspiration that rolls through all of us in its efflux and influx, and we, according to our needs, are being satisfied. So modern Spiritualism has come into the world when faith began to grow cold, and when, because of Materialism and Agnosticism, humanity had lost hold of even the fire that extended over the ages from the inspiration and the phenomena of the spirit through Jesus of Nazareth. The time has come when these smouldering embers of the human heart should be awakened, and the eyes of men opened to their real condition and made to perceive their spiritual nature, and know that God is immanent in it, as spirit is immanent in them. This is, after all, the real logic of history; and between real Spiritualism and real Christianity there is not an iota of difference. And when people come to us and say, "Must we give up our Jesus?" We say, "No, but you must give up your idolatry, your fetish, your worship of a man-God." There is something affirmative and positive in Spiritualism and it does not tell you to give up anything that is helpful and real; but, in giving up idolatry, it gives you in its place that which inspired idolatry. The Christian church has worshiped Jesus as a man—Spiritualism has come into the world to lead the church out of that idolatry, even though the church be sacrificed. Is it not better to sacrifice the church, and keep conscience? To sacrifice the man-God, and still have Divinity? To sacrifice the partial revelation of truth, and have a larger measure of truth? Better to deny and repudiate all the books of the Bible, and still have the real inspiration of Spirit and of spirits? What do you surrender? Nothing! And then consciousness will rise to its own level, forever and ever.

SPIRITUALISM AND SOCIOLOGY.

When it comes to the question of Political Science and Sociology, Spiritualism comes into the world just in time. When this Republic was about to be sundered and Civil War was immanent, Spiritualism came in 1848, just a few years prior to the Rebellion, and it was by the counselings of the spirits, through a medium, that Abraham Lincoln was led to sign his Proclamation, liberating the slaves. And that was nothing more nor less than a measure in favor of the unity of the human race. No man has a right to enslave another man in the name of freedom. Now, then, freedom in religion, freedom in politics—then we are ready for reform and development; but until we have them, we are ready for but one thing, and that is revolution, and not evolution. There are people here in America that want a war of Greece with Turkey. They think they can blot out a sin by blotting out a nation. So in society, we think we can get rid of the criminal class by hanging them. The human mind thinks, despite prisons and imprisonment. Your thoughts travel through consciousness as a shuttle in the loom of life. You cannot prevent it. They are not reflected from one wall of the brain to another merely, not limited simply by sense perception; but as they radiate from North, East, South and West, they touch souls sensitive to them. When you are living in the thought of a criminal during the day, at night your spirit goes out to murder. We know that where the heart is, where the mind is, there will the spirit be. The spirit is always where you concentrate your thought. Then, do you not see, that by putting the criminals into prison where they cannot do bodily harm to society, you are not by that act of suppression preventing them from expressing their thought? It leaps out of these cages and goes forth with their shafts, touching innocent hearts; and when they are on the other side they will come back to the sensitive mind, and where they find the door unbarred, enter.

ETHICS OF SPIRITUALISM.

You companionate yourself with all those who are kindred with you in all nations of the earth. If you realize your divinity and live on the spiritual and intellectual plane, you naturally companionate yourself with all who are spiritual and intellectual. Why, it is not necessary to know the poets by the ties of consanguinity or the usual methods of introduction and etiquette. You live in their atmosphere, only as you love the same things they love and live their life. Dear men and women of the City of Brooklyn, when will you realize the fact, that your Divinity as well as your humanity allies you with the angels only when you are angelic, and with the devils when you are devilish. This is the revelation in ethics of Spiritualism to the world. It makes reform not of those aggressive measures which are simply applied to humanity in social and political government but, in the realm of the spirit it makes reform radical and from within and thus evolves humanity. And the reform must begin in the internal world before it is consummated in the external. The reform must be psychical first, before it will ever be realized upon the objective plane of life.

A MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

How are you to realize your spiritual nature? In two ways. The first way, which is the more excellent way, is by the cultivation of spirituality. And he who is not willing to make that test is not yet ready however much he may receive or delight in them, for the physical phenomena or phases of mediumship; because they come into the world and are given to mankind to present to you evidence upon which you shall build the philosophy or rationale of your spirituality which shall fashion the angel. Many do not realize their spiritual nature, or understand that they have an angel within them; they do not know where or how to begin; because they do not recognize the essence of being, but when they perceive that there is a white rose enfolded within this red rose of life, an angel in this carnal heart, then will they begin to unfold the spirit in an atmosphere and environment of pure thoughts and deeds, and watch its unfoldment, which will result in spirituality.

This result which is called spirituality is not Christian but Psychical.

The other way of which we speak is through the phenomena of mediumship. It is the common but indirect way yet popular in every age. And there have been presented through the Fox sisters, and through mediums since then up to the present time, there have been presented to the human consciousness on the objective plane, the powers of this immortal spirit, through which the spiritual consciousness and nature stood revealed; and every one of the spirits that came back declared that their only hell was in state, not in place. Jesus also said heaven is a state. Realizing that heaven is a state, do you not see that that is almost a prophetic suggestion of the nature of the human soul? That since heaven is a state, it belongs not to environment, as we often suppose that when we are rich we are going to be happy. The man who has simply riches is the most miserable man in the world, said Rockefeller. We think we have hell, because we are poor; not so: but altogether because in poverty one does not know how to live heavenly. "O well," some people say, "how can you do it, when you are out of work or haven't any money?" We will simply say this: that that is the time when you are called upon, more than at any other time, to do it, and if you cannot do it, it is within your province, it is indeed your prerogative, to learn how.

People are trying to get rid of poverty as if they could shovel it out of their heart as you shovel snow off a pavement; just as they are trying to get rid of disease by taking medicine. Why, hate induces disease. All these troublous states of the consciousness induce disease. We are trying to find the cause of disease in the bacilli, which is anything but the right explanation of disease. Disease means that which is without ease, without harmony. And you will find that probably these little insects would not come into the human system and fasten on it like barnacles, if the spirit could or would throw them off; in short, if the spirit were in perfect harmony and accord with nature.

Now God is just as near to the poor as the rich. People are beginning to think that there is a favored class just as they once thought or were taught to believe that few were going to heaven and many to hell. The poor are just as dear to God and the angels as the rich. And we believe that you are given these environments and states of soul because they are necessary for the evolution of your spiritual consciousness—they come to test you and bring the angel out of your heart—and if you throw them away, then, if not here, in some other life, you must meet these conditions. And a man or woman who, afraid of poverty, will degrade his nature on the stage, or in any other place, as it is being done in New York or Brooklyn, to-day, simply for money, is one that has illustrated the apotheosis of materialization materiality and materialism. We must come out of such conditions and be willing to be virtuous and honorable and live a noble career, though our whole physical frame dissolves under the sublimating chemistry of such ideality. We want men, to-day, who can stand for principle, truth, virtue—stand like a Christ, and let the whole world laugh and scorn, rather than give up the ideal life and end of the Cosmos of the spirit.

THE DIVINE ALCHEMY.

Spiritualism comes to lead man to the shining path, to the noblest career of possible ideal, spiritual life and civilization; and therefore it offers in its philosophy of spirituality the only solution to the problems of the modern age and world. For not in the christology of church, or in the reform of society, or in the laws or statutes of government, shall you find the solution of the mistery of life or the problems of evil and error. In the human soul, by laying hold of this truth which is the inspiration of Spiritualism, allowing it to consume all that is base and carnal in its fiery baptism, that out of such chemicalization which is the divine alchemy of life, the angel of pure love may be born or evolved, shall the infinite and finite meet and blend, and all error and sin be transformed into the foundation of the night of ignorance and sin upon which the grand man in the eternal day of conscious, unfolded divinity, will be established, to rejoice forever and evermore.

A GRAND PAPER.

SO PRONOUNCED BY TITUS MERRITT, A PROMINENT SPIRITUALIST OF YONKERS, N. Y.

To the Editor:—The Progressive Thinker of the 17th inst, Anniversary Number, is grand throughout. The first page, the address of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, and the Home of the Fox Sisters. The report from Rochester where Mr. Kates and wife are rendering good service. The visit to the temporary home of the Fox family, while building on the newly purchased farm without buildings, of so many of our earnest workers of to-day. The valuable instruction given by Dr. S. Augusta Armstrong on the 2nd page, whose intelligent and musical voice was frequently heard in the late Convention at Syracuse, N. Y., also the masterly telling address of Miles Menander Dawson at the First Society of New York City—in short, the entire paper should be largely circulated by all societies (Spiritualists and Freethinkers), with their neighbors still ignorant of the greatest and most important event of the 19th century, Modern Spiritualism, 1848.

I have attended many conventions East and West during the forty-two years earnest investigation, and I do not hesitate to say that the late Convention at Syracuse, N. Y., gives the greatest satisfaction. The Spiritualists assembled there organizing a State Association of Spiritualists accomplished a great work and laid a foundation for a grand superstructure, which will have additional embellishments yearly. Fraternally, TITUS MERRITT.

HE TOOK THE MONEY.

New Clerk (anxious to show his sagacity. "This silver dollar you just took in is counterfeit."

Proprietor (nervously). "I was waiting on the minister's wife."

"But you don't take counterfeit money from women just because they happen to be minister's wives, do you?"

"No, of course not."

"Didn't you see this was counterfeit?"

"Consarn it! Young man, if you must know, that's the dollar I dropped into the contribution box last Sunday."—New York Weekly.

William Penn's formal but kindly politeness impressed even the Indians with whom he dealt. One of the names given him by them was "The Good Big Chief."

Auber, the composer, was pleasant enough to the people whom he allowed to see him, but he was about as hard to obtain an audience with as the Czar of Russia.

Twelve letters of our alphabet were borrowed from the Phoenicians and are still pronounced in exactly the same way that they were over 4000 years ago.

SPIRITUALITY.

ANALOGY OF BODY, SOUL, AND SPIRIT—SUGGESTIONS FOR SPIRITUAL UNFOLDMENT.

Assuming that man is composed of body, soul and spirit, I will take that assumption for my foundation. The physical body is the covering for the soul, and the soul a covering for the spirit. The soul is the connecting link between the spirit and the physical body—a means of communication between the two. The physical body has seven senses and the soul has seven corresponding senses through which information comes from the spirit side of life. These soul senses may be used by our own spirit, or through them we may communicate with outside spirits.

Now if we would grow and unfold naturally we must seek to control ourselves in every way, and not be under the control of any spirit, embodied or disembodied. Mediumship does not necessarily imply spirituality, for there are many very excellent mediums who are far from spiritual. If we would be spiritual we must let our own spirit, our own higher self, control us in all things. All of the lower tendencies of the mind and body must be brought under control of our will, and that will must be directed by our higher self. We must seek to spiritualize all. When spirit, soul and body are all brought into harmony, under control of the spirit, then the at-one-ment is reached and we are on the upward road.

The spirit is planted within us and if we would have it grow we must look within for knowledge and guidance—must guard our thoughts and feed it with kindness, love and charity in our actions towards all. Right and justice must govern our actions towards our fellows, or we will not be able to overcome selfishness and kindred tendencies.

We must live natural lives according to the laws of Nature and keep all of our powers and faculties alive and active, but under control, ever seeking to spiritualize. Form in your minds an image of the grand state you would attain to, and ever keep it before you, striving constantly to raise yourself to your high ideal. Self study, quiet meditation, and concentration of thought and desire, will aid you greatly.

Do not sit around and wait for some spirit to come and develop you; this body was given you to express your own spirit; take all the good vibrations spirits can give you, but if you expect results you must do something for yourself. If you are a Spiritualist, live such a spiritual life that the names Spiritual and Spiritualist will mean the same thing, which alas! they do not now.

If Spiritualism is to ever fulfill its mission of emancipating the human race from darkness, ignorance, superstition and slavery, we as Spiritualists must set a higher standard than the world has ever known and live to it, so that all men will look with admiration and love on the name Spiritualism. When we do that, brotherly love will prevail and the brotherhood of man be a fact and not a theory. I will close with a poem by F. E. Ormsby:

SPIRITUALITY.

"Let those who seek this higher goal,
Drink deep, or not at all,
Lest they become entangled,
And through the senses fall.

"Remember, all must earn their way,
All alone the journey take,
And from the pure waters of life
Their unquenched thirst must slake.

"And as they seek in outer world,
Where'er the mental part would lead,
Experiences thus are gained,
Most valuable indeed.

"Another realm they'll surely find,
In which all wisdom lies;
Within their souls a mystic key
Unlocks the starry skies.

"The infinite plan is there made plain,
And in the silence of the night,
Angels from that higher realm,
Reveal the 'Hidden Light.'

"The light that makes for man on earth
A heaven where'er he dwells;
Brings music of the vibrant spheres,
The chimes of starry bells.

"It gives to him who seeks aright,
Inspiration and power divine,
To understand all outward forms
And penetrate the inner shrine

"Of embodied souls, and spirits gone,
Of worlds and systems yet to be,
Of all that is, or e'er has been,
In the harmless cycle of Infinity.

"This sacred light is a 'Word' of might,
And 'Man' its counterpart on earth,
Must drink at its fountain, pure and bright,
Before he wins the higher birth.

"The hidden fire must consume the dross,
The healing waters soothe the pain,
And Mother Earth must claim her own,
Ere we mount the airy heights again."

L. W. VAN DYKE.

San Francisco, Cal.

True happiness consists not in the multitude of friends, but in the worth and choice.—Ben Jonson.

Time draweth wrinckles in a faire face, but addeth fresh colors to a fast friend, which neither heate nor cold, nor miserie, nor place, nor destinie, can alter or diminish.—John Lyly.

What is a friend? One who supports you and comforts you, while others do not. Friendship * * * * is the cordial drop, "to make the nauseous draught of life go down."—Boswell.

The plain Roman characters are said by some authorities to be so called because for over 600 years they were used by the Popes in their bulls.

The philologists say that the English language should have an alphabet of at least thirty-two letters in order properly to represent all the sounds.

Our alphabet has come to us from the Latin, which was derived from the Greek, which was a modification of and improvement upon the Phoenician.

SPIRIT'S AID.

MESSAGES FROM A TRANCE MEDIUM LEAD TO THE DECTECTION OF A TRUSTED EMPLOYE—SETTLEMENT IS MADE OUT OF COURT.

William Wernecke, an old and trusted employe of A. Katzenberg, the East Tuscarawas street butcher, was arrested Saturday night on an affidavit signed by the proprietor. The affidavit charges Wernecke with the larceny of a ham and two pieces of bacon.

After an investigation it was found that the stealing had been going on for a number of years and the amount taken reaches many hundred dollars.

The manner in which Mr. Katzenberg first gained information that he was the victim of unscrupulous persons is rather startling, as it deals directly with mysterious forces of nature.

About one month ago, according to Mr. Katzenberg's statement, he called upon Madam De Lamar, a clairvoyant, who was holding trance sittings in this city. At the conclusion of the business upon which Mr. Katzenberg called, the medium stated that his (Katzenberg's) mother was in control, and wished her to tell him that he was being robbed by a man whose first name was William. This ended the interview. Mr. Katzenberg thought over the matter for several days and then again visited the clairvoyant and asked her for further information in regard to his being the victim of thieves. At this sitting he obtained a complete description of the man arrested Saturday night, and also of two other men who, it is alleged, assisted in the stealings. Not only was the description of the men given, but their surnames and the first letter of their last names were given. A complete description of a horse and wagon, and the details of the manner in which the meats were removed from Katzenberg's market, were also lucidly given.

With this information, so peculiarly obtained, Mr. Katzenberg at once set to work to entrap the suspected persons.

A watchman was employed and he was stationed in an upstairs rear window. While the proprietor was busy with customers, it is alleged that Wernecke slipped out of the rear door carrying a bundle, which he placed in an out-building. This act was seen by the watchman, who at once informed Mr. Katzenberg of the fact.

At a later hour Wernecke removed the bundle and started for his home in Warner avenue. Mr. Katzenberg drove to the East End and met his man in East Ninth street. He sprang from his carriage and seized the bundle, which he found contained the articles named above. Wernecke was brought into the city and offered a small amount to settle. This was refused and he was taken to the police station by Officers Hasler and Rohn. At an early hour this morning he made a satisfactory settlement with Mr. Katzenberg.

Every detail of this affair, which covers a period of about two years, was accurately given by the medium, and Mr. Katzenberg, who is an ardent believer in the doctrine of Spiritualism, is more than satisfied with the result.

Other developments in the case will occur within a few days.

The case against Wernecke in mayor's court was dismissed upon payment of the costs.—News Democrat, Canton, Ohio.

MY CREED.

What's good and pure in any creed
I take and make it mine.
Whatever serves a human need
I hold to be divine.

I ask no proof that bread is bread
And none that meat is meat.
Whate'er agrees with heart and head
That food I mean to eat.

Man sanctifies the holiest robe;
Truth sanctifies the book.
The purest temples on this globe
Are mountain, grove and brook.

That spot of earth, where'er it be,
To me is holy ground.
Where man is striving to be free—
Freedom or death has found.

The crown upon an empty head
I hold as cap of fool.
The scepter from which wisdom's fled
Has lost the right to rule.

I try the king, the judge, the priest,
The common man and woman,
From the mightiest to the least,
By one great law—the human.

I find true men where'er I look
Of every creed and nation,
'Mid sons of toil in darkest nook
As in the loftiest station.

The man who has no faith in man
I hold unworthy trust.
The man who does the best he can
Will stand among the just.

Whatever creed serves man the best
I hold the best of creeds,
I recognize no other test
Of faith than life and deeds.

The truth that elevates the mind
And purifies the heart,
That teaches love of all mankind
And blunts afflictions dart.

That dries the orphan's, widow's tear
And mitigates their loss—
That truth, without a doubt of fear,
I take as gold from dross.

—The Seattle Post.

Friendship must be something else than a society for mutual improvement—indeed, it must only be that by the way, and to some extent unconsciously. —Stevenson.

There is as yet no culture, no method of progress known to men, that is so rich and complete as that which is ministered by a truly great friendship.—Phillips Brooks.

The name of friendship is sacred; what you demand in that name, I have not the power to deny you.—Longfellow.

No word is oftener on the lips of men than "friendship," and, indeed, no thought is more familiar to their aspirations. All men are dreaming of it. It is the secret of the universe.—Thoreau.

Romanism a Curse.

H. W. BOWMAN MAKES A THRILLING ADDRESS AT MUSIC HALL, BOSTON, IN WHICH HE EXPRESSES SOME PLAIN TRUTHS (AS SET FORTH IN THE CITIZEN), ANALYZING THE CARDINAL FEATURES IN ROMANISM, AND SHOWING WHEREIN IT HAS BEEN AND IS NOW A CURSE TO THE WORLD.

From the land of the Golden Gate, where the fragrance of the orange is wafted on the incoming breeze of the Pacific, whose waves kiss the feet of California's fairest city; from the prairies of the West; from the sunny South, where the magnolia and palmettos of Florida waft back the breezes; the pines of Maine, from the East, where the Atlantic surges upon the rock-bound coast of New England, there has gone up a united protest against the encroachments of popery. Romanism, with the heart of a fiend, the brain of a serpent, the mouth of a hyena, and the fury of a tiger, has devastated the wealth of the world for centuries; has stamped out the fires of liberty, and trampled into the dust the rights of individuals and nations. As merciless as the prairie fire, she has burnt heretics; as pitiless as the famine, she has starved the mind; as closely as the blood-hound, she has pursued her enemies; as deadly as the pestilence, she has destroyed Christianity; as despotic as Nero, she has trampled under foot those beneath her, and rejoiced in the downfall of manhood. Romanism is as subtle as a serpent; as crafty as a fox; as ravenous as a wolf; as pitiless as a tiger; as blood-thirsty as a lion; and as foul-scented as a pole-cat. When the sun of the papal empire set in the Old World it commenced to rise in the New. America furnished a theater for further papal operations. The possibilities and success in this land fired the ambition in the heart of the papacy. America might become the means of restoring the temporal power of the Pope again. America furnishes the last battle-ground for popery in its fight against civilization, and the question before us at this time is this: "Shall it be their Gettysburg of victory, or their Waterloo of defeat?" Shall they place the Pope above the president, the church above the State, the priest above the people, and the confessional box above the American ballot-box? Shall the fires of American liberty be quenched with holy water? Shall the priests offer their wafer gods on the altar of American freedom? Shall "Uncle Sam" be obliged to wear green patches on his pants? The conflict between Americanism and Romanism has reached a stage where fireworks and oratorical bombast will not suffice. What we need is calm investigation of Romanism. Its principles must be studied; its policy investigated; its effects examined, and its assertions fairly considered. It is our duty to study the disease before we prescribe the remedy.

POPERY AND PATRIOTISM NEVER MARRY.

Romanism has flourished here on Protestant ignorance. We must not be deterred in our work by the cry of "bigotry," nor be influenced by some whose foolish policy it is to conceal the errors of Rome by remaining silent. It is the duty of the American people to pull off the drapery in which Protestantism has decked out Rome, and to uncover her form to the world. A thorough knowledge of Romanism will convince you that the midnight burglar who enters your house is entitled to as much courtesy and kindness as is Romanism. The man who is a friend to Rome is an enemy to America. Popery and patriotism were never married yet. An A. P. A. dictionary is what is needed to-day, with a definition of Romanism that will be full and complete. The information should be practical and scientific, as well as political and theological. We must deal more with the practical side of Rome—show that it concerns the politician as well as the theologian; the patriot as well as the preacher. Show them that Romanism is a barrier to progress and a foe to civil and religious liberty. Science and facts must furnish the proof. Romanism has an advantage when it is merely shown from a religious standpoint, for the majority of people do not enter into it as a religious problem. Show the politicians the policy, as well as the religious the theology, of Rome. Prove to the patriot that Romanism is a national plague, sapping the life-blood of liberty. Show the Statesman that Romanism's political processes are incompatible with our American institutions, and if he is an American, he will recognize it as a political plague that needs to be put in quarantine. Show the tax-payer that it drains the public treasury which he helps to fill, and he is ready to enlist in the battle. Show the American public that Romanism is a deadly plague, a foreign element; and the great impartial, fair-minded American public will render a true verdict. Let the preachers show their people that Romanism is not only a religious plague, but also a political machine, and those who protect Rome as a system of religion will soon vote against her as a political institution. It is our purpose to-day to start an A. P. A. dictionary with a few definitions of Romanism.

ROMANISM IS A DEADLY CANCER ON THE BREAST

of Columbia. It will fasten itself more firmly if Dr. A. P. A. does not continue his prescriptions, and will result in natural death. Romanism is moral leprosy. It is an unclean thing. Its touch defiles and its presence means contagion. The Romanist seeks to hide his vileness with a religious bandage, just as the leper covers his sores with a cloth. Romanism is mental laudanum. It stupefies the intellect and beclouds the brain. All nations under the absolute dominion of the Pope are in a state of mental torpor. It requires a Protestant stomach pump to arouse them from their lethargy. Romanism is financial strychnine. It stops the heart-beat of commercial progress and congeals the blood of finance. Romanism is social arsenic. It dries up the life-blood of society. It deadens conscience until it ceases to accuse. All nations which have taken the deadly dose have died a social death. Romanism is fossilized foreignism. It has a foreign head—the Pope. It has a foreign priesthood and foreign membership. And it has a foreign spirit. It is so hardened it cannot imbibe the spirit of Americanism. Its principles are foreign. I have no objection to a foreigner as a foreigner. A man may be born in America and still be a foreigner, and a man may be born in a foreign country, come over here, and be an American in spirit. The man who comes to this country, falls, in love with its institutions, and seeks to maintain them, is a true American at heart, while the man who is born on this soil, and has instilled into him papal principles, is a foreigner at heart, though born on American soil.

We have too much foreignism in our national politics to-day. If we want to capture a vote, we must look out for the foreign vote. We have the Irish-American vote, the German-American vote, the Italian-American vote, and the English-American vote. You have a prefix before all of it. No man ought to go to the ballot-box but he that goes as an American and not as a foreigner.

There is a story of a young medical student in Germany which should inspire every American heart. The story goes that he was always boasting of his native land. No matter what they showed him or told him, America was always ahead. Some of the students concluded that they would play a trick on him, and see if they could not get him into a fix where America would not come out ahead. So they planned to have a feast, and get him full of wine, and while he was drunk to take him away, put him in a new-made grave with a number of old bones, wait around and watch for developments. They carried the plan out to perfection, and just as the first faint streak of day was seen, and old Sol arose and kissed the goddess of the morn, making her blush, the young man awoke. He raised himself, got on his feet, looked around and took in the situation. The young fellows were waiting behind some grave stones and they heard him say, "This is the resurrection morning, and I am the first man up. Hurrah! America ahead yet!" When you get a man that will put America ahead of everything, that is the man you want.

BEEN THE RUIN OF SPAIN, ITALY AND IRELAND.

Romanism is a national vampire, sucking the life-blood out of the nation. It drains the national treasury and the private purse. Romanism breeds beggary and pauperism. Her pauper hordes are the most perfect fruit of her system. She breeds paupers like a swamp breeds mosquitoes. Papal bums are bred in papal slums. Ireland's poverty is due to her popery. It has been the ruin of Spain, Italy, and Ireland. It is a barrier to politcal progress and social advancement, and a check to science. Romanism has blocked the path of human progress for centuries. She has tied up reason to the beast of tradition, and has locked science in the cells of ignorance. While civilization is swiftly advancing with all sails set on the high tide of improvement, Romanism alone remains fixed to the ruined wharf of superstition by the chains of ignorance.

In our battle with Romanism we must battle for the supremacy of civilization, and I want to give you a few facts along the line. Common sense is more sacred than incense; reason is superior to old rags; ideas are more valuable than idols; information is better than confirmation; education is more valuable than image adoration; spelling is away ahead of sprinkling; writing your name is better than making the sign of the cross; reading is preferable to rosaries; conscience is away ahead of candles; wisdom is better than holy water; live brains are better than dead bones; railroads run ahead of relics; a tin can is a greater aid to civilization than the Vati-can; kerosene oil has been a greater blessing than holy oil; machines put masses in the background; corn ground is better than consecrated ground; faith discounts fish; news is more important than nuns; doughnuts are healthier food than doughgods.

MANY ANARCHISTS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

Romanism is ecclesiastical anarchism. It sets itself up in defiance of all laws. Romanism refuses to acknowledge any man or laws unless sanctioned by the Pope. There are more anarchists in the Church of Rome than in any other organization in this world. Romanism sets itself up in defiance of God's and man's law, and the Pope is the supreme anarchist in this world. We must have a new immigration law. They come over here foreign in spirit, and Rome manipulates them at will. I was over in England two years ago and a gentleman, a reporter on one of the papers, asked me the question, "What is the matter with your country?" "Well," I said, "I am a Yankee and will answer your question in Yankee fashion by asking you another. Suppose you were to sit down and partake of a good dinner, and then some one pried your jaws open, and forced down the contents of a garbage-pail, how long do you suppose the good food would remain there undisturbed?" "Not very long," he said. "That is the trouble with Uncle Sam," I said, "they have forced open his jaws and forced down his throat the contents of the European garbage-pail, and he has taken to vomiting, that is all. They have fed him on Irish stew and German sausage until his digestive organs are out of repair.

JESUITISM, THE RIPENED FRUIT OF ROMANISM.

Rome never took off its hat to a new idea yet. Romanism is religious vandalism. It places all literature of which it is not the author under ban. It has not forgotten how to burn Bibles yet. In fact, the only light of the Bible that Romanism will tolerate is that of a burning one. The system of Jesuitism is the ripened fruit of Romanism. Romanism is Jesuitism in the bud, and Jesuitism is Romanism in the full flower. And mark what I say: Jesuitism is the concentrated essence of devilism.

Romanism is the model of despotism. It is an organized system of injustice. Its devotees are slaves who dare not think for themselves. Romanism is an organized system of robbery. The priests are religious pick-pockets and political highwaymen. The difference between the priest and the Western highwayman is this: The highwayman says "Give me your money or I will blow out your brains." The priest says, "Give me your brains, and I will blow in your money."

ENSLAVES THE BRAIN AND ENGULFS THE MIND.

Romanism is a huge gormand, devouring the wealth of nations, thriving upon the ignorance of her subjects. She enslaves the brain and engulfs the mind. Every dollar she can wring from ignorance and superstition serves to increase her greed. They keep their eyes on real estate and purchase or steal it for the benefit of the church. They are perpetually building the finest churches, these increasing its wealth. The celebacy of the clergy is a powerful aid in the advancement of wealth and prestige. All these things aid in making the papal church immensely wealthy. They stop at no means for making money: granting absolution for gold and covering up iniquity for silver. They build mission-houses for the purpose of increasing their traffic. Her love for gold is more patent than her love for God. The priest gets his gold by robbing the widow and the fatherless. He says: "Give, give!" and never says, "It is enough." The streams of wealth are unceasing. Through craft, cunning, and fraud, Rome has wills made in her favor. Within the walls of her monastic institutions may be found vast sums of wealth. Rome has placed a revenue-collector at the gate of purgatory, a tax-collector at the gate of Paradise, and a collector at the gate of death, thus sending a constant stream into her coffers. Her favor is more valuable than a gold mine. Her instructions are to gain money. Her dispensations when sold bring in streams of revenue. They sell the intercession of dead saints and the relics of ancient prophets and apostles. Medals for preservation are sold, and a stream of wealth is poured into the church. Salvation is her stock in trade, and the church is the store. The more sinners the more brisk her trade. Irishmen howl about the injustice of the English landlord, but never a word about the Church of Rome. The tenant gives the priest all he has: one robs him of his liberty, the other of his mind. He must buy holy oil, if he goes without bread. He must purchase sacred relics to keep out of the devil's clutches. The priest must marry him, bury him, and get him out of purgatory.

ROME PLACES PARDONS FOR SINS ON HER COUNTER.

Romanism is a financial institution, and has acquired by fraud an immense amount of wealth. It is a gigantic financial corporation, projected for the making of money. Its theories prove it to be an immense system of robbery and injustice. It has made itself superior to law for increasing its revenue, and under the plea of piety it claims the right to plunder its members and steal all the money it can. She places pardons for sins on her counters and by the exemption from taxation, of all her church property, she adds to the sum of her wealth. She receives immense sums of money from laborers and contractors whom she patronizes. It is said that Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, receives five hundred thousand dollars a year from those who receive appointments through the church's influence in the city of New York.

In Mexico, when the President seized the property of the Romish Church, they had forty-one millions on deposit. It is said that the English syndicate which has been buying so much real estate in this country within the last few years, is only a Romanist concern, sanctioned by the Pope, investing his money here for financial purposes. If they secure a foot-hold in a block of buildings, they plan to drive out the other proprietors and secure the whole for themselves. They have always the finest site in town for their churches. Romish priests are often the wealthiest citizens in the place where they reside. High money, high mass; low money, low mass; no money, no mass. Her greed, her heartless cruelty, are well known. She erects splendid palaces for priests in the midst of squalor and ignorance. Her priests roll in opulence and luxury. Rome has a disease that can only be cured by gold. She thinks more of gold than she does of God; more of wealth than she does of worth; more of mammon than she does of manhood. Romanism is an immense political engine employed to crush out the human race. The papacy grinds to powder the sacred rights of nature. Romanism holds in perpetual bondage its millions of adherents.

IMPRESSIVE THOUGHTS IN REFERENCE TO LIBERTY.

The grandest deeds of heroism, the finest deeds of patriotism, the most soul-stirring songs, the most heart-touching music, have been called forth in praise of human liberty. Liberty inspires the patriot's heart. It has been the inspiration of the poet, and the magic touch of the song-writer. Women have sent forth their loved ones to battle. To an American it has an especial charm. The one word he hates is slavery. He is free and wishes others to be the same. To emancipate the slave is a delight. To rid itself of the foul sense of slavery, this country spent hundreds of millions of dollars and lost hundreds of thousands of lives, and yet they tolerate a system of slavery which is a greater curse to the world than African slavery ever was. It makes its members political slaves, deciding their political actions; financial slaves, forcing their earnings into the coffers of the church; religious slaves, deciding how they shall worship God; moral slaves, determining their actions; physical slaves of many of them, by incarcerating them in convents and monasteries. It works them without pay. The Southern task-master with his whip was never more heartless than mother superior. The Czar of Russia is not more aristocratic than some archbishop. The word "liberty" on a papist's lips is jargon. He never had it. He must submit to the judgment of the priest. He must sacrifice his reason for his religion. Is that man free, who, if he has ideas of his own salvation, is burned as a herectic, or cast into a dungeon? Is that man free who must allow the priest to invade his house and strip it of all the books of which he does not approve? Is he a free man who will send his children to the parochial school because the priest says so, when he would rather send them to the public school? Is an editor free who must first submit his writings to a bishop? The editor or proprietor of a newspaper who rigidly excludes from the columns of his press all the things against Rome, and puts in all those in favor of Rome, is either "a Protestant slave or a Roman knave. He is a papal tool or a public fool."

Romanism is an organized system of perjury. Lies are her principal stock in trade. She is mistress, calling her most villainous society the "Society of Jesus;" it ought to be the "Society of Judas." Rome is like a serpent, more dangerous when she seeks to charm. The man who has no more sense than to believe in the infallibility of the Pope, is unworthy to be an American citizen. He who cannot tell the difference between bread and flesh will never die of brain fever. The pope is the only one who has need for brains. Why send a doctor when there is holy water? In 1865 when Naples was visited by the cholera, the people refused to take sanitary precautions, saying holy water would protect them; and so intead of admitting light and air and rectifying the sewerage, they did nothing but burn candles to the Madonna, and carry the "host" through the streets, which kept the inhabitants constantly upset and so helped the spread of the plague. Thus filth follows in the wake of Romish superstition. What is the use of doing anything for a fever when Saint something or other will protect him? Contagion cannot touch him so long as he sprinkles with holy water. Why should he care for his morals when the priest will pardon him? What need is there of a fire engine company when a medal of some saint will arrest conflagration? What need of a surgical operation when a medal will cure him? What need of life-boats or life-preservers, when the wearing of a medal will arrest the fury of the winds and waves? Just the thing for sailors! Beats any life-preserver or life-boat you ever saw! What need of insane asylums when a medal will preserve from insanity and hydrophobia? It is claimed that the students who have dipped their pens in the water from a certain river, have passed all examinations with honor and written some wonderful articles afterwards. I would advise the editor of the Boston Pilot to try some on his pen. What need of steamboats when a man can cross the Mediterranean on his cloak? Ho! ye glorifiers of Watts and Fulton! stop and bow down to Romanism as greater than they!

There is a story of a Roman savant who had his head knocked off in battle. He did not stick it on again. That would have been an ordinary exploit. But he took it under his arm and marched home as if nothing had happened. How a man can be a Romanist and be a sane man, is a marvel to me. Romanism is a political worm on the tree of liberty. It is eating at the heart of the nation. It is the red hand of anarchy everywhere. It is the wily serpent that has stung to death all the nations who have warmed it in their bosom.

—()—

A Ghostly Game Warden.

A GHOSTLY GAME WARDEN—GUARDIAN OF DEER IN A WISCONSIN FOREST WHO MYSTERIOUSLY PROTECTS THEM FROM SLAUGHTER—HUNTERS ROUGHLY HANDLED—STRUCK OVER THE HEAD, PUSHED INTO BROOKS, KNOCKED SENSELESS IN THEIR CABINS, AND FRIGHTENED BY WHAT THE INDIANS THINK IS AN AGENT OF THE GREAT SPIRIT.

Superior, Wis., April 17.—The strange adventure of Paul Parsons while hunting deer in the pine forest near Gordon a few days ago has developed the theory that a portion of one of the best deer sections in Northern Wisconsin is being protected against game-law violators by some mysterious agency other than the Game Warden.

Parsons, who is a resident of Gordon, is said to have made a comfortable living during the Winter by hunting and marketing deer contrary to law. He went out with his dog and gun as usual a few days ago, but in a direction opposite to his favorite fields. According to his story, while walking along a trail he felt something strike the back of his head, but, turning around, saw nothing. He walked along cautiously, but had gone less than 100 feet when the blow was repeated, this time with such force that he was knocked to his knees. The blow stunned him slightly, but he recovered quickly and turned around, expecting to face a treacherous assailant. Again he saw nothing but the stately pines and heard nothing but the dismal wail of the wind through the dense forest. A short distance ahead there was a narrow stream, and within a cluster of maples beside it an abandoned cabin. Parsons reached this cabin without further interference from the mysterious assailant, and took up a position at a crack through which he could watch while waiting for further developments. He was thoroughly alarmed, and believed that some lurking half-breed had followed him through the woods intent upon talking his life.

It was getting late in the evening, and Parsons decided to camp at the house for the night. While unpacking his blankets something struck the side of the cabin. Almost at the same instant something struck him on the back of the head and sent him sprawling on the floor, face downward. He made strenuous efforts to rise, but was unable to move a muscle, and as he lay there expecting every minute to be visited by his mysterious assailant, a gruff, boisterous laugh came to his ears, and the outlines of a man flitted before his half-closed eyes. Then he became unconscious.

The hunter was discovered lying in the same position about noon the next day by Edward Norton, a homesteader, and his son. He was taken to the latter's home, still unconscious, and it was several hours before the application of cold water externally and whiskey internally restored him to consciousness. He is still confined to his bed, and at times relaxes into semi-consciousness, while apparently suffering intense pain.

AN AGENT OF THE GREAT SPIRIT.

This is the last story told about this mysterious game warden and his domain, but it corroborates in many particulars experiences related by other hunters who have been on the forbidden ground. The unknown guardian of the deer apparently confines his jurisdiction to the territory within a radius of half a mile from the abandoned cabin, and for that reason, it is said, that particular locality abounds most plentifully with deer. Whether the numerous stories of the mysterious game warden's pranks be true, they certainly have the effect of preserving the game within the confine mentioned, for even the most venturesome residents of the locality have given the place a wide berth during the past five months, and until the mystery is cleared up it is probable that the deer so fortunate in becoming charges of the mysterious one will be permitted to roam at their own sweet will without danger of being slaughtered by unscrupulous hunters.

Parsons was the first man to venture in quest of deer upon the forbidden section for two months, and he will probably be the last for some time. There are scores of Chippewa Indians in the vicinity of Gordon who live by their traps and guns, but a few of them have had experiences with the "game warden," and the others have heard of him, so that to-day money will not induce them to set foot upon the dreaded ground. The Indian theory of the mysterious occurrences in the forest is that the Great Spirit wishes to preserve that particular tract of land for his own use or for the use of a favored warrior, and has adopted that extraordinary method of communicating to them his desires.

According to the best information at hand, the self-constituted game warden put in an appearance within his jurisdiction about five months ago. This was before the close of the legal game season of 1896, so it may be surmised that the unknown was either unfamiliar with the game law or was bent upon protecting the game within his territory whether in or out of season.

THE WARDEN'S FIRST VICTIM.

The first victim was a man named Jordan, employed during the Summer months as a guide for the sportsmen in the River Brule region. He had piloted a party of Chicago men on a deer hunting expedition to the Gordon region. They had been on the tramp for two days with poor success, and on the night of the second day arrived at the abandoned cabin where Parsons subsequently met with ill treatment. Jordan and one of the sportsmen remained at camp while the remainder of the party, equipped with head lanterns, went out on the trail for a "night" shoot. Jordan went to the stream near by for a pail of water, leaving his companion sitting by the camp fire, and had stooped to dip his pail into the stream when a blow from behind, delivered with terrible force, sent him forward into the water. He struggled out and looked about for his assailant, but everything was quiet and there was no sign of a human being. On his return to the cabin, his head aching from the blow, he found his companion crouching in a corner of the room speechless from fright, and suffering from the effects of a blow with some blunt instrument upon the spine. According to his story he was tapped lightly upon the back of his neck and turning quickly around saw a shadowy form that he took to be a man dressed in a soldier's uniform. He rushed to the corner for his gun, thinking that bandits might be abroad, but when half-way across the room something struck him back. According to the testimony of both victims, the two assaults must have taken place within a space of five minutes, and the men were 200 feet apart.

COULDN'T SHOOT A BIG BUCK.

Another experience, and perhaps the strangest and most incredible, is that related by Martin Holmstead and Axel Peterson, two section men employed by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad south of Gordon. Before sunrise one Sunday morning these men went out for a hunt through the woods, and in due time set foot upon the mysterious warden's domain. While traveling along a rutty logging road, side by side, their heads were suddenly knocked together by some mysterious force in the rear. Their first thought was that some friend had followed steadily behind them and had sought to make known his presence in a rough manner, but they saw no signs of life in their rear. They walked along, hoping for daylight to come, and just as the welcome morning sun broke through the darkness of the forest to relieve their fears, a big buck crossed the path a few hundred feet ahead of them. Two guns were brought quickly to the shoulders and two reports rang out simultaneously through the pine woods, but the two Swedes were either poor marksmen or the warden had again appeared upon the scene, for two big holes in the ground only ten or twelve feet ahead of the men showed where the two forty-four bullets had lodged.

Holmstead and Peterson did not return to the section house at the time expected that night, but were brought in four or five hours later upon a logging sled, and the driver told the people that he had found them lying unconscious side by side upon the road.

ADVENTURES OF TWO INDIANS.

The Indian settlement near Gordon was stricken with terror one day during the latter part of January by the report that two dusky residents, Moon Face and John Canada, had been murdered in the woods by some unknown assassin, supposed to be the agent of the Great Spirit. A half-breed named Seegee rushed madly into the town and went from house to house, yelling the information that he had seen the bodies of the two murdered Indians lying in the road and had been chased away from the place by a tall man wearing a long gray coat. He told the astonished natives that the tall man seemed to spring up in front of him from a hole in the ground, and that he carried a long black instrument in his hand, which resembled a gun barrel. The unknown, he said, walked rapidly along the road in front of him, toward the prostrate bodies of his two victims, waving the black object and singing a song in a loud, harsh voice. Suddenly the mysterious one turned about, as if to give pursuit to the half-breed, and then it was the latter took to his heels.

That day a band of twenty Indians, headed by the half-breed, went out on the road in search of the dead bodies of their friends. They found the two men—not dead, but sitting on a log near the place where the half-breed had first discovered them. They had recovered consciousness an hour before, they said, and were little the worse for their encounter with the mysterious game warden. Both told practically the same story of their experience, the only discrepancies arising in the descriptions of the assailant.

—()—

DOING GOOD MISSIONARY WORK.

To the Editor:—It has been some time since I reported to you or your readers, and some of our good friends here are putting me in mind that we have been so quiet this whole year, that the impression will go out that we are all either dead or asleep in this part of the world. But I assure you such is not the case.

I came to Bolivar the 1st of October and commenced holding meetings in Opera house hall. It was quite an innovation in this town, but curiosity to find out "what does she do?" brought out a good many people, and real interest in the spiritual Philosophy many more. But when they found we had really "come to stay," and the Church of Spiritual Research was a fixture, they concluded there wasn't room for it, and so the good Christians went back to their own church to be "popular," and some of those who had no predilections found there was nothing funny or peculiar in either the speaker or the services, and so of course our audiences became less in number.

We know whom to look for every time, and every Sunday brings some strange faces.

We have had services every Sunday except one, when la grippe had possession of my talking machine, and one Sunday I went to Olean in response to an urgent request and spoke to a full house of inquirers about Spiritualism. The result of that meeting was the forming of a temporary organization, holding Sunday meetings without regular speaker. Mr. Nash, of Belvidere, has been there one Sunday and holding circles at private houses for investigation.

As I am not a sensational speaker, or a "test medium" I am not a "drawing card" for the people who only wish to be entertained and go to a spiritual meeting just as they would go to a minstrel or any other show and pay their money for the entertainment, and are ready the next day to set up a show of their own and tell everybody how everything was done.

I cannot count my "converts" by the hundreds, but I can count a number of the brainiest people in town, who have listened to my lectures and called them reasonable and logical, and who have followed my advice and gone to investigating for demonstration at home, with the result which is sure to follow such a development of powers undreamed of in themselves which have brought them proof of continued life after this, which they before did not believe in.

We celebrated the Forty-ninth Anniversary last Sunday, with an appropriate address by your correspondent, and good music, Miss Agnes Evans presiding at the organ and Mrs. Hyde, one of our most enthusiastic seekers after truth, favored us with two solos accompanied by the auto-harp, which were greatly enjoyed.

We shall continue our meetings until the 1st of June, when I shall return to Lily Dale, and what will be done here another year is not yet decided.

I should like to correspond with any societies whose officers may feel impressed to desire my services for the year to come or any portion of it.

MRS. MYRA F. PAINE.

Bolivar, N. Y.

—()—

INFLUENCE.

How fair my spacious temple of the trees!
Where spread the mighy oak and fragrant linn;
And where the silver-gilded maples grow;
And stately elms stoop gracefully and low;
And the honeyed, white-blossomed buxus win
The wooing and the kisses of the bees.

The worshipers within my temple fair
No kings or queens have gathered to their court—
They do disdain the tinseled show of gold,
And with the flowers and trees communion hold;—
They fill its aisles with song and merry sport,
And banish all my discontent and care.

Nor yet are these its visitants alone,
For, as the evening shades their lyric stills,
The spirits of the loved, departed dead,
My foliage-curtained temple tread.
Their whispered words my anxious bosom fills
With highest thought and music's golden tone.

Aye, come with me, when the green meadows faint,
And the tall cane and corn are weak and spent,
Beneath the flame of Summer's noontide glare,
And the communion of my temple share;
And you'll affirm that never yet was sent
Such worship place to man by creed restraint.

'Aye, come with me in Autumn's ruddy glow,
For, lo! 'tis then my painters decorate,
And you will swear by all the spangled skies,
That never artist lived who mixed such dyes.
And you will sigh in envy of my fate;
And closely question me of what I know.

'And when I say, "this is the house of love,
Where I commune with angels and with God."
Directly you will throw your creed away,
And come with me to worship and to pray.
As here we bow to no oppressive rod;
But grow in goodness like the One above.

R. F. SLITER.

HOWLING AGAINST SPIRITUALISM.

AN OLD PETRIFIED CATHOLIC PRIEST ATTACKSSPIRITUALISM—HE DOESN'T SEEM TO REALIZE THAT THE CATHOLIC CHURCH IS THE MOST STUPENDOUS FRAUD ON THIS GREEN EARTH.

Oak Harbor, O., April 7th, '97.

Ed. Exponent:—If I am rightly informed we have a new fraud in this town, i.e. a Spiritualistic organization. I am told that four families have joined it. I do not deny that all their spiritualistic doings are fraudulent, nor do I assert it to be so. But the organization leads to, and is almost always guilty of fraud, either consciously or unconsciously. Their most renowned medium is Miss Eusapia Palidino, born at Naples, Italy, of very poor parents. She is an excellent type (of great interest to the science of neurology) of the great "nevrosees'." When young she was subject to nightmare; and no doubt had listened eagerly to the legends of the "jettatori." Her father fell a victim to banditti; she herself was robbed on her return from Warsaw by highwaymen. This left an indelible impression on her mind and nervous system. Mr. Chas. Richet, an authority declares; "The formal, the undeniable proof that there is no fraud practiced by Eusapia, and that we are not subject to an illusion, is wanting." In England, practical as that country is, she was closely watched by the S. P. R. (Society of Physical Research) and executed. Mr. and Mrs. Siedgwick, Mr. Meyers, Mr. Hodgson and the prestidigitator Maskelyn declare, after having assisted at 20 seances, that all was fraud from beginning to end. Mr. Ockorwicz, a spiritalistic authority, answers that the English have not well observed the facts, but admits that Miss Eusapia deceives unconsciously. Dr. Dariex in the "Annales Psychique" says: "It matters little whether Eusapia cheats or not. What is of importance is to know whether this (action in the distance) takes place or not, and it is not necessary that this should be always the case, and that it always actually happens.

There are, however, some apparent facts which have not been sufficiently explained by modern science, i.e. the lifting up of tables by the simple tact of the medium's hand, the passes of hands and the apparition of hands hard to explain by prestidigitation; the possibility of Eusapia to become at once a formidable magnet and move by a gesture of her hand, or by her breath, heavy articles of furniture; to press down in the presence of many witnesses and in plain daylight, by her will power, a part of a scale, in the castle of Angelas, and to loose 16 pounds of her weight at Milan. Of course we may justly question the veracity of these witnesses and the strength of the English S. P. R. Journal, October, November, 1895, we must refuse to believe the apparent facts until proven. But supposing to be facts undeniable by science, we cannot but attribute them to the works of Satan, who now, more than ever, seeks to establish his reign on the ruins of Christianity. Well informed Masons will not deny this. Hense it is necessary for people, who through curiosity are led to join spiritualism, to be aware that Holy Scripture threatens dire punishments to them who call up spirits, ie devils, for good spirits will not appear, this being below their dignity and contrary to the wisdom of God. Holy Writ says: "Neither let there be found among you * * nor charmer, nor any that consuteth pythonic spirits, or fortune tellers, or that seeketh the truth from the dead: for the Lord abhorreth all these things; and for these abominations he will destroy them at thy coming (Deuteronomy XVIII, v. 12,-11.)

Sincerely yours in Xro.
JAS. CHRISTOPHORY, Pastor.

P.S. All these Spiritualistic farces are not of to-day. "There is nothing new under the moon," says Holy Writ, Tertulian, a Father of the 2d century speaks of these Spiritualism as it is practiced to-day. There is not a bit of difference between that of to-day and that of Tertulian's time, when Paganism was prevalent everywhere. Are the people going to return to Paganism through Spiritualism? Are they willing to give Satan the honor that belongs to God?

REMARKS.

Jas. Christophory, Pastor, resurrected apparently from the Dark Ages, it seems has just discovered "a new fraud" in the form of "a Spiritualistic organization," and if he is speaking in his "official" capacity he must certainly know a fraud when he sees one, for his experience and knowledge as a priest must have convinced him that fraud, hypocrisy, charlantry and all manners of satanic intrigues and machinations have long been rife in the world. Not alone paganism but Christianity, especially the latter as represented by the organization to which our "Pastor" evidently belongs, judging from the fruits, must have had a much better acquaintance with his Satanic Majesty than with his all-powerful opponent. For the present occasion we may leave out of consideration paganism and direct attention briefly to some of what may be termed the "manifestations" of "the Devil" through the organization known as the Roman Catholic church.

If Satan is now "more than ever" seeking "to establish his reign on the ruins of Christianity" he is probably undertaking to undo the evil which history teaches us he has done in the past when he evidently established Christianity upon the ruins of humanity.

It would be altogether tedious to recount the myriads of victims stricken down by torture at the hands of his Satanic Majesty working through the organization and power of the Church of Rome. But let us attempt to epitomize some of these works.

Before the establishment of what is known as the "Holy Office of the Inquisition" the bishops of the Church of Rome arrogated to themselves the right to punish for heresy, and this form of persecution extended from the beginning of church federation to the thirteenth century, when, in 1229 the Dominicans organized a special inquisition for the purpose of exterminating the Albigenses and the heretics of southern France, and it is said that more than one hundred thousand of those people were put to death by fire at the stake, by impalement and by other barbarous methods. In 1480 that most dreadful institution, the Spanish Inquisition, was established by Pope Sixtus IV, and two thousand victims were burned to death during the first year, while 31,912 human souls ascended to heaven through the smoke of the fagots of Rome during the continuance of this diabolical institution in Spain. Moreover during the seventy years' reign of the Inquisition in Spain the population of that country fell from ten to six millions; whole provinces became decimated: trade of all kinds, manufactures, agriculture, literature, science and art came to a standstill, and the nation which had once been the mistress of the world gradually declined until to-day its utter decay seems near at hand.

By the same methods of persecution employed in Austria, Bohemia, Germany, the Netherlands, France, Ireland and other countries, whenever and wherever the Papal power and influence has dominated the secular authority, human life has gone out with unspeakable agonies, until the grand total would suffice to people a continent.

As before said, by their fruits shall ye know them. If the forms and methods of torture employed by savages have seemed devilish, those employed by the Church of Rome having excelled in fiendish malignity the inventions of the savage, his Satanic Majesty must have found a more fitting instrument in that organization for the accomplishment of his ends.

Who but Satan could have devised the iron maiden, a basket of iron plate containing spikes on the inside wherein when the doors were closed upon the victim he would be impaled and there left until his body should decay and drop into the most beneath? Who but Satan could have invented the rack which was so diligently applied by the minions of Rome throughout its supremacy? Upon this engine of torture the victim was placed on his back, his wrists and ankles fastened by ropes to rollers at the ends of the frame, the rollers turned by means of a ratchet wheel until the joints were dislocated, the cords binding the victim being drawn so tight that they cut through the flesh quite to the bone? And then who but a demon could add to the tortures of the poor victim so exquisite an accompaniment as the following: Force open the mouth, spread over the face a fine wet cloth, and then allow water to drip in a steady stream from an earthen vessel into the mouth, that the torments of the sufferer were augmented by the agonies of an incessant struggle for breath? Ah yes, and must not Satan himself have been present with all the malignant cunning of his nature to devise and oversee scenes where the heretic was tied, limb by limb to each of four horses and thus torn asunder, the gasping trunk and quivering members being laid together and burned alive upon a pile of wood? Then we have the thumb-screw, or little vises for crushing the thumb, the iron boot in which the feet were placed and wooden wedges driven by their side until the flesh and muscle were reduced to a jelly, or in some cases boiling water poured in until nothing but the bare bones remained. Then there was the wheel, consisting of a frame-work upon which were placed sharp-edged boards on which was laid the victim, bound hand and foot, over whose body a heavy wheel was rolled until life became extinct and suffering ceased. Again, sometimes in the chamber of torture a human being was firmly tied in a sitting posture, or laid bound upon his back, and water allowed to drop from a small pipe above upon the top of his head in one spot, drop by drop, or upon the pit of the stomach, until he found relief from his agony in insanity or death. Again, and no earlier than A. D. 1820 when the Inquisition was abolished in Spain the punishment for heresy consisted among other forms, in fastening the victim in a groove upon a table on his back, suspending above him a pendulum, the lower edge of which was sharp and so constructed as to descend with each movement lower and lower. Who was present on such occasions to watch and exult in the agonies of such a victim as this as he saw swinging to and fro above him the keen edge of this terrible instrument ever approaching nearer and nearer, until at length it cut the skin of his nose, gradually cutting on and on until the victim died and was released from his agony? Where was Satan when the soldiers under the reign of Ferdinand II. of Austria, the well beloved son of the church, undertook by war, torture and rapine to re-claim for the Catholic church the fair provinces of Bohemia, Hungary and Germany, and perpetrated among others such deeds as these? —Seizing the mother of a young infant, binding her to a post, placing the little one on the floor at her feet and there letting it starve to death!

It is an old claim of the church, both Catholic and Protestant, that evil spirits do communicate with mortals but that good do not. Of course to the logical thinker this claim is utterly absurd and frivolous. We know that both good and evil men and women stand the same under the laws of nature; that no power prevents the association of the good and evil in this world, except their own will; and as to the condition of society, fellowship and communion among mankind in a spiritual world we have no reason to believe or suppose that any arbitrary rules apply. The church as an organization knows no more about the conditions and laws of a spiritual life beyond death than do individuals outside its pale. The church confessedly has no knowledge on the subject; it bases its claim entirely upon faith and alleged divine revelation; which of course is but a begging of the question and cannot be tolerated in the forum of reason. Spiritualists claim, and substantiate their claims by evidence which would prove any fact in a court of justice, that spirits of all shades and grades of morality, religious belief and non-belief, do communicate with relatives and friends in mortal life. The avenues or channels of proof are open to all fair-minded investigators. That church members, priests, ministers and bishops do not avail themselves of this proof is a circumstance which places these gentry at a disadvantage in the argument. They stand in the attitude, no matter how learned in other things or how able, of the ignoramus who undertakes to criticize the results of the labors of the scientific investigator! and except for the effect upon the general public of their criticisms and maledictions such effusions as the above would be unworthy of notice.

A. M. GRIFFIN.

MAKES ANGELS WEEP.

THE QUALITY OF MANY SPIRITUAL TEACHINGS AND TEACHERS—WANTS A HIGHER STANDARD OF EDUCATION.

To the Editor:—I have spent some time dispensing this "Gospel of Truth" (Spiritualism) in hopes that some of the seeds sown might take root and finally spring into blossoms which will shed aroma on some lives along the way.

I have visited many societies, since I last wrote you, and I must make this acknowledgment: 'Tis truly pathetic to witness what in many instances passes for our beloved philosophy.

I for one am in great sympathy with those who have contributed valuable thoughts in the Thinker from time to time, pleading for a higher standard of education among our public workers. The ignorance which is displayed at many of these meetings is embarrassing. I once read that the English language was the toughest thing in the world—it had been murdered every minute since it had been born and it was not dead yet. If the language does not die for want of proper exponents, I am afraid our beloved religion will for the need of proper teachers to present it as it should be.

Some who are holding meetings think "Anything to draw a crowd;" and they cater to old forms and ceremonies, and if the "bill board (which usually adorns the entrance way to the hall,) was not labeled "Spiritual Meeting," one would never mistrust that it was not some old-time orthodox meeting. The prayers, the christening, the baptism, and many times the sermon, are flavored so strongly of the orthodox forms and doctrine that one would never suspect they were attending a spiritual meeting.

It seems to be a deplorable fact that about as soon as some persons have a hint that they possess medial qualities, they immediately announce themselves ready for business, set up shop with a set of dull tools, and go to work dispensing what they call "Spiritualism." I should think it would make the angels weep.

I attended a meeting of that kind this winter in St. Paul. The medium baptized two children the evening I was present and twined a wreath of evergreens around their necks, yoking them together and pronouncing her baptismal benediction upon them.

Other meetings I have attended were above criticism; and it was a blessing to be there. Others, too, were such a medley of Spiritualism, Christian Science, Theosophy—it was hard to determine where that speaker was at. I sometimes wondered if that kind were not all of them more enterested in drawing a crowd (since they had a dime collection at the door) than they were really endeavoring to advance the people in giving them the truth unadulterated.

I wish we might have a school for the advancement of an intellectual and spiritual education. I think it would be well to make it a College of Psychic Science," "Physical Culture," "Elocution and General Deportment;" that those who expect to fill public missions might adorn them by the use of good language, grace of pose, pleasing voice, and clear and clean enunciation.

We would hear some complain as they have in the past: "That would retard inspiration." I say no! The broader and cleaner you make the channel, the greater the flow of inspiration. You can never get a quart into a pint measure. Some, again, say it would be interfering with the spirits. If a spirit comes back to earth and poses as a teacher he or she should first of all know how to appear decently and speak good language, and above all things not use slang, as I have sometimes heard them. If they cannot, they need interfering with, and the sooner, the better. If this beloved truth of spiritual communion becomes established, and the fetters of superstition are cut loose from the minds of humanity, we must rise out of our little notions and welcome the dawn of intelligence to come along side by side with spirituality, both directed by Reason which is the compass of the Soul to guide the way through this valley of doubt and fear. Yours for more light. MRS. CASSIE McFARLIN.

Winona, Minn.

FREE THOUGHT

Fake Materialization Must be Stopped.

AN "INFIDELS" OPINION—SLIGHTLY HUMOROUS—SPIRIT (?) KISSES AND CARESSES—GOOD WORDS FOR FEARLESS EVA A. CASSELL.

To the Editor:—I wish to give expression to a few thoughts, which occurred to me on reading the article by Mrs. Eva A. Cassell in your issue of April 24. The 29th of November last was not the first time that the medium intended was discovered personating a spirit. Previous to that time, Spiritualists in this city told me that his materializations were "rags," or at least some of them were. But every one of the ninety and nine in which he was not detected or exposed, might have been genuine. Quien Sabe?

It seems that the lady writer does not enjoy being humbugged. I sympathize with her; I am built that way myself. Which only proves, however, that we are not like the great majority of mankind; for they do like it immensely, as is proven by the fact that they are willing to go where the humbugging is done, and pay the humbugger handsomely besides. I do not wish to be hypercritical, but I can't see that there would be any harm in exchanging "kisses" and "caresses" with a "spirit," even if it were a "male spirit." Perhaps the time was unfortunately chosen, and the manner objectionable; but, as I gather from her article, the lady was young, intelligent, though somewhat "gullible and full of faith;" and, I have no doubt charming and pretty and—well, in this case, I cannot help sympathizing with the spirit. There must have been something attractive after all in the kissing and caressing, for she says; "I have had such experiences as this all adown the fifteen years of my investigation."

If, after fifteen years experience, such conduct appears to any one "pernicious" "disgusting," and "unhygienic," I would advise him or her to quit and give the young folks a chance. They will take the kisses and let the microbes and bacteria look out for themselves, if such things do come back with a spirit. In the Conners case I do not see that any one was more to blame than the others.

Now, Mrs. Cassell, allow me to address you personally in the remainder of this communication. You say that you frequently go among the so-called Infidels; I have no doubt that you are welcome, and if you could exist without any humbug at all, we would gladly give you the right hand of fellowship. We have no "imposture," no humbug to offer to you or any one else; but, do you know that we are just dying of dry-rot for the want of a good healthy fake to offer to the people? Why you Spiritualists do not get rid of the impostures is an easy question. The majority don't want to; the minority can't, and so heroic a remedy would be likely to kill the patient.

The truth, to most people, is tame and uninteresting: it is not what they want. The medium who does not "stoop to conquer," cannot draw an audience and the dollars, nor satisfy even the Spiritualists. You say that the "faith" or philosophy does not depend upon the phenomena; neither, in my opinion, does the phenomena depend upon the faith. Although I am satisfied that the philosophy is not based upon facts, and is therefore false and misleading; yet I am willing to admit that some of the phenomena are genuine; but I have not seen any such, I being judge.

Merit is a slow running-mate for "cheek," and truth ever lags in the race with superstition. And, strange as it may seem to you, the spirits will not hinder the impostors; nor enable the honest mediums to surpass them. As the heavens have ever been deaf to the cry of the suppliant; and as God has always failed to help his own people in their dire extremity; so the spirits will be as a broken staff to those who would fain lean upon them. I would it were otherwise; that man in his weakness might rationally look above for strength; that in his ignorance he might lean upon wisdom; and that amidst errors he might be guided into certain truth. But, it is the part of courage and wisdom to expect no assistance from Gods, Genii or spirits, on our march from the threshold of time to the brink of eternity; and to launch our frail crafts upon the bosom of the dark waters whether or not there is another shore. C. C. MILLARD.

Wichita, Kansas.

THE RIGHT RING.

Mrs. Cassell's long letter on the Concannon fraud is just the kind of metal we like the ring of, and Mr. Parcell needs it rung pretty close to his deluded ear.

If Spiritualism is to be disgraced and made a butt of for revilers and the vulgar to hoot out of existence, it need not be deliberately done by those who pose as its leaders. Admit no one to the public stage without proper credentials and accredited abilities, and let them have been ever so honest pro publico in the past, when they disclose their natural corruption by such vile imposture as would have permanently disgraced any minister, sternly deny them such opportunities in the future.

We were trying to get up a party of novices to visit Lake Helen Camp where they could see the real thing—for Spiritualism is unknown and reviled in Florida—but upon seeing the Concannons' names, dropped the whole business before we would be classed as the soft-headed dupe of such tricksters.

Halls and Spiritual camps are not country fairs for every fakir to erect his booth in and run his thimblerig for suckers, like the money-changers of the temple, and it is a disgrace to managers and the whole fraternity that this widely published brace of frauds should have been welcomed at the next door they knocked at, and coddled for business purposes. Can their abettors be any better? Ayers was thought well of till he became the hand-in-glove accomplice with these subtle deceivers. Let all decent, self-respecting Spiritualists who claim any superiority for their religion over Christianity, rigidly shun and make an example of such impostures by an iron boycott, and by no half-way measures. The brotherhood of man must be set aside for the time or we shall be hobnobbing and so mixed with criminals and lepers that the general public cannot distinguish one from the other. What would be thought of a congregation who retained a corrupt minister as its preceptor? Would not the younger members emulate his methods and admire his superiority over his hypnotized dupes?

We were talking up Lake Helen, but we incontinently dropped it like a very hot potato and shall forever shun it under such a management. H. R.

Arcadia, Fla.

VAMPIRES AND BARNACLES.

To the Editor:—Mrs. Cassell's review of what she considers a glaring evil, has the right kind of ring, and I think it high time that Spiritualists and investigators in general should come out and shake off the hosts of vampires and barnacles that have fastened themselves to our noble philosophy and religion, and are dragging our cause into disrepute. And in my opinion the materialization fad is the biggest humbug of them all. Let us have honest test conditions, and if a medium will not submit to such conditions let him pass along until he finds those that are ready and willing to be humbugged. I think it high time that Spiritualists demand the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Yours for honest investigation and truth, L. H. WARREN.

Albany, Wis.

TO MUCH CREDULITY.

I am very glad to see workers all along the line arraying themselves against fraud and over-credulity. I wish we could by any means keep our ranks free from both, but as long as human nature is as it is I fear it is impossible to do so. So all that remains for us to do is to possess our souls in patience and work diligently for the higher development of all. ANNIE WILSON.

IMPORTANT CONVERT!

REV. S. BARTLETT, AN OLD PREACHER—HE PUBLICLY DEBATED WITH MOSES HULL AND J. CLEGG WRIGHT—CONVERTED IN A SEANCE IN FORT WAYNE, IND.

To the Editor:—The First Spiritualist Society of Fort Wayne has a provision in its Constitution which renders its platform free to all progressive thinkers whether Spiritualists or otherwise. It has repeatedly invited the opponents of Spiritualism to occupy its platform in opposition to Spiritualism, our motto being "free thought, free speech and free press." No class of people who have the truth in relation to any subject is afraid to have it attacked even in the house of its friends.

Our society is without a regularly engaged speaker during this month of April, and at last Sunday morning's meeting (April 18th, 1897) there chanced to be in the audience an elderly gentleman who presented the appearance of an orthodox minister, but an entire stranger to every one present. Upon being invited to address the meeting he assured the president that he was not a Spiritualist. Being informed that our platform was a liberal one, he responded to the invitation and addressed the meeting.

He had not proceeded far in his remarks when we discovered that he was no ordinary talker and had been long accustomed to addressing audiences along theological lines. In fact, he announced that he had been an orthodox preacher (Disciple, Christian or Campbellite,) for many years and had fought Spiritualism bitterly, having publicly debated with Moses Hull and J. Clegg Wright, and, as he believed vanquished them. He said that he had for years tried in his way to ascertain if there was anything in Spiritualism, but had never received any satisfactory proof of its truth. He acknowledged, however, that Spiritualism has shaken the old orthodox world from center to circumference.

In the evening he was again invited to address the meeting and did so, much along the same line which characterized his morning discourse, manifesting an undoubted interest in the subject, but emphatically disclaiming any belief in or knowledge of its truth.

Upon the following Friday evening he accepted an invitation to attend a trumpet seance given by Miss Daniels at the house of John Powers, Esq., the first trumpet seance he had ever attended. (Think of it!! An "investigator?" of Spiritualism for twenty or thirty years never having attended a trumpet seance). But he finally did attend one as above noted, and in this first and only trumpet seance he ever attended, the Reverend Simon Bartlett, became a convert to the truth of spirit return, having as he affirms, without the least shadow of doubt, talked with his mother. The evidence of the intelligence which talked to him being that of his mother was simply overwhelmingly incontrovertible.

On the following Saturday morning he visited me at my office in company with the medium, Miss Daniels, and told me that he was now a Spiritualist and had already written a letter to a ministerial brother, informing him of that fact, based upon the remarkable communication he had received the night before from his mother who had passed over years ago.

I remarked that no better selection of a speaker for tomorrow (Sunday's meetings) could be made by our president than that of the Rev. Simon Bartlett. "Yes, but what an embarrassing position it places me in. I shall be obliged to turn a complete somersault," said the reverend gentleman. "People will think that I am a regular 'crank' for sure—a veritable weather-vane, carried about by every wind of doctrine, etc.," said he.

Well, said I, you need not specially commit yourself so suddenly; just give your experience in your first trumpet seance, and let the audience place upon it its own interpretation.

"No," said he, "I have already committed myself to every one present at the seance, and I had better be honest about it and make a clean breast of it."

And he did make a full and sweeping confession of his conviction of the truth of Spiritualism on the following day, Sunday, the 25th of April, 1897.

And so, the Rev. Simon Bartlett, who for many years had preached and was the champion debater of the Christian church against Spiritualism, has finally become a convert to its truth. Letters of congratulation will now be in order from the Spiritualists throughout the country addressed to the Rev. Simon Bartlett, Painesville, Ohio.

All that the honest, candid investigator has to do is to press the right button and Spiritualism will do the rest.

H. V. SWERINGEN.

Policy of the Church of Rome.

FROM FROUDE'S HISTORY OF ENGLAND.

"Although Pole, (Cardinal) and Mary, (Queen) could have laid their hands on earl and baron, knight and gentleman, whose heresy was notorious; although in the Queen's own guard there were many who never listened to a mass, they durst not strike where there was danger that they would be struck in return. They went out into the highways and hedges; gathered up the lame, the halt, and the blind; they took the weaver from his loom, the carpenter from his workshop, the husbandman from his plow: they laid hands on maidens and boys who had never heard of any other religion than that they were called on to abjure; old men tottering into the grave and children whose lips could but just lisp the articles of their creed; and of these they made their burnt offerings; with these they crowded their prisons and when filth and famine killed them they flung them out to rot. In three years by imprisonment, by torment, by famine, by fire, nearly 400 were lamentably destroyed."

"A Catholic bishop holds his office by a tenure untouched by the accidents of time. Dynasties may change—nations may lose their liberties—the firm fabric of society itself may be swept away in the torrent of revolution—the Catholic prelate remains at his post; when he dies, another takes his place; and when the waters sink again into their beds, the quiet figure is seen standing where it stood before—the person perhaps changed—the thing itself rooted like a rock on the adamantine basements of the world."—Froude's England, Vol. 7, p. 178.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

A Remarkable Book.

This is a remarkable work by FATHER CHINIQUY. It exposes even to the minutest details the corruption that exists in the Church of Rome. It is a work of 852 pages, and should be read as a matter of history by every Spiritualist. The following is a partial list of the table of contents:

CHAPTER I.
The Bible and the Priest of Rome.
CHAPTER II.
My first School-days at St. Thomas—The Monk and Celibacy.
CHAPTER III.
The Confession of Children.
CHAPTER IV.
The Shepherd whipped by his Sheep.
CHAPTER V.
The Priest, Purgatory, and the poor Widow's Cow.
CHAPTER VI.
Festivities in a Parsonage.
CHAPTER VII.
Preparation for the First Communion—Initiation to Idolatry.
CHAPTER VIII.
The First Communion.
CHAPTER IX.
Intellectual Education in the Roman Catholic College.
CHAPTER X.
Moral and Religious Education in the Roman Catholic College.
CHAPTER XI.
Protestant Children in the Convents and Nunneries of Rome.
CHAPTER XII.
Rome and Education—Why does the Church of Rome hate the Common Schools of the United States, and want to destroy them?—Why does she object to the reading of the Bible in the Schools?
CHAPTER XIII.
Theology of the Church of Rome: its Anti-Social and Anti-Christian Character.
CHAPTER XIV.
The Vow of Celibacy.
CHAPTER XV.
The Impurities of the Theology of Rome.
CHAPTER XVI.
The Priest of Rome and the Holy Fathers; or, how I swore to give up the Word of God to follow the word of Men.
CHAPTER XVII.
The Roman Catholic Priesthood, or Ancient and Modern Idolatry.
CHAPTER XVIII.
Nine Consequences of the Dogma of Transubstantiation—The old Paganism under a Christian name.
CHAPTER XIX.
Vicarage, and Life at St. Charles, Rivierre Boyer.
CHAPTER XX.
Papineau and the Patriots in 1833—The burning of "Le Canadien" by the Curate of St. Charles.
CHAPTER XXI.
Grand Dinner of the Priests—The Maniac Sister of Rev. Mr. Perras.
CHAPTER XXII.
I am appointed Vicar of the Curate of Charlesbourgh—The Piety, Lives and Deaths of Fathers Bedard and Perras.
CHAPTER XXIII.
The Cholera Morbus of 1834—Admirable courage and self-denial of the Priests of Rome during the epidemic.
CHAPTER XXIV.
I am named a Vicar of St. Roch, Quebec City—The Rev. Mr. Tetu—Tertullian—General Cargo—The Seal Skins.
CHAPTER XXV.
Simony—Strange and sacrilegious traffic in the so-called Body and Blood of Christ—Enormous sums of Money made by the sale of Masses—The Society of Three Masses abolished and the Society of one Mass established.
CHAPTER XXVI.
Continuation of the trade in Masses.
CHAPTER XXVII.
Quebec Marine Hospital—The first time I carried the "Bon Dieu" (the wafer god) in my vest pocket—The Grand Oyster Soiree at Mr. Buteau's—The Rev. L. Parent and the "Bon Dieu" at the Oyster Soiree.

☞ We have not space in this notice of Father Chiniquy's work to give the heads of all the Chapters. Those omitted are of especial value. The following, however, are of thrilling interest:

CHAPTER LIII.
The Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary.
CHAPTER LIV.
The Abomination of Auricular Confession.
CHAPTER LV.
The Ecclesiastical Retreat—Conduct of the Priests—The Bishop Forbids Me to Distribute the Bible.
CHAPTER LVI.
Public Acts of Simony—Thefts and Brigandage of Bishop O'Regan—General Cry of Indignation—I determine to resist him to his face—He employs Mr. Splud again to send me to Gaol, and he fails—Drugs me as a Prisoner to Quebec in the Spring of 1856 and fails again—Abraham Lincoln defends me—My dear Bible becomes more than ever my Light and my Counselor.
CHAPTER LVII.
Bishop O'Regan sells the Parsonage of the French Canadians of Chicago, pockets the money, and turns them out when they come to complain—He determines to turn me out of my Colony and send me to Kahokia—He forgets it next day and publishes that he has interdicted me—My People send a Deputation to the Bishop—His Answers—The Sham Excommunication by three drunken Priests.
CHAPTER LVIII.
Address from my People, asking me to remain—I am again dragged as a prisoner by the Sheriff to Urbane—Abraham Lincoln's anxiety about the Issue of the Prosecution—My Distress—The Rescue—Miss Philomena Moffat sent by God to save me—Le Belle's Confession and Distress—My Innocence acknowledged—Noble Words and Conduct of Abraham Lincoln—The Death of Miss Philomena Moffat.
CHAPTER LIX.
A moment of Interruption in the Thread of my "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome," to see how my sad Previsions about my defender, Abraham Lincoln, were to be realized—Rome the Implacable Enemy of the United States.
CHAPTER LX.
The Fundamental Principles of the Constitution of the United States drawn from the Gospel of Christ—My first visit to Abraham Lincoln to warn him of the Plots I knew against his Life—The Priests circulate the news that Lincoln was born in the Church of Rome—Letter of the Pope to Jeff Davis—My last visit to the President—His admirable reference to Moses—His willingness to die for his Nation's Sake.
CHAPTER LXI.
Abraham Lincoln a true man of God, and a true Disciple of the Gospel—The Assassination by Booth—The tool of the Priests—John Surratt's house—The Rendezvous and Dwelling Place of the Priests—John Surratt Secreted by the Priests after the murder of Lincoln—The Assassination of Lincoln known and published in the town three hours before its occurrence.
CHAPTER LXII.
Deputation of two Priests sent by the People and the Bishops of Canada to persuade us to submit to the will of the Bishop—The Deputies acknowledge publicly that the Bishop is wrong and that we are right—For peace sake, I consent to withdraw from the contest on certain conditions accepted by the Deputies—One of the Deputies turns false to his promise, and betrays us, to be put at the head of my Colony—My last interview with him and Mr. Brassard.
CHAPTER LXIII.
Mr. Desaulnier is named Vicar General of Chicago to crush us—Our People more united than ever to defend their rights—Letters of the bishops of Montreal against me, and my answer—Mr. Brassard forced, against his conscience, to condemn us—My answer to Mr. Brassard—He writes to beg my pardon.
CHAPTER LXIV.
I write to the Pope Pius IX, and to Napoleon, Emperor of France, and send them the Legal and Public Documents proving the bad conduct of Bishop O'Regan—Grand Vicar Dunn sent to tell me of my victory at Rome, and the end of our trouble—I go to Dubuque to offer my submission to the Bishop—The peace sealed and publicly proclaimed by Grand Vicar Dunn the 28th of March, 1858.
CHAPTER LXV.
Excellent testimonial from my Bishop—My Retreat—Grand Vicar Saurin and his assistant, Rev. M. Granger—Grand Vicar Dunn writes me about the new storm prepared by the Jesuits—Vision—Christ offers Himself as a Gift—I am forgiven, rich, happy and saved—Back to my people.
CHAPTER LXVI.
The Solemn Responsibilities of my New Position—We give up the name of Roman Catholic to call ourselves Christian Catholic—Infamy of the Roman Catholic Bishops—My Lord Duggan, Coadjutor of St. Louis, hurried to Chicago—He comes to St. Anne to persuade the People to submit to his Authority—He is ignominiously turned out, and runs away in the midst of the Cries of the People.
CHAPTER LXVII.
Bird's-eye View of the Principal Events from my Conversion to this day—My Narrow Escapes—The end of the Voyage through the Desert to the Promised Land.

Price, $2.25, Post-paid.

PRINCIPLES
— OF —
LIGHT AND COLOR.

BY E. D. BABBITT, M. D. LL. D.

A truly great work in which the author exhibits the results of years of research, of a mind devoted to science and truth, highly gifted with keen intuitive insight and the psychic faculty of clairvoyance, enabling him to discover and elucidate facts and principles not observable to ordinary ken. The book is of very great interest, and importance, bringing to light many important points concerning light and color in their mental and physical effects and their practical application in the conservation of health and the cure of disease and sickness. Its medical value is beyond estimation, and its teachings should be known by all.

Finely illustrated with cuts and colored plates.

PRICE, $5.00. POSTAGE, 36c.

For Sale at The Progressive Thinker Office.

The Other World and This.

A Compendium of Spiritual Laws No. 1, New White Cross Literature.

BY AUGUSTA W. FLETCHER, M. D.

In this volume the author, in the thirty-nine chapters, discusses a wide variety of subjects pertaining to Spiritualism, from a spiritualistic standpoint. She evinces the powers of a trained thinker, both in matter of thought and fine literary style, and capability of thought expression. The subjects are well-handled with conciseness and yet with clearness. It will prove a rich addition to any Spiritualist's library, and a most excellent book for any one seeking information concerning Spiritualism and its teachings.

For Sale at this Office. Price, $1.50

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year..... $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club)..... 7.50
Thirteen weeks..... 25 cts
Single copy..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, MAY 8, 1897.

A STAMPEDE PREDICTED.

It is mortifying to attempt great enterprises and fail to make them a success. Admire their projectors as much as we may, when defeat comes the chances are a thousand to one reputations are blasted and the movers in them become business or social wrecks. Very few can rally, start again, win honor, applause and wealth.

The Rev. Dr. A. J. F. Behrends, in the "Christian Work," of April 17th, has undertaken a task which must ultimate in failure and defeat. He calls for a retreat of the "higher critics" on the Bible from their present position, and predicts that in five years their retreat will become a stampede.

That the wish was father to the thought there can be no question. But it is a fact that as learning has advanced, and investigation has gone down to greater depths, and the number of fearless students have increased, they seem to have been emboldened in their researches until they are no longer reluctant to express their honest convictions. And what is worse than all else for the future of the church, both clergy and laity are more and more inclined to accept the revelations and conclusions of these "higher critics."

If The Progressive Thinker was to venture a prediction, instead of agreeing with Rev. Behrends, it would insist that in ten years the retreat, begun near half a century ago as to the Divine authenticity of the "Holy Scriptures," and which has been so greatly accelerated in the last ten years, will become a stampede during the next decade, and that few who make any pretensions to scholarship will remain to hug the old book of errors to their breasts, and declare: "We can't part with you yet," in the language of a preacher a few years ago, in the writer's hearing, who, in a series of discourses, had exposed the barbaric origin of the Bible and its worthlessness as a moral instructor, changed his front in his closing lecture, not because his earlier words were false, but because a goodly number of his best financial supporters only halfway out of their fossil shells were unable to go so far as their pastor after truth, but were preparing for a revolt, which was headed off by this brilliant retrograde movement.

PATRIOTISM IN THE ASCENDANT.

It is an absolute delight to witness the evidences of patriotism among the foreign population of this country, whose governments are engaged in bloody wars. Just now the resident Greeks in all our principal cities, are rushing home pell mell, to fight their enemies, the naughty Turks. And the Turks, equally zealous for fatherland, are anxious to reach the seat of war to whip the pesky Greeks. Cubans and Spaniards are also zealous to join in the fray in which their respective countries are engaged. If the Italians would mix up in a contest with some anti-Catholic country there would be a hegira of that people. How very nice. If they would all go, and our government would take measures to prevent their return, possibly Americans, Sons of Americans, would find employment, and the long lines of professional tramps, made such by foreigners intruding themselves into places of labor at prices below living rates, would be correspondingly depleted.

Gods, let the battle rage, so human liberty, and the rights of the oppressed are conserved.

TOO MANY PREACHERS.

The "Congregationalist" says, the applications to fill vacancies in pulpits have become so numerous, in some localities in New England, the committees charged with the task of securing pastors have been compelled to have printed blanks made to respond to inquiries, while other societies have given general notice that no more applications to fill vacancies will be considered.

The truth is, the learned professions, everyone of them, are overstocked, and none is found so profitable, pecuniarily, as the aspirants for positions anticipated. The medical profession has enlarged its curriculum and extended its period of study from two to three or four years, hoping thereby to abridge the number of graduates. Vast numbers are educated for the bar, three times as many as are needed. Not finding profitable employment they drift into politics or business, and in the end become useful members of society; but the educated preacher is wholly unfitted for practical life away from his profession. It is probably because of this lack of the bread-producing qualifications, and their inability to secure the needs of life they are more liable to drift away into crime than any other class of educated people.

As society is now constituted, and the demand is so large for inventors, civil engineers, draftsmen, assayists, mineralogists, geologists, etc., it is a wonder young men do not turn their attention in these directions, and therein win fame and fortune, and bring blessings to the race.

TAX THE CHURCHES.

The Cleveland Plaindealer of the 19th ult. gives a resume of an address delivered in that city the evening previous, by W. E. Bond, before the Free Thought Lyceum. Mr. Bond bewailed the fact that church property was not as highly taxed as a poor man's home, and insisted a day of reckoning would surely come. He said:

"The justice of the claim made by non-religionists, that church property should have no advantage over other properties, seems to be beyond the thoughts of the religionists. Why should a poor man's little home be taxed while church property is exempt? There is not a single claim made for church exemption but what can apply with greater force to the poor man's home. The first claim made by the church is that churches are God's special property, and, therefore to tax His property is to tax Him. We deny that churches are His property in any sense whatever, except on the general principle that all properties are equally His, granting, for the sake of the argument, that there may be a God. We deny that even if they are His special charge it would be wrong to tax them.

"Would God destroy his own? History teems with the destruction of churches by natural causes. The lightnings of heaven have many times penetrated to the very innermost sanctuary, the holy of holies, while priest and people have perished by hundreds. Even while priests were preaching the horrors of hell fire, the heavenly fires of divine wrath penetrated to their very souls and dried up the marrow of their bones. They were ever ready to charge others with being the victims of divine vengeance when misfortune overtook them, but the destruction of churches was not the reminder of God's wrath to themselves but those reminders became too frequent and costly. It seemed that lightning took special pains to hit a church spire. If it be true that everything was designed by an All-Wise Providence for good, then the enormous destruction of churches and church goers was a good thing. Who knows!

"A heathen invented the lightning rod, and the hand of God was stayed so far as lightning was concerned. But the resources of providence are boundless; thwarted in one way by the cunning of man, it can still find means of accomplishing its ends. In earthquake ridden countries, where the terror stricken inhabitants have fled to the sacred sanctuaries for safety, they have been killed by thousands; churches and people have been buried in one common ruin. Verily the power of a wrathful God is fearful to behold. What is man, that Thou art mindful of him.' The hurricanes, too, have done their deadly work. Churches have been blown out of existence by the winds of heaven, while buildings more lowly in their pride and not claiming to be holy escaped the fury of the winds. Is it possible that 'whomsoever He loveth, He chastiseth?' This is a queer world. We hardly ever read the account of a fire, in our cities, without having included the announcement of the destruction of one or more churches. Not a denomination but has suffered. Is this because He loves them all alike? Or is it because He does not love them? It is a bitter medicine, the more intelligent and conscientious religionists have to swallow. Believing in a designing providence and a just God, they see the temples erected to His glory destroyed by His own agents. It is enough to cause the more thoughtful to suspect that there is more method than honesty in the plea of exemption from taxation, and to see that those who are foremost in claiming exemption have some pecuniary interest in the matter.

"Another plea for exemption is that the church teaches morality. A total denial of this claim would not be strictly correct. The teaching of morality in church religion is not a fundamental principle governing church action. The principles underlying church action are upholding dogmas and superstitions, perpetuating priestly power through keeping the people in ignorance and fear, and third, as a means to carry out the second, the acquisition of material wealth. These three are certainly very peculiar means and methods, to say the least, of teaching morality.

"Nearly every nation in times past struggled for its very existence against church greed and despotism. The exception to past experience will surely have their turn; it is only a question of time. The people of the United States will not escape. Already the increase of church wealth and consequent exemption is reckoned by hundreds of millions of dollars. Two of our presidents have warned Congress that if exemption is allowed much longer the time will not be far distant when in the very nature of things church wealth will be so enormous as to be a menace to our liberties, and when our eyes are finally opened to the villainy of the scheme we will resort to swift retribution or go down to ruin. The scenes of the French revolution may be enacted here.'"

DEFEATED.

The Legislature of Wisconsin has just killed a pending bill empowering the State Board of Control to inspect Convents. This action must have resulted from priestly influence. With the public prejudices against the management of these private prisons for the immurement of women, the Catholic church, if honest in the opinion that the inmates are properly treated, should have called for the legal inspection of those bodies, in place of opposing such action. No place is too sacred to be exempt from examination if evil practices are believed to prevail there. We hope every State Legislature, at each regular session, will agitate this question, and finally act favorably upon it. Let the light of heaven shine upon church prisons, as upon every other retreat where their inmates cannot come and go at will.

PARTLY CORRECT.

At the Chicago Avenue Church a few evenings ago, the clergy made a violent assault on the Masonic fraternity. President Blanchard, of Wheaton College, claimed all secret societies were instruments of the Devil for overthrowing the home, church and State.

Yes, George Washington was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity, as were many of the most distinguished names in the American Revolution; and they revolted against the declaration of Paul: "The powers that be are ordained of God," and they succeeded in that revolt, and gave to the world the United States of America. While they were doing this the clergy very generally opposed them. Among this number was John Wesley, the founder of Methodism. We came near saying, and would had we not been pious, that the cusses are not satisfied, so they are still laboring to destroy the Republic these "instruments of the Devil" set up, and want to establish a hierocracy on its ruins, with a code of laws made to govern a tribe of barbarians as its text book. "It won't do."

THE HISTORY OF TACITUS.

The entire history of Tacitus, as we have the work, was regained from a single copy found in the fifteenth century in a monastery of Westphalia. That we should owe the works of this author to one copy is a remarkable circumstance, for the Emperor Tacitus, who claimed to be a descendant of the historian, had copies of the history placed in every library of the empire, and each year had ten copies transcribed for presentation to scholars. All, it seems, perished save the Westphalian copy.—Press item.

The Annals of Tacitus is one of the monkish forgeries which misled scholars for many years. It appeared just when it was greatly needed to supply omissions in the classics in regard to Christianity, just as old copies of the Gospel are still dug up in those same cloisters "to fill a long-felt want." Prof. Johnson, who brought greater learning than any other writer to bear upon the authorship of the classics, says the thoughts of Tacitus are Catholic. The work is filled with Catholic phrases of the 15th century, quite out of character with the time when it is pretended to have been written at the close of the 1st century. The excellent Latin was of the 15th century period. Prof. Johnson credits the work to the Benedictine monks, and says: "We may certainly affirm that this strange piece of mythology was a monkish production."

It was Tacitus who told the ridiculous and shamefully false tales about Nero murdering his mother, of his burning Rome, fiddling and dancing in his garden while the greater part of the city went up in flame. It was a device to show that there were Christians at that early period, the animus being the destruction of a large number of that sect, because they were charged with firing the city.

That Rome was burned is very probable, but as well charge the mayor of Chicago with the great fire of 1871 as Nero with the destruction of the then capital of the world.

DEPLORABLE.

All the varied means of grace seem financially depressed. It is not Bible societies, nor Foreign and Domestic missions, nor church circles, nor even societies for the spread of the Gospel that are alone in the throes simulating dissolution, but even the American Tract Society, which has been such a powerful auxiliary in frightening sinners into the church, is now sounding an alarm. For well on towards a century its tales of an angry God, a crucified Son, the undying worm, the eternity of punishment, and the miseries of the damned, in the form of tracts, have been distributed broadcast over the country, the expenses sustained by donations from the wealthy and special legacies from departing churchmen. From a late report deploring the lack of Christian faith by a large majority of the population, it announces the falling off of its revenue from legacies alone during the last year of upwards of $50,000.

This is deplorable! Won't some rich Christian be so kind as to die and leave his princely fortune to the American Tract Society—which refused to publish either tracts or treatises on the subject of slavery, and in 1859 led to several independent organizations in consequence—and thus save the parent of all the others from general bankruptcy? If there are no frightened sinners there will be no accessions to churches, no legacies, no contributions of any sort to sustain the Gospel, and the whole institution, societies and clergy, will die of inanition. "Help us, Cassius, (with cash) or we sink!"

A JUST DECISION.

The friends of true liberty and free public schools for secular education, have reason for rejoicing in a decision just handed down by a Minnesota District Court. It seems that, in pursuance of its determination to dominate or destroy our American public schools, the Romish church authorities had succeeded in introducing Romish religious instruction in a public school. Suit was instituted to prevent this attempt at Romanizing American children, and a press dispatch from St. Cloud, Minn., states that, "Judges Baxter and Searle of the District court have just handed down an important decision in what is known as the Avon school case, whereby the school district and its teachers are enjoined from using the school house to give religious instruction or to teach the Roman Catholic catechism. The decision applies to all public schools in the State and to all religious creeds. The practice of teaching the catechism is held to be contrary to the constitutional guaranty of freedom of conscience."

The foul game of the slimy emissaries of Rome is blocked by this righteous decision. But their treacherous enmity to American public schools, and their efforts to undermine and destroy, if they cannot dominate them, will not cease; and they must be watched and their attempts met with quick opposition by the friends of American institutions.

BURIED THREE DAYS.

At last the great feat of throwing a subject into a hypnotic trance—a condition of supposed temporary suspension of animation—and burying him for a period of three consecutive days has been accomplished at Simcoe, Ont. The facts we glean are stated in the following paragraphs, the first dated three days ahead of the last, taken from the daily press of this city:

Professor Ferris, hypnotist, placed a subject in a trance at Simcoe, Ont., and buried him six feet under ground, there to remain three days. Sheriff Jackson and a posse of officers appeared on the scene as the grave was filled in and ordered the professor to take the man out or suffer arrest. The professor refused, stating that he was violating no law, and after consultation with the county attorney the sheriff finds he can take no action. The subject is supplied with air through a box. His face can be seen. It resembles that of a corpse, but has not the extreme pallor.

The man hypnotized and buried in the ground for three days at Simcoe, Ont., has been disinterred. Great crowds followed the box containing the body to the opera house. As the man was being brought back to a normal condition he was restless and finally smashed the box he was in to pieces. It required five men to control him in his struggles until he was fully restored to consciousness.

APPEAL TO GOD.

The belligerent powers between the Adriatic, the Ionian and the Aegean Seas, are now appealing to their respective Gods for succor. As it is the longest pole takes the persimmons, so the party most influential with the heavenly powers may expect the victory, if prayers are to determine the result. But it is one of the funny things that neither party is willing to trust Divinity, so they engage indiscriminately in pillage and slaughter.

ASTONISHING REVELATIONS.

In a private letter to the writer, Prof. Alexander Wilder, of Newark, N. J., made the following interesting statements, which will be new to many of our readers. It seems from the brief narration that it was virtually only a turn of the wheel of fortune that the English speaking peoples are not Mohammedans instead of Christians. Had King Henry, II. so early as the beginning of the 12th century, entered into a combination with the then Mohammedan powers of Spain, the destiny of the world might have been materially different from what it now is. It will be remembered that the followers of the prophet preserved the literature of the world while the Christian nations were destroying it; and it was they who saved to comparatively modern times the arts and sciences of the ancients. It is well to read Draper's Conflict Between Religion and Science in this connection.

And that astonishing revelation which the great Papal chair of state at Rome made to the world is abundant food for thought for a long time. It would be well if the sources of that information could be probed to the bottom.

Notwithstanding the long list of Popes, and the claims to great antiquity of Catholicism it is probable it had but little if any existence back of the 10th to the 12th century. Our chronology, like our history, is the production of the monks in their cloisters. They had little to do but forge history. The Dark Ages of a thousand years are black with falsehoods and deceit.

Probably many of those centuries, if the truth was known, would be compressed into less than a hundred years of real time. Spread over so long a period it is no wonder the stories are badly mixed. But we are keeping the reader too long from the interesting narrations of Prof. Wilder. We quote:

"I remember reading when a youth, in the school district library of my native town, a mention of the Crusades—that at the bottom was the purpose to beat back the Moslem invasion of Europe, rather than any special religious purpose, as we now understand was the intention. That statement has had its influence in shaping my own thinking.

"I have read that Henry II., of England, (A. D. 1154 to 1189) actually considered the feasibility of making Islam the State religion, which his quarrel with Becket, a half Saracen, may have modified. John afterwards (A. D. 1116 to 1199) actually offered the Mohammedan Ruler in Spain, to adopt that faith, if he would help in his conflict with the Pope. The monarch asked what kind of a man John was and of his character. Upon learning it was perfidious he would go no farther.

"Some three centuries ago the Papal chair was taken down to be cleaned. On the seat was an astrologic figure describing the Twelve Labors of Hercules. In 1795, when the French army entered Rome, the chair was overhauled, and on the seat was inscribed the legend: 'No God but Allah, and Mahomet his Prophet.'

"All this may have been accidental, but it seems to indicate some possible negotiations for a union of the two religions. In Dante, Mahomet is represented as a secretary, not the head of a false faith. J. W. Draper gives him an inspiration from a Nestorian monk. Pope Innocent III., entertained grave doubts of the 'Holy Catholic Faith,' and his crusade against the Albigenses was merely a contest of the Koran against the semi-Parsees, a Magian system that was almost as strong as Catholicism.

"Pope Sylvester II. is said to have been a student at Cordova (This is disputed), and was accused of being a Magian to suggest the Crusades.

"Christendom used to be in a shaky condition. It so happened that a Sufi dynasty gained the throne of Persia, while in fact Protestantism was taking form. The kings did much to keep the Turks off from the 'Holy Roman Empire.' Probably but for that check Germany would have succumbed to the Mosselms of Constantinople, instead of the divines of Wittemberg; and we would have had neither Protestants nor the Inquisitors—and probably not the Jesuits.

"I utterly discount the story of seventy-two men, in seventy-two cells translating the Hebrew Scriptures into Greek in seventy-two days, and each translation being exactly alike.

"I have the Hexaglott, and the Greek version is often widely different from the Hebrew."

CANNOT SUIT ALL.

To the Editor:—I am so well pleased with The Progressive Thinker, dated May 1st, I want a few extra copies. I find that you are not afraid to let divergent views appear in your columns; sometimes I cannot agree with you in your editorial notions, but I cannot condemn your paper on account of this. You CANNOT please all your subscribers; there is no use trying to, and if you made the attempt, you would make a h—ll of a mess of it! Once in a while a number comes to hand full of mighty good reading, and your issue of May 1st is one of them. I could not well do without your paper. The writings on scientific subjects are both meat and drink to my mentality. The extra numbers I distribute to some of my dyed-in-the-wool theological friends. I claim several such; some of them preachers of the everlasting gospel. What this is I do not know, nor they either; it is entirely a cant phrase. I remain, Quincy, Ill. JOHN L. MOORE, for sixteen years a J. P.

Mr. Moore is right in his estimate—"you cannot please all." The mind that strenuously insists that a paper must be conducted alone on its plan strictly, regardless of others, is narrow, self-conceited and exceedingly foolish. No Spiritualist paper is published now, nor can one be published, that will meet the demands of all. There is scarcely a single feature of The Progressive Thinker that some one has not objected to, they not having breadth of mind enough to know that what is unpalatable to one is delicious food for another. We publish not only the largest Spiritualist paper on earth to-day, but therein will be found by far the greatest amount of varied reading matter. Don't read what you don't like. You leave to others the food on the table you don't relish, and it generally disappears; and what you don't admire in a Spiritualist paper some one else does.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

Seemed to Be Shadows.

SHADOWED TO A DESERVED FATE—BY MYSTERIOUS PANTOMIME MURDERER IS DETECTED—PICTURES OF CRIME FROM AN INVISIBLE CAMERA — GREAT WRONGS RIGHTED BY HEEDING THEIR SUGGESTIONS—EMBARRASSING CONTRETEMPS OF A YOUNG AND WORLDLY THEOLOGIAN REMEDIED.

"Shadows! Reflections from unaccountable objects thrown upon the darkness! says the Cincinnati Enquirer. These are the things described in Prof. Harrington's narrative, and I can well understand the frightfulness of the images thus presented; not that I ever saw them, but for many years, probably twenty-five, I have been haunted by shadows in the broad sunlight, and at night in the lighted chamber, as well as in the fields when illuminated by the rays of the moon, and I know how startling a reflection may be when it is impossible to discover the object reflected. I have dodged thousands of foreshadowed blows, thousands of threatened collisions, thousands of dangers apparently impending, and have fled in terror before pursuits which seemed to mean destruction, most of which proved to be false alarms and objectless. Doctors have charged these things to disordered nerves, but only their ignorance could so far lead them astray. I know the nerves have as little to do in producing these reflections as the toes or ears, and equally well am I persuaded that the phenomena have a meaning, in some cases carrying with them their own interpretation."

Thus spoke Mr. Tudor Lamson in comment upon Prof. Harrington's description of what befell James Aughton. Lamson was requested to tell his story of the shadows, and he did so in substantially these terms:

"There are classes of these curious visions, but I have never tried to classify them in a systematic way. All disclose ghosts of things or events in the past, present or future, and the fact that they are veritable has been brought home to my apprehension in several instances—in some half dozen in a manner never to be forgotten. In a general way we know that when any given object is seen, be it man, a horse or a landscape, there is an image of that object painted upon the retina in rays of light. How the image is communicated to the brain and from that to the sentient principle, what mechanical change is produced upon the nerve fibers during its transmission, what changes are required to convey the different images of a man, a horse or a landscape—of all these things we are lamentably ignorant. According to our verbal terms we see, feel, act and suffer, but the mechanical and sensitory forces which govern these functions are wholly beyond mortal comprehension. They are among the prime mysteries of life.

"Standing upon a smooth, grassy lawn one summer afternoon, with my back to the sun, which was brilliantly glowing, I saw the dark shadow of a man flourishing a club, and the impression upon my mind was that I was about to be assaulted by some one who had come behind me stealthily. Turning quickly I saw no one. There was not a human being in sight. Upon resuming my former position I found that the shadow had vanished. In the abstract detail of this phenomenon there was nothing new; similar things have come to me before, but there were peculiarities in it which startled me immeasurably. The face of the man in the threatening shadow was not only strongly outlined, but the features were as faithfully presented as they could have been by a true artist.

I RECOGNIZED THEM.

"I had seen the man under exciting conditions, surrounded by circumstances of danger to his liberty, perhaps to his life, from which intrepid coolness and assurance had temporarily extricated him. Why I use the word 'temporarily' you will soon understand.

"The man was Jean Gasparin, an Americanized Frenchman. A few months previous to the shadow apparition he had been arrested and tried for the murder and robbery of a commercial agent, and he was acquitted on evidence which seemed to fasten these crimes upon another—a young man of good reputation, named Oscar Richardson. Gasparin was not in good standing. He was a man full of resources, however, quick to discover and utilize an advantage, and quite a genius in his way as an amateur chemist and pharmacist.

"He sought Richardson's society, and the latter, always courteous and complaisant, permitted a casual acquaintanceship to drift into more intimate relations. The men were professed friends, a relation to which Richardson assented passively and much to the gratification of Gasparin.

"The naturalized Gascon had business relations with Adams, a commercial traveler, who was found dead in an unused field one morning. His head was broken, doubtless by an assault with a bloody club found near the body. He had been seen on the previous evening with Gasparin, and that worthy was arrested on suspicion. He in turn accused Richardson of the crime, and professed to have testimony within call to establish the charge, which few believed. I was present at the trial of the two men, Richardson's attorney being a young friend in whose success I felt a special interest, and it was there I saw Gasparin for the first time. He was of sinister aspect, thin of visage, with a long and slender nose ludicrously hooked, heavy jaws apparently unattached to flesh or skin, and eyes like those of the ferret. When you cap these features with a heavy crop of russet hair you get a fair notion of how Jean Gasparin looked when viewed by a causual spectator. He proved by two witnesses that he left Adams and Richardson together quite late on the night preceding the murder, and, by a third witness, that a knife and glove found near the corpse were the property of Richardson. I need not enter into further details of testimony, for upon that referred to Gasparin was acquitted and Richardson found guilty, much to the chagrin of the prosecutor and my legal friend.

"When I recognized Gasparin's features in the objectless shadow, it seemed that the vision had come to me with a purpose. Unquestionably it did. After I had gone to my room that night it filled my mind, and as I was preparing to retire the shadow in another form appeared, this time carefully bestowing a knife and glove near a lifeless body and stealing away in the gloom of a dark corner. Almost instantly the scene changed and I saw a perfect presentation of my man digging in the earth of a well-known locality, called Tower's Wood. For what purpose? Surely, he would not make a grave in such a place. The question is resolved by the production of a package, and this is carefully buried, and all traces of digging obliterated by strewing dry earth and leaves upon the spot. The exact point is readily identified by its contiguity to a rustic settee, known as beneath a spreading oak—a popular lounging place in warm afternoons and evenings. I had been there frequently, but the place never looked more cozy and familiar than in the graphic shadow now disclosed, with Jean Gasparin as the presiding genius.

THE LOVER'S SEAT,

"A motion for a new trial was pending in Richardson's case. I called upon his attorney next morning and told him what I had seen in the shadowy pictures. He laughed, but I saw he was interested.

"'Suppose you investigate the place in Tower's Wood,' said he. 'Take a man with you to do the digging, and also that we may have another witness as to what, if anything, may be found. If you come upon a parcel, open it, and both mark for identification each and every article it contains.'

"A package wrapped in an old rubber coat was found three feet below the surface. It contained a gold watch, diamond stud, jeweled cuff buttons and several hundred dollars in money in a pocketbook holding also many valuable papers. We marked them as directed, and in the afternoon conveyed them in a valise to the office of the attorney. As soon as he saw the rubber coat he said:

"'Gasparin wore that garment in stormy weather for several years. He spilled acid upon it once, leaving a mark resembling blood, and here it is. It is fortunate that he was not tried on the charge of robbery, for we had no evidence. Now it seems to be plentiful, and for this lesser crime he shall be arrested without delay, and we will see what may be coupled with it through further developments.'

"Accordingly the villain was taken into custody. In his examination he made strenuous denial of the crime, and invoked immediate judgment upon his head by Almighty power if he were not speaking truth. Richardson's attorney induced him to repeat this invocation during the cross examination and immediately following it the old, well-known rubber coat was held up to the gaze of the criminal.

"'Did you ever wear this garment?'

"'No!' The man was off his guard, and answered hastily. He was painfully excited, and his little eyes rolled and snapped like those of a vicious animal when enraged. From a throat hard and dry words finally came, in almost a whisper:

"'Let me see it. My coat was stolen, and that may be mine.'

"He looked it over hastily, occupying two or three minutes, during which it was several times dropped upon the floor, and then he said:

"'I think it was mine once, or one just like it; but it was lost or stolen.'

"'Or buried in Tower's Wood.' added the attorney. 'Why was it buried? Why were articles of great value wrapped in it and the parcel sunk in the mold three feet below the surface? Answer!' he shouted in a commanding voice.

"Gasparin's countenance changed from dead pallor to flaming red and back again, varying these hues many times in a moment, like sudden flashes of light and heat, and he made several efforts to speak; but the attorney was impatient to finish the disclosure.

"'Ah, Jean Gasparin!' he exclaimed, 'your crimes have found you out. You can no longer hide away from inexorable justice. While you reposed in fancy security your whole scheme has been disclosed to the executors of the law. How you stole up behind poor Adams and brained him with a club; then, to divert suspicion against another, you purloined Richardson's knife and gloves and dropped them near the corpse of the man you had slain; how, having robbed your victim of life, you descended to the infamy of despoiling his clay and burying the booty at night in Tower's Wood, where at some future period you thought to reclaim it and profit by the PRICE OF BLOOD.

You despicable assassin! not appeased by the life of one citizen, you conspired with the powers of darkness to bring about a judicial murder with one for whom you professed friendship as the victim, and the motive to murder Richardson was just as damnable as that which impelled you to take the life of poor Adams. Your position is that of a murderer unutterably vile, and, if you have a spark of sensibility, your own reflections must bring a severer punishment than man can inflict. Now speak up! If I have misstated your crime you are at liberty to correct me?'

"The prisoner stared at the attorney vacantly and utterd not a word. Surprise overwhelmed him. My assistant at disinterment of the dead man's property and myself were called to testify, and we identified the articles as those found, as I have stated. Then Gasparin used his tongue.

"'See now,' he began. 'Those two fellows must be the rogues. One did the killing, the other the robbing, and then they stole my coat and buried the swag in it. That is plain enough, eh? Officer, I make the charge, and they must be arrested.'

"'You forger,' interposed Richardson's attorney, 'that you were one of the most determined witnesses against my client, and that you produced, through yourself and your friends, the testimony which connected him with these atrocious crimes. I can understand the enormity of the perjury thus committed, but did not expect you to concede it at this time, when you are in so much danger. If you wish to confess, however, you are at liberty to do so, but you must tell nothing beyond the bare truth.'

"Gasparin saw that his position had been made worse, if possible, by inconsiderate words, and he lapsed into a moody silence, the picture of despair. His hooked nose became more pointed, his famished jaws more gaunt, and the tone and attitude of the man were decidedly Mephistophelian. He seemed to be self-condemned and cut off from human sympathy, and evidently he realized this condition. The trial was unfinished when Court adjourned the following day, and Gasparin was taken back to prison. In his place next morning they found nothing but a clod. The spirit had found release through the kindly offices of a dagger, so carefully concealed about his person that it escaped the eyes of the prison authorities when they searched him. If 'suicide is confession'—a declaration attributed to Daniel Webster—nothing could be more conclusive than the finale it supplied in this instance.

OTHER SHADOWS.

"By the same means of information I learned something of the character of a man who was paying court to one of my cousins with a view to matrimony," continued Mr. Lamson. "I received a hint through a shadow scene that he was a gambler, and investigation proved it to be true. I conducted the negotiations through which an understanding was had that his attentions should be discontinued, and upon his demand gave him the reasons for this request. He acknowledged the truth of the charge, but tried to insist upon the name of my informant. I told him that I did not know the name, and to this day I have not learned it.

"A young girl, cook in the home of a friend, was shamefully betrayed under promise of marriage. The time for an interesting event was drawing near, but she refused to disclose the name of her betrayer, feeling safe in his promise to make all right. Not so with my friend and myself. We were aware that under such circumstances a promise by a man who takes advantage of an unsophisticated girl is worse than a broken reed. Efforts were redoubled to induce a disclosure of the responsible person, but to no effect. One evening the matter troubled me annoyingly, and I thought of the shadows as a means to obtain the desired knowledge. In that moment the curtain at an open window was agitated in an unusual way, and I saw pictured upon it the profile of a man I knew. Recognition was immediate and positive, but if he were the guilty man it would prove a surprise to the community. He was the son of a clergyman, well educated, and at that time a theological student, and it seemed preposterous to suppose him so far off the religious track as these signs would indicate. I would not be hasty, but said to myself that if these pointers came again in the same connection I would act upon them.

"While I was dressing next morning the shadow again appeared upon the curtain, and, as if to give full assurance of the fact in question, the outlines of the girl's features appeared in its place when the other vanished. I called upon my friend and stated that the man wanted had been discovered, but when I told him who the person was he became incredulous. After some argument, however, he was induced to go with me for an interview with the young scamp, on condition that I do all the talking. We took the fellow so completely by surprise that in ten minutes his confession was made, promise of marriage and all, and we began to insist upon the fulfillment of the conditions.

"'Really,' said he, 'that is impossible. Don't you see it would ruin my prospects?'

"'How about the girl's prospects?'

"'Oh, that is a different thing. She will get over it in time and probably marry some decent fellow.'

"'No, she will not,' exclaimed my friend, breaking the condition that I alone should conduct the affair, 'because she will marry you, and this little matter will be attended to to-day or to-night you will be under arrest.'

"'But that won't do.'

"'It will have to do, you may be assured,' interrupted the girl's self-appointed guardian, 'and now come along to your father and we will complete all arrangements.'

"'Why, father is not to know, you see. He'd never forgive me—,

"'Come, come, or the law shall take hold of you at once.'

"Reluctantly and against reiterated protests the culprit was brought face to face with the embarrassing conditions in presence of his father, and the old gentleman behaved himself most chivalrously.

"'Chester, my son,' he said with great solemnity, 'if you are guilty of this wrong the amends must be prompt and complete. I am unacquainted with the girl, but if she is good enough for your association she is good enough for your wife, and if you gave your promise to wed her that you shall do.'

"'She has proved herself unworthy by lying,' replied the youth. 'The promise she would not give up my name to anybody, not even if her life were at stake.'

A WRONG RIGHTED.

"'Neither has she given it up,' said I. 'Threats were powerless to force it from her. Our information comes from a source wholly independent of the girl.'

"'We are wasting time,' interrupted my friend. 'It shall be a wedding or an arrest within the coming five hours, and the question may as well be decided without further delay.'

"'Where is the girl?' asked the clergyman.

"'At my house.'

"'Bring here here in two hours and the knot shall be tied strongly. Give me so much time to prepare this boy's mother, poor woman.'

"So it was done. The young husband was relieved from theological pursuits and installed in the mercantile line, and I hear he is doing well in a worldly sense. It is said he makes a fairly good husband, and that his wife is a true and lovable woman."

Several additional incidents were related, which may be recounted at another time. T. P.

PROHIBITION IN IOWA.

Iowa has gone back on its prohibition record, and by a recent act of the Legislature, 55 to 41 in the House, allows manufacturers, wholesale dealers, and transporters, to pursue their accustomed duties without molestation. Saloon keepers cannot use the Courts to collect their bills. If prohibition does not prohibit, and if more intoxicants are consumed under no license than under well restricted license laws, as is very generally conceded, then casuists will be liable to settle the question along the lines which make the traffic the least profitable to the dealer and conduces the most to sobriety.

HOW IS THIS?

Dr. L. S. Copper delivered an address to a large audience before the Franklin Club, Cleveland, O., on Easter Sunday, his subject—"Ingersoll as a Reformer."—The Cleveland Plaindealer reported the lecturer, as saying:

"Ingersoll's doctrine is a progressive one. He declared that in his belief he is one of the ablest reformers in the country and his doctrine would sooner or later receive proper recognition from the great majority who are searching for a reform that will materially change the present order of things."

"The Prophets of Israel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

"The Philosophy of Spirit, and the Spirit-World." By Hudson Tuttle. A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Bible and Church Degrade Woman." By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three brief essays, on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion; The Degraded Status of Woman in the Bible; The Christian Church and Woman; written in Mrs. Stanton's usual trenchant style. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

THEIR QUEER DREAMS.

CHICAGOAN'S STRANGE VISIONS—REV. DRS. THOMAS AND LAWRENCE, HENRY W. LYMAN AND CAPTAIN O'NEIL RELATE EXPERIENCES WHICH WERE HAD WHILE SLEEPNG.

To the Editor:—As set forth by the Times-Herald, dreams are of so many varieties that they scarcely can be classified, and in order to show how imagination may run riot in slumber, and, when the will is withdrawn—

* * * Join a medley of disjointed things,
A court of cobblers, or a mob of kings—

the experiences of several prominent residents of Chicago are subjoined.

Dr. Henry M. Lyman, professor of physiology and nervous diseases at Rush Medical College, and a widely known practitioner, has made some careful investigations, from a scientific standpoint, into the nature and causes of dreams. In fact, Dr. Lyman has been so interested in the subject that in his book, "Insomnia and Other Disorders of Sleep," he has devoted one chapter to dreams and dreaming. As a natural result of his study in this direction some curious incidents have come under his observation.

DR. LYMAN RELATES A DREAM.

In conversation the other day Dr. Lyman said: "One of the principal sources of dreams is external action on some one or more of the senses. The chief faculty of the brain being at rest during sleep, the minor faculties note each trival noise or disturbance that would pass unheeded during our wakeful moments. In this way the slightest noise or disturbance becomes magnified in a dream to an actual occurrence. And thus the minor faculties take up these supposed occurrences and shift them back and forth like the slides in a magic lantern. Sometimes a peculiar sensation produces a certain kind of dream. A case was once brought to my attention of a woman who dreamed she was being burned on the breast. Investigation showed that she had a cancer. However," added the doctor, "dreams would prove a most unreliable method of diagnosing a disease on account of their unreliability."

Dr. Lyman had a most remarkable dream that happily illustrated the rapidity of the occurrence of events in dreamland. While half dozing he heard the night watchman trying the front door lock. The doctor fell soundly asleep and dreamed he was back to his old home, going about from room to room trying the fastenings to the windows. His father and mother and other members of the family were in the next room eating breakfast, and he saw them all as plainly as if he were really there, Finally he dreamed he took a bath and then wandered out in the garden. He noticed every shrub and plant, and trees that had been there thirty years. He especially took notice of a plum tree, which he thought had not grown sufficiently during the time since he had last seen it. He paid attention to every little detail, and passed the entire day about the house and around the grounds. Then he dreamed that night came and he again went through the rooms trying the fastenings of the windows, when suddenly he heard a great crash in an adjoining apartment, which was toward a gypsy camp in the neighborhood. He rushed in just in time to see a picture disappear through the wall. At this point his wife awakened him and asked him what he was trying to do, and at the same moment he heard the night watchman descending the steps. Dr. Lyman had put in a busy day while the watchman had expended a few seconds testing the security of the front door.

DR. LAWRENCE'S EXPERIENCES.

The Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, pastor of the Second Baptist church, experienced an exceedingly wonderful metaphysical phenomena twenty years ago which made such a vivid impression on his mind at the time that he recalls every incident in connection with it as clearly as if it happened yesterday. In relating this bit of thaumaturgic life-history—which, by the way, has never before been told to more than some half dozen intimate acquaintances—Dr. Lawrence wishes to have it distinctly defined that he attributes every part and action of the psychological occurrence to some unexplained scientific principle or principles.

"I can scarcely tell," said he, "whether this was a dream or not, but I shall recite the facts precisely as they occurred, and you may draw your own conclusions. I was a young student at the time at a theological seminary in New York. It was Sunday. I had been to church; and, I wish here to preface my remarks with the statement that it was our custom not to dine on Sundays until after Sabbath school—about 1 o'clock—and as I had had nothing to eat since 9 o'clock that morning, the strange events that followed certainly did not arise from a disordered digestion. For some time it had been my habit when tired to wrap myself up in a blanket, lie on my right side on the floor with my left hand extended, my head on a hassock and my feet toward the fire. On this occasion I assumed this favorite position. In a short time I experienced a very peculiar sensation. I seemed to have come out of my body and was poised above it at a distance of about six feet, but was still attached to it by some apparently elastic substance. I could plainly see myself or rather my body lying there, as my spiritual being was out of its physical dwelling place. I could see that my eyes were closed and that my flesh was white and bloodless, and when I touched my left hand it felt cold. Although I could not free myself from my body I seemed to be able to be present in all parts of the town. The streets were broad and lined with elms, and I could see it all distinctly. I could see the old church on the hill, and I could see the prayer-meeting being held there and hear what the speaker was saying. I had a very dear friend—a fellow student—and I saw him standing at the postoffice conversing with a mutual acquaintance, and I heard what they both said. I saw a lady and gentleman downstairs in the house where I was, and I understood what they said perfectly well.

AWOKE AT WILL.

"Thus I had the power of seeing all these happenings, but still was not entirely detached from my body, although away from it. At length the thought came to me, 'I must go home,' meaning the return to my body. Then I immediately awoke. I was icy cold—wet from head to foot with a cold perspiration. The fire in the stove was out and I was so weak that it was with difficulty that I rekindled it and changed my clothing. As a matter of fact had there not been kindling in the room I do not believe I should have been able to have made the fire again. I threw myself on the lounge and it was some time before I was strong enough to leave my apartments. A well-known physician afterward informed me when made acquainted with the case that had I not returned to my body just as I did I never would have returned.

"Later on when I met my friend whom I saw at the postoffice I said to him: 'Why did you say so-and-so to so-and-so to-day?' He looked surprised and said: 'Yes, I said that, but I did not know that you were anywhere around.' Then I said to the speaker at the prayer meeting: 'I heard you say so- and- so at the church to-day;' and he replied: 'I said that, but I didn't see you there.' To the lady in the house I said: 'Why did you say such and such a thing to Mr.—— to-day?' 'Indeed,' rejoined she, 'did I talk so loudly that you could hear me upstairs?'

"I have had similar experiences to that," resumed Dr. Lawrence, "but nothing so remarkable or of such a vivid character. My eyes have been closed—whether asleep or not I cannot say—and I have heard my wife reading in another part of the house to the children. I have never heard of anyone else having an experience like mine. It is not on the Blavatsky order, as she was in the habit, I understand, of voluntarily putting herself in that astral state, while my condition was entirely without my will or volition. It must, in my case, have been the result of some scientific condition, but what that condition was I am not prepared to say, nor have I ever had it satisfactorily explained to me."

DR. THOMAS' DREAMS.

Rev. Dr. H. W. Thomas has had some most remarkable dreams which he relates with a clearness that indicates the impression they made upon his mind. Dr. Thomas' ideas of metaphysics were fashioned in his youth after the school of Sir William Hamilton. "I remember," said Dr. Thomas, "of a case related by Hamilton that always seemed to me to illustrate the wonderful retentive power of the human mind. He tells of an ignorant servant girl who on her death-bed began repeating verse after verse of the scriptures in the original Hebrew and recited verbatim long passages of the Septuagint. Her attendants were unable to account for it, as the girl was entirely without education and had never had the slightest instructions in the languages. Finally it was ascertained that the young woman had formerly served in a family where there were a number of learned clergymen, who frequently repeated portions of the scriptures in the dead tongues, and she had unconsciously assimilated every word and involuntarily repeated the verses like a phonograph while in the cateleptic state. This peculiar condition of the human mind is unexplainable. In some similar way dreams take possession of our sleeping thoughts. We may all laugh, if we will, at these strange fantasies of the night, but the greatest scoffer of us all has in the secret recesses of his heart a certain respect—a certain awe for the mysteries of dreamland.

ONE DREAM OFTEN HAD.

"I have dreamed considerable in my life," continued Dr. Thomas. "There is one dream that I must have dreamed at least fifty times, and each time it seems so natural—so true—that even in my sleep I say, 'this is not a dream—this is real.' In my boyhood days in my old home in Virginia, on the Alleghany Mountains, the principal sports of the young lads of the neighborhood were hunting and fishing. As we all worked hard during the week it was seldom that we could obtain any time for these recreations except Saturday afternoons and Sundays. My mother was very religious and disliked to have us boys hunt on the Sabbath, and in deference to her wishes we refrained from so doing. But on one occasion, for some reason or other, I had remained home from church, and during the absence of the family one of my comrades called upon me. In a moment of thoughtlessness I consented to go hunting with him. On my return my mother was there. All she said was, 'My son, I am sorry you went hunting on the Sabbath.' That hurt me more than if she had severely reprimanded me, and I never forgot it. Time and again I have seen that scene reproduced in my dreams. I have seen my mother's face—I have heard her say, 'My son, I am sorry!' As I grew to manhood and entered the ministry I still dreamed that dream. In my sleep I would say, 'And you a minister and broke the Sabbath!' Then my mother's face would appear to me as plainly as in those old days in the mountains. There is a moral in this to me. It teaches me we should rule our children with love and gentleness. Gentleness in youth remains with us in age.

ARE DREAMS PROPHETIC?

"The dreams of my later years have been of a more wonderful nature," added Dr. Thomas thoughtfully. Then, after a moment's pause, he slowly resumed: "If we accept the biblical interpretations of dreams we must believe in the prophetic. The Old and the New Testament abound with the narratives of dreams and visions. I simply recount them as they came to me. One dream in particular has especially impressed me with its vividness. During the last days of my wife's illness I occupied a sleeping apartment that had a window opening into the court to the east. One night I dreamed that I saw her floating by in the air. Her face looked as it did in her girlhood. Her cheeks seemed red and rosy and her eyes were bright and sparkling. She passed by rapidly, and when I awoke I had the feeling that she was going from me very soon. This was only a short time before her death.

"The night before Mrs. Thomas died I dreamed that I was in a large field. A sheep fold was there, and I stood at the gate trying to gather in the sheep, but a great, wolfish dog was also there, and finally forced his way past me. I struggled with him and succeeded in putting him out, and then I felt happy that the sheep were free from harm. And they were such beautiful sheep. They seemed so pure and white. I felt so much satisfaction to know they were all in. In the morning the dream dwelt on my memory so I determined to tell it to my wife, but she was worse, and I deferred it. That afternoon she died.

WHAT ARE DREAMS?

There are theologians, philosophers, scientists, and even the careless, thoughtless plodder of the earth, and all have their dreams; but none have yet solved the mystery of that state of conscious existence when the body lies wrapped in slumber. The best idea and the most rational solution of the problem is upon the spiritual hypothesis. It is reasonable that if "there is an earthly body and there is a spiritual body," it is possible for the conscious spiritual body to temporarily become partially detached from the unconscious physical body and go roaming about in the sphere of conscious spirituality, the realm of thought, as it were, which is as real as the material realm. This is the theory of some of our ablest minds, and yet there is a very reasonable scientific analysis along the line of the solar plexis and the ganglionic system, which, unless entirely severed from the spiritual is never wholly unconscious of the external transpirings in the region of the form. But the real somnambulic trance is gaining favor with the present day scientists and theorists. It is practiced by some of our best mediums, who are able at will to throw themselves into this state, and when the conditions are perfect the results are also perfectly satisfactory. The experiences of these noted men are but the common nightly occurrences of the thousands who never pause to figure on the cause, or the value, and yet there is both cause and value, if understood.

P. O. KERR.

REV. DR. HEBER NEWTON

The Great Liberal Preacher

HE DECLARES A SERMON IN NEW YORK WHICH CLOSELY IMPINGES ON SPIRITUALISM.

"My subject is 'The Truths of Spiritualism,'" not 'The Truth of Spiritualism.' Were the latter title the proper designation of my topic I should be called upon for an elaborate discussion of the facts, actual or alleged, which are involved in Spiritualism. All this I wave aside. I am concerned here not with the facts, but the ideas of this movement.

"Whatever may be the truth of Spiritualism there are certain truths which are coming to the world through Spiritualism. The source of the knowledge may be valid or may be invalid—the knowledge itself seems to me valid. Many a knowledge that is substantial and real has been gained by man apparently through sources that are unreliable, or at least inadequate. The real sources of this knowledge may lie deeper, may not be uncovered. The knowledge that is real and true may seem to come from springs that are tainted, when in reality they arise far below this dubious source. We have to judge truth upon its own merits, not upon the merits of those who profess to bring it to men.

"It is a fact concerning Spiritualism that through it the conviction of the life to come is taking a new hold of man's mind and heart. Myriads of men are to-day rejoicing in a firm and positive conviction of the reality of the life to come who but for this movement would have been left in the doubt which overshadows vast masses of men to-day. This faith has become so vital that it renews the early Christian joy in the presence of death. Instead of impugning the sources of this renewed faith, let orthodoxy make more real to those who abide within its folds this ancient and fundamental and vital faith of men. It is not merely that men have become convinced that there is a life beyond the grave, but they have become convinced that that life is near to us in the flesh and that at proper times and under proper conditions it is possible that there should be intercommunication between the two spheres. A deep hunger of the human soul this, which finds manifestation in the most pathetic experiences our earth records.

"It is truth which is embodied in the records of the very beginning of our Christian religion—in those wonderful gracious and charming stories which embalm the memory of the sacred experiences of the disciples through which they came to believe their Master was alive and that He had manifested Himself to them. A truth this, which ought never to have passed out from the Christian consciousness, but which has strangely escaped it; so that we find ourselves to-day in this singular position, theoretically believing in the possibility of intercommunication between those who live in the flesh and those who live out of the flesh, and yet utterly skeptical toward every experience which is an expression of this belief.

"What has man to learn through this intercommunication, if it be genuine? Upon the surface of the question the whole belief seems to be invalidated by the utter unfitness, as most men think, of the communications that come through such sources. Yet this makes for the great truth which runs through spiritualistic thought—the continuity of character. You remember Mr. Huxley's sneer after attending a number of seances, that if the people in the next manifested in the communications thus received, he wished no further acquaintance with them. After listening to Shakespeare and Milton and Bacon discoursing from the other world, we wonder whether they have lapsed back into a state of idiocy. And yet there is even something profoundly suggestive. What is the character of nine-tenths of the people who pass out from earth? Up to the date of death have they not been empty-minded, shallow, unintelectual? What has their conversation been? What is the ordinary talk of the ordinary drawing-room? What sort of conversation do you hear in the street cars? Well, what is to be expected of these people when they pass over into another state of existence? Are they miraculously changed at once? Do they become geniuses, savants, and philosophers? Do they not continue to be just about such human beings as they were here? With the same vacuousness and emptiness, the same shallowness and superficiality? If by any chance such spirits get at the other end of the telephone connecting the two worlds they ought to give us just about such communications as we receive. What a solemn appeal there is in such a thought as this in human beings endowed with mind, to use this earthly life so that they may be worthy of another existence, so that they might not pass over into a higher state of existence and remain such unintelligent, irrational, unhuman beings as those who come, or seem to come, to us in many of these mysterious ways.

"As with the intellectual life of man, so with his moral character. He is the same man after death as before. The ordinary, orthodox conception of the hereafter is of a division between two worlds, the realm of the good and the realm of the bad. The whole conception is thoroughly artificial and unnatural. There is no such chasm between men here. Neither is there in the world beyond, so far as we can learn. The bad in men works itself out in the development of character. Through it men punish themselves.

"The ordinary thought of the ghost-haunting of popular tradition finds its philosophical explanation in the literature of this subject in the belief that it is those spirits who have not risen above the earth plane who still haunt the region of their old lives. Like gravitates to like there as here. If a man has not risen above the plane of materiality here, he will not be far above it when he passes into the life beyond. What a condition this suggests to those who, from mere curiosity, seek communication with the unseen spheres! They may, however, if there be any reality in this belief, find dark possibilities which will make very lurid the ancient tales of demoniac possession. One of the best-known women in this country writes over her own name of how certain spirits came to her from the other world and gave pitiful accounts of their remorse as they looked back to earth and realized now for the first time their grave responsibilities in the neglect to use aright the wealth intrusted to them upon earth. One of the elders of the Shaker settlement at Lebanon within a few months reported that the spirit of John Calvin came to him. You will recall that one great stain upon Calvin's character is his burning of Servetus, that brilliant heretic who ventured within the reach of the grim master of Geneva and paid the penalty of his daring at the stake. As the Shaker elder reports the spirit of Calvin told him that he had not as yet succeeded in finding heaven; that wherever he had turned seeking the blessed regions he was confronted with the direction to find out Servetus and obtain his forgiveness before he could enter. If this story is not true to fact, it is true to something deeper than fact.

"There is a body of thought that is coming to the world in this way, whatever we think of the way, that is distinctly a body of thought. The old theology no longer appears. You never hear anything of the fall of man, or the election or the non-election of individuals, of the vicarious atonement, of an endless hell, of the resurrection of the body, and of hosts of other doctrines which are inwoven in the traditional orthodoxy of Christianity. No spirit of whom I have ever heard, real or professed, has ever come back to the world teaching these doctrines. The theology of the other world is a Broad Church theology. It is making for freedom and reason. It is either subverting the old doctrines or reconstructing them. At times it seems violently anti-Christianity but when analyzed the anti-Christianity is merely anti-Calvinism or anti-ecclesiasticism, or anti-supernaturalism. The record of M. A. Oxon's communications through 'Rector' tells how an old-fashioned High Churchman was educated against his will into a Broad Churchman. Even if this be, after all, nothing more than the unconscious self at work in theology, it is still a mighty verification of our liberal movement. If the deeper sources of our mysterious personality are thus making for the new thought, we may be sure that that new thought is a true thought."

CONSUMPTION

TO THE EDITOR: I have an absolute Cure for CONSUMPTION and all Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles, and all conditions of Wasting Away. By its timely use thousands of apparently hopeless cases have been permanently cured. So proof-positive am I of its power to cure, I will send FREE to anyone afflicted, THREE BOTTLES of my Newly Discovered Remedies, upon receipt of Express and Postoffice address. Always sincerely yours,

T. A. SLOCUM, M.C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

When writing the Doctor, please mention this paper.

SPIRITUAL LIFE.

WHAT IS SPIRITUAL LIFE, AS DISTINGUISHED FROM MATERIAL LIFE.

Spiritual life would be a life pertaining to the spirit or soul of man. As far as we can understand, its home here is in the physical body. We are not supposed to know just what effect spiritual life, aside from life, does have upon the material form.

If we should declare there are two separate lives, the spiritual and the material, should we be able to produce arguments sufficient to prove our position? Is there more than one principle of life? To become conscious of life here, we must take on this form.

Life began here when this planet was called into existence. We know not at what period of time that was. With the first atom dropped from the planetary system, from which commenced the growth of this globe, we find life. It is what life, was before the birth of our world. We deduce but one life, but the expression of this life, in the different bodies, is what this question seems to call for. Then what effect does life have upon the material, outside of the spiritual realm?

The spiritual pertains to the soul and its affections, and to the intellect and the higher endowments of the mind. To see the difference, we have but to compare something purely material with something that would be as purely spiritual.

If we take the mineral and vegetable kingdoms for the material side, we shall see every kernel of grain, tiny flower or mineral, which we may examine, teeming with life, but if left entirely to the life principle, without special environments, there would be but little change or progress. We can see this in the grasses, or in the oaks of the forest, which have been grasses and trees for thousands of years, but with attention and care beautiful flowers and luscious fruits may be produced. But here a factor of the mind or soul has been brought into the work, and as we find mind more fully developed in man, we will take him as the other factor in our problem.

We find in man, as well as in all others of the animal kingdom, a life principle. Also in him there is what we may call a double, or two-fold nature. We find a physical or material form, also a cogitative thoughtful something, which we call mind, spirit, soul, intellect or knowledge. Now the material or physical form of man is similar, and in regard to life is almost like the forms of all others of the animal, mineral and vegetable kingdoms. It is brought into existence, lives, grows, and passes out to take up its next reincarnation, and with its material surroundings only it makes but little more improvement than forms in the mineral or vegetable kingdoms. But in conjunction with the spiritual, or this cogitative thought, it is susceptible of the greatest improvement.

We will ask, from whence cometh this intelligence, this power to think and act? What does it consist of? Is it something more than can be found in the animal, vegetable or mineral kingdoms?

That there is life in matter no intelligent person will deny, after studying the formation and crystalline growth of the sea-shells, or the calcareous development of the coral, or the fossilization of bones, wood, plants, metals, animals, and of the human body. Or let us examine the unfolding and progress of the tiny seed as it advances from step to step until it reaches its maturity of form.

In all of these we see life while they are growing and being developed. But when the point has arrived when no further unfoldment can be made, we shall soon see retrogression. We say the plant, flower, or animal, is dead. We mean that the body could not retain the life-principle longer, and it has gone to mingle with the great ocean of life. And who can say that when nature has claimed her part, thus endeth all that was once so beautiful to look upon?

This from the standpoint of our questioner is material life, or the life that is found in material. And who can conceive of a life different from this? If there is a spirit body, encased within our material form, we would ask from whence did it come, and of what is it composed?

The soul, or that part of man which seems to have an intellect, or power of thought, is so closely interwoven with the body which possesses it, that we are fully assured that it was brought into existence from the same germ that produced the physical body. They having grown together, the spirit being the stronger, has acted as guardian in many respects to the body.

We shall find this guardianship often displayed in the animal kingdom. The care which this attribute has over the material seems to show that it is the real man, while we are but the covering.

Of what is this spiritual body composed; and from what has it drawn its subsistence? We say it draws for subsistence from matter—that part which a refined and sublimated body could fraternize.

We cannot tell how the human system can draw the form-growing and sustaining properties from a kernel of wheat; yet there is in it that which will sustain physical life, and as the spiritual always makes satisfactory growth when the physical is well fed, may we not affirm that there is a property in all physical sustaining elements which goes to sustain the growth of the soul.

We can tell what parts of the kernel of wheat goes to build up the bone, muscle, and blood of a human form? We know the same food administered to the brute creation will produce bone and muscle. We know also that thought depends upon the material, and the physical must be fed with nourishment in order that it may become developed. We see thought depends upon this physical growth for development, and we are fully assured that it can and does draw from surrounding elements for that growth; also we find there is in these surroundings the nutrition required by thought for its development.

This we think is now plain to you all, even to these little boys and girls, that to live we must all partake of certain nutritious foods, and in these foods there are certain elements which go to build up and expand this cogitative thought which we call the soul.

Now in wheat all these properties exist, and we have shown that in man it not only builds up bone and muscle, but feeds thought. Also, in the brute creation it builds bone and muscle, and where does this other property go, when used by the brute, if it does not build up thought in them, as it does in man? Can any one answer this question?

We will make one more application and leave the question with you. As we have shown how closely the animal and human are interblended, we wish to show that the vegetable and the mineral are no less closely connected with the human.

If under favorable conditions, the acorn, the kernel of wheat, the crystallization of the mineral kingdom, the animals, and the human form, with the soul principle, can reproduce themselves, wherein is the difference in the life principle?

In the bone of the human form we find the fossilization of that in the shell and coral. In the teeth we find the crystallization of that in the coal and rock. They have all had life, and have growth by the same substance that these materials produced the material from which man has been constructed. And if this spirit man has come from the same germ, and been fanned into growth by the same substance that produced the material man, may not we believe there is a spiritual counterpart of everything that now exists? And could we not then answer this question by saying there is but one life. The expressions of life on the different forms of matter are similar. And as the same substances produce the spiritual in man, that produces the material, may we not declare that whatever will produce a material entity, will produce a spiritual counterpart?

In our deductions we say there is but one life principle—it being the same in the material as in the spiritual. If the spirit of man sprung from the same germ as the physical, and developed with it, holding a guardian's power over material, it must be a very integral part. If the physical life of man, and the life of the material, vegetable, and animal, are the same, why may not these possess psychologically the same as man?

Then the only difference would be a more intensified thought in man, than in the material, vegetable, and animal forms.

R. N. WILLCOX.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Commentaries on Hebrew and Christian Mythology." By Judge Parish B. Ladd, LL.B., of the San Francisco Bar. This book is of more than ordinary value, giving the results of much patient thought and research by a mind well qualified to sift evidence and arrange facts. In compact form it gives just what is needed on the subject. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of infomation on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains he lecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia......	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia......	.45
The Next World Interviewed.....	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia.......	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia.......	400
The Next World Interviewed......	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

HERESY,

...OR...

LED TO THE LIGHT.

A Thrilling, Psychological Story of Evangelization and Free Thought. It is to Protestantism what the "Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

The distinguished author, Hudson Tuttle, requires no introduction to the readers of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, but the following headings of chapters will show them what they may expect from the book:

CONTENTS:—An Idyl—Fordham—Building the Church—The Evangelist—Blood—The Saloon—The Lost Daughter—Law—The Harvest of Souls—Jane Grey—The Mother of Cain—Evolution—Stella—The Cell—Death—A Step Forward—The Home Circle—The Double Role—Heresy—Annette—The Bank Robbery—Liberty—All Is Well That Ends Well—The New Church—The New Way; Led to the Light.

Every chapter is devoted to one idea, and the whole presents so many tableaux moving onward to the climax. The fiendish career of the revivalist is contrasted with the character of the honest minister and the thinking agnostic. The steps by which a preacher emerges from the church, and the difficulties he meets are graphically presented. The new church and progressive lyceum evolved out of the old, form an interesting study to those seeking new methods.

It is a beautiful volume of 223 pages, and the price in accordance with our new departure, is 30 cents, postpaid, or five copies for $1.25. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

THE MEDIUMISTIC

Experiences of John Brown,

The Medium of the Rockies, with an introduction by

PROF. J. S. LOVELAND.

This book should be in the hands of every one interested in Spiritualism.

Chapter 1, Notoriety; Early Mediumship. Chapter 2, The Heavenly Mansion. Chapter 3, Removal to California; Return of His Guide. Chapter 4, Remarkable Tests. Chapter 5, His Work as a Healer. Chapter 6, Leaves the Body. Chapter 7, Visit to the Spirit Land. Chapter 8, Methods Used by Spirits to Communicate; How to Conduct a Circle. Chapter 9, Miscellaneous Articles. Chapter 10, A Strange Experience. Chapter 11, Remarkable Manifestation of Spirit Power. Chapter 12, New Experiences—Illustrative of Prophetic Visions. Chapter 13, The First Break in the Atlantic Cable Shown to John Brown. Chapter 14, Unseen Opposition. Chapter 14, Ola-podrida.

For sale at this office. Heavy paper cover, price 50 cents.

THE UNKNOWN LIFE

—OF—

Jesus Christ

—BY—

NICOLAS NOTOVITCH.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

Since the writing of the New Testament no book has appeared of as great importance to Christianity as the UNKNOWN LIFE OF JESUS CHRIST.

This volume, written by the discoverer of the manuscript, contains a thrilling account of the privations and perils encountered in his search for it, a literal translation of the original manuscript, and lastly a critical analysis of what it contains.

This work contains 185 neatly printed pages, and is published on the basis of combining cheapness and excellence. Price, neatly bound, one dollar. Paper cover, price 25 cents, postage 5 cents.

Address this office, 40 Loomis St., Chicago, Ill.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

A Fascinating Work.

The readers of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will remember the story under the above title, by Hudson Tuttle, which was published in its columns. At the time, constant inquiries were made as to its appearing in book form. This wish has now been gratified. It makes a volume of 243 pages, in style and form like the "Convent of the Sacred Heart," with a finely-engraved likeness of the author on the cover. The scenes of the story alternately shift from earth to the spirit spheres, and the philosophy of Spiritualism, the occupation and modes of life of spiritual beings, are presented in the pleasing form of narrative.

The following are the chapter-titles: Introduction; The House of the Sage; Home of the Miser; The Low Societies; Hades; Christmastide in the Spheres of Light; Christmastide and the Golden Gate; The Unhappy Marriage; Easter Day in Heaven; A Visit to the Earth; The Change Called Death; Coming to the Knowledge of the Light; The Society Again Visits Earth; The Forsaken and Despised; Discussion; A Visit to a Distant Globe; Reunion in the Spirit-world; Contentedness Not Goodness; Address of the Sage.

It is a book the Spiritualist will be delighted with; a book in which the investigator will find answers to ever-recurring questions; a book which will interest the church member, nor repel the most prejudiced. The price in paper is 50 cents; muslin $1; postpaid.

ENCYCLOPEDIA

...OF...

BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM

...OR...

A CONCORDANCE

To the principal passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism;

Together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible.

BY MOSES HULL.

Much that is in this book appeared in an abridged form in a series of nine full pages of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER. These articles were prepared at the call of hundreds of Spiritualists who felt the need of some kind of document for ready reference. They only seemed to whet the appetite for more; hence the publication of this work.

The author, Moses Hull, has written many volumes on Spiritualistic and other themes and each one is full of careful study on the subject chosen. Mr. Hull, in his introduction of this work says:

"Hoping that this book will serve to lead the people out of the wilderness of doubt and despair; and that when Spiritualism shall have wrested the Bible from its 'sanctified' enemies, it will not 'spike' it, but will use it to batter down the walls of Christian superstition and ignorance, I send it out on its errand of enlightenment with the humble prayer that it will prove a divine benediction to every reader."

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM contains 385 pages, beautifully printed on good paper, contains a full-page portrait of the author and is handsomely bound in cloth. Every Spiritualist should have this work.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE COMING

AMERICAN CIVIL WAR.

BY BURTON AMES HUNTINGTON.

This excellent book is written in the interest of humanity, of liberty, and of patriotism—a book written for the purpose of calling attention to the deadly dangers that beset us on every side, and more especially to the hostile attitude and the insidious wiles of an ever-present, though secret, unscrupulous foe—the Catholics. Washington's words of warning, Lincoln's apprehension and the prophecy of General Grant are all included in the volume. Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, in a recent sermon said: "The church tolerates heretics where she is obliged to do so, but she hates them with a deadly hatred, and uses all her power to annihilate them. Our enemies know how she treated heretics in the Middle Ages, and how she treats them today where she has the power. We no more think of denying these historic facts than we do of blaming the Holy Ghost and the princes of the church for what they have thought fit to do." Every one should read this work. Paper, 300 pages. It will be sent, postpaid, for fifty cents. For sale at this office.

The Molecular Hypothesis

OF NATURE.

BY PROF. W. M. LOCKWOOD.

The only treatise ever offered the reading and thinking public in the interest of modern Spiritualism, that is absolutely free from the theories of superstition, and which Demonstrates continuity of life and our environment of spiritual influences, from the data of modern physical and physiological science.

To the Spiritualist, an impregnable foundation of scientific data and verified facts.

To the materialist and skeptic, a revelation of the invisible energies operative in Nature's formula of evolution.

To the ecclesiastic, a new heaven and a new earth. A book to read, to study and think about. A condensed volume of scientific information for 25 cents. Address your orders to

The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis street,

COSMIAN HYMN BOOK.

A COLLECTION OF

Original and Selected Hymns

For Liberal and Ethical Societies, for Schools and the Home.

COMPILED BY L. K. WASHBURN.

This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. Sold at this office.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

Speaking of the spiritual meetings held by Judge Isaac S. Lee, at Little Rock, Ark., the Tribune of that city has this to say: "It is exceedingly doubtful if Little Rock has ever experienced such a revival of Spiritualism as has attended the Lee meetings and gone forth into every hill and dale of the community. In many sections of town, people unaccustomed to demonstrations of spirit power have been suddenly given assurances of gifts, and that without any expressed desire to be made partakers. The very air seems surcharged with spirit force. One gentleman the past week noticed that his lead pencil left his vest pocket by some unknown power and was drawn directly into his hand. A little later, to test the phenomena, he moved his hand about four inches above the tablecloth, and a caseknife followed the current of his hand. Later he left his chair, and that article followed him about the room. Some say this is "magnetism;" but it is not singular that so many instances of "magnetic" display should be evident at this time. A lady said the past week, "I can fly across there," and she glided over a ravine some eighteen feet wide. These are phenomena which are hard to comprehend. Dr Lee held his usual services at Dixie hall, 610 Main, last Sunday night, and the house afforded only standing room to the late arrivals. The exercises were varied and interesting, songs, of a beautiful religious character and prayers had their place, and the professor delivered a magical address to the audience. The collection of written questions was made, and each received answer as the spirit led, the doctor taking them out of the hats one at a time and addressing unknown inquirers as the matter demanded."

B. F. Underwood lectures at Geneseo, Ill., May 5, 6, and 7; at Peru, Ill., the 9. Last Sunday evening Mr. Underwood spoke at La Salle, this State. During April Mr. Underwood lectured in Boston, Cambridge, Providence, New York, Brooklyn, Geneva (N. Y.), Toledo and Alliance (Ohio) and Toronto, Canada. He has during this time addressed Freethought societies. Free Religious associations, Spiritualist societies, Unitarian societies, Psychical Research clubs, Philosophical societies and a Grand Army Post. (Mr. Underwood was an officer in the Union Army during the War of the Rebellion.) He writes: "Everywhere may be seen evidences of the progress of Liberal thought. The audiences were respectful, attentive, interested, often demonstrative in approval of the radical views presented, while the press has been invariably courteous and even generous in its reports and comments. How different was the reception given to me in many places twenty-five and thirty years ago, when, I was often abused by the preachers and the papers, assaulted by religious zealots, and by rowdies urged on by the zealots and even stoned through the windows and egged while I was speaking! Many times I was threatened with violence, and even surrounded by a howling mob; the clergy invoked the aid of the authorities (but never successfully) to prevent my speaking; and once, after a lecture, I was taken out of the community by a friend, unobserved, to save me from assault by an excited crowd; and later I was arrested, tried and fined for "blasphemy." Since those days theology has been steadily undergoing decay. Liberal thought has been diffusing itself everywhere; and the spirit of proscription and of persecution has been fast giving place to charity and to catholicity in matters of religion."

Mattie E. Hull writes from Findlay, Ohio, under date of the 24th ult.: "I joined Mr. Hull at this point last evening, where I found him in the midst of a genuine revival.' He commenced a series of meetings on the night of the 20th, the audiences increased from the first and last evening, the hall was crowded. I had the pleasure of addressing the friends, and it has never been my privilege to meet a more seemingly interested people. I go to Lima, O., this afternoon. I had been engaged to serve the Society of this place, but Mr. Hull and myself 'exchange pulpits' tomorrow, as it will be the only date I can give the Lima Spiritualists, and it is desirable that Mr. Hull should remain over Sunday and continue his Biblical arguments. The Opera House has been secured for the occasion. I shall remain in Lima until Saturday of next week, I then go to Grand Rapids, Mich., where I am to serve the Lincoln Hall Spiritualists, known as "The Band of Harmony, the Sundays of May. My address while in that city, will be No. 178 North Ionia street. I would say in connection with this, I have made no definite engagements for the Fall and Winter months. Would prefer New England as a field of labor, would however make arrangements to work in the Middle States if so desired. I shall be connected with the School at Mantua from June 1st to July 10th, from there I go with Mr. Hull to Winfield, Kansas, to attend a camp-meeting. We shall stop, en route to the Eastern camps, at the Mt. Pleasant Park (Clinton, Ia.), camp-meeting. Mr. Hull goes from there to Michigan, and I shall go directly to Temple Heights, Me., and remain at least five days, (from 11th to 20th of Aug. inclusive). Am not prepared to state just what my movements will be from that time to the end of the camp season. I have a few open dates toward the close of the season. Permanent address, Stoneham, Mass., Lock Box, 3."

Will C. Hodge, now at Rockford, Ill., is open for engagements with societies, for grove meetings and the camping season of 1897. Will make very reasonable terms with any parties desiring his services. Is engaged for the whole of September at the camp-meeting, Topeka, Kan. Address, 40 Loomis St., Chicago, Ill.

The People's Home Spiritualists Society's meetings at Bricklayer's Hall have of late been unusually interesting. On Sunday evening a rare treat was had in the way of an address by Dr. J. H. Randall—subject: Ancient and Modern Spiritualism Compared. It was handled in an able and scholarly manner. Brother Jenifer, the president of this Society, is always on the alert for good speakers. Dr. H. M. French, test medium, demonstrated spirit communion, and Mrs. Peters gave tests.

Mrs. M. E. Van Luven writes from Oakland, Cal.: "The Pacific Coast Camp-meeting of Spiritualists, to be held at Trestle Glen, Oakland, beginning the first Sunday in June and continuing throughout the month, is fully organized. Since it is centrally located, being convenient to San Francisco, Sacramento, Stockton and all Northern California, we expect it to be a grand success. We are going to camp on the ground and remain until the camp breaks up."

Mrs. S. C. Scovell writes from Peoria, Ill.: "Our hall meetings are growing, and while there are dissensions among the Spiritualists here, as elsewhere, we are gradually getting the friends together, and hope one meeting will suffice for all in time. Our meeting last night was very flattering in its success, both as to members and the guides' work from the platform, the test being the one which I give in visiting distant places, and describing the place, giving incidents and messages in connection with my visit there. I gave seven and every one was declared correct in every detail."

B. F. Underwood in a letter to the Investigator, says: "I wish that Abner Kneeland, the founder of the Investigator, who suffered imprisonment in the city of Boston for the expression of his honest convictions, could have lived to witness the Parliament of Religions, that great international exhibition of religious diversity and of religious tolerance, which was held in Chicago in connection with the World's Fair in 1893. In this country, at the present time, are several learned representatives of "heathenism," who are teaching the principles of their religion and their philosophy to classes, made up of fashionable people, and giving lectures to large audiences under the auspices of various clubs and associations. One of these gentlemen, H. Dharmapala, of the Maha Bodhi Society, India, lectured the other day in Boston before the New England Women's Club, on 'The Ethics of Buddha.' The lecturer presented Buddha as the greatest of all teachers, and defended the doctrine of salvation through reincarnation rather than through the faith in Christ; and the lecture was well received. None of the ladies present seemed to be shocked in the least."

Geo. H. Worth writes from Horton, Mich.: "It is with pleasure that I write you concerning the work of Mrs. Franc V. Jackson, of Grand Rapids, while she was in our midst. No words of mine can tell how much this small but enthusiastic society owes to her and that beautiful speaker Mrs. Emily P. Peebe. It is to them, in fact, that we owe our existence as a society. When Mrs. Jackson first came to our town people came to see her merely out of curiosity. But the logical ideas she advanced, coupled with the correctness of the tests she gave, stirred the people to action and paved the way to organization. Mrs. Jackson was with us three weeks last Fall, and she made such an impression on the people that it was decided to have her a second time. She has been with us now three weeks and none can say enough in her praise. Her success here has been most decided. And to any society in need of a first-class test medium I most cordially recommend her."

P. C. Mills writes that he spoke in Seattle, Wash., to a very harmonious and earnest audience, at the Anniversary on March 28th, at Masonic Temple. They held three sessions, and lunched in the hall; a very enjoyable time was experienced by all. He also spoke for the First Society at Reato Hall on the first Sunday in April: and for the Spiritual League at Masonic Temple Sunday, April 18th.

Dr. Noyes writes from Evansville, Ind.: "Mrs. Noyes and I lectured and gave tests for the Evansville Spiritual Society at their Temple 10:30 a. m. to a large audience. The society owns its Temple, which has a seating capacity of 300. It is chartered under the N. S. A. At 7:30 p. m. we lectured and gave proof of spirit return from the rostrum of the People's Church. Mrs. J. W. Kratz, their pastor, gave us the entire evening. We will work May 2nd and 9th for the People's Church, while Mrs. Kratz fills an engagement of two weeks for the Louisville, (Ky.) Spiritual Society. Mrs. Kratz is a fine trance and inspirational lecturer, also test medium and psychometrist. She has been pastor for the People's Church and other spiritual societies here for three years, and is beloved by all Spiritualists here, for the good work done for the cause. She would like engagements with societies in Illinois and Michigan. Address Mrs. J. W. Kratz, 224 Cherry St., Evansville, Ind."

Mrs. Edith E. R. Nickless has just closed a successful engagement with the Spiritual Society at Anderson, Ind. She goes from there to Boston, Mass.

The New York Journal states that Rome repudiates Weyler's depreciated paper currency by refusing through the Bishop of Havana and the parish priests to accept the new "shinplasters" in payment for baptismal and marriage ceremonies or burial permits, and also when offered by the government in payment of their salaries. Even masses must now be paid for in gold, the Church apparently having, like the Cubans, lost all confidence in Spanish promises even when printed over the signatures of the president and two directors of such a well-known institution as the Banco Espanol de la Isle de Cuba.

C. F. Ray writes from Milwaukee, Wis.: "Last Sunday evening closed a successful engagment of two months, with Mrs. Julia Steelman-Mitchell, of Bellevue Kentucky, with the Unity Spiritual Society. The lectures have been of a deep spiritual character, and the tests that followed each lecture were good. This part of the work consisted in giving spirit messages from sealed photographs. Mrs. Mitchell delivered her lectures in a pleasing manner to large audiences. As the members of our society desired to express in some way their appreciation of Mrs. Mitchell's services, a rising vote of thanks was given her, with our hearty good will and sympathy. We hope to have Mrs. Mitchell with us again in the future. This society is to receive a visit from the Hon. L. V. Moulton, who will deliver a course of scientific lectures on Spiritualism, from our rostrum during the Sundays of May. We have just received our charter from the N. S. A., and we are glad to be numbered with the societies that are doing their part to sustain such a worthy organization.

Chas. Carter writes from Lancaster, O., that now is a good time for an organizer to come and organize a society there. He asks, "Why could not some one come down from Columbus before or after the Convention?" which is to meet there May 4th, 5th and 6th inst.

Says B. F. Underwood: "In one of the several conversations which I have recently had with Dharmapala and Saradananda I inquired of these finely educated and fair-minded gentlemen what they thought of the influence of Christian missionary labors in India. They replied in substance that more

(Continued on page 8.)

Items Suggested by, or Gleaned From, Spiritualist Exchanges.

True inspiration comes when the medium and the exalted spirits meet midway along the mountains of progress extending from the earth-sphere to the sphere of wisdom; these for a time, in harmonious rapport they blend, soul with soul, and thought with thought, until the two worlds become one.

A truth that cannot bear investigation is no truth at all.

There is nothing supernatural or unnatural about spirit power. It is only considered so by the unthinking.

This is the age of new ideas, and everywhere people are thinking on the subject of the mind and seeking the unknown law that governs it.

In proportion as we are capable of recognizing the gems will we be able to perceive the hidden treasure.

Prejudice too often hinders one from seeing the truth as it is.

The erroneous teachings of the past regarding the purpose of life have made the mind of man so narrow in its conceptions that the effect is difficult to overcome.

We are all liable to become sidetracked into a narrow rut by the continued advocacy of some pet theory, and by thus making it a "hobby" we are generally known as a "crank."

It requires great discriminating power, with the scholastic as well as the untutored mind, to be perfectly free of all bias.

Modern Spiritualism is the dawn of the restoration of ancient Christianity, which was religious Spiritualism in perfection, but which was suppressed by the power of Rome.

The world must bow to authentic history as it bows to establish science.

When it is understood that spirit-life, love and wisdom are to work among men, and are eminently practical in reforming their lives in the shop and home, then it will be understood what the test of a Spiritualist is.

The accumulation of the ages bows itself upon the stage of human activity, as man.

The light is dim, and man sees little of that which reason, warmed by those soul-glimpses, tell him exist.

Knowledge is the key that unlocks the door of the universe.

The psychic, having peered somewhat into the mystic mirror of the soul, sees there reflected, thoughts that have formed, emotions that still wave their beckoning hands, and activities that, though lost to earthly view, still whirl upon life's wheel.

Every atom has a history and each history is indelibly written on the mystic scroll of record wrought out of the desires, imaginations, emotions and actions of the progressive Ego.

Impressions and appearances which were once attributed to supernatural interposition, are now being explained as products of natural law.

The world has been for ages blindly groping for the keys of the heavenly harmonies.

Special gifts of divination are now more reasonably being classed as particular developments.

No one can so much as lay a hand upon a book, or a leaf, a letter or a table on which it is written, without leaving there something of himself.

No conquest is gained without effort, for it is in the effort the individual gains the needed strength for the final victory.

The one great difficulty is to understand the relativity of truth.

Dogmas and doctrines will vanish, churches will crumble in the dust, old creeds, and sanctions living inside old creeds, will vanish into the air, and then we shall begin to approach our freedom and true religion.

Spiritualism heralds forth liberty, love, hope and peace.

Knowledge is the throne on which is salvation, the true savior of the world.

Education must include the whole man, and you will obtain the golden key that will unlock the door of progress.

If you do not think purely you cannot act purely.

Knowledge is of little account unless love inspires it.

Spiritualism means more than a revelation of the life to come—it means a revelation of the life that now is.

We should look within and not without for signs and wonders.

The future will not be satisfied with the demands of Spiritualism of to-day, but will make larger demands of us.

The banner of our Spiritualism should never be allowed to trail in the dust.

MRS CLARA WATSON IS GOING TO ENGLAND.

This gifted lady should be heard across the "pond." Her work for the past twenty years has endeared her to many thousands among progressive thinkers, and has startled and convicted, if not converted, thousands who never see a spiritual paper or hear a spiritual lecture.

She is popular at home, and with the secular press; and her writings have reached many in the church, and out, and fertilized, with her genius and inspirations, large territories of desert waste, and aroused the dormant reason of skeptics and religious slaves, and opened their visions to the glories of the Spiritual Gospel.

Her life is a noble example of royal womanhood, and fidelity to her convictions which compel the respect of her most prejudiced opponents. She is the most popular speaker at funerals in Western New York, and her lectures before spiritual societies, conventions, and camp-meetings are admired by all classes. Radical in her devotion to Spiritualism, pure and simple, uncompromising in her utterances and writings, she wins the admiration and good will of Spiritualists, skeptics and Christians as well. Sincerity attracts and inspires confidence, and in this she leaves no one in doubt.

Broad, tolerant, and vigorously truthful, she appeals to the better nature of her hearers, wins the heart, while she educates the head, and inspires sweet emotion, and honest enthusiasm.

Her husband is a native of England, and she goes with him to visit his native land, and the Good Queen's Dominions should profit by her gifts, and the progressive of all schools should share her acquaintance, and utilize her talent while she is with them. Her life is domestic, and her disposition modest and retiring; but the wise ones unseen have pushed her to the front, and her life and works are a noble example of the value of Spiritualism, and a credit to the cause, to womanhood, and the human race.

May prosperity follow her and her companion (who is a helpmeet to her in her public as well as private life and works) and after she has left the light and bloom of her inspiration, and pure sweet life, for a perpetual benediction in the Island Kingdom may the winds of good fortune waft her back to the Great Republic to continue her royal labors for humanity and bless her many friends, who will look and wait anxiously for her return.

LYMAN C. HOWE.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

PSYCHOMETRY

demonstrated long ago that nothing could be hidden, and that all things should come to light, and Spiritualism has rendered it more certain and practicable.

OUR ANCESTORS HAVE HAD a much longer experience of life than ourselves, and have long inhabited that higher world, in which truth is far more accessible than on the earth. They have stores of knowledge upon which we can draw if we are in sympathy with the light and the love of their exalted spheres; and there are many questions of the highest importance to mankind, which demand an answer from Psychic Science. The greatest question of all, is, whether any of the world religions are true, and what are their comparative merits?

THE RELIGIONS.

All anciently established religions come down to us from an age far less enlightened than our own—in fact from ages of ignorance and blind, superstitious credulity. That any religion worthy of the attention and reverence of the 19th century could come from any such sources would seem, a priori, to be impossible. The ancient barbarians who believed, all the world over, that the entire Universe popped into existence in six days, were too ignorant to require any serious attention to their superstitions, nor does the incorporation of their puerile fancies into the Christian Bible render them any more worthy of our respect.

JESUS CHRIST

and his apostles, were men of exalted character, devoted to the truth, and incapable of fraud; and it was self-evident that they could not be the responsible authors of much that appears in the New Testament, which is neither rational, probable, nor compatible with enlightened ethics.

UNAUTHENTIC BIBLE.

A study of religious history demonstrated the unquestionable fact that the book which has been accepted by the world as a reliable Bible, has not a particle of authenticity, having been originated in an obscure and secret manner, by unknown compilers, fully a hundred years after the death of the Apostles and the primitive Christians, as was well known in the early centuries.

OPINIONS.

The opinions current in any century may well be characterized in the pungent language of Douglas Jerrold as, "the average stupidity of mankind." The opinions of mankind are not formed by reason; they come like their institutions, by inheritance, and whenever a country has been conquered, the religion of the conqueror is enforced and transmitted to future centuries.

ACQUIESCENCE.

The stagnant acquiescence with which old opinions are received and transmitted, can be overcome by intellectual energy only when the intellect is free to do its work, which has not been the case for the last nineteen centuries. The civilized world has acquiesced in the Roman Bible and the ecclesiasticism based upon it, because the civilized world is profoundly ignorant of the history of Christianity in Jerusalem—of the lives of Christ and His apostles—and of the origin in the first and second century, of the Church established by Roman priests.

THE PAGAN POWER.

After the destruction of Christianity and the murder of its apostles in the first century, the Pagan power which had been organizing at Rome to absorb and control the infant Christian Church, continued its work unobstructed, suppressing every remnant of primitive Christianity to establish a Church in the name of Christianity upon a Pagan basis.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

IT IS RECORDED

of Anaxagoras, the Grecian philosopher, that "The mysteries of the universe tempted him." He yielded himself to the fascination, and declared that the aim and purpose of his life was to contemplate the heavens. All care for his affairs was given up, his estates ran to waste while he was solving problems, but the day he found himself a beggar, he exclaimed: "To philosophy I owe my worldly ruin and my soul's prosperity."

ANAXAGORAS LIVED 500

years before Christ, who asked the question, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the world and lose his soul?" And again, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter the kingdom of heaven."

LET OUR DESIRES

be ever so great to live in a realm of pure thought, and to render the best service to our fellows by virtue of the power that knowledge and experience bring to us, we are still sensuous beings, subject to sense gratification, upon which our very existence in this world depends.

NATURE PROVIDES DAY BY DAY

all that Nature's children require, hence the saying, "Take no thought for the morrow." Yet, in spite of all these, we have Lazarus and Dives with us to-day, representing the beggary of philosophy and the folly of sense, or the riches of the soul and the poverty of sense. Belshazzar's feast proceeds, with all its voluptuousness; the king and the guests revel in the gratification of every carnal desire. The hand-writing has appeared upon the wall, and hath been interpreted, "God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it." "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting." "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians." Verily, "Riches take to themselves wings and fly away!"

WITH ALL THE PRECEPTS.

Yet, with all the precepts recorded in the collected wisdom of the ages and passed from the lips of father to son, selfishness, greed, rapacity, carnality go on a pace; frivolity, lewdness, licentiousness, all hold sway in a world of sense, in which men work for riches with which to gratify their sensuous desires. Fraud, duplicity, falsehood, dishonesty, craft, and cunning have come to be recognized as permissible among the business men of the world, and the man who scruples to adopt any of these methods is looked upon as a visionary—an impractical man, compared with whom, the disciples of Anaxagoras are fools.

IF A MAN FOLLOW THE THINGS of sense, after the foregoing fashion, he does it to his soul's ruin; if he go in the way of his soul's prosperity, it means, in many cases, bodily starvation and want to himself and family, because there is scarcely a sphere of existence in which the chances of living do not depend upon the soul's barter.

SPIRITUAL DEVELOPMENT.

In the midst of such conditions, as these, what hope is there of spiritual development? How shall the uplifting of the human family be accomplished? The fairest of the fair sex to increase the wealth of her rich employer must labor for a miserable wage, out of which decent living is impossible. Tens of thousands of young women work under these conditions, for the main reason that Nature has cursed them with the ban of woman to be still further cursed by a devilish arrangement of man, that she must adopt the calling of a syren to supplement her inadequate opportunity to earn a respectable livelihood. Were the subject less repulsive, to eyes and ears refined, such a true picture might be painted as would make the Queen ashamed to rule over her so-called prosperous people.

From The Freethinker, London, England.

RADICAL NEWSPAPERS

insist on giving a religious character to the Eastern Question. When the Admirals shell the Cretan insurgents, these papers call it "Firing on the Christians." Yes, that's the crime. Fire on Mohammedans as much as you please; that is first-rate sport; but firing on Christians is the sin against the Holy Ghost.

THE KAFFIRS.

The Boer thinks the Kaffirs do not possess souls. He considers them the descendants of Cain, and makes use of them accordingly. It is a very convenient theory—for the Boers, but devilish rough on the Kaffirs.

THE HEATHEN.

The Freeman says: "It has been estimated that 750,000,000 of the family of man are heathen, while Protestants number only 30,000,000." And then, "a large number of the nominally Christian are really ungodly or godless." This is rather a poor show for a faith with divinity at its back for near nine hundred years.

BURNT HIM.

Canon Wilberforce referred to Bruno as a Pantheist, and said that the Church of Rome, to its everlasting shame, burnt him, believing that he was an Atheist. One would think that no such everlasting shame attached to Protestant churches, whereas they burnt heretics and unbelievers just as readily as their great rival. Calvin's treatment of Servetus, for instance, was even worse than the Catholic church's treatment of Bruno.

ASTRAL ATMOSPHERE.

Mrs. Besant has been interviewed on the subject of "human auras." She says that people are all surrounded by a sort of astral atmosphere, colored according to their characters. Can any eyes save those of an adept detect the aura?" asked the interviewer. "No, no," said Mrs. Besant; but the adepts detect them readily." Why, certainly. That is how the mystery business is always managed. Some people see things with the eye of faith, and get other people to take the information on trust.

GLADSTONE'S AURA.

Mrs. Besant told the interviewer that the aura of Gladstone, W. T. Stead, and Emperor William would be "very green." We fancy that the aura of those who believe this nonsense must be very, very green.

THE MARQUIS OF DUFFERIN, who has had a most extended experience as a diplomatist, says that, "in spite of Christianity and civilization—in spite of humanitarian philosophies, the triumphs of scientific knowledge—in spite of the lessons of history, and the bitter experiences of the more recent past—force, and not right, is still the dominant factor in human affairs, and that no nation's independence or possessions are safe for a moment unless she can guard them with her own right hand." The statesman's experience overthrows the pretensions of the preachers.

TRANSMITTED SOUL.

"You have heard, have you not," said Mrs. Besant to a New York interviewer, "that the soul of Madame Blavatsky has been transmitted to a young Brahmin? That is quite true. She told me before she died that her soul would reappear in India, and it has come true. This Brahmin is only nineteen years old, so his occult powers will not be shown for several years to come; but that he possesses these powers is indisputable."

WHERE THESE THEOSOPHISTS

are not free to draw upon their imagination backwards, they are confined to the same sources of information as other people. Mrs. Besant received no "occult" intimation of Madame Blavatsky's death. She had to wait until the news was conveyed to her through the ordinary channels of intelligence.

From Light, London, Eng.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

An American Journal prints a letter written by Harriet Beecher Stowe shortly before her mental failure. Its chief value is in the suggestion that her withdrawal of mental power was a withdrawal into a flood of light behind the veil. Onlookers, in many such cases, see the painful and pathetic side; but, as in death, the socalled "sufferer" is often drifting into light and peace; and, truly, if this is only illusion it is a very merciful and blessed illusion and a good thing for us to know. Here is the letter: "I am come to that stage of my pilgrimage that is within sight of the River of Death, and I feel that now I must have all in readiness day and night for the messenger of the King. I have sometimes had in my sleep strange perceptions of a vivid spiritual life near to and with Christ, and multitudes of holy ones; and the joy of it is like no other joy—it cannot be told in the language of the world. What I have then I know with absolute certainty, yet it is so unlike and above anything we conceive of in this world that it is difficult to put it into words. The inconceivable loveliness of Christ! It seems that about Him there is a sphere where enthusiasm of love is the calm habit of the soul, that without words, without the necessity of demonstrations of affection, heart beats to heart, soul answers soul, we respond to the Infinite Love, and we feel His answer in us, and there is no need of words."

Miss Fields assures us that Mrs. Stowe was definitely a believer in the facts and philosophy of Spiritualism. She says: "It was during one of Mrs. Stowe's visits to Boston in the ensuing year that she chanced to talk with greater fulness and openness than she had done with us before on the subject of Spiritualism. In the simplest way she affirmed her entire belief in manifestations of the nearness and individual life of the unseen, and gave vivid illustrations of the reasons why her faith was thus assured. She never sought after such testimony, so far as I am aware, unless it may have been to sit with others who were interested, but her conclusions were definite and unvarying. At that period such a declaration of faith required a good deal of bravery; now the subject has assumed a different phase, and there are few thinking people who do not recognize a certain truth hidden within the shadows. She spoke with tender seriousness of "spiritual manifestations" as recorded in the New Testament and in the prophets. From his early youth her husband had possessed the peculiar power of seeing persons about him who could not be perceived by others; visions so distinct that it was impossible for him to distinguish at times between the real and the unreal." But she herself was a medium. Miss Fields retells the old story of the sea captain who spoke to her of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to whom she said, "I did not write it." "You didn't," cried the captain, "then who did?" "God," she replied, "I merely did it at His dictation."

MR. HOPKINS'S THEORY

is that the earth is being dissolved at the North Pole and re-formed at the South Pole, and that any particular point—say London—is moving north in a spiral path at the rate of one degree in about one hundred and eighty years—which means about thirty-eight and one-third miles per century. Mr. Hopkins says: "Supposing the movement of the earth's surface from the south to the north to be constant, if follows that, at the above rate of progression, the spot on which London now stands must have been at the Equator about 9,180 years ago; and that the whole of England will be within the Arctic Circle in about 2,800 years hence."

IF THIS THEORY BE TRUE,

it must be taken into account in dealing with historical problems, and especially those of the remote past. Take, for example, Egyptian history. The commencement of the first dynasty is placed, by M. Mariette, 5004 B. C., i.e., about 6,900 years ago. Cairo is about 30deg. north of the Equator, hence we get 180 multiplied by 30, making 5,400, so that 5,400 years ago Cairo would be at the Equator, and 6,900 years ago would be about one hundred and eighty miles south of the Equator, where we may suppose the first dynasty took its rise. It is not difficult to see the importance of such an inquiry, for if Mr. Hopkins's theory is true it becomes a serious task to reason back to such a remote date and to conditions which must remain unkown or purely conjectural.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

Never give a person what is valuable to you, unless they desire and value it, or you may find what was a pearl to you given to swine.

It is surprising how strong men will devour the trash prepared for the daily press, wearing out their intellectual gear for no possible return.

The minister who is being driven to church on Sunday by his coachman thinks the man who is digging worms terribly wicked.

When liberty is mentioned, the bigot construes it into license, and would punish that which he thinks is in others, but which is only within himself.

The bigot has sought and accepted his own form of slavery, and even volunteered to rivet his own chains.

Emotion is a cone-shaped glass in which nothing can be reflected truthfully.

Those who are seeking health should not dwell on sadness and sickness; should not re-enact mentally sad experiences of their own or of others.

Whatever is on the mind will affect the mind, and eventually the body, whether it be of health or sickness, mirth or sorrow.

No matter what the "greatest of men" may say, it is but an opinion without Truth and will pass away, while the word of God uttered through man's organs will live forever.

SPIRIT.

THERE IS SPIRIT IN ALL THINGS.

Spirit, universal spirit, sleeps in rock, sleeps in all matter; dreams in the animal; wakes in man; and lives the real actual life in the realms of soul life.

Oblivion, where are thy charms that the materialist boasts so loudly of?

Who would think for a moment, of a joy outside of soul-life?

Joy and love, and hope and peace, and sublime bliss belong not to the realm of utter nothingness.

A life of sensations and consciousness is the only life that gives us a hope, a joy or a scintillation of pleasure in the regions of the great beyond.

From spirit we came and to spirit we must surely return.

There is not a rock, nor a tree, nor a particle of this round earth but what at sometime will be or has been touched by the life-giving principle of spirit.

Spirit is the cause—the fountainhead; and material is the result.

So who can deny the existence of the great eternal spirit that rules all things?

Man in his littleness may say that there is no God.

Yet man's very existence in earth-life proves to man that far beyond his finite conception there stands the great Creator.

We preach to the world the reality of a spirit-life, of a soul-life, a real life, where man's soul shall dwell, and in a higher life, on a higher plane than this; and tell him that if he had one joy on earth he shall have a thousand over there.

And that by his own efforts shall he rise, and by his own apathy shall he fall.

Would he soar to the regions of eternal bliss—then by his own intense desire and by well-doing shall he rise, and the glories of a new life shall be opened unto him.

"Ask, and ye shall receive;" but ask in spirit and in truth.

Faith without works availeth nothing. But work with a trusting hope and you shall attain the kingdom of eternal peace that will be to you a joy forever.

Spirit-life hath its duties as well as earth-life—yet the duties of spirit-life will be made joyful by the hope of joys beyond.

Man needs but little here below, nor needs that little long. But over in the kingdom he needs an eternity to develop in. And that eternal life is the rich inheritance of every soul that is born of woman into the dreamland of earth-existence.

Tell Brother Francis that his work is not done with yet, for he shall tell to hungering thousands of the life that is just beyond this one—so near, and yet so far; only a thin veil between us, and growing thinner every hour. For the loved ones are whispering to him this very hour, even now.

And joy shall be on earth when the millions of earth-children can hear from the land of love at any moment, and walk side by side with the immortal souls that dwell in homes of glory.

Peace be with you all, is the wish of the controlling spirit of Buffalo, N. Y. J. W. DENNIS.

LIFE WORK —OF— CORA L. V. RICHMOND.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY HARRISON D. BARRETT.

With portraits representing Mrs. Richmond in 1857, in 1876, and in 1894.

OUTLINE OF CONTENTS:

INTRODUCTION.

CHAPTER I. Parentage—Place of Birth—Childhood—School Experiences—First Mediumistic Work, etc.

CHAPTER II. Hopedale—Mr. Scott in Massachusetts—Removal to Wisconsin—The Ballou Family—Adin Ballou's Work—Work of Spirit Adin Augustus Ballou.

CHAPTER III. Ouina—Her Earthly Life and Tragic Death—Her Mission in Spirit-Life.

CHAPTER IV. Other Controls—The Guides.

CHAPTER V. Work in Cuba, N. Y.—Buffalo Pastorate—Workers in Buffalo—Thomas Gales Forster—Sarah Brooks—Horace H. Day—Removal to New York City, 1856—Philadelphia—Boston—Baltimore.

CHAPTER VI. Work in New York City.

CHAPTER VII. New York City (continued). Prof. J. J. Mapes—Hon. J. W. Edmonds—Dr. Gray—New York Editors and Clergy—Other Places in the East—Meadville, Pa., 1864—Hon. A. B. Richmond.

CHAPTER VIII. Washington, D. C.—Reconstruction—Senator J. M. Howard—George J. W. Julien—Gen. N. P. Banks—Nettie Colburn Maynard—Statement of Geo. A. Bacon.

CHAPTER IX. England—Robert Dale Owen—George Thompson—Countess of Caithness—Mrs. Strawbridge—Mr. and Mrs. Tebb—Mrs. Nosworthy—J. C. Ward—Mrs. Slater—Andrew Cross.

CHAPTER X. Work in England (Continued in Three Subsequent Visits.)

CHAPTER XI. California Work, 1875—Other Visits—Letter of C. M. Plumb—Letter of Mrs. John A. Wilson.

CHAPTER XII. Chicago Work, 1876 to 1895—First Society Chartered, 1869—Complete Account of Work in Letters and Statements of Members of the Society.

CHAPTER XIII. Camp Meeting Work—Cassadaga—Lake Pleasant—Onset Bay—Lake Brady—Lookout Mountain, etc.

CHAPTER XIV. Literary Work—Hesperia—Volumes of Discourses and Lectures—Psychopathy; Soul Teachings—Poems—Other Literary Work.

CHAPTER XV. Literary Work (continued)—Lecture on Gyroscope, 1858—"The Shadow of a Great Rock in a Weary Land," 1887—Poems—Choice Selections in Prose and Verse—Work of William Richmond.

CHAPTER XVI. Letters from Personal Friends; from Orpha E. Tousey; from Lady Caithness, and others—Appreciation of the Work from Those Best Qualified to Judge—Frederick F. Cook—Wendell C. Warner—Drs. Emmett and Helen Dinsmore.

CHAPTER XVII. Mrs Richmond's Experiences While in the Trance State, Written by Herself.

Price $2, Postpaid. For Sale at this office.

Soul of Things; or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries.

BY WM. AND ELIZABETH M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text-book, it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this newly-discovered power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make Geology as plain as day, and throw light on all the grand subjects now obscured by time.

Soul of Things—Vol. I. Cloth .... $1.50 Postage 10 cents.

Soul of Things—Vol II. Illustrated. 450 pp. Cloth .... $1.50 Postage 10 cents.

Soul of Things—Vol. III. Illustrated. 362 pp. Cloth .... $1.50 Postage 10 cents.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA, According to Old Records.

BY DR. PAUL CARUS.

A translation from Japanese, made under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was lately published in Japan. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE

PART I. THE PENTATEUCH.

Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy, by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lillie Devereux Blake, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara Bewick Colby, Ellen Battelle Dietrick, Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Ursula N. Gestefeld, and Frances E. Burr.

"In every soul there is bound up some truth and some error, and each gives to the world of thought what no other one possesses."—Cousin.

The bright and scholarly comments of this galaxy of bright minds are of deep interest, and throw a strong and new light on the Bible teachings relating to woman. All should read it.

Price 50c. For sale at this Office.

THE DIAKKA.

THE DIAKKA AND THEIR EARTHLY Victims, by the Seer, A. J. Davis, is a very interesting and suggestive work. It is an explanation of much that is false and repulsive in Spiritualism, embodying a most important recent interview with James Victor Wilson, a resident of the Summer-Land. Price 20 cents. For sale at this office.

Origin, Development and Destiny of Man.

A Scientific and Philosophical Treatise, by Thos. P. Fletcher.

CONTENTS: The Beginnings; Fundamental Principles; Formation of Constellations, Systems, Suns Planets and Satellites. The Origin of Meteors and Comets; The Organic Kingdom; The Origin of Man; Man—His Attributes and Powers; The Soul—How It Receives and Imparts Knowledge; How the Soul Receives its Highest Impressions; The Record Book, or The Heavenly Ether; How to Cultivate the Sixth Sense; The Finer or Spiritual Body; Growth and Degeneration; Morally, Spiritualism Proved by the Bible; The Bible and Christ; The Summary: "What Must We Do to Be Saved." For sale at this office.

Price, Cloth, $1.25. Paper, 50c.

AN EXCELLENT WORK.

DEATH AND THE AFTER-LIFE. The "Stellar Key" is the philosophical introduction to the revelations contained in this book. Some idea of this little volume may be gained from the following table of contents: 1—Death and the After-Life; 2—Scenes in the Summer-Land; 3—Society in the Summer-Land; 4—Social Centres in the Summer-Land; 5—Winter-Land and Summer-Land; 6—Language and Life in Summer-Land; 7—Material Work for Spiritual Workers; 8—Ultimates in the Summer-Land; 9—Voice from James Victor Wilson. This enlarged edition contains more than double the amount of matter in former editions, and is enriched by a beautiful frontispiece, illustrating the "formation of the Spiritual Body." Cloth 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

THE HISTORICAL JESUS

And Mythical Christ. By Gerald Massey. 130 pages, 12mo. Price 50 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

E. V. WILSON'S BOOK.

The Truths of Spiritualism

E. V. Wilson was one of the pioneers of Spiritualism, and was noted as a speaker and test medium. He did a grand work for the cause, and this book narrates many of his striking experiences during his labors. Purchasers will find it intensely interesting, and will render kindly service to his widow who was left in straitened circumstances.

The book contains 400 pages, and is sold for $1. Address MRS. E. V. WILSON, 91 South Locust street, Valparaiso, Ind.

THE World's Sixteen Saviors, —OR— CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST.

BY KERSEY GRAVES.

New and startling revelations in religious history which disclose the Oriental origin of all the doctrines, principles precepts and miracles of the Christian New Testament, and furnishing a key for unlocking many of its sacred mysteries, besides comprising the History of Sixteen Oriental Crucified Gods. This wonderful and exhaustive volume will, we are certain, take high rank as a book of reference in the field which the author has chosen for it. The amount of mental labor necessary to collate and compile the varied information contained in it must have been severe and arduous indeed, and now that it is in such convenient shape, the student of free thought will not willingly allow it to go out of print. But the book is by no means a mere collation of views or statistics; throughout its entire course the author—as will be seen by his title-page and chapter-heads—follows a definite line of research and argument to the close, and his conclusions go, like sure arrows to the mark. Printed on fine white paper, 380 pages. New edition, revised and corrected, with portrait of author.

Price $1.50. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

"Atlantian": Q. What about the Atlantians? Is there any evidence that such a people existed?

A. The spirit messages purporting to come from Atlantians who existed twelve or fifteen thousand years ago, are such as the most commonplace minds of the present would give, and hence show that after so many ages in the spirit-world these spirits are below mediocrity. Hence "internal evidence" is not in their favor. They claim that the present Atlantic Ocean was the site of their country and that it was submerged. To this claim, the structure of the continental masses oppose a direct and emphatic negative. If one will take a series of geological maps, drawn to represent the relations of water to land during the several ages previous to the present, he will see that even in the earliest periods, the folding and wrinkling of the earth's crust was rudely outlining the continental masses. He will find on the maps of the earliest periods, that the Alleghany Mountains had thrown their jagged peaks above the black waves, and the region on the northern borders of the great lakes was a deeply indented island.

From that time on the bed of the Atlantic has grown deeper and the surrounding lands to the north and west of the Alleghanies grown higher, toward the Rocky Mountains and Coast Range which were contemporary folds in the earth's crust.

The eastern coast of North America was among the earliest regions on the globe to appear above the waters as dry land, nor has it at any time since been submerged. It has been free from those great disturbances which mark Central and South America, and the islands of the Indian Seas. The Atlantic Ocean, as formed by a downward fold in the crust, which with contraction constantly increased downward, has been equally stable. Its profound depths, soundless in places at 10,000, and even 15,000 fathoms (ten to fifteen miles) evidence its great antiquity, and the few islands which appear on its surface are the summits of mountain peaks, uplifted from the depths, exceeding by many thousand feet the height of Cotopaxi, or Mount Hood.

The claim that this ocean was once a continent, that its deep bed was cultivated area, is in direct opposition to every fact and inference to be drawn from the geological structure of the globe.

If the Atlantic as a continuous continental mass was as densely populated as is claimed, this people must have extended to the lines of the Alleghanies, which surely were nearly as at present. The sinking of the continent could not have been so sudden as to prevent escape, and if slowly, then the frightened people would have swarmed away from the doomed land and sought refuge in the more stable regions of the west. Yet not a vestige of this great civilized people remains, and the Indian tribes which came after, show too plainly a common origin with the widely-scattered families of Northern Asia, to admit the claim that they are the degraded descendants of the Atlantians.

The Island of Atlantis, according to the Greek geographers, was situated on the West coast of Africa, 9,000 years before the time of Plato, who wrote a fabulous account of it. Its people were warlike and conquered the natives of Africa. It was submerged by an earthquake. It is strange that this myth, as fabulous as the existence of the one-eyed monsters, the headless people, and centaurs, should have been recalled by Spiritualists, and the more singular that the Platonic version should have been misunderstood, and out of an island on the coast of Africa, a continent occupying an ocean's site be created!

Probably there was some material to start the story, the disappearance of an island or some line of coast, but the story as repeated by Plato is not history. In the terse language of the present, if published by a reporter it would be called—using the least reprehensible term— a canard. The name of Plato has borne it up, although the philosopher was an observer of facts as unreliable as a village story-teller. There may have been a race of Atlantians, now perished from the earth, but the claim that their empire was on a continent in the Atlantic is as unsupportable as would be that it was on the inside surface of the "hollow globe" of the earth.

It may be stated as a rule—having the force of a law, that any spirit claiming to be an Atlantian, an old patriarch, as Moses or Elijah, or from another planet, misstates, and if untrustworthy in this, is unreliable, whatever else he may communicate.

S. F. D.: Q. In almost everything that pertains to the earlier beliefs of the church, we find the name of Simon Stylites mentioned as an example of fanaticism that has few if any equals among all the horrors of self-inflicted torture, that through those inflictions future perfect bliss might be obtained.

Now some, and I believe generally, accounts fix him on a pillar of stones some sixty feet high, with an area of nine or at most sixty-four square feet for standing-room.

How was this pile of stones raised to that height? Did Stylites build it? If not, who did? Is not the whole story a fabrication of monkish deviltry, crammed down the throat of ignorance to incite to self-inflicted torture in other votaries of the same intellect-destroying creed?

A. If the story of Simon Stylites be rejected as monkish traditions, the current history of the first thousand years of Christianity would have to go with it. The story is in direct accord with the prevailing ideas of the times. He is said to have been born about the middle of the fourth century, when the people, trampled by ruthless invaders, saw rest and peace only beyond the turmoil and strife of this world. The monastery became the refuge for the weak, the cowardly, and the indolent. Religion came with her soothing dogma that this life was a vile prison-house to be escaped from by the fettered spirit, and the body was a corrupting sepulchre. The more bodily suffering, either self-inflicted or by martyrdom, the greater the future reward. The monasteries overflowed. Wild-eyed fanatics betook themselves to the desert and made their homes among the rocks. The quarries of Thebias yet retain inscriptions carved in the rocks by these devotees. They made dwellings of the dens of wild beasts. One sect, the Anachorets, lived in the fields, grazing on the grass and herbage. The longer fasts endured, the less clothing worn, the more uncleanly, the greater was their sanctity regarded, and the more abject reverence paid by their followers. They boasted of their hairy bodies, their years of unwashed uncleanliness, of the haircloth that abraded their emaciated bodies, even of the vermin that they cultivated! The character of St. Simon is in keeping with his age. The world, ignorant and superstitious to the last degree, was crazed by religion. The kingdom promised by Christ was coming at any hour, and the present was of least value to eternal possession. The physical body must be put beneath the iron heel of the spirit, which must be prepared to meet its God.

The story of St. Simon was received by Gibbon, the great historian of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Yet it must be borne in mind that he did not go beyond the chronicles of events, and perhaps these may have been written at a much later day than is assigned to them. If Professor Johnson is to be credited, forgery of history exists to such an extent that what has been regarded as firm historic ground becomes a quaking bogland, and we know not what to believe or disbelieve.

Gibbon's authorities were Antonius, who wrote a biography of the Stylite, and was one of his disciples, Anthony Cosmas, a contemporary, and others, a goodly array of authority. From these we learn that St. Simon, who was a shepherd boy, at the age of 13 was struck by the fang of the religious serpent, and threw himself into a cell of the most austere monastery. Here his companions had to compel him to refrain from repeated starvation. After this severe novitiate he went up into a mountain about forty miles east of Antioch, and probably finding a column, built there for commemoration of some event, the idea seized him to mount to its top. It was a new form of penance, unthought of in that age of self-inflicted torture. This column when he found it was nine feet high, and procuring a heavy chain he ascended and fastened himself to the rocks. This column was gradually added to as his ambition grew, until it reached the height of sixty feet. On its summit the saint remained for thirty years, in storm and shine, exposed to the elements and almost constantly in the attitude of prayer. Multitudes came to worship around his column, and when he died his remains were transported with great pomp and ceremony to Antioch, where his bones were revered as a talisman of defence. His biographers interlard their narrative with the most wonderful stories, and it is sad to think how scarce these centuries intervened between the Augustan age of Rome and the glory of her philosophers, and the sickening tales of miracles and degradation of human nature of these grass-eating religious bigots and dirty monks and priests, who gained the odor of sanctity by their physical vileness.

St. Simon's example was contagious. All over Asia his imitators built their piles of stones and mounted guard, standing for days on one leg, or with bowed head, or outstretched arms like a cross. They always had food, company and praise. Their devotees brought them food and water only too gladly. St. Simon's thirty years' stay on top of his lofty column was after all somewhat a matter of climate. It was not so great a hardship in the soft climate of Syria, but suppose he had attempted it in Kansas? He probably would not have been praying a month before he would have found himself blown over into the next county, unless held by his chain. That chain in Kansas would have a significance, which it has not in Syria. In the latter there was no need of chaining himself to the rocks; in Kansas there would be the greatest. If he succeeded in staying through the summer, the first November blizzard would be either too much for his religion or his life.

Delving in the mass of fraud, rascality, credulity and pious falsehood of religious history from the first to the fifteenth century, it is difficult to determine the true from the false. To lie for God's sake was a virtue; and in ages without printing the besottedly ignorant people received the most improbable stories without dispute. Thus the story that St. Simon had a conflict with the Devil, and was burnt on his thigh, making an ulcer, rests on just as good evidence as the existence of the saint himself.

Hence, although we may with probable certainty admit the existence of St. Simon, and a whole flock of imitators, we must allow for the utter untruthfulness of the Christian writers. The column was undoubtedly a pile of rough stones, built up by the pious pilgrims, each bringing a stone, and in thirty years, more or less, reached a considerable height, and a broad base.

THE CAUSE AT LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

Dr. Isaac Lee is doing some excellent work at Little Rock, Ark. A paper published there says:

The Spiritualists had a great inning Sunday night at Dixie hall, 618 Main street. Judge Lee spoke to a large audience, scores standing and unable to obtain seats. The meeting was opened by singing "Beulah Land" with organ accompaniment, followed by "Sweet Bye and Bye." Judge Lee then invoked the blessing of the Spirit Father, after which the hats were passed around for written questions, previous announcement of which had been made.

The judge then spoke for over an hour on behalf of the great theme of Spiritualism, quoting copiously from both the Old and the New Testaments. His argument was spoken of by many who heard it as unanswerable. He maintained that all around us by day and by night hover the spirits of departed friends, guided by the Father, and that no one who will have the Light is lost. Those who reject the Light go away into darkness. He held that it is possible for us to enjoy sweet communion with loved ones who have broken the bars of the tomb, and that they are only anxious to talk to us and have us commune with them.

After the discourse, Judge Lee took up the pieces of paper, one by one, upon which were penned the questions propounded by those in the congregation. The scene was one of the keenest interest. Many showed signs of belief and approval, while a few were disappointed, especially those who were warned that clouds awaited them, with afflictions and sorrow.

One young lady from Argenta inquired concerning a subject very dear to her heart, that of matrimony; and the answer of the professor was that she was already wedded to her lover in heaven, and that the divine bans would be publicly and legally proclaimed here in due time; also that she would soon go to a distant city to see him, accompanied by a friend. The fact existed that a trip had already been arranged to go to Memphis to visit the idol of her heart, she to be accompanied by her mother. Is there not something in this wonderful prophetic power?

The lateness of the hour prevented the conclusion of the task of answering so very many questions, and the local healer was also debarred the privilege of exercising his curative gifts.

It is expected that large Dixie hall will not hold the people to-night who shall go there to witness these strange phenomena.

Studies in Spiritual Thought

THE TEMPORAL AND THE ETERNAL—THE REAL MAN—COMING EVENTS FORESHADOWED—VISIONS OF THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL—SPIRITUAL UPLIFTINGS.

While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal—II. Cor., iv:18.

In many things Paul had a clear spiritual insight—though often mixed with the ideas of heathen philosophers and teachers. He seems to have apprehended the truth that not the transitory, temporal, physical form, but rather the unseen yet ever-continuing spirit, constitutes the real man.

We are prone to entertain the notion, resulting from our physical embodiment and the environments and limitations incident to our earthy being, that the physical fleshly form is the man; and when it is laid away in the earth we say the man is dead. This, too, when we believe—or know—that there was an undying spirit that has escaped from the limitations of its temporary earthy tabernacle.

Paul goes on to say: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." In this he speaks like a true Spiritualist—he does not merely "believe," because his creed or his church teaches so; he speaks as one that has had personal positive evidence of the fact—"we know" that the real man, the spirit, still lives, although the earthy form it once inhabited mingles again with its kindred dust.

In an age and atmosphere of scientific materialism, Spiritualism comes with its positive demonstration, and by virtue thereof we clearly and boldly take Paul's words and declare "WE KNOW" the truth of immortality.

We know, too, that the spirit-world lies close around us, it is here with us, we are in it and as spirit-beings we are of it. Spirits, embodied and disembodied are intermingling as actors and factors in one great world of being—entering into each other's mental and moral existences and experiences.

SPIRITUAL CONSCIOUSNESS.

The interblending and interacting of these two phases of spirit life, are clearly shadowed in the present trend of thought, investigation and facts of experience as manifested in what is known as telepathy, thought transference and cognate things in the field of psychic research.

In this line Lilian Whiting presents many rich thoughts, indicative of her own fine intuitive perception of spiritual things. She says a new and more clear and direct consciousness of the life of the spiritual world is now dawning upon humanity. The better term, however, is the ethereal world; for this world is, too, the spiritual world, or should be; and to the degree in which mankind lives in the spirit, it is so. Man is a spiritual being, whether before death or after, and to restrict the term "spiritual world" to the realm beyond the physical is to confuse the significance. Man is a spiritual being, who, while temporarily inhabiting the physical world by virtue of his physical body, goes, at death, into the ethereal world, higher, finer, more beautiful, and more joyous than this; a world more real in every way; a world where all life proceeds by the higher forces of nature, but which is still not paradise in the ultimate sense, but only a higher state leading on to others still higher.

Psychic science is revealing certain definite data concerning this ethereal world, even as an explorer might reveal the knowledge of a new continent or country. This ethereal world is a finer counterpart of the physical world. It is inhabited by those who have left this life, and who make up these various grades and circles and groups, as the inhabitants of earth make up here.

THE ETHEREAL BODY.

But the conditions of this life, both in the constitution of the ethereal world and of the ethereal organism, are more sensitive and delicate than can be conceived. Science comes to the aid of psychic research, and the two, working along different lines, obtain results that harmonize, and which supplement each other.

For instance, psychic research has brought to the conception the ethereal body, which is the finer counterpart of the physical, and learned that all the senses save that of taste are retained and intensified, and that there are, also, indescribable new senses. Now, science discovers that the ether is permeated with electric waves, through which communications can be sent to any distance, without the slightest mechanism—needing only the mind of the sender and the receiver. What is this but a spiritual communication? And why is it not just as rational to suppose that two minds—the one in the physical, the one in the ethereal world—can thus transmit messages to each other, as that a man in Calcutta can transmit a message to his friend in Chicago?

The ether interpenetrates all our atmosphere, and fills all interplanetary space; how easy and even inevitable then may communication be, between those in this world or those here and those in the one beyond death. And in this scientific fact, so recently discovered, lies the explanation of the process we call telepathy. This ether transmits sound waves at the rate of 192,000 miles per second. At this rate it does not take long to "put a girdle round the earth."

The ethereal world is invisible to us, simply because its life is a matter of higher vibrations. The human eye cannot see beyond the limit of a vibration of eight hundred trillions per second, and the human ear is likewise limited. So that all life in a higher state of vibration than this is invisible and inaudible. There is a field of tremendous forces in this upper region, which science is just beginning to apprehend. "The air is full of miracles," says a recent authority. "The certainty is, strange things are coming, and coming soon."

Thus it is that the soul that is keyed to higher and finer spiritual vibrations is intuitively wise to catch the truths of the higher spirit-world, and has previsions of coming events which, to them, cast their shadows before. These minds finely keyed to respond to the vibrations of spirit as expressed in thought are spiritual barometers foreshowing the oncoming of things yet to be realized in human life and experience.

A new world of thought, of science and progress is at hand—at the door—and the door is ajar and many are peering through and catching glimpses of the higher and finer truths of the spiritual side of science. And because of the new light that will shine upon human existence and relations, causing things to appear in new manner, there shall be a new heaven and a new earth.

THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL.

Not alone in the world of physical and psycho-physical science are advances at hand, but in the higher realm of mind expression where mentality is linked and blended with the world ideal of purity in thought and its effux of goodness—the world beautiful of spiritual life and light. It has been given unto some to enter in finite degree into the borders of a heavenly vision whose ecstatic beauty cannot be told by human tongue. Paul likened the experience like unto "being caught up into the third heaven." So rich, so all-absorbing the beautiful vision that with Paul, one must say of himself in such state, "whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell"—for the consciousness of physical selfhood is lost in the soul-transport as the mind opens to the wondrous contemplation of pure spiritual light, love, truth and goodness.

ASPIRATION.

Man's spirit feels the constant beat
Of thought-waves from the Infinite;
Through Primal Being ever ran
The prophecy of coming Man;
And through man's nature ever beat
Pulsations of the Infinite.
Chords of Eternal Being roll
And vibrate in the human soul.
Man's living currents swell replete
With heart-throbs of the Infinite.

All things in constant instinct share
In Nature's universal prayer:
See, then, in all the world abroad,
God ever reaching up to God;
With all the strength of Being's love,
God lowly looks to God above;
The God-life ever upward tends,
And life to higher life ascends;
Man wants to rise where angels sit—
The finite seeks the Infinite.

JAS. C. UNDERHILL.

Hammond, Ind.

SENSIBLE THOUGHTS.

CONCERNING SOME THINGS THAT NEED CORRECTION—COMMENDED TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

It is an objection that has too much force, that is often raised against Spiritualism, that communications purporting to come from alleged spirits are of too puerile character to be worthy of acceptance; that communications purporting to come from the spirits of those who in their earth-life were justly regarded as the leaders of the age, and whose discoveries in science remain as permanent landmarks to guide others in the fields of scientific research and discovery; of those who are still held in high esteem in literature, morals and all that pertains to human activity, are made to utter their lack of thought in such senseless language that the idea arises that if those are the utterances of such spirits as they are claimed to be, there must be a retrogression from former intellectual power and idiocy has taken the place of intellectual strength.

During something over thirty years that spirit intercourse has been a demonstrated fact, I have often been made painfully aware of the force of this criticism, from its repetition, and the justness of its force, from some of the current Spiritualist published literature of the day.

Now it is pleasant to know we are the objects of kindly remembrance by friends gone before, and many a dark hour has been made brighter through this assurance of remembrance. Because we feel cheered by this remembrance, we want others to partake of our happiness. And perhaps a little of this pleasure may be self-gratulation that we are thus remembered, may be a part of the leaven of this happiness that we are the recipients of spiritual favors; and without thought as to the value of what we have received, the "communication" is sent to some Spiritualist publication whose accommodating editor gives an insertion to matter that, unless hardened by its frequent appearance, makes his gorge feel like it was uppermost.

Such has been the case, and not many years since communications purporting to come from Washington appeared in one of our leading Spiritualist journals that were of a character that clearly stamped the charge of idiocy on the illustrious character. If this were an isolated case it might be passed over, but as cases like this often occur, for the benefit of all parties, there should be a corrective. Surely such stuff is a hindrance to Spiritualism, for none care to entertain the idea that to recede in intellectual force is rational.

Now the question is, since such things are and perhaps will be; since a fond parent or an inconsiderate friend, and an obliging manager of a newspaper seemingly conspire together to spread such material before the public, what is to be done to abate the nuisance? There is one thing necessary, and if that were adopted, the cure would be measurably wrought. Consider in the first place that intellectual power never retrogresses, and that should prove at once the falsity of such communications. Next remember there are those on the other side whose pleasure consists, as it did here, in appearing to be what they are not, as well as those here who feel elated to be noticed by some great name, thereby making them an easier dupe to the spirit who seeks and obtains control.

If such communications were criticized with due care at home, they would in nearly every instance be regarded as home "property," and the public would never be disgusted with the unseemly performance. The newspaper manager would be relieved from the embarrassment of publishing what he must feel is unfit matter, or risking to offend one who is really friendly to the cause.

Now from considerable experience as a writing medium I feel assured to say that spirits who control in the writing of matters of more than ordinary importance, often refuse to give the name, and when asked, reply: "What is in a name? Look to what is written, and from that judge its worth;" while in other instances the name is given. This is a proper criterion, and if we would look at the importance of the matter written, the quantity of such "literature" would be greatly diminished, while its quality would be improved many times. Only the really valuable should be allowed to be placed before the public.

With the arrest of this sort of literature, another glaring evil should be remedied. To do this, subject every public medium to a sufficiently rigid test to be assured of their mediumistic powers, and so far as possible to know there is a high moral principle forming a basis of character that will raise the medium above the suspicion of manufacturing phenomena solely for the cash that is in it. And when a medium has been clearly proved guilty of deceiving, always let the doubt of his or her honesty rest upon them. This may seem severe, but what other protection is there for the public? Surely on a subject of this importance there cannot be too great effort made to eliminate all sources of pretensions, so that the anxious inquirer as well as the skeptic may feel that the truth has been presented as a solace, or as a witness to remove unbelief.

If there is a crime that merits the most rigorous searching out, that should destroy or make liable to doubt on a subject where the evidence presented rests upon the integrity of the source through which it comes, it is that that gives assurance that life is ever-during, and that this stage of being is in communion with that which to the natural eye is within the veil.

The first is the lesser evil, for that comes within the range of our present powers, while the last can be perhaps, only measurably overcome from the constant wearing of the armor of eternal vigilance, assumed as a necessary defense against fraud in a matter that of all others appeals the most directly to the yearning desire to know that there is a future for us, as well as a present.

S. F. DEANE, M. D.

Carleton, Neb.

IN LEADVILLE, COLORADO.

I am here in my capacity of President of the Colorado State Association of Occult Science. The trip from Denver here is simply magnificent. On coming here I found a well established city, and the grandest mining camp of the world. The society here is an auxiliary to the State, under the leadership of L. Agnese Moulton, a woman of marked executive ability, and fine medial power. Three meetings had been arranged for on Sunday. The morning and afternoon found good audiences, intensely interested in the teaching given. At the close a lyceum was organized and the outlook for a success is most encouraging. Long before the time for the opening of the evening service the hall was packed. In fact, a representative audience of the city had gathered. Following the lecture a poem was given, six subjects being taken from skeptics, and to the many it was a most startling demonstration. The test seance following was replete with demonstrations of the possibility of spirit return and the results were particularly satisfactory to all. During the week meetings have been held each night, and through the day my rooms have been crowded, and the result is a quickening and awakening of many souls to the truths of our glorious cause

G. C. B. EWELL.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col, Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"The Universe." What Force Is. The Beginning of Creation. What Matter Is. The Creation of the Earth. The Beginning of Life. Immortality. The Substance of Its Environments. Psychic Science. What the "Soul of Things" Is. Song of Psyche. A pamphlet by L. M. Rose. Contains 71 pages of interesting matter. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

A REMARKABLE DOCTOR BOOK

HAS JUST BEEN ISSUED, ENTITLED

THE NATURE CURE

BY PHYSICAL AND MENTAL METHODS.

A BRIDGE FROM THE OLD TO THE NEW; THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY IN MEDICAL PRACTICE. A CLEAR, SHORT-CUT TREATISE ON THE CAUSE AND CURE OF DISEASE.

By MARVIN E. CONGER, M. D.
Assisted by ROSA C. CONGER, M. D.

The title page is suggestive of important changes in the methods of curing the sick and maintaining health.

THE NATURE CURE is divided into twelve chapters, as follows:

First—Introductory.
Second—Cause of Disease.
Third—Food and Drink.
Fourth—Exercise.
Fifth—Fevers; Cause and Treatment.
Sixth—Disease Inflammatory.
Seventh—Epidemic and Chronic Disease.
Eighth—Baths.
Ninth—Women and Children. (By Rosa C. Conger, M. D.)
Tenth—Useful Recipes.
Eleventh—Object Lessons and Tables.
Twelfth—Miscellaneous Health Suggestions.

Read their definition of medicine: "Any method or remedy that will remove or modify pain without injury, and restore the sick to a normal condition is practical medicine."

The new and better methods of curing the sick and preventing disease, have never been so clearly stated in plain English, for the plain people, as in NATURE CURE.

It is claimed for this book that it is the most complete doctor book ever published, and sold at the lowest price. It is claimed that disease is not a technical, mysterious, theoretical condition or subject, but only a fact that all may understand. More experience, study and time have been expended to evade and pervert the truth, and deceive the people for obtaining money, than to teach the truth and save life and health. THE NATURE CURE reaches the case of this important subject.

The book has 370 pages, is strongly and handsomely bound in cloth for $2.00, and will be mailed upon receipt of price.

ADDRESS THIS OFFICE. 40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

"THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS."

A Primary Course of Lessons in Celestial Dynamics.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT."

This important primary work is the first practical exposition of the Astro-Magnetic forces of Nature—in their relation to man—that has yet been issued by the American press. It contains fourteen special lessons, embracing each department of human life, in such plain, simple language that a child can understand the elementary principles laid down. And in addition to these lessons is an Appendix, containing a full explanation of all technical and scientific terms in general use upon the subject, thus forming a brief, yet practical Astro Dictionary. This work is illustrated with special plates.

For Sale at This Office. Price. Fifty Cents.

SEE WHAT ONE DOLLAR WILL DO

It will secure for you immediate delivery of a complete set of eight superb volumes (nearly 4,000 pages, magnificently illustrated) of the latest, most practical and in every way the best general reference library in the English language—the

STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA

You have a whole year to pay the balance in monthly amounts, so small you will not feel the outlay.

8 LARGE VOLUMES. Nearly 4,000 pages. Over 300 Colored Maps, Charts and Diagrams. Every Volume Mechanically Perfect.

The Only Encyclopedia Strictly "Up to Date."
SIZE OF VOLUME:
2 ins. Thick. 8½ ins. Wide. 11½ ins. Long.

A COMPLETE LIBRARY

For daily use in your home or office.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN is prepared by

JOHN CLARK RIDPATH, LL.D.

author of "Ridpath's Histories," etc., assisted by a large corps of editors and over 100 eminent scholars and specialists.

A SUPERB REFERENCE WORK

treating over 60,000 topics (10,000 more than any other encyclopedia), covering the entire field of human knowledge, thought and endeavor.

FRESH FROM THE PRESS

The NEW STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA is brought down to the present time, and contains hundreds of articles on subjects not treated in any other reference work. Another important feature in which it stands absolutely alone is its very full Appendixes, which embrace over 100 sub-divisions, including a Biographical Dictionary, a Dictionary of Technical Terms, a Gazetteer of the United States, Statistics of Presidential Elections, State and Territorial Elections, Religious Summaries, Statistics of the Population of the World, and a Veritable Mine of Other Information on thousands of subjects of universal interest and importance, written in such simple language that even a child can readily understand.

THREE GREAT AUTHORITIES SAY:

"There is no work in the world that can compare with it."—New York Herald.

"It stands ready to answer any question."—Bishop JOHN H. VINCENT, D.D., LL.D.

"The Standard American Encyclopedia is especially suited to private families. Its tables, maps of countries and cities, Summaries of Useful Knowledge, etc., make it a most valuable book of reference. I cordially commend it to the public."—EDWARD BROOKS, Superintendent of Schools, Philadelphia.

For a Limited Time Only—Just to introduce the work ONE DOLLAR secures IMMEDIATE POSSESSION of the entire set of 8 volumes. Balance payable $1.50 monthly for one year.

You thus at once secure this splendid set of books for continued use and enjoyment. It is the One Great, Practical Reference Library for the Professional and Business Man, the Teacher, the Student, the Farmer, Artisan, and Mechanic.

MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRATED THROUGHOUT

With over 3,500 engravings, of superb quality and wonderful variety, including numerous engraved portraits of distinguished Poets, Authors, Physicians, Chemists, Philosophers, and Scientists, and with over 300 new maps and charts from the VERY LATEST EXPLORATIONS and SURVEYS, delineating Continents, Empires, Countries, States, Cities, Towns, Citadels, Solar, Lunar, and Planetary Systems, and every portion of the known world, and forming a Complete and Indexed Atlas of the globe. THE STANDARD AMERICAN is the best illustrated and the best mapped Encyclopedia in the English Language.

OUR GREAT INTRODUCTORY OFFER

To secure widespread and favorable publicity for THE NEW STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA, we have decided to place a few introductory sets in each community throughout the country for comparison with all other reference works as to plan, scope, lateness of treatment and general practical and educational value. We feel that every set will create a demand for others. While the distribution will be general in extent, it will last for a limited time only, after which our regular subscription sale will begin, at prices ranging from $48 to $72 a set, according to style of binding. Now, however, to quickly and thoroughly introduce the work, as above stated, we make the price merely nominal (about the cost of paper and printing), the distribution being LIMITED TO A VERY FEW WEEKS, reserving the privilege of withdrawing the offer at any time when we consider a sufficient number of these introductory sets, at the special price, have been distributed.

OUR GREAT SPECIAL OFFER.

SEND $1.00 to THE ENCYLOPEDIA PUBLISHING CO., 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and a full set of eight volumes of THE NEW STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA, in cloth binding will be forwarded to you. The balance is payable at the rate of $1.50 monthly for one year, or about 5 cents a day. If you prefer the half-Morocco binding, the monthly payment will be $2.00, and for full sheep, $2.50 per month for one year. We recommend the half-Morocco style, which is particularly elegant and serviceable, and will last a lifetime. If not entirely satisfactory any set may be returned within ten days and money will be promptly refunded. Owing to the nominal price at which these introductory sets are supplied, transportation charges must be paid by the purchaser; but our entire confidence that the volumes will be gladly received and cheerfully paid for is shown by sending a $48.00 set of books on an advance payment of only $1.00. We also feel that you will thoroughly appreciate this great work and speak favorably of it to others. Each set weighs boxed nearly 50 pounds, and will be shipped by freight unless otherwise ordered. We refer you to the publishers of this paper. Please mention it when writing.

Send two-cent stamp for postage on twenty-two page illustrated pamphlet with sample pages, colored map, and portraits of famous inventors. Address harm than good results therefrom. Many of the professed converts change their faith, or pretend to do so rather because of the material help which they receive from the missionaries, who are desirous of making the most favorable reports possible of the "great work" which they are doing. The converts are from the ignorant and destitute classes. They are not improved morally—indeed, where the missionaries are followed by Christian traders, habits and customs are introduced which demoralize the natives; and elements of disorder are often added to the other evils which follow. The missionaries do not understand that an ancient faith cannot be uprooted by a few missions planted here and there, that changes, to be enduring, must be gradual and in harmony with the general trend and tendencies of the times."

The Encyclopedia Publishing Co., 156 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK, N. Y.

GENERAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 6.)

Dr. P. S. George writes from Le Mars, Ia.: "I am sojourning a few days in this beautiful Northern Iowa town. Le Mars is a very attractive place of about 5,000 inhabitants, but few Spiritualists. It is what our mediums call thoroughly orthodox; there are no less than a dozen churches and about the same number of saloons. The country is largely made up of Germans. The majority are Catholics. I arrived here last week in response to a telegram to treat a severe case of sickness. The regulars failed to give relief, hence my visit here. I believe a good medium would do well here."

G. H. Mallman writes from Clinton, Ia.: "One of the most brilliant inspirational lectures we have ever listened to kas given by B. L. Eskelson and his guides at the funeral of Mrs Belinda Skinner of this city. Mrs. Skinner was an old time Spiritualist. 'Out of the darkness, into the light' was the central thought around which the speaker wove soul-inspiring truths with such earnestness and eloquence as moistened the eye of every listener, whether it was Spiritualist, Protestant, or Catholic. Mr. Eskelsen and his bright and intellectual guides are a host for good, and will cut a wide swath through the darkness in the near future. His labors have been almost exclusively in this city, except as he is occasionally called away to officiate at funerals, when there are always left behind sweet and loving thoughts which bind his hearers closer to the grand truth of Spiritualism."

H. Eidelbach writes from Flatonia, Tex.: "We have just been favored with a visit from Miss Anna Martin. She is an excellent medium for physical manifestations, such as raps, trumpet speaking while the trumpet is floating around the circle, tapping each one around the table and even outside of the circle, the spirits talking through the trumpet and giving their names, and singing through it. Materialized hands were laid on ours, and all were patted by them."

L. P. Wheelock, formerly the efficient secretary of the Clinton camp, was in the city last week.

George F. Perkins wil lecture for the society in Anderson, Ind., during the month of May. Mrs. G. F. Perkins will continue the services during his absence, at 617 N. Clark St., Beacon Light Spiritual Church.

J. M. White writes from Dubuque, Iowa: "After a weeks stay in Marshalltown, Iowa, I have come for a brief stay in Dubuque. The work in Marshalltown was very successful. I would like to get in communication with M. M. Henry, or any other good physical medium, with a view to traveling together to the camps this summer. If any Spiritualists in McGregor, Ia., or any other points along the Mississippi river can give me an engagement as I go north they may address me at this point."

Lyman C. Howe writes from Flint, Mich.: "I spoke two evenings last week in Owosso, and had two or three ministers in my audiences. They have a nice society there with Miss Laura Mattock for president, and a harmonious spiritual atmosphere made it pleasant for me. Mrs. A. E. Sheets, Martha E. Root, Mrs. Minnie Carpenter, Giles B. Stebbins, Frank T. Ripley and others, have done good work at Owosso, and few societies make so good conditions for speakers and mediums as they do. Flint has many progressive people, some of them clergymen. Mediums are developing. Among them Miss Maud Porter is a promising type. Mrs. Sarah Allen is doing a lively business, healing the sick, and the most aggravating feature of it is that she cures when the regulars fail; and they don't like it. Mrs. Allen is so well and favorably known, and has so many friends, that even if they get a gag law, it is doubtful if they can hurt her, any more than they can Mrs. Matteson in Buffalo. Mrs. Sheets is the favorite speaker here, but Mrs. Root, L. V. Moulton, Minnie Carpenter and others are much admired. I go to Bay City for May 1 and 2, Quarterly meeting."

Carlyle Petersilea writes from San Diego, Cal.: "The cause of Spiritualism is flourishing in this charming city with the wonderful phenomenal and philosophical medium, Ben M. Barney as its central figure. Mr. Barney reads sealed letters in three different ways: automatic writing, clairvoyantly, and by dictation—three different phases of spirit control. My wife and I witnessed three sealed letters read in the above manner, and we can positively testify that the letters were sealed, fastened, and had not been tampered with. Mr. Barney has been here over a year and his meetings every Sunday evening are filled to over-flowing. My wife and I have started on our tour giving entertainments of a spiritual, musical and literary character, and hope to appear in Chicago after a while."

W. W. Hawkins writes from Lima, Ohio: "On last Sunday, Mrs. Mattie Hull presented us with the scientific aspect of the philosophy as illustrated by her lecture upon 'The Seen and the Unseen.' It was truly interesting and convincing. While listening to it I was led to reflect: Why is it that the common sense judgment of the vast majority will insist upon reversing its method while contemplating the Unseen! Few minds can grasp the extent of one million; yet accustomed as they are to handle inferior sums they become convinced that a million does exist, but when confronted, while handling electricity, common atmosphere: and the scientist, the X-Ray, with the possibility of the extension of the ethereal processes of Nature, they kick through the traces and exclaim, supernatural! facing this attitude we can only say, hasten the day when logic will have illumined the mental chambers now darkened by prejudice."

Mrs. Estelle Howes, who has been an active worker in Olean, N. Y., for the past three months left on the 20th to resume her work in Friendship, N. Y., till June, when she returns to Lily Dale for the camp season.

"Every person who shall keep or permit to be kept within his or her premises, within the limits of the city of Milwaukee, Wis., a house of fortune-telling for gain or profit, or who shall be engaged in said city of Milwaukee in fortune-telling for gain or profit, shall be arrested, and shall on conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 for each and every offense. Each and every person an inmate or being found at a house of fortune-telling in the city of Milwaukee, shall forfeit a penalty of not more than $25." This ordinance will in no wise affect mediumship. No honest medium ever tells what is designated as "fortunes."

D. P. Hughes, secretary of Devil's Lake Camp-meeting, writes: "Our Camp is to be held this season from Aug. 1st to Aug. 22nd inclusive, and under the efficient management of W. F. Smith and G. M. Stanley, of Jackson, we are assured of an unqualified success. Programs will be out soon announcing the best of talent."

Geo. T. Angell says: "Of new work commenced by it during the year nothing can be more important than the plans introduced by Mrs. Emma Rood Tuttle of Ohio, of prize speaking in all cities and towns on humane subjects, which has already received the indorsement and recommendation of the Master of the National Grange, and many of the subordinate Granges, also largely of "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union," and other organizations. As is shown in recent issues of "Our Dumb Animals" these prize contests are proving a great success, both in calling public attention to the importance of our work and in raising money to enable "Humane Societies" and "Bands of Mercy" to increase it."

R. L. Taylor writes: "I cannot conceive how any person who has become at all conversant with the spiritual philosophy and teachings can be without The Progressive Thinker."

F. R. writes from Bay City, Mich.: "We have had with us Mrs. Annie L. Robinson, of Port Huron, for the past two months. On Wednesday evenings we can always depend upon full houses. When Mrs. Robinson is our speaker she always makes friends, and interests the people. We have with us now Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield Pettibone; they certainly give wonderful manifestations in the light and Mrs. Pettibone is one of the best test mediums we have ever had on our platform. Mrs. Augusta Ferris' seance-room is well patronized, and all who visit her receive convincing evidence of spirit manifestation. The Saginaw Valley Spiritual Association holds its 12th quartely meeting here May 1st and 2nd. Lyman C. Howe and M. A. Root, speakers. Test medium Mrs. H. Pettibone."

Wm. Hassmann and Wm. Schumacher, president and secretary respectively of the Spiritualistic Church of the Students of Nature, meeting at Munson's Hall, 1052 Milwaukee avenue, this city, write: "Public services of our society, as well as at the new place of meeting, 151 East Randolph street, are now discontinued until next September. Last Sunday (May 2) there were special services and floral decorations at both places on account of its being the close of the year. The society at Munson's Hall has now been in existence for two years and a half and gives every promise of being a permanent institution, under the indefatigable labors of the pastor, Mrs. M. Summers. The financial condition is good, there being no debts, with money in the treasury. Thanks are hereby extended to the several mediums and lecturers who have favored us at both places with their assistance from time to time. Mrs. Summers will take her usual vacation by trips westward, where she will, as occasion presents, exercise her talents as a medium and lecturer, with the hope that she will return next autumn refreshed for another year of steady work among her chosen people."

F. H. Parker writes from Beatrice, Neb., "Arrangements are being made for permanent meetings here. The Unity church, a handsome edifice, has been leased. A. J. Pethond; president; W. G. Washburn, secretary; J. S. Rutherford, treasurer. The first meeting for the year will be held in the church on Sunday, May 2nd"

Professor Geo. W. Walrond on Sunday last delivered a stirring lecture at the Windsor Hall, Denver, Col., to a large audience. The subject chosen was "Spiritualism, the greatest Truth of the 19th Century." The lecture was illustrated with quite a number of convincing clairvoyant tests of spirit presence. Christian and Surnames of spirit friends being given to a large number of persons among the audience. Mr. Walrond has been elected conductor of the Children's Lyceum and Spiritual Conference.

Dr. Rothermel's address for the present is Box 69, Omaha, Neb., where he can be addressed for engagements.

Prof. J. Jay Watson and his daughter Miss Annie A. Watson gave a musicale at the residence of Mr. B. O. Flower, at Brookline, Mass., last evening. Mr. Watson used the famous Cremona violin made by the Amati brothers in 1616, for many years the favorite instrument of the late Ole Bull, and played several of the favorite solos of the once famous Norwegian. Miss Watson gave a Liszt piano Fantasie, and Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Spears played and sang several of their own compositions.

IMPORTANT!

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

G. E. WATKINS, M. D.,

AYER, MASS.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS.

SUCCESSFUL SPECIALISTS.

Any good medium can correctly diagnose your case; but very few of them know how to cure the diseased organs which they see. They must be acquainted with medicines and their action upon the system, or they will do great injury to your body.

WE GUARANTEE A CURE

of every case which we pronounce curable. The following letter is like thousands of others which we receive each month:

Silver City, N. M., April 8, 1897.

Dear Doctors—I write you to night to let you know how your little patient is getting along. As I write she is sitting up in bed, talking and feeling so much better. I cannot find words to express myself to you. The doctors here had given her up; had told me she could not live 24 hours, when your box of medicine came. But from the first dose of your medicine there has been a steady improvement. She has a good appetite and sleeps well now, especially after your psychic treatment.

MRS. ARTIE GALLOWAY.

Do not endanger your life and throw away your money on uncertainties. Write us; give name, age, sex and a leading symptom and receive by return mail an absolutely correct diagnosis and medical advice free. No guess work, experiments or poisonous drugs.

Drs. Peebles & Burroughs,

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

730 Lemcke Building.

MASS CONVENTION.

A Mass Convention of Spiritualists and Liberalists was held at Providence, R. I., April 21. Large audiences at the three sessions greeted the many speakers who spoke so earnestly for organization and concerted action. President Barrett spoke at each session, and held the closest attention of the audience; nor did it wane when the others followed, as each one seemed to emphasize his statements. The speakers were the Mrs. Sarah Humes, President of Providence Spiritualist Association, Mrs. Sarah Byrnes, Mrs. J. S. Soper, Mrs. Wm. S. Butler, Mrs. N. J. Tullis, Mrs. Hortense Holcomb, Mrs. Hattie Jones, Miss Lucy Barnicoat, Mrs. Lizzie Harlon, Miss May Pepper, Dr. George Fuller, Dr. C. F. Hidden, Wm. Eben Cobb, Mr. O. A. Edgerly, Mr. J. B. Hatch, Jr., and Mr. William Foster.

Many came early in the morning remaining all day, so earnest were they to hear every word bearing upon our beautiful philosophy.

The Ladies' Aid Society, which holds its social meetings in Columbia Hall, donated it to this convention, and in the dining room served meals between the sessions. Vocal and instrumental selections, together with recitations, were interspersed with the addresses, making a very pleasing program as well as instructive. The local newspapers gave very excellent reports. Taken as a whole it seems to have been successful. It is hoped that there may be as an outgrowth of this meeting several new societies formed, and also a State Association. Spiritualism is attracting the earnest attention of the people. May its Truths be made clear and all the world be benefitted.

MRS. IDA P. A. WHITLOCK.
State Agent.

THE MOST REMARKABLE BOOK OF THE CENTURY.

To the Editor:—Having seen some recent Nos. of your paper which were of unusual interest and contained some especially important essays from my venerable friend, Prof. J. R. Buchanan, whom I regard as the most able champion of emancipated thought now living. I wish to become, instead of a occasional reader, a subscriber, and herewith enclose P. O. money order for $1 in payment.

If you will permit me I wish to add a few words in regard to his last work, "Progressive Christianity," which is doubtless the most remarkable religious book of the century, and should do more for Spiritualism than anything ever published. The religion of Jesus purified of the incrustations and subversions of dynastic churchism is set forth in this book by a new inspiration in the simple grandeur of its original form. How beautiful it is will be a surprise even like a glimpse of heaven to those who have been repelled by the vindictive Jehovistic and other ideas which were faudulently incorporated with the writings of the apostles.

If Spiritualism is to be the saving power, its believers hope, it must be through the ministration of the highest class of spirit existence that can touch here and there a mind sufficiently lofty to pierce, like an isolated mountain peak, the clouds which fill the grosser atmosphere of earth. The spirits of this lower stratum too often need every sort of help, instead of being worthy of special reverence for the mere fact of their being disembodied. Mediumship must be lifted entirely above the earth plane and commercialism, or it will stay forever a means of proof of continued existence after death of the body, but nothing more. Those of spiritual faith, or in other words whose psychic eye is opened, need no tangible evidence—but they and all do need the teaching of the higher spheres as embodied in "Primitive Christianity," which will show them that Jesus was the prototype, ages ahead, of that perfect manhood which will sometime dwell upon this planet, when every atom of organized clay is completely governed by spirit.

A. G. MARSHALL.
Brooklyn, N. Y.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

Mrs. Dr. A Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL!

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly,
REBECCA LEVY.

8331 Laclede ave.. St. Louis Mo.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free.]

At Pierson, Mich., Walter H. Petrie, aged forty-two years. A life long Spiritualist. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Petrie, a well known lumberman of Michigan. Nearly all the families have a knowledge of the beautiful beyond. Services were held in the M. E. Church, which was kindly offered by the pastor. At 2 p. m., April 21st; a large audience convened to hear the first spiritual service in that section, and it was one entire success.

Passed to spirit life, April 28th at Fairhaven, Mass., Capt. James Dahl, aged seventy-four years, ten months and eight days. He has been a sound Spiritualist for years, and went quickly as he often expressed a wish to do.

GEO. Y. NICKERSON.

At Rockford, Mich., George N. Westfall, aged sixty-four years, passed to the happy beyond, April 2nd. Services were held in the Spiritual church, April 4th. A large attendance. For many years a Spiritualist, he will wait and welcome a wife and four brothers when their time comes to go higher. Services conducted by Charles A. Andrews, M. D., of Grand Rapids, Mich.

At her home at Clinton, Ia., Mrs. Belinda Skinner passed to higher life, April 23rd, at the age of seventy-five. She was a pioneer Spiritualist of Clinton, who together with her husband who preceded here to the world of spirit some eleven years, were among the founders of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualist Association camp in this city. B. L. Eskelsen, inspirational speaker, also of this city, officiated at the funeral.

THE SEEDS OF FAILURE.

To the Editor:—Your editorial in the last Thinker is so opportune, and so much to the point that I cannot resist the inclination to send you my hearty endorsement. The seeds of failure in all new religions have been the old doctrines incorporated therein. Christianity has had to carry the load of Jewish partialism. The election of the Jewish people has been transformed into the horrible election of a few to life, and the assignment of the many to eternal damnation, by the Christian church. Partialism, division, special privileges for the few, and burdens for the many, is the genius of Christianity. Its justice is vengeance. Its mercy is for the undeserving. Its political enconomy contemplates perpetual poverty. Its theoretical and practical brotherhood is limited to the "few—the little flock" of assured believers in Christ.

Any structure of thought or practice built on such a foundation must be one of unrighteousness, and any one which incorporates any of those old falsities into itself will prove a most miserable failure.

The whole claim of modern Christianism rests upon assumed miraculism as a basis. The foundation and the structure must be swept clear away before the true can be built. Miracle and science cannot be mixed or fused in any true union. We cannot, therefore, let the church alone. It is right in our way. It resists, at every turn and step, the progress of truth. If it fails to crush, it seeks to pervert.

Spiritualism made the most rapid progress when it most fiercely assailed the falsehoods of the church. It may have failed in possible reconstructive work and turned aside to incidental matter. One of the best methods to regain our former unity would be a renewal, all along the line, of the battle against the destructive falsities of the old religion.

Fraternally, J. S. LOVELAND.
Oakland, Cal.

CATARRH INHALER FREE.

I will for a short time mail any reader of The Progressive Thinker my new scientific Aerial Catarrh Inhaler, much improved, and medicine for one year, on three days' trial. If it gives satisfaction, send me $1; if not, return it in the original package. Catarrh, asthma, headache, partial deafness, roaring, colds or pain in the head immediately relieved and speedily cured. Address DR. E. J. WORST, Ashland, O 395

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Mahomet, His Birth, Character and Doctrine." By Edward Gibbons. This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. Price, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Causes and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

PUBLICATIONS — OF — HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.

This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.

Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.

The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.

English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.

Containing the latest investigations and discoveries and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.

This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.

A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 30 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

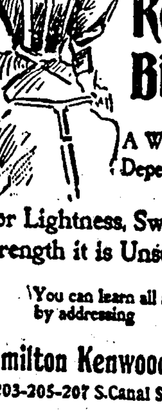
FROM SOUL TO SOUL.

By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents, Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.



For humane Education, with plan of the Angell Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address

HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

Your Friend the ..... Kenwood Bicycle

A Wheel You Can Depend Upon.

For Lightness, Swiftness and Strength it is Unsurpassed.

You can learn all about it by addressing

Hamilton Kenwood Cycle Co.
203-205-207 S. Canal St., Chicago.

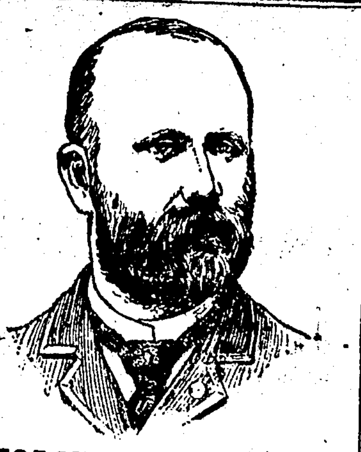
HEALTH AND POWER.

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

THE GODS.

By Col. R. G. Ingersoll. A pamphlet of 40 pages. Worth its weight in gold. Price 20 cents.

THE AGE OF REASON.



By Thomas Paine. Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

INTERVIEWS WITH SPIRITS.

By Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. Price 50 cents.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

FORSTER, DR. W. M.

THE NOTED

MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT

OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkable success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,

1059 Market Street. - San Francisco, Cal. 833

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK OR AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,

Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 858tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER,

SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

Dr. Mansfield.

Homeopathic Treatment compounded clairvoyantly for each case. Send name, age, sex, leading symptoms for FREE DIAGNOSIS AND "METHODS OF CURE." H. D. Barrett, Prest, N. S. A. and all endorse

W. A. MANSFIELD, M. D.,

152 Cedar Ave. - - Cleveland, O. 386tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 394

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 2-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 390

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily. 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street. Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN. CLAIRVOYANT, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 388

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. 54 Robinson ave. Lake st. elevated to 52nd st., north block and a half, Chicago, Illinois. 377tf

PSYCHOMETRY CONSULT WITH PROF. A. B. SEVERANCE in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address North Chicago, Illinois. 383tf

YOUR FUTURE prospects revealed by astral science. Good and bad days, months and years accurately calculated by Professor Geo. W. Walrond, Astrologer, Denver, Colo. 390

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped, addressed envelope to J. C. F. GRUMBINE, station P, Chicago, Illinois, for terms, reading, circulars, for development in psychometry, clairvoyance, inspiration, healing. The inspirational teachings by correspondence are just what you need. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Psychiscopes $2. 379tf

A KARMIC READING, WITH NUMEROUS SUGGESTIONS pointing the way that leads to peace and power; also a copy of "The Law of Life." Send date of birth and 25 cents (silver) to URIEL BUCHANAN, 34 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. 390

MRS. ESTELLE F. HOWES, BUSINESS MEDIUM and Psychometrist. Six questions answered for 50 cents (silver) and stamp. P. O. Box 312, Friendship, N. Y. 390

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS AND HOW WE ASCEND THEM.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

MIND READING AND BEYOND.

By Wm. A. Hovey. 200 pages, with illustrations of the subjects treated upon. Price $1.25.

BIBLE OF BIBLES.

By Kersey Graves. It will well pay perusal. Price $1.75

Researches in Oriental History.

BY G. W. BROWN, M. D.

One Vol. 12mo, 407 Pages, Cloth, $1.50.

GENERAL DIVISION.

1. RESEARCHES IN JEWISH HISTORY.
2. RESEARCHES IN ZOROASTRIANISM.
3. DERIVATION OF CHRISTIANITY.
4. WHENCE OUR ARYAN ANCESTORS?

The whole comprises an earnest but fruitless search for a Historical Jesus.

In this volume the Jews are clearly shown not to have been the holy and favored people they claim to have been. The Messianic idea is traced to the Bactrian Philosopher, 2350 years B. C., and its history is outlined, following the waves of emigration, until it is fully developed into Christianity, with a mythical hero, at Alexandria, in Egypt, soon after the commencement of the Christian era.

The book demonstrates that Christianity and its central hero are mythical; that the whole system is based on fraud, falsehood, forgery, fear and force; and that its rites, ceremonials, dogmas and superstitions are but survivals of so-called paganism. It shows vast research among the records of the past; its facts are mostly gleaned from Christian authority; and no person can read it without instruction and profit, whether he reaches the same conclusions with the author or otherwise. For sale at this office.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

422 E. D. BABBITT, M. D. LL. D., Dean

A WONDERFUL OFFER

.. BY ...

DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but was readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and band, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

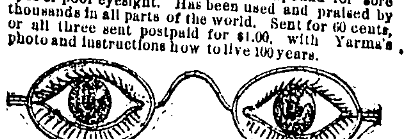
842tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1821 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O. M.,

509 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.



Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 844tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

CUT THIS OUT.—PROF. WALSH READS THE planets of your life. By spiritual power heals. He has no equal. 200 Lexington av., New York City. 389

HOW TO BECOME A MEDIUM IN YOUR OWN home. Will send a pamphlet giving instructions, delineate your phases of mediumship, and a spiritual song-book. All for 25 cents. Address Mrs. J. A. Bliss, Watrousville, Mich. 399

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future, with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair, 605 West avenue, Jackson, Mich. 391

Spiritualism Triumphant!

Biblical theology demolished and original Christianity restored. An exposition of the fraudulent origin of the church, and the ancient origin of spiritual religion, with the long lost lives of Jesus and the Apostles, the authentic gospel of St. John, and authentic portraits of Jesus Christ, the Apostle John and John the Baptist. This work, just issued with a solid historic basis, is sent by mail for two dollars. Address the author, DR. J. R. BUCHANAN, San Jose, Cal. 388

Periodicity the Law of Life.

Just issued. A scientific discovery revealed. Prof. Buchanan the author. It enables one to understand the law of life in himself and friends; the times that are favorable or unfavorable for success; the harmonies and discords of persons due to a law; the dangerous periods for health and business; giving warnings against calamities. Price, 75 cents. Address E. S. BUCHANAN, Publisher, San Jose, California. A good agent can make $5 a day. 388

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

MANSILL'S ALMANAC — OF — PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

OCCULT FORCES.

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces.

Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to be interested in it and 2c. in stamps. Circulars free.

OCCULT PUB. CO., 3571 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

SPIRITUAL SONGSTER.

BY HATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price 10 cents, or $7 per hundred. For sale at this office.

THE DEAF HEAR

"Common Sense Ear Drums" Relieve all conditions of Deafness and Head Noises, where Medical skill fails. The only Scientific Aural Sound Conductor in the world. Safe to wear, comfortable, invisible, no dangerous wire or metal attachment. Recommended by physicians. Write for book. Free.

WILSON EAR DRUM CO.

Offices { 234 Trust Bldg., Louisville, Ky. / 1122 Broadway, New York.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT — AND — THE SPIRIT WORLD.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Its value is recognized and acknowledged all over the world. Price, cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

GOSPEL OF NATURE.

By M. L. Sherman and Wm. F. Lyon. A book replete with Spiritual truths. Price $1.00.

THOMAS PAINE.

Was He Junius?

By Wm. Henry Burr. Price 15 cents.

Self-Contradictions of the Bible.

One hundred and forty-four propositions, theological, moral, historical and speculative; each proved affirmatively and negatively by quotations from Scripture, without comment. Price 15 cents.

THOMAS PAINE'S Examination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old, and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cents.

POEMS OF PROGRESS.

By Lizzie Doten. They are really valuable. Price $1.00.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

The Progressive Thinker

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1897, NO. 390

THE PROCLAMATION.

Ethical Spiritualism and a Higher Civilization.

SPIRITUAL BASIS OF PRACTICAL BROTHERHOOD—POVERTY AND IGNORANCE DETRIMENTAL TO SPIRITUAL GROWTH.

From Canada to Florida, and from New England to California come responses to my proclamation. It is a roll call of the devoted adherents of a genuine Spiritualism. The response is, "Here I am, what shall I do?" This is a most important question, and its answer is rightfully demanded by those who have announced themselves as ready for service. But, it is impossible for me to answer personally all the letters received, and I, therefore, reply through the Thinker.

1. In the first place read, or have read, to all who will listen, the proclamation, and send me the names of all who approve.

2. Next, where there are two or more, have meetings and discuss the situation and try and evolve methods of reconstruction, not overlooking those proposed by others.

3. Secure all the subscribers possible for The Progressive Thinker.

4. Seek to inform all the members of your society of the fact that a movement is inaugurated to secure practical brotherhood, and overthrow the present hate and selfishness of society. Institute correspondence with those who are in fellowship with this great purpose.

5. Make the camp-meetings of the coming summer the field for diligent and successful work in propagating the truth. Induce the speakers on the platform to voice the great necessity for Spiritualism to assume a higher ethical position, and to consecrate itself to the work of securing radical changes in our laws, so that Liberty and Fraternity may become realities instead of mere boastful words.

6. Let those who are able write, and send an avalanche of articles to the spiritual press advocating the all-inclusive character of the Spiritualistic Philosophy; and hence, its universal applicability to all the relations and duties of this life as well as the possibilities of the future. Show up the impossibility of a true growth—a proper preparation for the hereafter, when want and constant toil are the heritage of our earthly life. Let it be seen, far and near, that the Spiritual Philosophy demonstrates the necessity of a noble life here in order to commencing a noble life in the future, and that such a life here is impossible to those who are compelled to suffer poverty and ignorance on the earth. The editors may not be able to print all that comes, but they will select the best, which is all we can ask.

7. Let there be a movement, all along the line, for a higher, grander, more loving life. An unyielding resolve for unity of heart and purpose, which most certainly will secure unity of effort.

We are living in the most momentous period of human history. The middle of this century was one of the most important eras in humanity's history. Our present civilization has reached its point of highest possible use to man. And the tremendous question is, shall it go down in blood, giving way to a wave of barbarism, as have those of the past; or, shall there be born from the transitionalism of the present, another and higher civilization for the centuries of the future. The philosophic optimist pronounces in favor of the latter proposition. He sees, in the geographical alignment of the nations, and the scientific status of the same, reasons why no such utter destruction of civilization can occur as has been in the past. He also sees the stupendous fact of the Spiritualistic Advent at this "ending of the ages." He well remembers that nearly 2,000 years ago, when the Greek Civilization was at the height of its splendor, there was another advent, and, that the genius of the Christian advent, in a short time, crushed out the culture of a thousand years and enthroned the dynasty of ignorance and despotism over the occidental world. But the genius of Spiritualism is aligned in harmony with the ever-soaring aspiration of all-conquering science. Instead of maledictions of damnation, it breathes peace and good will. Instead of kings and priests to rule, it is a pure democracy. Every man is a brother, entitled to all the advantages and opportunities of any other man.

Hence, though there may be some war and strife, they will be the expiring struggles of the dying civil and religious despotisms of the former eras. It was in the light and warmth of that optimistic forecast that our proclamation was sent out. With the same hope we send these suggestions for carrying on the good work.

PROF. J. S. LOVELAND.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

ALL CREEDS CALLED.

Congress of World's Religions to Be Held at Delhi, India.

WORD GOES FORTH—ONE OF THE FEATURES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR TO BE REPRODUCED—IN 1898 WORSHIPERS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD WILL MAKE THEIR WAYS TO THE LAND OF BRAHMA.

To the Editor:—As set forth by the Chicago Inter-Ocean, pious people who, in the awful visitation under which India is groaning, see the hand of Divine Providence seeking to call to the attention of the world the fact that men are mortal and should think of other and deeper things than those which absorb most of their attention, will find great satisfaction in the fact that from the heart of the country where the bubonic plague is raging there has gone forth a call for a great congress of religions in which every nation of the earth shall be represented. This is to meet at Delhi in 1898, and discuss the question of the true way of salvation according to the teachings of wise men of every race.

The call emanates from a Hindoo of illustrious descent, bearing the sonorous title of Maulana Syed Nusrat Ali Sahib, son of Inam-I-Manazira Sayad Nasir Ud Din Mahommed Abdul Nansur Nusrat. All is the editor and proprietor of the Moslem Chronicle, a Delhi paper, that is printed in both native and foreign languages, and has a wide circulation in India.

A WIDELY CIRCULATED PAPER.

In the office of the paper there are no less than 300 varieties of type, representing the printed characters of almost every known tongue in the civilized world, and the call for the great religious congress has been printed in various languages and scattered broadcast over the face of the earth. It has gone to the innermost recesses of China in those mysterious characters that only the Chinese understand, and disciples of Confucius are invited by it to come and explain on what grounds they base their belief that the way to heaven is through the worship of the gods of the celestial empire.

In Persian characters the theologians of the land of the Shah have been called to come and speak for their prophet, and the Sultan's most learned expositors have been invited in Turkish to do likewise. The Egyptians have been summoned from the shadow of the pyramids to defend their beliefs against the attacks of the pious people of England and elsewhere who preach that salvation can be found only by the way of the cross, and that Mohammed is a false prophet. In the purest Hebrew the Jews have been invited to present the claims of a religion that denies the divinity of Christ.

In Russia the call has gone both to the orthodox and the unorthodox of the churches throughout the Czar's broad domain, admonishing them to come and tell the anxious seekers from every clime the one true path to heaven, according to their creed.

Nor have the distant heathen been forgotten. The islanders of the Southern seas, who bow down to wood and stone, will receive messages in their native language, setting forth the objects of the congress, and telling them that even the worshippers of idols will be welcomed to the great gathering, and their views listened to with respect.

GREAT POLYGLOT GATHERING.

Hawaiians, both Christian and heathen, will be there; Salvationists filled with the deepest religious enthusiasm, will rub elbows with the medicine man from Africa, who carries his god beneath his robe, and believes he can influence the very elements with its aid. Imams form the mosque will compare notes with Methodists from missionary stations in the jungle; enthusiasts from Hindoo temples will reveal the mysteries of their teachings to the sympathetic theosophists; humble workers in the slums, who have believed and taught the gospel of scrubbing-brush and soapsuds, will shake hands with priests of the richest church.

All will be upon one common level, and the congress will be inspired by one thought—a fervent seeking after the knowledge that will aid men to find their way to the gates of heaven, with the assurance of admittance when their earthly race is run.

The call has been sent through the American agent of the congress, whose headquarters are at No. 18 Coenties Strip, New York, to every minister and priest of any prominence in America. Many have replied that they will be there. The call was couched in the following terms:

The objects of the congress are:

First—To bring together the eminent and leading representatives of all the religions of the world, with a view to enabling them to expound the merits of their respective creds.

Second—To give these representatives an opportunity of acquainting themselves with the main principle of every religion, and thereby enabling them to judge how far each religion is based on true and unimpeachable principles.

Third—To ascertain what practical, social, and moral effects each religion has produced upon the community professing it.

Fourth—To set forth how far the doctrines of each religion are in conformity with reason, science, and the laws of nature.

Fifth—To trace the origin of each religion and to scrutinize the system followed in the preservation of its tradition.

Sixth—To show in an exhaustive manner the various religious teachings common in each religion.

Seventh—To enable the representatives of various religions to draw conclusions as to the merits of the various religions—not in an antagonistic, but in a truth-seeking spirit.

Following this program are copies of letters received from all parts of the

(Continued on page 7.)

STATEMENT OF FACTS.

Will Some Agnostic Please Explain.

FACTS VERIFIED AND COMPILED BY AN EMINENT LAWYER OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

To the Editor:—At my request, the Hon. P. E. Dye, a prominent lawyer in Washington, verified and compiled the within "Statement of Facts."

Mr. Dye knew all the parties. I was acquainted with Dr. H. No one, however, knew the psychic—a very recent arrival, and a profound stranger to the parties named, who had never seen nor heard of the doctor.

The clear-cut message from Doctor H. to his three friends, by full name, and the expression of gratitude to Mr. Cresey for the peculiar and extraordinary attentions to him in his last hours, and at his obsequies, are unmistakable evidences that the communicating intelligence was familiar with the facts, and eagerly availed of the opportunity for testifying to their full recognition, after so-called death.

THESE ARE FACTS.

Now, as the venerable French Astronomer Arago—the eminent predecessor of Camille Flammarion, an avowed Spiritualist—said to Sardou, when informed by the latter of the psychic marvels he had witnessed:

"A fact is a fact, my children. It is no good striving against a fact. One ought simply to be satified to record it, and if the cause escapes us, who knows that perhaps the future may not reveal it."

I also mail you Rev. Minot J. Savage's Easter sermon in New York; from the Daily New York Journal; in which he alludes to the psychic marvels now transpiring in the modern world, corresponding to "precisely similar facts" and happenings recorded in the Old Testament and New.

He boldly affirms from his pulpit that this age has revealed—what Arago presaged would come in "the future"—the cause that then escaped us. And, that "there is not a religion on Earth, that has not had its birth in the midst of alleged facts of a similar kind."

We have found that not only these marvelous miracles are true, but we have found that clairvoyance and telepathy—not all that is said by clairvoyants—is true; for we are beginning to study the human mind; the last continent on earth to be explored."

These notable concessions from Metropolitan pulpits, republished in great secular journals, are a powerful propaganda, both of the phenomena and philosophy of Spiritualism. Truly yours, W. H. PARSONS.

STATEMENT OF FACTS.

Dr. James P. Hambilton, late of this city, born in Pittsylvania Co., Va., November 16, 1828, died in Providence Hospital, D. C., February 5, 1897. He was surgeon of Gen. Gordon's Reg't. from Ga., in the confederate army during the war of the rebellion.

He was a man of ability, had many friends, and came here many years ago to prosecute his claim for cotton for about $400,000, the money being in the U. S. Treasury, and I am told by a gentleman of ability, a lawyer of standing, that it only required the signature of the Secretary of the Treasury, and the money can be paid. The Doctor kept up his hope that the money would be paid, and did not follow his practice; and finally his wife died some years ago and her remains were placed in a vault at Oakland Cemetery where they remained till the death of her husband; but more anon.

Dr. Hambilton left at least three sons; one belonging to the Texas Rangers, U. S. A., in Texas; another in the employ of the U. S. Treasury Department, in some business in Florida; and the other, I have no information.

Dr. Hinds an old friend of the Doctor's, recently returned from the West, possibly in Texas, during the campaign, and learned with great sorrow of the death of his old friend, Dr. Hambilton.

Dr. Hinds writes for the Post. About two weeks ago, possibly longer, he called at the Hotel Oxford, corner New York avenue and 14th street, where was stopping at the time an Englishman, a stanger and a medium, on learning of which Dr. Hinds concluded to see what kind of a reading the medium could give him of his old friend.

The medium asked "What do you want; who would you like to call?" "My old friend, Dr. James P. Hambilton." The medium then went into a trance, and with closed eyes, said; "Your friend Dr. Hambilton is here, and he wants to send a message to C. E. Cresey; Rese B. Emondston, and Lewis Johnson. Tell Mr. Cresey that I am on another planet, and that I am well and happy with my wife; tell him that I thank him for his kindness to me and for burying my remains beside those of my wife. Tell Mr. Edmonston to take good care of his health and to look after my boy in Texas; tell Mr. Johnson to take good care of his health; and that I am well and happy with my wife on another planet.

SEQUEL.

The medium was a perfect stranger and did not know any of the parties named, or anything about them.

It appears that Dr. Hambilton for some time had been stopping at the Hotel Owen House, on Pa. avenue, West of the Willard; and that on the 3rd of February he sent for Mr. Cresey, a lawyer in the Cochran Building Corner of 15th and the avenue N. W., where Mr. Cresey found him very sick, and advised the Doctor to let him send him to the hospital, to which the Doctor consented. Calling a carriage, he sent him to Providence Hospital, sending $15 to pay his first week's board.

The doctor seemed to have struck rather hard lines. Thirty-six hours after he arrived at the Providence, he passed to the roll call in another country.

Mr. Cresey was telephoned to that the Doctor had passed away, and accord-

(Continued on page 7.)

TO FORCE THOUGHT.

How Prof. Elmer Gates Stimulates Intellectual Effort.

DOUBLES ONE'S POWERS—FOUNDED ON THE PRINCIPLE THAT THE BRAIN WORKS BETTER IN HIGHER ELECTRICAL POTENTIALS—ELECTRICAL THOUGHT CELL.

If a series of experiments lately begun in this city continue to give results thus far indicated, students and thinkers of all grades may before long be enabled to double their capacities for brain work by applying an odd electric apparatus devised by a well known Washington scientist to a study, office or any room in which special mental effort may be required. I have just paid a visit to one of the strangest workshops ever constructed for scientific research. It is an adjunct to the Laboratory of Psychology and Psychurgy erected in the environs of this city a year ago as an institution for the experimental study of the mind and its allied phenomena.

Professor Gates has permitted me to make the first announcement of his new experiments.

"For several years," he said, "I have been studying the forces which interact between individual and social groups, causing each individual to form a unit in a larger cosmical mentative process. The first of such forces which I have studied as interactive between individual and individual are the electrostatic waves in ether and the consequent charging of the air in which we live with a lower or higher electrical potential.

"My first step in this direction was the discovery of the fact that the same amount of mentative effort produces less fatigue in a uniform electrostatic environment than in an environment where the electric potential is constantly changing. It is well known that the potential of the air in any locality is in a state of constant change from high to low, frequently ranging from a low negative to a high positive in a few minutes or hours. With every such change I have found that the system has to regulatively adapt its functioning processes anew, and these frequent adaptations require energy.

"In a uniform electric environment this energy is conserved, and more mental work can be done.

"Thus when I select a series of several hundred images or ideas of a definite kind, arrange them in a certain order, and pass them through my mind in such a way that I distinctly reimage and reideate them in a certain order, doing this over and over again until my mind becomes fatigued, I find that I can go through a given series of images or ideas a greater number of times when in a uniform potential than in one frequently changing, that I can go through such a series oftener without fatigue in a high potential than in a low one, and that in a uniform and high potential I can go through such a series more quickly and vividly.

"But I have been able to make a still more interesting study of the action of electric waves upon mental activity by observing how electric potentials affect psychologic measurements of the reaction time. The reaction time is the interval of time which elapses between an impression of the senses and some muscular or other reaction. Thus, if a sudden sound be made the eyes are apt to involuntarily close. The interval between the sound and the first movement of the eyelids is the reaction time. When I cause an electric mechanism to touch the left hand of a person and tell the person to press an electric button the instant he feels that touch, and by means of a chronograph measure the interval elapsing between the touch and the pressure, I get what is called the reaction time to touch.

"Now, I have discovered that this reaction time is longer when the pupil sits in a room with a low potential than where the air is charged to a high potential. The effect is most noticeable after the pupil has been in such a potential constantly for a number of hours or days, but under favorable conditions it can be detected after being in such an atmosphere three or four hours. One person had a reaction time in a low potential of .21 seconds, and in a high potenial of .11 seconds.

"In like manner the senses become more acute when the person has been subjected for some time to the influence of high electric potentials. When two red disks are exposed to the view in a low potential and one disk is made redder than the other, but there being not enough difference to enable the pupil to detect that it is redder, then, if the air be charged to a high potential, after a sufficient time elapses the person will detect the difference, showing that the discrimination becomes more acute. I find, in short, that low potentials retard mentative processes, and that high potentials render them more distinct and quicker.

"I moved through a fixed distance an ounce weight on a dynamometer, keeping time with a metronome, until my finger refused through fatigue to move again. I did this in a low and frequently varying potential, and the greatest number of times the finger was moved in any of the twenty trials was 2,300 times; but in a high and uniform potential, in twenty other trials, the lowest number of movements was 3,420 times. I find the same is true of imaging, ideating the mental processes.

"In the light of these results it becomes evident that we do not live as much alone as we thought; our mentation is directly influenced electrostatically by all living things, and especially by all living things in our environment directly as the square of the distance. I am studying these phenomena, and shall arrange better facilities as I go along, and I hope to determine as accurately as possible the laws according to which electric conditions of the air and electric waves affect each one of the mental processes."

HAUNTINGS.

Spirits Haunt French Family.

UNACCOUNTABLE PHENOMENA FRIGHTEN THE GOOD PEOPLE OF YZEURES—VERY MYSTERIOUS SOUNDS—INVISIBLE TORMENTORS NEVER SEEM TO LEAVE LITTLE RENEE SABOURAULT — OCCULTISTS INTERESTED.

There are plenty of haunted houses, says the New York Herald, but who ever heard of a haunted family? And yet just now all France is talking of such a family. A few months ago the so-called haunted house at Valence-en-Brie attracted crowds of sightseers; today all eyes are turned upon the Sabourault family. This family is now living at Yzeures, which is a charming district in Touraine. M. Sabourault is a contractor, and he went to Yzeures some time ago, having secured a contract to build a church there. From the moment he set foot in the place until now he and his family have lived a most unenviable life. Invisible beings seemed to have taken possession of them and all their belongings. The story goes that the furniture in their rooms is constantly shifted from one place to another; that invisible fingers are heard scratching on the walls and doors; that the beating of drums is often heard; that tables are overturned; that lamps are extinguished—in a word, that the entire house seems possessed of an army of uncanny demons.

Yet the house is not to blame. The Sabouraults lived twenty years ago at Poiters, and there, too, the mysterious phenomena occurred. Subsequently they moved to Bournau and thence to London, but wherever they went the spirits went with them. Not for a moment did the persecution cease; nay, it became even more intense and cruel. Especially bitter was it whenever there was a death in the family. Then the tormentors held high revel, seeming to vie with each other in mocking and torturing the afflicted family.

At Yzeures this extraordinary state of things continues, the special victim at present being Renee, the twelve-year-old daughter of the family. Not for a moment is she left at peace. No matter whether she stays at home with her parents or goes to spend a few days at a friend's house, some mysterious presence is ever with her, filling the room in which she sits with mysterious sounds and moving the furniture with invisible hands. Moreover, a curious fact is that when she leaves home all the tormentors go with her and her father and mother enjoy peace until she returns.

Every one in Yzeures has heard this story, and many worthy persons have passed the night in the strange house and have heard the unaccountable sounds heretofore described. Among these watchers have been a few prominent officials and merchants. All are satisfied that the phenomena are the work of spirits, and insist that they cannot be the result of trickery. M. Raymond Duplantier, a well known lawyer of Poiters, spent four nights in the house. During the first three nights were heard the usual sounds—rolling of drums, scratching on doors, creaking of furniture, etc.—but during the fourth night still stranger phenomena appeared.

"At ten o'clock," says M. Duplantier, describing the occurrences of this night, "we heard several distinct blows, as though struck by a bony finger. To my repeated inquiries the invisible being replied by three clear and sonorous blows or by energetic scratching. Then the noise ceased, and for five hours we heard nothing. But about three o'clock in the morning we heard a large, heavy body slowly descending the staircase leading from the attic. The tread of huge feet coming slowly down, step by step, was heard distinctly by us. The staircase, though almost new and very strong creaked and groaned as though laboring under an enormous weight. Next loud noises were heard in the various rooms. We took lights and searched everywhere, but nothing tangible could we find. During the remainder of the night distant sounds, apparently coming from some place above the house, were heard and the noise of them was like that of many drums."

On the other hand, M. Gustave Kahn, a prominent anti-Spiritualist, also spent some time in this house, investigating the matter, and he claims that nothing supernatural has occurred and that all the mysterious sounds are the work of the little girl, Renee, who enjoys fooling persons in this way.

But, then, scores of witnesses insist that Renee is innocent and that the mysterious sounds can only be produced by supernatural agency. A prominent railroad official says that Renee spent a few days recently at his house and that the sounds were heard even in clear daylight, wherever she went, a sure indication, in his opinion, that the spirit or spirits accompany her everywhere.

The matter was brought to the attention of the French Society of Psychical Sciences at its last meeting. Dr. Encausse, who is better known as Papus, and who is one of the most distinguished occultists living, told the story of the haunted family at Yzeures, and asked whether the society intended to make an investigation. The matter was debated for some time, and the conclusion reached was that it would not be practicable or advisable to send an investigating committee to Yzeures just at present. Dr. Encausse then suggested that Renee should be invited to appear before the society. "Since these strange phenomena evidently accompany here everywhere," he pointed out, "they will also manifest themselves when she appears before us. In that case we will be able to cure the girl, for she is undoubtedly sick, and, once cured, she will not again be troubled by spirits." This suggestion met with general approval, but the meeting closed without any definite action being taken.

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS.

Balaam and His Remarkable Animal.

The Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Chicago, lately preached another of his "Stumbling Blocks" sermons, taking for his theme "The Story of Balaam and the Ass." He said;

"Balaam and his ass have been the laughing stock of the ages, and yet he is very seriously dealt with in the scriptures. Leaving for the present the ass out of the account, the mad prophet himself is one of the profoundest enigmas in the Bible. He is styled a prophet, and yet plays the fool. He utters the loftiest sentiments, and yet performs the basest actions. He speaks like an inspired of God, and yet behaves like one possessed of the Devil.

"So conscientious was he that he would not utter a word against Israel though Balak should give him a whole houseful of silver and gold. And yet a little later he suggested to Balak the infernal device of turning loose a lot of lewd women among the Israelites and thus accomplishing by indirection what he was either too conscientious or too cowardly directly to do.

"And this same incongruous and contradictory prophet died at last like a dog—fighting against the people he had so lauded in his prophecies. Strange medley, this, of prophecy and profanity, of saintly sentiment and satanic scheming.

"The Lord can use any man, and can speak through sinful human lips or through the innocent mouth of an ass if he pleases, as he is said to have done in rebuking the madness of his ancient prophet.

"'But,' says some smattering little philosopher, 'do you really think it credible that an ass ever talked like a man?' We are tempted to answer that question as an old woman once did who said: 'It is no more remarkable that an ass should talk like a man than that a man should talk like an ass.'

"Why could not the Lord speak to Balaam as well through the mouth of an ass as to Moses out of the midst of a burning bush? God can speak to man through any kind of mouth, and the real difficulty in the way of the acceptance of this or any other of the marvels recorded in the Bible is the fact that men have not got into their heads the conception of a God Almighty.

"We might ask the evolutionist why monkeys are no more turning into men, though, unfortunately, of the converse we have instances in plenty. Philosophers and theologians are alike obliged to believe that some things are done long ago that are not being repeated now.

"God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever, but his methods vary, and it need not surprise us if in the infancy of the race he used kindergarten methods which in a later period of development would have been incongruous and out of character."

After reading the profound exegesis by Rev. Henson, of the Bible "Story of Balaam and the Ass," we are fain to acknowledge our conversion to a belief in the literal truth of the inspired scripture story. It is no more difficult to swallow the stories of "Jonah and the Whale" and "Balaam and the Ass," than it is to believe that "God" speaks through the mouth of a modern orthodox minister. Since Rev. Henson "spoke his piece," we no longer doubt that Balaam's Ass spoke; and we thoroughly coincide with that old woman: "It is no more remarkable that an ass should talk like a man, than that a man should talk like an ass." SELAH.

TWILIGHT

In the gloaming, when the shadows
Fall athwart the land and sea,
Gliding ghostlike o'er the meadows,
Touch with mystery the lea,
Then my fancy, fleetly flying,
Roams in rapture realms unseen,
And the night-winds softly sighing,
Whisper, "Life is but a dream."

Eerie shadows, fold me closer
In your mystical embrace,
For within your fretted archways
Lingers many a well-loved face,
And along your mazy windings
Graceful forms like phantoms glide,
And again in memory's fancy
Are they dwelling at my side.

Loved and lost ones, now returning,
Guests of twilight, vague and dim,
Separated from us only
By a filmy veil so thin
That, when evening hours enfold us,
We can almost hear them speak,
And the trembling night-wind carries
Fragrant kisses to our cheek,

From the lips of those we cherish,
Risen ones are they—not dead.
No dark grave had power to hold them,
But to heaven their souls have fled.
And at twilight's hour returning
To the dear ones yet on earth,
Whisperings in the air around us
Tell us of the soul's new birth,

Into realm of peace and beauty,
Where the bright immortals stay,
Where no night comes, but forever
Shines eternal, perfect day.
Realm of spirits, when I enter
Through your shadowy portals dim,
May I meet and dwell with loved ones
In that home unhurt by sin.

LIZZIE DUCKER LYNESS.
Duluth, Minn.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of infomation on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE NATIONAL.

SPLENDID PROGRESS MADE BY THE N. S. A.

During the past three months the correspondence attended to at the N. S. A. headquarters was considerably more than twice the number of letters received and answered during the whole of the first year of the Association's existence.

Fifteen applications for charters have been received during that time. At the present ratio nearly every society in the country will be united with the N. S. A. before the Fiftieth Anniversary shall arrive.

The N. S. A. to become a strong and permanent institution must be backed by strong, healthy, progressive State Associations. What has been accomplished in Massachusetts, New York, California and Ohio can be accomplished in other States, if Spiritualists will awake and aid the N. S. A. representatives.

The board of trustees recently voted to extend thanks to the New Orleans Picayune, Baltimore Herald, and Washington Star for the progressive position these papers had taken upon the subject of Spiritualism. Also voted to extend thanks to all who had assisted at Mass-Meetings.

Pittsburg, Pa., and Detroit, Mich., made applications for a Mass-meeting, a special invitation being extended from Detroit business men represented by their Convention League.

A large number of contributing members have been added to the list recently.

Thanks are due Mrs. E. D. Smith, Indianapolis; Mrs. Herman Snow, Cambridge; Mrs. L. W. Eager, Fitchburg; Alonzo Danforth, Boston; Father N. U. Lyon, Fall River; Mr. W. H. Bach, Springfield, for valuable donations of books.

The celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism under the auspices of the N. S. A. will be the grandest Spiritualist demonstration ever held in America. Frank Walker, Esq., manager of this department of work of the N. S. A., makes very encouraging reports in regard to progress of the same. All communication in regard to this meeting should be addressed to him.

No Mass-meeting held under auspices of the N. S. A. has been a failure, and most of them have been a pronounced success. Arrangements are being perfected for a grand mass meeting in the fall of '97 at Nashville, Tenn. The most able talent in America will represent Spiritualism there. The outlook for the Cause in the South is very encouraging if means can be secured to extend the influence of the revival of interest now being awakened. Representatives of the N. S. A. will will begin work at Nashville at once.

It is very essential that all societies charatered by the N. S. A. endeavor to pay their annual dues before adjourning for the summer. Each society should be represented at the Convention in October by a delegate. To raise funds to pay expenses of these delegates is all that most societies can do in the full before convention. Liquidate your financial obligations to the N. S. A. at once.

The National Association does not ordain ministers. This important business must be attended to by State and local societies; representatives of said societies should use great care whom they thus endorse.

Every little while reports are filed at this office in regard to Evangelists and others who claim to represent the N. S. A. N. S. A. Missionary Certificates expire each year at Convention time. Persons claiming now to be missionaries must show papers signed by the President and Secretary, dated 1897.

This is the Fiftieth year of Spiritualism. Organization can be made in a short time a perfect success if all rally around the N. S. A. If its affairs are not conducted to suit you, the remedy is easy. Its officers will gladly at any time deposit their load of responsibility and care on other shoulders if the summons shall come from angels and mortals, "Your work is done." Until then they will struggle along determined to succeed, always thankful for kind words and financial aid. Organization means triumph to be achieved?

The secretary desires to return thanks for sympathy and love extended to him by friends from Maine to California on account of his recent bereavement. Your kind words have been appreciated, your sympathy also. I cannot reply to all with a personal letter. There are no friends, however, so much appreciated as those who in hours of distress stand loyal and true.

One by one the "old guard" are being transplanted. Shall we of to-day remembering their achievements strive to do our best in sustaining the N. S. A. and all it represents? Are you doing your share to assist it?

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY,
Secretary N. S. A.

"The Prophets of Israel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

"The Philosophy of Spirit, and the Spirit-World." By Hudson Tuttle. A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of Humanity, a Philosophy of Life." By J. Leon Benwell. An interesting and thoughtful pamphlet. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

SPIRITUALISM

As Viewed by an Eminent Physician.

SOME EVIDENCES FOR THE KNOWLEDGE THAT IS WITHIN ME OF A FUTURE EXISTENCE—BY H. V. SWERINGEN, A. M., M. D., OF FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

I have never been in the city of New York, yet the evidences I have received of the existence of that metropolis are so great and numerous that I feel that I am justified in the statement that I know there is in these United States a great city called New York.

It will be unnecessary for me to mention a single one of the hundreds of proofs that there is in this country such a city. No skeptic, however unreasonable in regard to Spiritualism, will question for one moment my right to say, or the propriety of saying, that I know there is a city called New York, notwithstanding the fact that I have never been there. If, however, before a court of justice, my knowledge of the existence of such a city depended upon my having been in it, I would be obliged to swear that I do not know that there is in America such a city as New York.

I know there is such a city as Chicago, not only because of the numerous evidences of the character that make me know of the existence of New York, but because of the additional fact that I have been to Chicago a number of times. I can, therefore, in a court of justice, make oath to the fact, or positively swear that there is such a city as Chicago.

But, although I have visited Chicago frequently, I know very little about Chicago. It would not be difficult for me to lose myself in her streets. Indeed, I have done so almost every time I have been there, having been unable to tell East from West, nor North from South, and have frequently been obliged to ask a policeman to set me right.

THE SPIRIT WORLD.

Now, I have never been to the Spirit-world, but I have received certain evidences that to me are satisfactory and conclusive that there is such a world; a world or condition in which the spirits of my departed friends still exist and are able under certain conditions, or by the observance of certain laws as yet but little understood, to make their continued existence manifest to me.

As little as I know about Chicago and New York, I know immeasurably less about the Spirit-world, of which I have as yet obtained but the faintest glimpse, hardly worth noticing. But I have had communications from the Spirit-world, as I have had communications from Chicago and New York. At any rate I have had letters on slates signed by the names of departed friends who were utter strangers to the medium through whose aura or peculiar influence—call it magnetic, electric, psychic of what you will—they came, and concerning matters that no one knew anything about save those departed friends whose names were thus signed to these messages, and myself.

In many instances the medium did not touch the slates, nor were they at any time out of my possession. In most instances I could feel the vibration of and hear the noise peculiar to slate-writing while messages were being written, and while the medium was seated at a distance from me, which fact alone would preclude the possibility of their being written by his or her hands.

VOLCANIC RUMBLING.

Does the skeptical reader say that this is all absurd, ridiculous, foolish, nonsensical, impossible, ignorance, superstitious, contemptible? If he does say so, it does not surprise me nor offend me; indeed I am in true sympathy with him, because I said all this myself but a few years ago. But I said the same in regard to the Atlantic Cable, the telephone, the phonograph, the electric car, hypnotism, etc. Finally, however, I began to "see the point;" the drift of things; to discover in all these so-called "impossibilities" a practical illustration of the law of evolution; that there was progress being made in every department of thought save in old orthodox theology and even that was like the volcano, trembling and rumbling preparatory to one grand eruption of decomposed, fossilized ideas, to take place perhaps, before the end of the present century. The fact that the old black cloud of ignorance, superstition, intolerance and "impossibility" has been penetrated by the glorious X-rays of possibility and evolution, now stands out in bold relief.

A little of said volcanic rumbling was heard at Chautauqua last summer, when Bishop Vincent in a lecture or sermon made the declaration which has since been indorsed by Rev. Dr. Buckley, that: "A disbelief in the deity or divinity of Christ need not necessarily prevent a man from becoming a Christian." A little more of the same kind of rumbling was heard in Pittsburg a short time prior, in a sermon delivered by Bishop Foster, in which he said: "We think sin caused death, and we are accustomed to say so. It is not true! Death is God's normal method of the universe! God made the universe for death!"

EVIDENCES OF FUTURE EXISTENCE.

But I started out to give some of the evidences for the knowledge that is within me of a future exisence, and will therefore proceed to this duty.

STORY OF HER CHILDHOOD.

1. A few years ago, in conversation with my mother, then in her eighty-fourth year of age, and who had all her life been a Methodist, and had no belief in or sympathy with Spiritualism, I said to her: "Mother, in all probability, you will pass over to the beyond before I do; if such should be the case, I want you to come back to me." She laughed and said: "Well, Hiram, I will if I can; but I have not the least idea that I can."

"But," said I "your ideas may change very radically when you get over there. Now, let us agree upon some test you will give me if you find that you can return and communicate with me."

"After reflecting a little she said: "Well, if I find I can come back to you, I will tell you this story of my childhood." She then went on and related the story. I had heard her relate it many times when I was a boy at home (she was now making her home with me), and while I knew the story by heart, I allowed her to tell it to a finish and then said: "All right. This story is to be the test you will give me if you discover that you can return and communicate with me."

I made known the fact to my family that mother and I had agreed upon a test she was to give me, but was careful to make no mention of its character to any person, not even my wife.

In the course of about a year after this agreement, mother passed over to the great majority, and we conveyed her remains from my residence in Fort Wayne to the family burial lot at our old home near Canton, Ohio.

She was buried on March 2,1895, and on the following Easter Sunday morning I attended a trumpet seance given by Mrs. Seery-Hibbitts of Muncie, Indiana, in Fort Wayne.

In order to be brief, I have simply to say that in a voice calling me by the name with which mother always addressed me, and which, I believe, was unknown to every other person in that circle, I not only received the story upon which we had agreed as the test, and which was related in the hearing of all present, but the same voice named every one of the parties who acted as pall-bearers from my house to the depot, and all those who acted as such from the hearse to the grave where her body was deposited, besides a number of her old friends who had met her corpse at the cemetery. This voice purporting to be that of my mother, also exclaimed that she now knew Spiritualism to be true, and that while her body was in the casket in the baggage-car, her spirit was back in the coach with her children, naming every one of us.

GARRETT VAN SWERINGEN.

2. My wife and self and son Garrett, ten years of age—whom we named for the original ancestor of the family, who emigrated to this country from Holland, in 1669—visited the World's Fair at Chicago. While I was looking in a showcase in the Maryland exhibit, I espied an old dirk labelled: "Once the property of Garrett Van Sweringen, who landed in Maryland in 1669," etc.

Having had in my possession for many years a copy of the naturalization papers of this ancestor for whom I had named one of my sons, I naturally took considerable interest in this relic and called the attention to it of my wife and son—the latter I was obliged to lift to enable him to see the relic. Nothing more was thought of this than as a mere interesting reminiscence, until a few years after, in a trumpet seance given by a stranger by the name of Rockwell, I was addressed by a voice giving the name of said original ancestor, who reminded me of my visit to the World's Fair, and of the discovery of his old dirk, as already related. He spoke of the fact of my lifting his little namesake up so that he could see the relic. I then asked a number of questions which I formed from what I knew was contained in my copy of his naturalization papers, all of which were answered in perfect accord therewith. His name has been given to me through several platform test mediums. I asked him at this trumpet seance who and where he married. The voice replied: "Barbarah De Barrett, in Valegchene." The naturalization paper has it thus: "Barbarah De Barrett in Valegchene, in the Low Countryes belonging to the King of Spayne."

JOHN URE PRESENTS HIMSELF.

3. An intimate friend and near neighbor of my daughter, Mrs. Chas. Fellowes, residing in Chicago, but then at my house on a visit, had with his family, wife and two children, gone to Texas about a year previously, for the benefit of his health, he being a consumptive. In a seance given at my house by Mrs. Seery-Hibbitts, the trumpet approaching very near to Mrs. Fellowes, a voice throught it called her by name and announced its own as that of John Ure. My daughter, who had had little experience in or with trumpet circles, becoming somewhat excited, replied that so far as she knew John Ure was not dead. The voice responded: "I am not dead, having only passed out of my body in Texas on Saturday, and my remains are now on their way to Chicago for burial." He entered into a number of details unnecessary here to mention, of some of which my daughter was cognizant; of others perfectly ignorant. He spoke of the fact that he was glad his family was amply provided for by his life insurance, if it would take care of it, etc. This seance was held on Monday evening, The next morning the postman brought a letter to my daughter from her husband, announcing the fact that a dispatch had been received in Chicago conveying the news of the death of John Ure in Texas. On the following morning (Wednesday) she received another letter from her husband containing the statement that the body of John Ure had arrived in Chicago and that he was to act as one of the pall-bearers.

A PRESBYTERIAN LADY.

4. There sat to my left in one of Mrs. Hibbitts' seances a prominent lady member of the Presbyterian church, whose brother, a preacher, died in one of the Southern States not many months prior. She attended his funeral. The trumpet approaching her, the voice therefrom addressed her as "my dear sister," then, announcing his name, gave test after test, talked of the long ago, and assured her that his last words and thoughts were about here, which she said was true, as told her by the family. He reminded her of arriving late at his funeral, which he said was postponed on her account, and that his remains laid in state in his church a whole day and night. He spoke of the buildings that were draped out of respect to his memory, and of the colored people turning out at his funeral, giving the name of the person in command of them. Indeed, he entered into many of the details of his funeral, as well as those of other matters, all of which were unknown to every other person in the circle, but pronounced wonderfully true by the lady receiving the communication.

SPEAKING WITH TONGUES.

5. I have sat in Mrs. Hibbitts' circles when every language represented by the mixed and promiscuous sitters was spoken through the trumpet and sometimes independently of it. Upon one of these occasions, my friend W. H. Blondoit, received a communication in French from his mother, who had passed out recently. Among many things she said to him in French was that he would find seven dollars in silver in one of her shoes, which he afterward found as directed. She sang old French songs in which she requested her son to join her. So far as I know, Mrs. Hibbitts speaks and writes but one language, which is the English. I have heard communications in her seances in the English, Irish, German, Bohemian, Hebrew, French, Low Dutch and Latin languages.

THE FALSE TEETH.

6. A few years ago, one Sunday night about 11 o'clock, I was called hastily to see Mrs. A., an old lady residing a few squares away. When I arrived at her bedside she was dead. Standing around her bed were her two daughters and myself, discussing her sudden departure. One of the daughters finally asked me if I would not place in the mouth of her deceased mother, her false teeth, which request I complied with at once. A year or more subsequently, in one of Mrs. Hibbitt's seances, a voice purporting to be that of Mrs. A. addressed me, and to satisfy me that it was Mrs. A. who was talking, reminded me of the above-mentioned circumstance, with other tests equally convincing.

7. Upon another similar occasion I was hastily summoned to the bedside of Col. Chas. A. Zollinger, Mayor of the city of Fort Wayne. Upon approaching his bedside and placing my hand over his heart, I said as gently as I could to his wife who was kneeling by the bed, that his heart had ceased to beat. She arose, placed her arms around me and implored me not to say that he was dead, and to do something quick. Although satisfied of the futility of resorting to any measure looking to his restoration, I administered a hypodermic injection of a diffusible stimulant, but of course, to no purpose.

A short time after his burial I attended a seance given by Mrs. Barrett who, with myself and two others constituted the entire circle. It was not long until a voice from the trumpet called me by name. I asked whose it was when the response came: "Zollinger." What! said I, Mayor Zollinger! Having answered in the affirmative, he went on and detailed minutely everything that happened during my stay in his room, voluntarily, without my asking a single leading question. No one in the circle by myself knew that I had been called to see him.

RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD.

8. In the year 1878 I was physician to the Allen County Infirmary. Three of the Irish inmates died so closely together as to be buried at the same time. In the night after their burial I assisted in the resurrection of their bodies and conveying them to the dissecting room of the Fort Wayne Medical College, which dissecting room was then located on Barr street. Guilty as I was of this then misdemeanor (now it is a penitentiary offence, but the law grants us the bodies of all who die unclaimed by friends, provided we make the proper application to the authorities), I say guilty as I was of this violation of the law, I had almost forgotten it when two years ago this winter, in a seance given by Mr. George Hail, I was forcibly reminded of it by a voice in Irish accents through the trumpet calling me by name and purporting to be that of "Mike" or "Moike" who was "one of the three" as he put it, who were resurrected etc., giving all of the particulars, into which it is not necessary here to enter. Suffice it to say that it was all true.

A MEDICAL STUDENT.

9. In a seance given by M. A. B. Finney in this city a year ago last October, a voice calling me by name through the trumpet said: "You do not know or remember me, but I know you very well. I was one of your students in the Medical College of Fort Wayne when it was located on Broadway. My name is George F. Vesey and I am from La Grange County, Indiana. I wish you would write to my wife and tell her that I still live." Where is your wife? I inquired. "She lives in Stuttgart, Arkansas," was the response. What is her name? I asked. "Lizzie" was the reply, etc.

I did not remember any medical student of that name, and on the following day I made some inquiries concerning him. I went to the residence of one Mrs. Lehman who boarded a number of medical students in the years 1878-9 and 80. I asked her to mention a few of the names of the students who boarded with her, and the first one she named was that of George F. Vesey. I asked her what she knew about him and she said that he died a year ago, that he was married and lived somewhere in the South; that his remains were brought here and buried in our cemetery, and that he was raised she thought in La Grange, Indiana.

Do you know the name of his wife? I asked. "I think her name was Lizzie" she replied. I then endeavored to get a list of the students of the old medical college of Fort Wayne, the predecessor of the present Fort Wayne College of Medicine, but did not succeed.

I was not aware of the existence of any town in this country of the name of "Stuttgart," but concluded to address a letter to the name and address as given me by the voice through the trumpet, and did so, placing my address on the envelope for its return to me if not called for or delivered. My letter did not call for any reply and received none. Doubtless the wife was not a believer in Spiritualism and regarded the matter indifferently. I was informed, however, that she remailed my letter to her brother-in-law in this city. If she did so, he has never said anything about it to me.

THANKS—THANKS.

10. In February last I officiated at the funeral of Brother N. P. Stockbridge. The first seance I attended after it, a voice purporting to be that of N. P. Stockbridge, thanked me for my services upon that occasion. The only objection he said he had to my remarks was that they were too flattering, or that they gave him more credit than he deserved.

11. In the following June I officiated likewise at the funeral of Dr. L. P. Harris. In a seance soon after, he also thanked me for my services etc., etc., etc.

COULD NOT GUESS.

12. A year or more ago, one Sunday afternoon, in one of Mrs. Hibbitts' seances, a voice called me by name and said: "I suppose I will have to call you 'Doctor' now; we used to call you 'Harry.' I don't think you can guess who I am."

"Are you from Fort Wayne?" I asked.

"No, I am from Navarre, Stark County, Ohio," said the voice.

This being the town in which I was born and raised, having left it to come to Fort Wayne when I was but sixteen years of age, and never heretofore received any communications from early or boyhood friends who had departed this state of existence, I naturally became very much interested and curious to know who it could be. I guessed a number of names but without success. Finally the voice said: "I told you you could not guess who I am;" continuing, I understood the voice then to say "I am Mary Chapman." "But," said I, very much disappointed, "I do not know of any old Stark County deceased friend of the name of 'Mary Chapman.'

"No! no! no!" said the voice, "I did not say 'Mary' Chapman, I said Marion Chapman."

"Oh!" said I. "I remember Marion Chapman like a book." The voice then asked me: "Do you remember, Harry, when you raked and bound in my father's harvest field, and followed me while I drove the reaper?"

"Certainly," said I, "as vividly as tho' it were but yesterday." After he had spoken of many other things equally well remembered by me, I said: "How in the world Marion, did you happen to come into this seance or circle to-day? It must be thirty-six or thirty-seven years since you entered spirit life."

"Well," said he, "I was just passing by, and heard some singing, and concluded to drop in, when I discovered that you was the only person present that I knew."

"OLD BLACK ANN."

13. A few months ago, in a seance given by Miss Daniels, a newly-developed trumpet medium, I was addressed in darkey accents by two different voices, the one giving the name of "old black Ann" and the other that of "old black Jim."

I can just barely remember these colored individuals. The former was a servant in my father's family and the other or latter was a great religious character. He was almost constantly engaged for revivals and camp-meetings throughout the country roundabout. For my benefit he sang several of his old revival hymns which carried me back to "Ole Virginny," or rather to the days of my childhood in old "Molly Stark" County, Ohio, with the most pathetic effect.

I have received in the seances of Miss Daniels many messages and tests from a large number of relatives and friends gone before. Frequently in these dark seances I have taken out of my pockets and held in my hands different articles such as spectacles, knife, watch, a silver dollar when occasionally I was fortunate enough to possess one, and the invisible intelligences would always correctly name the article when I myself nor any other person in the circle could see it.

EXCELLENT TESTS BY F. CORDEN WHITE.

14. While sitting in an audience in the auditorium at Cassadaga camp a few years ago, Mr. F. Corden White, the noted platform test medium, who was then an entire stranger to me, among other remarkable tests he was giving, announced that he now heard the names of four spirits: Budd and Newton and Harry and Newton, who say they are known in Fort Wayne, Indiana; they are brothers and sons of that gentleman over yonder (pointing directly to me). Upon another occasion he told me that a spirit came for my recognition giving the name of R. D. C. Huestis. Mr. White gave the names in full which the initials represented. All of these tests were perfectly correct.

Robt. D. C. Huestis was one of my chums, being one of my first acquaintances after I came to Fort Wayne. He died thirty-two or thirty-three years ago or more.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH MESSAGE.

15. At Cassadaga a few years ago, I went to a slate-writing medium for a sitting. The first half of the time occupied I devoted to the reception of voluntary messages or to whatever letters might be addressed to me unsolicited or without asking any questions. I received a number of such which were extremely interesting. Several were from or signed by names unknown to me, while others bore the names of prominent individuals in the world's history. I then addressed a question to a deceased brother who was quite a scholar in several languages. I requested him to answer partly in English and partly in French or German. The reply came in a few minutes and upon opening the slates I was delighted to find its first half in English and the latter in French. Being entirely ignorant of every language but that of English and not very well up in it, I was soon fortunate in having a skeptical investigator who had heard of this communication and who was a teacher of languages—Prof. Walker, of the Johns Hopkins University—call upon me for its examination. Friend Walker who subsequently received a number of messages in various languages and became convinced of the truth of Spiritualism before he left the camp, translated the French part of my message, pronouncing it the very best of French, and expressive of the very noblest sentiment. The English part of it was in direct answer to my question which the medium did not see neither did she touch the slates. This medium was Mrs. Maud Gillette, and the message was received in broad open day.

PAINTING BY SPIRITS.

16. My wife visited the spirit artist, Mr. Campbell, at Cassadaga, whose sittings are also in the daylight. She placed a plate of white porcelain probably 10x14 in size between two slates, placed a rubber band or several of them around the slates to keep them from slipping, laid them on her lap, when Mr. Campbell placed upon them a little dish or saucer of paints of various colors, and my wife's gloves, then took his seat at a distance of three or four feet away. In exactly twenty minutes he told her she might go down stairs and open carefully the slates. She did so and found an exquisitely-beautiful painting, crescent in shape, upon the porcelain, the paint being fresh, moist, almost disposed to run, requiring several days to become perfectly dry, and also, she found a written message on each slate, one signed by the name of my brother alluded to in No. 15., and the other signed by the name of her grandmother.

INSPIRED AS THE PROPHETS.

17. At both of my visits to Cassadaga, I heard lectures and addresses and poems and answers to profound, scientific, theological, moral and philosophical questions propounded by the audience, from the lips of Mrs. Cora L.V. Richmond, Mrs. Jennie B. Hagan Jackson, Mrs. Lillie and others that I believe were impossible for them to dpulicate or repeat in their ordinary conditions. In other words, I am satisfied they lectured scientifically and profoundly philosophically upon subjects about which they knew absolutely nothing of themselves. In still other words, I believe they were inspired as were the prophets of old. After one of the intellectual feasts given by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, I went upon the platform to congratulate and thank her for it. She modestly informed me that she was not entitled to any credit for it; that she was but the instrument through which her intelligent spirit guides spoke, and that she was not conscious of what she had said in the last hour. And then I thought: can it be possible? In this frame of mind I walked over to the hotel, where I saw a man apply a little electricity to a cylinder of gum upon which a vocalist away down in Boston several years before, breathed a few words in song, and reproduce it exactly as originally rendered. Then I said to myself: yes, it is possible. Mrs. Cora Richmond's brain might represent that gum or wax cylinder, so sensitive and delicate as to be played upon by the influences of her spirit guides, and by the aid of her own magnetic mediumship, reproduce from her lips the intelligent impressions thus received upon her brain.

BISHOP SIMPSON.

Nor do I believe that these inspirational discourses are confined exclusively to the spiritualistic platform. I have occasionally heard sermons from the pulpit which I now believe were inspired, but they were not upon doctrinal or sectarian subjects. They were broad, comprehensive, grand discourses upon themes of universal application and to which people of all sects and creeds could listen with pleasure and profit. I remember hearing the lamented Bishop Simpson preach such a sermon the effect of which upon me at least, has been and will be lasting. I can at present almost feel the thrill of grandeur, delight, elevation, sublimity with which his memorable discourse inspired me. Indeed the entire audience was equally enraptured, entirely lifted above all sublunary things.

THE CROCK OF BUTTER

18. An automatic writing medium sat down and wrote off for me message after message, signing them each with the names in full of friends who had departed this life, ten, fifteen, twenty, thirty, and forty years ago. To a friend that was with me, he said: "Your mother is here," naming her in full. "She gives me this to tell you as a test that will satisfy you. She says that when you was a boy, she let a crock of butter down in a well one very warm day, fastened the rope by which it was suspended, at the top. You came along and cut the rope. A year from that day the crock was lifted out of the well and the butter found to be as fresh and good as when let down in it." In the language of the day this test paralyzed my friend, for he said it was all true, and happened many years ago.

MATERIALIZED FORMS THAT VANISHED.

19. In the month of June, 1894, one of my patients, an elderly lady, died after a long illness. At her request, I was present with her during the last two or three hours of her mortal life. She was conscious, I believe, up to her very last breath.

In the month of August following, I visited Cassadaga. At one of my sittings for slate-writing I received a beautiful message signed by her name in full. My wife and I with several other Fort Wayne people, subsequently attended a materializating seance, Mrs. Maud Gillette being the medium. The room was unusually lighted for a seance of this character. Every person in it could be readily recognized from any part of it. I believe that I could have read ordinary newspaper print by the light it contained. Many of the forms that appeared in this seance built themselves up from two to four feet or more away from and independent of the cabinet, in the full view of every person in the room. The cabinet consisted of a few curtains stretched across a solid corner of the room, a chair behind them on which the medium sat entranced. The curtains did not reach within three or four feet of the ceiling. There was no room behind but for the chair and its occupant. In the course of a few minutes, the control of the medium announced to me in a loud, clear voice, that a lady desired to materialize for me. I responded with "I would be glad to witness the materialization." I was then directed to stand in about the center of the circle, which was in the shape of a horse-shoe, the cabinet being situated at the opening. I must have stood from three to five feet away from and in front of the cabinet which apparently at least, did not seem to be concerned in the phenomenon about to be produced. I was directed to watch the floor at my feet. I did so. Presently I saw a light cloudy something about as large as my fist, from which I did not take my eyes until it developed gradually, steadily, step by step, into a human form of a size as large if not taller than myself, which I recognized as the lady at whose transition in June I was present, and called her by name, taking her by her right hand at the same time.

She was glad that I recognized her, talked lovingly of her family and reminded me of occurrences that took place in her room during the last few hours of her mortal existence, which no one present knew anything of but she and myself. Finally, she called up to her my wife and another Fort Wayne lady who had been well acquainted with her, and who took hold of her left hand. Thus, three of us held quite a conversation and had a most momentous visit with her. In the course of a few minutes, however, she announced to us that she was getting weak and would have to go. While we three were standing in front of her, I having hold of her right and the lady referred to having hold of her left hand, this form began to gradually sink down, the lady and myself stooping slowly with it, until it vanished entirely from before our eyes while in a stooping posture, and being wholly unable to feel the sensation we would naturally expect to feel by the severance in any manner of the grasp of our hands. Her hands which for a time had felt so natural, perhaps not quite as warm as our own, seemed simply to vanish from our own without creating any impression or sensation. I know of no other word that will describe her disappearance before our eyes, than that she vanished slowly away from us.

JOHN C. HOUGH MATERIALIZES.

A deceased sister and my wife's grandmother materialized in the same manner and on or about the same spot. Finally the medium's control informed me that a gentleman desired to materialize for me, but would be unable to do so outside of the cabinet, as the other forms had done, owing to the fact that the forces were growing weak. I then stepped up to the cabinet and after waiting several minutes the curtains parted and there stood before me a gentleman whom I immediately recognized as John C. Hough, and so addressed him. He acknowledged my

MOSES HULL'S BOOKS.

A List of His Noted Works.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

Wayside Jottings,

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1.

The Spiritual Alps and How We Ascend Them.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents.

New Thought.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. Price, only $1.50.

New Thought.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents.

Joan, the Medium.

Or the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

The Real Issue.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have.

All About Devils.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents.

Jesus and the Mediums, or Christ and Mediumship.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Spiritual Birth, or Death and Its To-Morrow.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents.

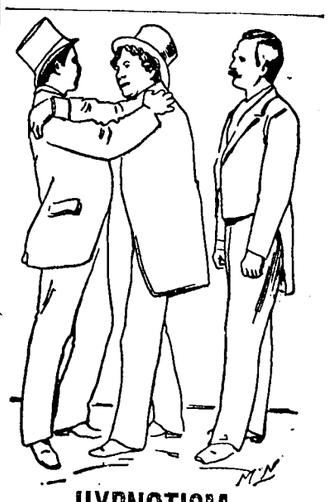
The Quarantine Raised.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. Price 10 cents.

Spiritual Songster.

By MATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price, 10 cts., or $5 per hundred.

The Mediumistic Experience of John Brown.



The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. Price, 50 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By MOSES HULL. Price, 5 cents.

Was John Calvin a Murderer?

Price, 5 cents.

HYPNOTISM;

Its Facts, Theories and Related Phenomena, with Explanatory Anecdotes, Descriptions and Reminiscences.

BY CARL SEXTUS. THE BOOK IS largely a record of the facts and demonstrations which the author has seen, heard of or presented in his own experiments. The history of the various phases of the science is succinctly presented, and the various theories clearly stated. Many of the experiments described occurred in Chicago. The pictorial illustrations add much to the interest and value of the book, which will be found very interesting to the general reader, as well as helpful and instructive to the student. The work is a handsome volume of 300 pages, bound in cloth. Price, $2.00. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though it escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 84 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE.

By Andrew Jaskson Davis. Something you should read. Price 75 cents.

THE KORAN.

Commonly called the "Alkoran of Mohammed." Translated into English from the original Arabic, with explanatory notes taken from the most approved commentators. With a preliminary discourse by Geo. Sale. Price, cloth, $1.00. For sale at this office.

CHURCH AND STATE.

The Bible in the Public Schools; the New "American" Party. By "Jefferson." Third edition. This beautiful pamphlet of 23 pages is the most thorough presentation of the Church and State question that has appeared. Price 10 cents.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD;

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve.

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER. THIS IS a novel written with a purpose, and that purpose is not merely to enable an unthinking, idle mind to while away the time in a state of idle blessedness, devoid of earnest thought or care for either self-improvement or the good of humanity. It is a book designed especially, primarily, for mothers and those who are to be mothers; and secondly, through the mothers, to effect the well-being and happiness of the race. It brings strongly and clearly to view the result upon the child of proper surroundings and influences bearing upon the mother previous to maternity. Incidentally the author touches upon various things in modern social and business life, which are unjust, and the unequal burdens upon the individuals composing society as a whole. The book is trenchant, instructive and very interesting, even when regarded merely as a novel, and is especially commended to "women everywhere," to whom it is dedicated. It also thoroughly shows up the Jesuitical spirit of the Catholic Church; advanced ideas relating to the Spiritual philosophy are introduced. It contains a fine likeness of the author. It contains 345 pages, neatly bound in cloth. Price by mail, prepaid, $1.

THE TALMUD.

Selections from the contents of that ancient book, its commentaries, teachings, poetry, and legends. Also brief sketches of the men who made and commented upon it. By H. Polano. 339 pp. Price, cloth, $1.00 recognition as correct and seemed pleased that I had made it so promptly. He remained intact so to speak but a short period, hardly long enough to exchange greetings and then sank down and vanished more rapidly than did the other forms, but in my full view. I also received a slate message signed by his name. His transition took place about eighteen or twenty years ago. He was one of the prominent business men of Fort Wayne. Just prior to his appearance, a form built up outside of the circle, back of my wife's chair. As soon as its development was complete, my wife arose, drew her chair to one side, when the figure proceeded across the circle to the person for whom she came, and after a few minutes conversation, vanished in the full view of all present.

I was told by several old Spiritualists present that I was peculiarly fortunate for they had attended a great many to them wonderful materializing seances, but never before witnessed anything like the present one, and very much doubted if they would ever behold its like again, so extremely rare was it to get the most favorable conditions for such amazing phenomena.

AS A RECENT INVESTIGATOR,

SPEAKING WITH TRUMPET.

20. At the home of John Vordermark, Esq., in Fort Wayne, several years ago, a materializing seance was given by Mrs. Elsie Reynolds, at which I was present. The circle was composed principally, of investigators and skeptics. The cabinet consisted of a curtain enclosing a part only of a solid corner of the room. Back of this curtain there was barely room for a chair. To the surprise of all present during the first part of the seance the medium did not enter the cabinet at all but sat next to it with the circle of investigators outside. She formed one of the extremities of the horse-shoe-shaped circle. It was not two minutes I presume, when three female forms emerged from behind the curtain in the full view of all present, one of them holding in her hand a trumpet which she held up to my ear, through which I distinctly heard the voices in the English language of invisible intelligences giving the names of friends who had departed this life long ago. I have thus heard voices through the trumpet in the light, in well lighted rooms, through the mediumship of Mrs. Hibbitts and Miss Daniels.

But why multiply these evidences? A single one if sufficiently attested is as good as a thousand. I have now related twenty out of hundreds of similar evidences for the knowledge that is within me of a future existence. Either those that I have here related are true, or I am a most colossal, diabolical liar. If the reader decides upon the latter verdict, he credits me with a genius for their creation and manufacture which I had no idea I possessed.

In a murder trial now in progress in the city of Fort Wayne, wherein the sanity of the defendant is in question, I was called upon to give evidence as an expert. I expressed the opinion in answer to the usual hypothetical question, that a persistent liar—a persistent, chronic, unreasonable, unintelligent, objectless liar—was of unsound mind. If, then, what I have here related is false in character, I stand convicted upon my own testimony of being of unsound mind.

BIBLE STORIES.

I am well aware that to the uninitiated and inexperienced who have never investigated the subjects of Spiritualism or Christianity, what I have here related will appear almost as incredible as the stories of Jonah and the whale, the sun standing still for Joshua, the snake talking to Eve, the talking of Balaam's ass, the turning of Lot's wife into a pillar of salt, Elijah's ascent to heaven, the creation of the world in six days, and many other similar Bible stories which our Christian friends find no difficulty in believing. I wish it distinctly known, however, that I am not vouching for the truth of any Bible story although I do find in that remarkable book many stories similar to the ones I have here related. But I am vouching for the truth of what my own eyes have seen, my own ears have heard, my own hands have felt. I may be damned for believing my own senses, but I'll be damned if I can help it.

SCIENTIFIC FACTS.

If the stories I have here related are true, they constitute a group of scientific facts intimately connected with theology and religion. Science is the knowledge of facts. If Spiritualism is true, we have a scientific basis of facts instead of blind faith and hope upon which to build our religion. If Spiritualism is false, it is the duty of the church to prove it false not by concussion but by discussion and demonstration. If Spiritualism is the work of the Devil, and if it be the duty of the Church to destroy the works of the Devil, how is it possible for the Church to perform its duty in regard to the subject, by avoiding it and treating it with silent contempt?

Since the advent of modern Spiritualism into the city of Fort Wayne a few years ago, I think I can see that in a very important sense, it has been a great benefit to the church, however little credit it may receive for it. To a hitherto lazy, lukewarm, indifferent, materialistic, agnostic pulpit and pew, which with Bishop Foster, confessed openly or inferentially that they did not know that death does not end all, the glorious assurance which Spiritualism has given them of a future existence, and that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, has infused new life and energy into Fort Wayne Christendom, and as a consequence, notwithstanding the hard times, several new churches have been built within the past year, and the salaries of a number of our preachers have been raised.

The church is beginning to appreciate the fact that if

MODERN SPIRITUALISM IS TRUE,

Bible Spiritualism is true, and that Paul must have had some such evidences as are herein related whereon to base his knowledge of the fact that when done with this earthly tabernacle of clay, he would inhabit a house not made with hands, in the Spirit-world. Paul was a Spiritualist and said: "For we 'know' etc." Bishop Foster is not a Spiritualist, and says: "We do not know that death does not end all."

THANKS FOR THE AGITATION.

Many members of the different churches in Fort Wayne have quietly thanked me for my agitation of the question of a future existence and the proofs I have introduced in evidence thereof, and declared that they would be perfectly happy if they could look upon death in the light in which I view it. Many other church members have said to me that they know Spiritualism is true, and that they are simply waiting for the time which will come sooner or later, when their churches will acknowledge, accept and preach it.

WHAT IS DUTY?

If the evidences I have herein enumerated are true, what is my duty in regard to them? Must I keep my mouth shut about them? Have I no moral or religious right to discuss them publicly and privately? Is it possible that there is any truth supported by the Bible and demonstrated by present scientific investigation that should be suppressed?

HERMANNS AND KELLARS.

Have I been deceived and deluded in regard to my experiences here given? It is possible that there are so many Hermanns and Kellars throughout the country capable of deluding and deceiving the people? I have witnessed the performances of both these celebrated magicians and have been amazed at the wonderful tricks they have enacted by the aid of clever accomplices who, with their principals, have spent a lifetime in the art in which they have become skilled. But have they ever duplicated by trickery such phenomena as I have presented, received through the instrumentality of innocent, honest, and, in some cases ignorant and unsophisticated mediums? I pause for a reply upon this question, for it is one of the "stock in trade" with skeptics.

A Presbyterian lady friend said to me: "I know Spiritualism is true, but we are commanded not to consult with familiar spirits or hold converse with the dead." I replied that in another place in the Bible from which she quoted she would find the command: "Try the spirits whether they be of God, for many false prophets had gone out into the world." "You pays your money and you takes your choice."

It is objected that if spirits return to mortals they can do so anywhere and under all circumstances. I ask the reader in reply: Can you have your picture taken without going to the photographer? Can you eat your dinner without going where it is? Can you hear a sermon without going where it is delivered? Your spirit friends may be and undoubtedly are around you more or less constantly, but there are certain conditions or laws to be observed to enable them to communicate with you.

CUI BONO?

But after exhausting fruitlessly, all the usual arguments against Spiritualism, the skeptic has one that he falls back on as a last resort, a favorite old stand-by, and that one he considers a clincher. It is: "What good does Spiritualism do?"

It always provokes me to hear this question put, for, while it is a tacit admission that all other arguments have failed, it is in my opinion, the most ridiculous of any.

If Spiritualism has never done anything more and never will do anything more than to prove a future existence, it has accomplished the grandest work of the ages. It has demonstrated a life beyond the grave, which the church has failed to do. It has convinced skeptics, materialists, agnostics and infidels, both in and out of the church, that there is verily, a life after this. Is it worth nothing to know that death does not end all? What good may Spiritualism not do in the future if given a fair opportunity?

From the tiny raps heard through the instrumentality of the Fox sisters nearly a half century ago, there have evoluted about forty different phases of mediumship, nearly every one of which may be found in the Bible.

It is the object of

THE NATIONAL SPIRITUALISTS' ASSOCIATION

to organize and systematize these different phases of mediumship; to weed out from among our mediums the frauds and humbugs, impostors and mountebanks that cling like barnacles to them, and to present to the world Spiritualism in its purity and grandeur and sublimity.

It is the sacred duty of all Spiritualists throughout our country to rally to the support of our National Association, so that we may present the claims of our beautiful philosophy in the best possible official or authoritative manner.

If in this connection I may be permitted to refer to myself, I believe the President of the N. S. A. and its Secretary will bear me out in the assertion that my purse as well as my heart and soul has been converted to the cause of the spread of the truth of Spiritualism.

And now, in conclusion, if the stories I have herein narrated be accepted as true, I challenge all science, theology and philosophy to explain them upon any other hypothesis than the spiritualistic.

ORTHODOXY vs. SCIENCE.

Itis really refreshing to note how in the language of the day, a Princeton professor was "done up" by a man of science. At the sesquicentennial celebration at Princeton, Prof. Woodrow Wilson, the orator of the occasion, commented somewhat severely upon the methods and achievements of science. Professor Wilson held that great as these methods and achievements are, the former may be carried into spheres where they do not belong, and the latter are in danger of being overestimated in this utilitarian age. His plea for the ideal center of learning, where calm thinkers may sit apart from the busy toilers, increasing our stock of knowledge without contact with the world, has been greatly applauded by students of literature and philosophy, but scientific men have been inclined to take umbrage at it, and to protest against what they regard as an obsolete, if not quite medieval, point of view.

In reply to this now commonly-advanced view of theology, that science must mind its own business and not essay to tread upon the corns of religion, or old-time orthodoxy, Prof. J. McKeen Cattell has well written as follows:

"Professor Wilson holds that the scientific spirit of the age is "doing us a great disservice, working in us a certain degeneracy," that the limitations of science are known to its own masters, who "have eschewed sense and confined themselves to sensation." He is indeed prepared to acknowledge certain achievements of science, but for him "the scientist" seems to be the man who invents the steam-engine or the sewing-machine. The practical applications of science have, it is true, reformed the world. They have made possible a civilization in which each man may have not only physical well-being, but also time and means for thought and culture. But I believe that science has done more than this; it has not only given opportunity for education and culture, it has also offered the best means of culture and the truest standpoint from which to view the world. Keats might see no beauty in the rainbow after its causes had been explained to him, and Professor Wilson may think Phoebus and his horses a nobler conception than those of modern astronomy. But the man of science does not find that the beauty of the world becomes less as he learns more of its order.

"SKEPTICSIM, PESSIMISM, AND THE LIKE

are much older than the present century; they do not result from scientific study, as Professor Wilson claims, but are rather literary products. It is not the student of science, but Professor Wilson, who 'cowers' 'in an age of change.' If, as Professor Wilson says, classical studies make a boy a gentleman, scientific studies may make him a man. The present writer does not under value classical studies, but finds the difficulty to be that in a college such as Princeton the work with grammar and dictionary is a somewhat trivial science, and the student does not go far enough to appreciate classical literature and art or to undertake the scientific study of the causes of the development of civilization. But Professor Wilson holds that science should confine itself to counting the chemical elements and becomes a 'noxious, intoxicating gas' when its methods are applied to the study of the development of society.

"Views such as Professor Wilson offers on the limitations and evil effects of science seem like a survival from the denominational college of fifty years ago, and I regard it as unfortunate that they should have been presented in an official address at the inauguration of Princeton University."

By the foregoing we are reminded that the fight between religion and science is still on and will continue to the finish. The result of it is already assured. The spurious sympathy manifested for the under dog in the fight, which, it is plain to see, is obsolete orthodoxy, will avail nothing in influencing unfavorably the final victory for science.

H. V. SWERINGEN.

—()—

Co-operation in France has spread more in agriculture than in manufacturing and trade. Some 600,000 farmers are members of supply associations, through which they buy their fertilizers and implements from first hands and also sell the produce. For a long time it was of slow growth, but being thoroughly organized it has of late years grown immensely.

A Minnesota statesman has offered a bill providing for the appointment of a state phrenologist at a salary of $2,000 a year, with a $1,500 assistant, and an expense fund of $8,000 a year at their disposal, their business to be the examination of "not less than two thousand heads a year."

The law declaring a Saturday half-holiday in Ohio has been declared unconstitutional.

A VIVID PICTURE

Of Certain Features of Spiritualism.

TRANCE, WITH UNIQUE INCIDENTS—A MEDIUM'S VISIT TO THE REALMS CELESTIAL—THE RECOGNITION BY FRIENDS IS STRANGELY IMPEDED—INVESTIGATION OF DIFFERENT SPHERES "OVER THERE"—STARTLING IDEA OF HELL AND NEW DEFINITION OF PUNISHMENT BY THE LIGHT OF REASON.

"Like the experience of many women, my mediumship began in a trance," said Mrs. M., in the Cincinnati Enquirer, "but unlike that of all others with whose beginnings I am acquainted, I was conscious of the new condition, and felt that it was produced by entrancement from its beginning to the end. It began in the early morning of a perfect day in June, and continued for a space of twenty-three hours, in spite of many attempts of friends to awaken me, finally coming back to real life like the involuntary awakening from sweet slumber. I had made a peaceful trip into the unknown, but it was wondrous strange in many features, some of which I will relate.

"I had opened my eyes and looked abroad upon the rosy dawn of the day whose golden hours passed during my phenomenal slumber, but in a few minutes an unusual drowsiness seized upon my senses, and, only half dressed, I reclined across the bed. In a moment I was in another realm, paradisical in appearance and amplitude, but indescribable beyond the incidents I shall relate. The atmosphere was a delicate blue, tinted in the far away vistas with glowing gold and wafting a perfume peculiarly grateful to the sense of smell. The surroundings were restful to heart and brain, and invited repose.

"Seated upon a shelving bank, I saw many old acquaintances, whom I thought to greet. At first they did not recognize my presence, and when I tried to recall myself to their recollection they said they did not know me. One of the gentlemen had been an admirer of my poor self long ago. When I made bold to remind him of this he said it might be so, for he was guilty of many foolish things in mortal life, and the list of those he remembered was too long to admit additions, therefore he declined to renew the acquaintance. I turned and approached a little girl to whom I had shown special kindness in her last illness.

SHE RAN FROM ME

as if actuated by fear, like one pursued by a demon, and the effort to avoid me was too evident to be assumed. Why should I affright such a dear little spirit? at once became a question to agitate my mind. Had she forgotten a friend who less than two years before had baptized her in the deep sympathy of the heart? It was too true.

"I passed down a magnificent avenue, and met scores of people whom I had known on earth. Some regarded me with a startled glance, as if affrighted, and others stared as if in curiosity, but not one gave me even a smile of recognition, and I felt that I had become a stranger to all those whom my love had followed through the dark shadow. The thought was agonizing, unaccountable, certainly unnatural. This walk was long, but not fatiguing. Its effect was mildly exhilarant, and would have been very cheering but for the lack of recognition by those to whom I had a right to look for generous welcome.

"At the end of the avenue I stepped upon a wonderful platform, shelving like the glacis of a counterscarp, of some white material highly polished, and apparently of infinite extent. Upon it stood a countless host of men, women and children in loving communion. The air was resonant with harmony of many voices attuned to love of that degree which seems all bliss, and at the myriads of faces wrapt in joy I stood amazed, overcome. Soon I attracted the attention of one far back in the throng, and gathered from her motions and the way she bent her eyes upon me that she was coming to my relief. Her pleasant smile was reassuring, and I felt that now I would be cordially greeted. When near me she extended her hand and said:

"'You cannot imagine how strange a mortal looks in this company. A spirit would fail to appall a mortal more fearfully than your appearance dismays some spirits, and you bring an atmosphere to which they are unaccustomed. How did you come?'

"'Through trance,' said I.

"'Yes,' she replied, musingly, 'that was your only way to reach us just for a visit. You were moved by curiosity?'

"'I came involuntarily.'

"'Unquestionably, so far as you can understand, but the spirit always aspires to the better condition and floats away to fairer scenes without consent of the mortal part. You have never been here before?'

"'No.'

"'Then you think you have had but rude treatment, and you cannot understand the situation. Let me explain by telling you that the appearance of a spirit here, which has not been permanently disassociated from its earthly tenement, is as frightful to those who meet it as a to the denizens of earth. And you can understand in the sensations produced in your own soul what bitterness is engendered in an immortal spirit when it attempts to carry glad tidings to mortals who give it no welcome. You are nothing more nor less than a spirit, but upon you is the earthly condition, like a hideous mask, and you bring terror to such as do not understand that with which you are encumbered, just as the spirit disembodied by the fiat of nature carries alarm to the child of earth. On both sides these sensations are absurd—the outcome of ignorance. It is a lesson you should heed for all time, and in your heart it may engender deep sympathy for those spirits who wander up and down the earth, bound there by an untoward fate, sighing for companionship, but fearing to make themselves known to friends through apprehension that their visit will prove unwelcome, even hideous. So they roam about in despair, witnessing scenes they cannot enjoy without the risk of making themselves manifest, to the injury of those they love. The embarrassment is very great.'

REAL GHOST

"'But why do my friends who were nearest and dearest on earth refuse me recognition here? I am glad to see and confer with them, but they give me no opportunity.'

"'They recognize only your semblance, and do not feel assured it is really you, precisely as spirits are recognized by old friends in earth life. "That looks some like Ella," said my sister, when I appeared to her at a seance, "but I don't believe she'd come here. She doesn't look quite tall enough for Ella, and that was not her favorite style for the hair. I fail to recognize her clearly enough to feel convinced it is her, and probably it is not." I faded out of the scene through utter discouragement. Now it seems plain that you will become a medium through whom spirits will communicate with mortals at times and under conditions favorable and unfavorable. Do not fail to accord the largest faith to those immortal intelligences who in confidence come through your powers with messages to friends.'

"'But there are spirits who come to deceive.'

"'They cannot approach pure-minded people. There must be in those they visit or they cannot manifest their presence. All are in affinity whom you now see, but there are other conditions on this plane of existence, equally happy, but not in affinity with what you now observe. Tastes and sentiments are as various here as on earth or any planet, but like associates with like to preserve harmony, and peace reigns.

AN AFFINITY FOR THEM

"'In vain shalt thou or any call
The spirits from their golden day,
Unless like them thou too canst say
My spirit is at peace with all.'"

"She had taken me by the arm and we walked together along a pleasant path. Through an arch of climbing roses we emerged upon a grand plateau, and the first person I saw there was a dear cousin. She greeted me with great cordiality, and soon other relatives came with a joyous welcome. The entire aspect of things and dispositions of personages had changed to harmony with myself, and I was surrounded by smiling faces. How had it been brought about?'

"'Through sympathy,' said my guide, reading my thought, 'a feeling mortals are much disposed to ignore for those who are gone beyond their sight. Your sympathy is aroused for those spirits in earthly durance by the remarks I have made, and here you carry every true sentiment of the heart legibly written upon the countenance. If you love your kind the marks are there to indicate it, and if you hate, the sentiment is as plainly depicted; but hate cannot continue in this atmosphere. Nothing is here for it to subsist upon. It is not cultivated among progressive spirits, for hate and progress are antagonisms. Hate is corroding of the hater and destroys sympathy. This I feel sure you will always remember after this memorable experience.'

"'Certainly I will. A question arises in my mind, however, which you may be disposed to answer: Where are the bad spirits?'

"'The terms good and bad are relative and subject to definition. Some acts which have been indicated as high crimes in your education are simply venal in other systems of ethics, and among cultivated people of the Eastern nations much of that which we call good is strongly condemned. Some who might be called bad spirits are very near us, but not visible to those who have the better light. Missionary spirits have them in charge, and eventually they will be brought out of darkness. The most depraved spirits and do incalculable mischief there. Murderers are held fast in the charmed circle of their crimes for ages by the strange magnetism of blood, and out of revenge they impel mortals to perpetrate foul crimes. Other wrong-doers are similarly held captives at the scenes of their depredations as a punishment, and are compelled to repeat continually in pantomime the horrors they enacted in mortal life. Hell? There may be another than that I have described, but I do not know its location. Wherever the fires of remorse are raging they inflict severer punishment than can be had from any other source, and nothing to compare with the anguish they produce is known to man or spirit.'

ARE EARTH-BOUND,

"'Is it an everlasting punishment?'

"'I pray not, poor souls, but we can answer to that no better than you can. Transition has opened our eyes to little that is new, although it has disproved many traditions. Mortals should understand that pure happiness in eternity is cheap at any price, but really it costs little to those who lead honest and sincere lives and outrage none of nature's laws. Some of the best spirits with whom I have come in contact were on earth denounced as heathens, but a short probation here brought out qualities in them in which those who denounced them are not more gloriously equipped. Comparisons are scarcely allowable in such a company where all are known to each other by the outward tokens you cannot understand till you are as we are, but when made for the benefit of an investigating mortal they will be excused.'

"A male spirit of brilliant aspect accosted my guide at this point, and, after a few words, asked me if I would like to visit the next sphere—one occupied by more advanced intelligences. I was eager to do so. He waved a tiny baton and I lost consciousness of my surroundings for a moment only. Upon returning to a comprehension of things I was in a great temple, so large that no estimate of its size could be made, in a congress of distinguished men and women, who carried the impress of profound wisdom upon their brows. They were discussing questions of abstract science in audible tones, learnedly, courteously and with a clear desire to arrive at the truth, but what they said I can no more remember than I could had it been in an unknown tongue. A few conclusions were reached and unanimously assented to, and then my new guide called attention to the fact that a mortal had called to visit their assemblage.

"'Poor child!' said a spirit of distinguished appearance; 'I was once a mortal, and found it very inconvenient in many ways, sometimes to even pay grocery bills. When are you coming to stay with us?' he asked, suddenly turning to me.

"I made an answer of some sort, what I canot recall, but it produced merriment. From this time onward events are confused in my mind. I remember going to other spheres with the same guide and finding many old friends, and that thousands of soft, gentle creatures hovered about me continually, and finally conducted me to a small temple, where they sang and prayed in velvety tones, and then, assisting me to ascend beautiful stairs to a platform, they opened a small door and bade me waft myself out, I stepped out into space, and at that moment awoke in my own bed at home. I have had many trances since, in some of which the same people I saw in the first again appeared, but none that impressed me as did this, of which I have tried to give a true description. T. P.

—()—

SONG OF LIFE.

When Light unveiled her radiant face,
And wrapped the world in her embrace;
When into place the planets swung,—
This song the heavenly choir sung:
"O sacred pulse! O law divine!
All purpose and all power is thine.
Death, never!
Life ever and forever!"

And still that grand, triumphal song
Thrills through all nature, deep and strong;
And still vibrating, high and low,
It sets the continents aglow;
And in the ocean's sob and roar
It sounds and speaks forevermore:
"Death, never!
Life ever and forever!"

O human soul!—a spark of love,—
Around thee, earth-environed, move
Kaleidoscopic forms to-day;
To-morrow thou art on thy way
To fairer plains and sweeter skies!
And still the thrilling anthems rise:
Life ever and forever!"
"Death, never!

—()—

YOUR TIME WILL COME SOME DAY.

'Tis not the hopeless that achieve,
The faltering foot that reaches goals;
No web of gain can Fortune weave
From fiber of recoiling souls.
Endure. Repel Fear's icy clutch
That fain would pluck your heart away;
See barriers crumble at your touch,
And know your time will come some day.

Yes, "all things come to him who waits,"
But meanwhile you must labor too;
Barred shall remain Possession's gates
'Till your strong hands the hasp undo.
Armed with most steadfast purpose, learn
Beyond the clouds of chilliest gray
The certain sunlight to discern,
And feel your time will come some day.

O, tameless spirit! Hail elate,
All harrowing trials, whips and stings
That come, because their chastening weight
The soul to higher stature brings!
And strength redoubled shall replace
The blood that trickles as they flay;
The way is long, but yours the race;
Surely your time will come some day!

—JOHN TALMAN.

Woman, Church and State.

A Historical Account of the Status of Woman Through the Christian Ages, with Reminiscences of the Matriarchate.

BY MATILDA JOSLYN GAGE.

THE AMOUNT OF VALUABLE INformation succinctly and clearly stated in this volume of 554 pages is amazing. The title, as above given, fails to convey an idea of the fulness and completeness with which the subjects are treated. The Matriarchate, or Mother-rule, is the theme of the first chapter, in which much lore, qualnt, queer and curious, is brought to view in elucidation of the subject. This is followed by chapters on Celibacy, Canon Law, Marquette, Witchcraft, Wives, Polygamy, Woman and Work, The Church of To-day, Past, Present, Future; and there is not a chapter in the book that is not handled in a masterly manner, and that for quantity and quality of information, is not worth the full price of the volume. It is packed with knowledge well arranged, and intensely interesting from beginning to end. No one can possibly regret buying it; it is a valuable addition to the library of any free and truth-loving mind.

Price, $2.00. For sale at this office.

IMMORTALITY,

...OR...

FUTURE HOMES AND DWELLING PLACES.

BY DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

AN INVALUABLE WORK!

This admirable work contains what a hundred spirits, good and evil, say of their dwelling-places. Give us details—details and accurate delineations of life in the Spirit-world!—is the constant appeal of thoughtful minds. Death is approaching. Whither—oh, whither! Shall I know my friends beyond the tomb? Will they know me? What is their present condition, and what their occupations? In this volume the spirits, differing as they may, are allowed to speak for themselves. No man is better qualified than Dr. Peebles to place a work of this kind before the people. He treats of the Mysteries of Life; Doubts and Hopes; The Bridging of the River; Foregleams of the Future; Testimony of Saints; The Growth and Perfection of the Spiritual Body; Is it the Soul or Body that Sins?; Clothing in the Spirit-world; Our Little Ones in Heaven; The Personal Experiences of Aaron Knight; The Red Man's Testimony; Evil Spirits; Testimony of Physicians in Spirit-Life; The Homes of Apostles and Divines; The Friends and Shakers in Spirit-Life; Spirit Homes of Bruno and Others; Many Voices from the Spirit-Land. Many other matters are treated, too numerous to mention. Price $1.50; postage, 12 cents. For sale at this office.

JUST PUBLISHED!

AUTOMATIC WRITING

[SO-CALLED] WITH OTHER

PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

—BY—

SARA A. UNDERWOOD,

With Half-tone Portrait and Specimen Pages of the Writing.

Handsomely bound in Cloth.
Price, $1.50. Postage 10c extra.

AN EXCELLENT WORK.

The Rationale of Mesmerism

BY A. P. SINNETT.

This excellent work treats of the following subjects:

I. Old and New Theories.
II. The Mesmeric Force.
III. The Real Literature of Mesmerism.
IV. Side-Lights of Mesmeric Phenomena.
V. Curative Mesmerism.
VI. Anæsthetic Effects and Rigidity.
VII. The Nature of Sensitiveness
VIII. Clairvoyance.
IX. Mesmeric Practice.

The price of this admirable work is $1.25. All books advertised in THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER are

For sale at this office.

"THOMAS PAINE."

SOME OF HIS NOTED WORKS.

Life of Thomas Paine,

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

The Age of Reason;

Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo, Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Common Sense.

A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

The Rights of Man.

Parts I and II. Being an answer to Mr. Burke's attack upon the French Revolution. Post 8vo., 27 pages. Paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Paine's Complete

Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 482 pages. Cloth, $1.00

Paine's Political Works.

Common Sense, The Crisis, Rights of Man, etc. Illustrated edition. Post 8vo., 650 pages. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 20 cents.

STARNOS.

By Dr. Delia E. Davis. A rosary of pearls, culled from the works of Andrew Jackson Davis. Intended for the light and solace of every sorrowing and stricken heart. Price 50 cents.

MAHOMET,

His Birth, Character and Doctrine.

BY EDWARD GIBBON.

This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. This work will be found intensely interesting. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

RELIGION OF THE STARS

By O. H. RICHMOND,

G. M. of the Order of the Magi, Chicago.

BOUND IN CLOTH WITH GOLD side, and containing 320 pages. This splendid book, just issued, contains nineteen full Temple lectures upon occult subjects, together with other articles from various newspapers, relating to the great work. It contains all the old Temple lectures issued in 1892, and three others on the HUMAN SOUL, which are alone worth the price of the book. This wonderful book is unique as an Evangelist of Science and Truth. Price $1.25, postpaid, to any address. For sale at this office.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,

—OR—

THREE-FOLD POWER OF SEX.

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

This is one of the author's most useful and instructive books. This work should be read by every man and woman. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

THE RIGHTS OF MAN.

By Thomas Paine. Parts I and II. Being an answer to Mr. Burke's attack upon the French Revolution. Post 8vo., 279 pages. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

OBSESSION.

How evil spirits influence mortals. By M. Faraday. P. 23. Price 10 cents.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year..... $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club)..... 7.50
Thirteen weeks..... 25 cts
Single copy..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1897.

DISHONEST PREACHERS.

The Progressive Thinker has been trying all along to convince its readers that preachers are no more honest than other men; that the profession is adopted as a means of support, with really less integrity and principle for guidance than characterize those who embark in the law, in medicine, in physics, in civil engineering, or even in teaching. We fear the reader may distrust our statement, so we bring into alignment with it the admission of that old wheel-horse of Methodism, Bishop John H. Vincent, founder and sustainer of the Chautauqua Schools, and who, in the course of an article in the Methodist Review for March and April, urging the establishment of "A Non-Resident School of Theology," with a "four year curriculum," said:

"The theological student is often a dependent, educated by charity. This itself is not at all ground for his disparagement; but there are a few ministers who were once theological students supported in this way, by individuals or by societies, who up to this day have never paid even the interest on the loan by which they were able to take their theological course. What is still worse, they seem to have no conscience about it. They marry, they have children, they buy books, they ride bicycles, they take summer vacations, but seem to have no ethical sense which makes imperative the restoration of the funds by which they were educated for their profession. There is among a certain class of ministers and of candidates for the ministry a tone of servility which perhaps these processes of professional education promote; a readiness to accept gifts of money; the habit of soliciting discounts because of their office; and consequently the cultivation of the tramp spirit and habit among men whose office stands for the highest, most independent, most manly type of manhood."

That the clergy should represent the "most manly type of manhood," as Bishop Vincent asserts, is true. We cheerfully concede there are many of that character, and regret there are not more of them; at the same time all know the profession is made the dumping ground of slightly educated emotionalists, who were hypnotized in youth by a successful mesmerist, calling himself an evangelist, and as the influence was not removed, neither had he the ability to overcome it, so he fancies he was born of God, and deports himself accordingly. Such men bring dishonor on the profession, and the cause they misrepresent.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CRETE.

The Literary Digest, a very worthy weekly magazine of New York, in a late issue, under the head of "What is Going on in Crete?" says:

"There is no apparent change in Crete. Throughout Europe, however, the anti-Greek party is getting the upper hand. That the Mohammedans have been and are being massacred in batches of hundreds by the Christians of Crete, and that neither age nor sex serve as protection, is now admitted by the most philo-Hellenic papers in Europe, altho' such news is not published with the flaring headlines given to the Armenian atrocities. The St. James' Gazette criticizes the attitude of the press as follows: 'We notice that, as usual, the philanthropic gentlemen whose hearts are wrung at the fate of the hundred Armenians in Tokat have no overwhelming sympathy for the many hundred Mohammedans in Crete who are being driven from their homes and plundered of their poor goods and chattels by the Cretan Christians. When a Cretan village is raided and plundered by the Christians the appropriate heading is 'Hard fighting in Crete,' but the corresponding incident in Asia is headed 'Another Shocking Massacre.'"

It does make a vast difference whose ox is gored.

GOOD SENSE IN SIGHT.

The committee having the Dingley tariff bill in its keeping, has agreed upon the doubling of the internal revenue tax on tobacco and beer, by which it is claimed the revenue will be increased $70,000,000. That is just what should have been done when the Supreme Court decided a tax on incomes was unconstitutional. It would have more than met the deficit in the revenue caused by that decision, and instead of being a burden on those impoverished by the sinking of values would have thrown it on the consumers of worse than useless products, and would have improved public morals by lessening the incentives to crime, as all stimulants are conceded to be corruptives of virtue. This done, with slight corrections which experience may have shown necessary in the so-called Wilson tariff act, then there would have been no disturbance in manufactures or commerce, and business would have soon resumed its wonted channels. It is the stability of legislation which gives confidence to trade and production. A bad law, permanent in its character, is better than a doubtful one with ever varying penalties.

A BAD REPUTATION FAVORED THE VICTORS.

When the great conqueror, Alexander, set out to punish the Eastern nations for their inroads on Greece, he gained the reputation, at the very beginning of his career, of being brutal in his treatment of prisoners. At the close of his seven months siege before Tyre, when his arms were triumphant, he caused the crucifixion of 2,000 of the principal citizens as a punishment, additional to the entire destruction of the city, for their protracted resistance. For eight years thereafter, during all his long marches against the enemy he met with slight hostility. The bravest were thrown into a panic, and fled like frightened sheep as the terror of his name was mentioned.

The Christian world, by word, pen and press, have been for upwards of two years heralding the savagelsm and brutality of the Kurds and Turks. All Greece was made to believe in the genuineness of the reported causeless atrocities committed by that people. After playing braggarts for months, hounding on the government, and threatening the overthrow of the Ottoman Empire, refusing to listen to the voice of the allied powers, the result is now before us. The Greeks at the first appearance of real danger were frightened out of their wits. Soldiers and citizens, men, women and children fled before the advancing Turks, leaving homes and munitions of war behind, and rushed to imagined places of safety, crying and screaming "The Turks are upon us! The Turks are here to cut our throats!" Instead of peans of victory only were heard the moans of despair. Weary, hungry, starving, paralyzed with fear, they fell by the way side to be crushed by the advancing tide of their own frenzied friends. An Indian scare on our Western borders never witnessed a more complete representation of pandemonium than this on the planes of Thessaly. Armed warriors, peasants and irregulars, one and all, were in mortal terror. And thus the brave, patriotic, heaven-protected, frightened, flying Greeks!

It was the reputation Christians had given to these Turks and Kurds which started the human avalanche, defeated Greece, and finally precipitated the maddened throng on Athens, made them stone the royal palace, and forced from King George an offer to abdicate the throne in favor of his second son, the crown prince Constantine being now in as bad odor with his own people as the father, brother to the wife of the Prince of Wales. But the people are now demanding a Republic, and it is said nothing will satisfy their present ambition but a Republic. A change in the ministry just made may delay matters for a time.

It is not well to leave the scene of the successful march of the Turks without accompanying them, and witnessing their action in the hour of victory. The press dispatches from the head-quarters of the victorious army at Larissa, on the 27th ult., tells the tale. They who have been relating alleged scenes of slaughter in Armenia need this additional picture of "horror" to round out their imperfect knowledge of the cruelties of the Turks.

The clippings are made from dispatches to the London dailies, and to the Associated Press, from various correspondents in the field, all under date of April 27, and from Larissa:

"The correspondent of the Associated Press with the Turkish army here never saw such perfect discipline as when the victorious Turks occupied Larissa. The peace was not disturbed in a single quarter of the town. As an instance of the strictness of the orders against pillage the correspondent has just seen a Turkish soldier who took a shirt from an abandoned, half-closed store, seized by a patrol and arrested.

* * *

"The Turks have sealed up the banks, business houses and other places containing money or other valuables and have placed armed guards over them.

* * *

"I have visited the town hall, where are the headquarters of the general who captured the town. He is an old, tanned, grizzled and good-natured warrior. He modestly said to me: 'My success is due to luck alone. We happened to be coming along and walked into the town. There was no fighting. They ran away and I was in the right place. That was all.'

* * *

"The Greeks and the Turks fraternize. In a word, the Turkish army entered the town in the guise of friends rather than of conquerors. Turkish sentinels were placed at the corner of every street, but this was really unnecessary. Greeks and noncombatant refugees were not molested, and when they discovered this they began to promenade the streets freely. When the main body of Turkish troops entered this evening the inhabitants received them with the wildest joy, with salutes, embraces and kisses. I myself was kissed on both cheeks, dragged to a cafe and compelled to drink because I wore a fez.

* * *

"As illustrating the moderation and the discipline displayed by the Turks, I can truthfully say that an ordinary crowd of Englishmen on Derby day is much more violent and difficult to restrain."

That is the way the bloody and brutal Turks and Kurds acted in the hour of victory over a fallen foe. May not our Western Christian civilization take a lesson from these barbarians?

THE CONCLUSION.

The prayers and sympathies of the entire Christian world have been with the Greeks in their attempt to steal Crete from the Turks, and despoil the Ottoman empire. The preachers almost universally have urged appeals to the throne of grace in behalf of those fighting to crush Islamism. Even on the floors of Congress in disregard of national treaties, resolutions were offered expressing sympathy for those Christian people who were warring to extend their empire. But the naughty Turks had the advantage. They prayed five times a day, used no intoxicants, and, best of all, it would seem from the result, had the ear of God turned to them, hence they were victors.

Moral:—Always be sure you are in the right and have the strongest battalions when asking God to assist in a fight.

OBEYED THE GREAT TEACHER.

Judge Donnelly of this city gave judicial hearing in his court, on the 29th ult., to several cases brought before him from the Detention Hospital. Among them was that of Frank Johnson:

"He had cut off his right hand last Saturday because, as his brother said, he had been reading the chapter of the Bible in which are the words, 'If they right hand offend thee, cut if off.'"

Others may believe a teacher who gave utterance to that expression was a God, or was inspired of God, but The Progressive Thinker, with numerous commands of like nature before it coming professedly from the same source, begs to take a humanitarian view of them, and deny that the teaching came from a God, a Son of God, or even from a good man.

REPLY TO A CORRESPONDENT.

"What English translation of the Koran do you deem the most reliable?" inquires a correspondent. Not versed in Arabic, hence unacquainted with the language in which the Koran originally appeared, it is difficult to answer. In 1143 there was a worthless translation of the Koran into Latin. This was first printed in 1543, and served as a guide to Marracca, an Italian Jesuit, who in 1698 pretended to make a new translation. The rendering was made in the interest of Christianity, and is said to be everywhere misleading. George Sale, professedly an Orientalist, also in the interest of the church, made a rendering, evidently using the false Latin translation as guides. Prof. Johnson, an Arabic and Hebrew scholar, as well the classics, points out this vile perversion of the text: Where the phrase "People of the Book" occurs in the Arabic Sale renders it "Jesus and Christians." Jesus Christ frequently appears in the translation, but Prof. Johnson says: "Neither Jesus, nor Christ, nor the dogma of the person of Christ as held in the church, is to be found in any part of the Moslem Word of God."

But this is only one of hundreds of similar falsifications, all in the interest of "our Lord."

Rodwell, in 1862, made an English rendering, but like our own "Holy Bible," each translator has been guided by the first Latin rendering, seemingly unwilling to make a departure, else the work would not meet with popular favor. In the present state of learning an edition of the Koran in English should be made directly from the Arabic, with no reference whatever to former translations, and this should be done by an educated Mohammedan thoroughly versed in the Arabic. It is such a person only who is qualified to do the work justice.

GOOD GIRLS.

A grisly, gibbering, ghastly ghost, clothed in a white robe, lately put in its appearance at the residence of a couple of maiden sisters living alone, in Mills Valley, N. Y. Secreted in a woodshed it gave utterance to unearthly groans, and, in reply to the question, "What is the trouble?" came the answer, in a hoarse voice, that years ago he was foully murdered near that place, and that he had determined to haunt that region. The girls armed themselves with sticks of wood and violently assailed the spectral visitor. A succession of well directed blows, one on the head, brought the intruder to the ground while attempting an escape. When an inventory was taken of the result one Egbert Sears, a friend of the ladies, was found prostrate with a severe scalp wound, numerous bruises, and large experience, from which it is presumed he will not attempt the spook role again until mortality is laid aside.

Are there not others in the spook business whose morals would be improved by a similar thumping?

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

Advices from the European field of war up to the 1st inst, says:

"The people of Larissa are gradually returning. There is not the slightest disorder. No one is allowed in the streets at night without a permit."

A correspondent writes: "We are now over 100 miles from the base of Turkish supplies, yet there has not been the slightest hitch."

Paris, May 1.—A dispatch from Sofia says M. Ralli, the new Greek premier has semi-officially intimated that Greece will gratefully accept the mediation of the powers.

The present outlook indicates that the ambition of the Greeks to fight the Turks is fully satisfied, and that now she will be compelled to not only pay the cost of her own armies, but of the Turks who gave them a gentle chastisement.

KILL SOME OF THEM; SAVE THE OTHERS—FOR WHAT?

To the Editor:—In an issue of The Progressive Thinker you referred to a passage in the Old Testament wherein some one was supposed to have been commanded by God to kill every living being except the maidens who had never known a man, whom his savage soldiers were to keep for themselves. This is disputed here and I can't prove it. Please let me know where it is to be found in the Bible, also, any other passages of a similar nature, and oblige a subscriber and interested reader.

Yours for the truth,
Brewerton, N. Y. F. PLATTO, SR.

If our friend will consult Numbers xxi:15-18 he will find the following:

"And Moses was wroth with the officers of the host, with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, which came from the battle. And Moses said unto them, Have ye saved all the women alive? Behold, these caused the children of Israel, through the counsel of Balaam, to commit trespass against the Lord in the matter of Peor, and there was a plague among the congregation of the Lord. Now therefore, kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath known man by lying with him. But all the women children, that have not known a man by lying with him, keep alive for yourselves." Deuteronomy xx:13, 14, reads: "And when the Lord thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword: But the women and the little ones, and the cattle, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou take unto thyself," etc.

THE WORK OF A WEEK.

Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond received a telegram while at the Band of Harmony on Thursday night, from President Barrett of the N. S. A., asking her if possible to go to San Antonio, Texas, and attend the State convention assembled at that place May 1, 2, and 3, organizing a State Association. She at once decided to go, but told no one except the President and some of the trustees of her church who were present at the Band of Harmony. She had already promised to be at Columbus, O., on the 4, 5, and 6. She inwardly resolved to do both. The first day's proceedings of each convention would be simply routine work and she could be present at the second and third days of each convention. She left home Friday, the 30th, and arrived in San Antonio Sunday morning. She attended two meetings that day speaking briefly in one and giving the only address in the evening; spoke Monday afternoon, and started for Columbus, Ohio, at 8 p. m. She arrived on Wednesday at 8 p.m., and was at the convention hall in time to fill her engagement for that evening. She spoke Thursday afternoon and evening, and returned to Chicago on Friday, just one week from the time she left for Texas, and was ready for the work Sunday. We are informed that the State organizations in Texas and Ohio are perfected and that they are mostearnest and devoted auxiliaries to the N. S. A.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

READ OUR FIFTH PAGE CAREFULLY.

We give on our fifth page an object lesson to Spiritualists everywhere. Mrs. Magoon gives her views of Wm. Langdon and May Goodrich. Then comes Dr. George showing that Langdon is a medium in some respects at least. We give both sides. The spirit-world is seemingly unwise, under any circumstances, when it secretly appropriates cheese-cloth or some cheap gauze-like texture to personate some spirit with. In personation the "dress" is generally borrowed, the same as the form of the medium, which is made to represent in a measure the spirit intended.

We are not surprised at the prevalence of tricksters. They have come to abide with Spiritualists, and you can no more get rid of them entirely than you can get rid of the corrupt politician, the thief, the housebreaker, the counterfeiter, and the hundreds of other criminals that are constantly preying upon the public.

There is a constant stream of corruption and wrong-doing in all the churches, as illustrated by the daily papers, and it is greatly in excess of the crime of the tricksters in our own ranks. Spiritualists as a class are the most moral people on earth to-day, and that is one reason why they should fight the tricksters on both sides of life.

Again, the necessity of extreme care in investigating physical phenomena. The fact that you "think" you see your friend in a dark seance is no absolute evidence that you do, as illustrated by the communication on our fifth page, giving the manifestations supposed to have occurred at Clifton's circles for physical phenomena. It shows that assertions—bold and uncompromising—must always be taken with a "grain of allowance." Each one who endorsed Clifton in the statement made would have gladly testified to the same on oath, yet they all know now that he was a rank fraud. With all our skill we could not get at the method he adopted, as great pains were taken to prevent grabbing the spirits—and it certainly, under the circumstances, would have been dangerous to do so. But when we found the trap-door so concealed as to positively avoid detection, we then realized how Clifton had succeeded in making $2,000 off of Chicago gullibles.

But a great point has been gained. To be an honest, kind, tender, painstaking, conscientious fraud-hunter is now a respectable calling, and woe be to the tricksters who howl against them.

THINK TO SOME PURPOSE.

This city in many respects is a cesspool of corruption. Its rum holes, its houses of prostitution, its gambling hells, its boodle aldermen, and corrupt politicians make it in many respects equally as bad as some of the cities of olden times, and which have passed away in consequence of their own inherent rottenness. There is, of course, a respectable element, truly enlightened, in the city but it has failed, as yet, to overcome the dangerous class. To fight the combined elements of corruption in the city we have a Civic Federation, that is constantly inspecting every avenue of the city government and public institutions to unearth fraud, and during the time of its existence it has evolved a vast amount of rottenness as set forth by the daily papers. Supposing some one should excitedly arise and cry: "Oh! daily papers, don't publish to the world the rottenness and corruption of Chicago, for it will surely ruin the fair fame of our city, and prevent its growth. Besides, when I send a paper to my Eastern friends, I don't want them to know there is anything wrong here." Such a man is no thinker—he is very foolish who would talk like the above. The business of the Civic Federation is to unearth wrong doing and publish it to the world, and if ever a really perfectly divine institution existed it is one.

These thoughts arise from a letter lately received from the Egypt part of this State. We give one paragraph: "Don't publish the doings of frauds or tricky mediums. I can't send such papers to my friends." Why, my friend, it is only by probing the corruption that the spiritual atmosphere can be purified. Spiritualism is a grand truth; as a religion and a philosophy it is superior to all the various orthodox sects in the world. It is founded on the rock of truth, and will forever stand. To remain silent and not condemn the arrant tricksters and frauds that have attached themselves to it, is simply lending them a helping hand. Fraud is here in our ranks; it has come to stay. Suppress it in one direction and it will rise in another. You cannot abolish it altogether; you can only hold it in abeyance. For hundreds of thousands of years this earth has been inhabited, yet see the corruption in Church and State. One hundred thousand years more will see a marked improvement, but the criminal element must be constantly fought wherever found—in Spiritualism as well as in civic government—in Spiritualism as well as in Church and State. From the start The Progressive Thinker has followed this policy and it has proved to be the only Spiritualist paper that is a success financially, showing that the great mass of people are with it, and that they are against the goody-goody policy—one becoming so good he is absolutely good for nothing, antagonizing no one, and in harmony with everybody.

THREE MONTHS FOR 15 CENTS.

The standing offer we have had in The Progressive Thinker to send the paper three months for fifteen cents is now withdrawn.

"Commentaries on Hebrew and Christian Mythology." By Judge Parish B. Ladd, LL.B., of the San Francisco Bar. This book is of more than ordinary value, giving the results of much patient thought and research by a mind well qualified to sift evidence and arrange facts. In compact form it gives just what is needed on the subject. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of "Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"The Fountain of Life, or The Threefold Power of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. One of the author's most useful books. It should be read by every man and woman. Price 50 cents.

HELL, HEAVEN.

EVERY ONE IS EVOLVED FROM THE SAME PRIMAL SOURCE—AND THE ROAD THAT LEADS TO A HELL IS JUST AS MUCH GOD'S ROAD AS THE ONE THAT LEADS TO HEAVEN, OR ELSE THERE ARE TWO OWNERS TO THE UNIVERSE.

Whether God, Buddha, Brahm, Orzmud, Jehovah or Immutable Law governs the universe, it is a fact that every human soul emanates from the same primal source, and is an integral part of the divine structure recognized as all things. Whether a convict in prison, a murderer on the scaffold, a thief prowling around at night, a king on his throne, a president in his chair of State, or a philanthropist sowing seeds of benevolence, each one is of special importance in the grand economy of creation, and each one is an integral part of that great archway that sustains all things, and not one can be annihilated or destroyed.

The pure white ray of light that emanates from the sun, possesses seven divine impulses for good, recognized as colors, each one of which serves a specific purpose in the economy of creation. That white beam may be focalized or concentrated on an object so as to destroy it or work great damage, thus diverting it from its apparent mission, and changing it, as it were, unto a fiend.

Every individual, whether a highway robber, or a philanthropist has within himself all the divine attributes for good, but like the white beam of light they can be utilized for works of evil and deeds of darkness The chisel that the sculpture uses to work out in marble the classic features of a Socrates or Plato, can be utilized to commit murder or to break into a house to steal.

The difference between individuals lies wholly in the use to which each one puts his God-given, or nature-given, or law-given gifts or attributes. One confined to Jail—a besotted wretch—was heard to sing "Home, Sweet Home," with a pathos that brought tears even to the eyes of the criminals around him. His voice tremulously sweet, his eyes dimmed with tears, his face turned heavenward, his whole being for a time illuminated with a light divine, and angelic emotions surging in his soul, this young man's voice and bearing was angelic as the corridors of the jail were vibrant with tones of his voice. For a brief period all the divine attributes of his nature asserted themselves, and manifested in the right direction, and his manhood had temporarily changed from the demon to the angel. Thus it is that divine attributes may be directed towards the good or bad, just as the divine attributes of power can do a philanthropic deed or becoming perverted commit a murder. As related by the Topeka (Kansas) Capital, the scene for this little touch of humanity is not laid in a romantic valley nor among vine-clad hills. Purpling clouds and the hush of twilight do not form the background for the setting sun, and the wind does not howl in fitful gusts around anybody's broken lattice.

On the contrary, the incident happened on a Santa Fe train near the little station or Holliday, and the surroundings were most prosaic and unromantic. Although the last place on earth to expect it, yet here was witnessed the triumph of Charity, the greatest in the trinity of virtues; Charity triumphant after Faith and Hope had been cast to the winds.

The scene was a short one and will not take long in the telling. A hard-featured man was seated next to a window and was gazing vacantly from it. Something in the man's bearing and in his dull and spiritless look showed that he had entered somewhere and had left hope behind.

Presently a little girl came down the aisle—a little girl whose bright eyes and sunny hair seemed created for dispensing sunshine and happiness.

She paused before the seat occupied by our morose friend and instinctively held out a big white chrysanthemum to him. The startled man took it and looked at her incredulously for a moment. Then with an impulsive movement, he reached in his pocket, pulled out a dollar and gave it to her.

After a little while the girl's father came over and offered to return the man's money, but no amount of persuasion could induce him to accept. Sitting down on the seat beside him the father got the stranger's history. He was a pardoned convict out of prison, and the little girl's was the first act of kindness he had received in many years.

"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," and many hearts will throb responsively, with genuine brotherly feeling, to the impulsive action which proved that although numbered among criminals this man was still a brother man, with a man's heart susceptible to the finest feelings, the feelings that are always called forth by the sweet innocence of childhood and flowers.

There is a tender spot in every human soul that can be reached sometime, just as in the case of this ex-convict. The divine attribute of love, kindness, benevolence, virtue, honesty, were nestling in his soul, ready to be illuminated by the kindly touch of a little child, and feeling intuitively that there is a life beyond, as an inspired writer says:

"I cannot believe that earth is man's abiding place. It cannot be that our life is cast upon the ocean of eternity, to float for a moment upon its waves, and sinking into nothingness? Else why is it that the glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our heart, are forever wandering aubout unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and clouds come over us with a beauty that is not of earth; and then pass off and leave us to muse upon their loveliness? Why is it that the stars who hold their festival around the midnight throne, are set above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And, finally, why is it that the bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view and then taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents on our hearts? We are born for a higher destiny than that of earth; there is a realm where the rainbow never fades—where the stars will be spread out before us, like the island that slumbers in the ocean; and where the beings that pass before us like shadows, will stay in our presence forever."

While all are born for a higher destiny than that of earth, sometimes the way is exceedingly devious whereby the home in the Summerland is finally attained. There may be one beautiful "divine purpose" animating an individual and pulsating like little wavelets in his soul, but let it come in contact with grim Temptation—fascinating, alluring, brilliant, and attractive—and it may be diverted from its primal course, and lead its subject on to what is designated as ruin; and in the ruin wrought, in the home circle blasted, in the hearts made sad, and the wrecks caused, the "divine purpose" is always present, seeking recognition, even if it be in the dregs of the cup of sin.

Every attribute is evolved, Nature-given or Law-given, whether it be that which incites to crime—to steal, to be covetous, to be intemperate or vile. God, Nature, or Law—one and the same when applied to specific actions of any or all the forces of the universe! Hence the hard-featured man referred to above, and who had been in prison, had only those impulses which were given him to utilize, and all were divine in the sense that he inherited them and did not create them himself, and was in no way responsible for their primal existence. In utilizing them, however, he soon learned that the "divine purpose" leads in two directions: One towards spiritual darkness, and the other towards spiritual light. This "divine purpose" was no less divine in its origin and intent when following evil, than when doing good, but the impressive effects were exactly opposite, and it is therein that the needed lesson was learned. It is divine to learn a needed lesson even in the lowest hell. It is the "divine purpose" that you inherit eternal life, and it can not be destroyed, even if the happiness finally attained has been realized by descending to the depths of the infernal regions. The "divine purpose" permits you to degrade yourself, if you so desire, and in the slime and debris thus realized an added experience is had which leads to the realm of light.

When one realizes there are no bounds or limits to the "divine purpose;" that there are no roads or pathways in life which one may choose to pursue, whether in the cesspools of vice or in the departments of cultured wisdom and ethics, that are not in every sense divine, though opposite in effects, then he or she, is prepared to realize the plan prepared for every human soul, and that all will attain the higher celestial regions eventually, whether it be by the devious, dismal, circuitous route through the lowest hells, or on the direct line adorned with intellectual strength and all the cardinal virtues. Those who pursue the divine circuitous route to the celestial regions, by the way of the hells of darkness are to be pitied, for they do not realize their sad condition. If you are pure in thought, word and deed, you are to be congratulated, for you are on the direct road to the regions of bliss; and you should extend a cordial sympathy and helping hand to those who choose to reach the celestial homes of happiness, through the meandering pathway of the hells of darkness on earth and in spirit life, for the darkest hell is just as much God's handiwork as the highest heaven, and the road to each was made by him, else there are two creative powers controlling the universe.

J. R. FRANCIS.

AN EXCEEDINGLY VIVID PICTURE.

OF THE FUTURE OF ORTHODOXY—THE TREND OF PUBLIC OPINION VIVIDLY PORTRAYED.

The Rev. Thomas Dixon of New York City in his last Sunday's sermon took the sensational ground that "the orthodox church has lost its hold on the public mind;" says the Chicago Tribune, "and that men, as a rule, do not go to church, and that women are the people who hold fast to the orthodox organization." This, he claimed, is true both of the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches. According to the most recent statistics, he said, 385,000 persons attend the latter church in greater New York; whereas it should have at least 900,000, which indicates a loss of nearly 600,000 communicants in that one, great, wicked city. The Rev. Dr. Dixon attributes this enormous fall off in attendance to two reasons; first, the decline in the intellectual status of the clergy, and, second, to the fact that when men of brains get into the ministry and begin to think and give expression to their thoughts they have to get out of the pulpit or stand trial on charges of heresy; and he concludes:

Old forms have had power, not because they were forms, but because the people believed they had power. The ministry of the future must be of the independent sort, and the new theology will embrace all creeds united under one grand church, the state that shall believe in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

It is certain that in Western European nations and in the United States the mass of organized laborites have practically ceased to go to church. They leave that duty to their wives and daughters. They themselves appear at church on stated occasions, such as marriages, baptisms, funerals, and on certain festival days, and not generally even then. They are no longer regular members of any church. In countries like France and Belgium half of the men are non-attendants of divine worship. How the matter stands in the cities of this country any one can ascertain by looking into the Protestant churches on Sunday and then looking into the street cars, the parks, the pleasure gardens, the theaters, the baseball grounds, and the saloons. It will not take long to find out that the attendants in the one case are largely women, and in the other their husbands, sons, and brothers.

Now, why is this absenteeism? The answer in part is not far to seek. It is largely due to the outcome of scientific research. The startling discoveries of science during the last fifty years have filtrated down gradually from the investigators into the colleges and high schools, where they are taught to or read by the rising generation of young men, and by them spread and disseminated among multitudes of young men, while the same discoveries have reached the great mass of organized wageworkers through the discussions in their lodges and in the columns of the papers and magazines which they patronize. They are informed that the Jewish belief as to the age of the earth is wholly incorrect, and that instead of being about 5,800 years old, is has been untold thousands of years, if not eons, as the testimony of the rocks shows, and that man has lived on earth many thousands of years before Adam. They have been affected by the Darwinian ideas of evolution and development. They have come to believe that man was not created "a little lower than the angels," and has been gradually degenerating, but that he began at the bottom of the scale and has gradually risen to his present mental development. They have found that some races have arisen more rapidly than others that some, like the Chinese, and Africans, and Indian tribes, have advanced to a certain point and remained stationary, while others, like the Europeans, have made enormous advancement.

Because of the widespread promulgation of those scientific views the organized wage-workers have also lost the faith they once had in the so-called Mosaic account of the origin of man and his fall on account of Adam and Eve's eating of the tree of good and evil. The higher criticism has told them that Moses did not write this account, but that it is an ancient Chaldean belief, accepted by the Israelites when they came in contact with the Chaldeans.

Being therefore in doubt about the origin of the human race, they have come to disbelieve in the existence of a hell prepared for the punishment and torture of the human race because of Adam and Eve, whose existence is in dispute, committing a sin 5,800 years ago, when there were savage races on earth perhaps 100,000 years ago. They are all the more disinclined to believe in this alleged place of eternal torture for faults that they are not responsible for because they don't hear it but rarely preached in the city pulpits any more. They find that this old hades doctrine is now quite generally avoided or slurred over by the clergy. So from doubting the "fall of man" in the garden of Eden, it is but a step to doubt the incarnate atonement, for if there were no fall of man then there is no need of an incarnate atonement.

For these and various other reasons millions of trades union wage-earners in this country and Europe are not taking a lively interest in church matters. They leave the church to their wives. This is peculiarly true in large cities, but in the rural communities the old orthodox doctrine is believed, except here and there, where some young, educated man of influence has promulgated the Darwin evolution doctrine and the remarkable discoveries of science and applied the methods of the higher criticism to explaining the sacred scriptures.

In view of these facts, what are men like the Rev. Dixon to do? It is impossible to stifle these new ideas of science. The church cannot and the State will not prevent their promulgation in books and magazines. It is no longer possible to rear a generation in religious ignorance of the teachings of science. The revelations of astronomy, chemistry, geology, biology, medicine, surgery, and other sciences have opened up avenues of thought which cannot be closed or ignored. The churches must adapt their creeds to the truths disclosed by science, which will give them an opportunity to preach more about Christ's beautiful inculcations of honesty, right, morality, and charity, and our duty to our fellow-men, and to urge men to do unto others as they wish to have done to themselves, without fear of eternal hellfire. Science has left plenty of room for the churches to do a mighty work for humanity and leading reformed lives.

AN IMPORTANT OBJECT LESSON.

NEVER EXCELLED.

MOST MARVELOUS INDEPENDENT MATERIALIZATIONS—TWO OR THREE FORMS APPEAR AT A TIME—MEDIUM FULLY ENDORSED BY PROMINENT SPIRITUALISTS.

To the Editor:—A prominent Spiritualist residing in an Eastern city, some time ago, published in a Spiritualist paper, an article giving his opinion, as to the genuineness of the materializing of more than one spirit form at the same time through any medium. In his opinion if more than one spirit appeared in front or outside of the cabinet, to greet their earthly friends, at the same time, the extra spirit presented was either a confederate or the manifestation was a fraud. For the benefit of many readers of The Progressive Thinker, and those interested in this class of phenomena, with all due respect to the author of the assertion, I will show him to be in great error.

In this city is located a medium at 282 West Madison street, who has recently been interviewed by scores of earnest and critical investigators. This person is Mr. Harry Clifton—a gentleman of slight build, height 5 feet, 10½ inches, weight 156 pounds; former weight two years ago, 210; age thirty-eight years, light complexion and eyes of blue, slim features adorned with moustache, etc.

The subject of this sketch possesses remarkable phases of mediumship. The writer has attended six consecutive seances at his parlors. I went to interview not alone the medium, but his alleged (so-called, as the skeptic would call them) spiritual manifestations. I went diligently to ferret out the mystery (or trick) if any there might be, but completely gave up that theory at the conclusion of my personal investigation.

No trap doors, sliding panels, or other paraphernalia could be found. A black canton flannel curtain seven feet high stretched across one corner of a parlor, with black curtains tacked to two sides of a solid wall, were all seen. A committee was not required. A light in one corner of the room, some ten feet from the floor, was sufficient to emit good light. The medium, seated some six feet in front of the curtain requests all in the circle to give him their best thoughts, etc: The medium is entranced by a South Sea Islander. He stands outside of cabinet, back towards audience. His hand outstretched towards the curtain make passes in the air. Inside of a few seconds (while singing is going on, to create harmony) a beautiful female spirit emerges from the center opening of curtains. She advances towards the medium, by his side remains visible to all for a short time, then medium and materialized form are seen to enter the cabinet. Instantly there appears two and three forms at a time. While one or two stand, the other, center one, dematerializes outside, then reappears in a standing position. Presently the form rises and floats to the ceiling, some ten or twelve feet high, while "Shall we gather at the river" is sung by floating spirit, etc. The control gives friends in the circle the names of spirits about to materialize. A person is requested to come to the cabinet. The medium comes outside, and the spirit form by his side is recognized. A nun appears: persons are requested singly to come and look at face of spirit—the medium is seen at the same time with all forms that appear to their friends. Indians with costumes, feathers and copper hue! Arabians and Persians with Oriental garb and turbans; male and female; children, colored people as dark as erebus emerge from the cabinet. All that come in the presence of the medium, who leads them out, walk to and fro, converse etc. The medium is his own manager, and leads or causes the forms to appear by the waving of his hands. My Persian guide, nearly six or seven feet tall, dressed in fine costume walks by my side and leads out a female form. The curtain is lifted off the floor by spirits and two forms beside the medium are seen, distinctly seated on a chair. A beautiful female form appears out in the room, in elegant stage costume, purporting to be Mrs. Siddons, an actress. With hands manipulating the atmosphere, distinctly seen by all, she catches handfuls of roses, pinks, etc., in mid-air and passes them to the circle. Where do they come from? A pad (blank) examined by the circle prior to seance, and clear of any marks or writing, is taken in the spirit's lap, while she kneels on the floor, she tears off a sheet at a time, and are then passed rapidly to each person in circle. These contain from four to twenty or more beautiful faces in light and dark outlines, as pictures. Many are recognized. Where do the spirits sketch them so quickly? Messages also appear rapidly.

Beautiful lace is materialized on the carpet, and is touched by the members of circle. A trumpet is laid on the floor in front of the cabinet; a spirit, a male and a female alternately, sings, talks, laughs, etc. through it audibly. A spirit at the same time is seen in the entrance of curtain, standing. The medium brought outside, the trumpet talks all the same. Who controls the trumpet? Spirits are without veils that generally appear. Is it not all very strange, when at no time the medium is personating a spirit. Neither is he transfigured, consequently he must be an independent materializing medium. Go and visit his seances. See for yourselves. Solve the phenomena if you can. I give it up.

TESTIMONIAL.

We the undersigned having attended the seances of Mr. H. Clifton, held at his parlors, 282 W. Madison street, this city, on different occasions, cheerfully add our testimony individually as witnesses of the spiritual manifestations of the above medium occurring through his special phases, namely: The independent materialization of spirit forms. Therefore we subscribe our names to the correctness of the above article as follows: (names omitted—Editor.)

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 7, 1893.

The above was signed by a score or more of very prominent Spiritualists, who certified in emphatic language that the manifestations were what they purported to be—genuine manifestations of spirit power. We withold their names, for all are heartily ashamed of the fact that they were so easily deceived. At the time this communication was handed to us, we knew that the parties endorsing it had been imposed upon and under various pretenses withheld its publication. Clifton was a first-class villain, and never produced a genuine materialization. He took away $2,000 from the gullibles. He was the sleekest villain—Christ-like in appearance and language— that was ever in Chicago. He could almost deceive the very "elect."

The above communication constitutes a broad and comprehensive object lesson, and even parties who "swear" to the genuineness of certain manifestations may be badly deceived. Tricksters are abroad in the land, and some Spiritualists stand ready to endorse them in the same manner Clifton was endorsed in this city.

Every city in the United States has its "Cliftons." They are in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, and other large cities. Like the Clifton here, they are sustained by gullibles. Not a Spiritualist paper besides The Progressive Thinker but what is afraid of them, afraid of their tirades of abuse and slander. And at the same time bear in mind, Spiritualists, that The Progressive Thinker is the only Spiritualist paper now published in the United States that is a success financially.

BASE TRICKSTERS.

The Worm Gnawing at the Root of Spiritualism!

PLAIN WORDS FROM AN HONEST WORKER—EFFECT OF THE BASE WORK OF TRICKSTERS POSING AS MEDIUMS—LET SPIRITUALISTS TAKE HEED—CURSE THE EDITOR IF HE DOES—CURSE THE EDITOR IF HE DOES NOT—AND WHAT IS THE POOR EDITOR TO DO?

My Dear Mr. Francis:—The distasteful duty before me, in writing you this letter, is one from which I would gladly shrink, as the giving of information, of a painful nature, is distressing to all good people, and knowing the very careful discrimination it has always been your effort to maintain in recognition, by publication, of matter sent you from all over the country, by parties unknown to you personally, I do say with you when it comes to published doings, self-written, by parties whose paths have not run athwart yours, but in some parts of the country, or wherever they [illegible], practice habitual fraud, obscenity and knavery, in daily life, to the detriment of our cause, and the besmirching of our glorious philosophy, what, verily, is a poor editor to do?

The Spiritualists of a community should aid their press in downing these vile tricksters. When Spiritualists become sincere and fearless enough to do their plain duty as workers in a community; when they have common sense enough to look for one moment beyond their tiny local world, and a trickster comes among them and drags Spiritualism in the mire, it is the duty of those people duped, to send letters of warning and information to the spiritualistic press of the country, that it may cease to recognize in its columns the unworthy. These, with signature and address of all who may have viewed the spectacle of fraud and deception, will aid, in a clear and intelligent manner, our press, in eliminating the matter of unworthy ones from their crowded columns.

Let us have less moral cowardice among us, and if a hard, and disagreeable duty stands imperative, let us stand ready to perform it. The worm which is eating at the root of the tree of Spiritualism is Fraudulence and Imposition, attached like barnacles to its holy and beauteous principles. We must purge our ranks from their deterious influence. Many, no doubt, do send individual letters of information regarding these people. They forget how frail and weak a thing is the human heart, and that the editor of a paper cannot be swayed by any personal letter from one, defaming another. Though Truth might be spoken, yet spite-work would too often creep in, and the publisher be wholly at sea, a stranger perchance to both parties concerned. Yet the recognition in the crowded columns of a great weekly paper, of unfit people, proclaiming themselves at length, and thereby bringing anathemas on the defenseless head of the unwitting editor, from a thoughtless people who have been duped by the unworthy correspondent, is not a thing to be desired, and information, we repeat, should come from a body of people, not from individuals, from reasons stated above.

It will be a surprise to you, to learn that Geo. Brooks, some weeks since, put in one month of hard work, in his thorough and sincere way, among the Spiritualists of St. Joseph, in response to an actual summons, and yet so wild with disgust were the community, at Spiritualism, so-called, that Mr. Brooks received, not even the remuneration of replacing his actual expense, but, barring a paltry $2 or $3 at the hall, taken at collection, Sunday evenings, was compelled to realize, at the end of the month, that he was sans salary, sans railroad fare, sans justice—and why?: The spiritualistic people of St. Joseph had been trodden under foot by the exposition of the fraudulence of one May Goodrich, assisted by Wm. Langdon, a young man of St. Joseph, who is producing the same condition of affairs in Omaha, (from which city he wrote a lengthy eulogy to your paper of May 1st), these parties having so duped the people in their so-called materializations, that honest investigators with clear brains, are in despair as to the outcome. I enclose slip from St. Joseph Gazette. The party who turned on the light, to witness the shameful spectacle, is one of the veteran Spiritualist workers there, also J. R. Rackliffe, 1027 Felix St., St. Joseph, Mo. Mr. Bender's address is No. 329 N. 9th St., St. Joseph. He would give you other names I have forgotten.

We found it impossible to get people out, for a time, to attend a Spiritualist meeting, in that town—and this woman, and this Langdon, are plying the same games here, besmirching the sacred shrine of Immortal Truth, with the grime of immorality and deceit.

I love your paper and the good it is accomplishing. We need its far-reaching influence throughout the country as a people. We pray for its growth and prosperity. But we hard-working, conscientious toilers, our cheeks do blanch a little at the thought of these soiled names appearing among the doings, in the columns of the painstaking workers in our ranks. I know that the contingencies which beset the daily life of that hard-working unfortunate, an editor, are hard, indeed.

Forgive the encroachment of this letter. The stern voice of Duty bids me write it.

ELLA GIBSON MAGOON.

Following is the account in the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette, of the expose referred to by Mrs. Magoon:

Everybody was seated in the [illegible]ary circle, and Langdon, the medium, took off his coat and was tied by the wrists to a chair in the dark cabinet arranged in one corner of the room, the only lamp in the room was turned low, and the audience waited. May Goodrich asked for a song, and the "Sweet By and By" was started. That didn't seem to bring the spirits, so more singing was asked, and the "Sweet By and By" was tried again.

The rendering of this song twice in succession occupied considerable time, and a light appeared behind the dark screen of the cabinet. Another verse was sung, and something white floated where the light had been. Then more lights—then the white "apparition" appeared again, only more of it. One more chorus of "The Land that is Fairer than Day," and the medium didn't do a thing but trot out a full grown "ghost," "all dressed up in his Sunday clothes."

That is, some of the folks thought it was a ghost, and the women began to wonder whose first husband it was, and the men wiped their eyes as they thought of their great-grandfathers, and the arrival of other invited ghosts was momentarily expected, and all was going off according to the bill of fare, when some of the delegation from the Wood Manufacturing company, spoiled the whole performance by too much familiarity with the visitor from across the Styx. They actually grabbed the angel by the petticoat, presumably with the intention of going back to heaven with him.

Anyway they took hold of the spirit, and stuck to him as though he was a long lost brother. A momentary scuffle, and then the light was turned on, and Mr. Sammy Langdon, with his white gauze robe half torn off, stood a convicted fake. A few partly burned fuses on the floor in the cabinet ended the expose, and those that paid twenty-five cents to see a ghost can hereafter go home and look at themselves before retiring at night and save their quarters.

PLACED IN AN IRON CAGE.

I have just returned from Omaha, where I assisted Mrs. May Goodrich and Mr. W. F. Langdon in public meeting at Patterson's Hall. On Saturday evening of last week, Mr. Langdon, who is a physical medium for light and slate-writing manifestations, accepted an invitation from Mr. O. C. Campbell to sit in an iron cage for a test. Mr. Campbell's cage for physical mediums has been a terror to most of the phenomenal mediums visiting Omaha. Mr. Langdon is a young medium, having entered the field but a few months ago. He was placed in the cabinet, and the cage put over him and nailed to the floor. Several slates were placed about two feet from the cage. The lamp was lowered, and we waited for results. The sitters did not have long to wait, when one of the slates was thrown over the top of the cabinet, falling to the floor and breaking it. The manifestations commenced in earnest. Many messages were written upon the slates by invisible hands, while Mr. Langdon sat in the cage in a deep trance, not being able to move in either direction more than six inches. Mr. Langdon has won for himself a reputation in Omaha that keeps him busy filling engagements. He has engagements for every night this week in that City. I am sure he will come to the front ranks as a physical medium. His address is 207 S. 24th St., Omaha, Neb.

DR. P. S. GEORGE.

AN IMPOSTOR ROUNDLY DENOUNCED.

To the Editor:—As I have not inflicted my pen thoughts upon the readers of your excellent paper for some time, I now want to thank our good sister, Mrs. Eva A. Cassell, for her timely revelations upon the subject of the inhuman vampires and fakirs crowding into our ranks under the blessed name of mediums, when in reality an orthodox hell would not be half hot enough to justify the punishment they deserve.

We have had experience during the last two weeks with one of those devils incarnate, whom Mrs. J. W. Kratz has mentioned as being at Evansville, Ind. I note she mentions a Hibernian who has the map of the old country stamped upon his countenance, and I believe we have had this same impostor in our midst during April, under the name of Dr. David Douglas, claiming to belong in New York. I want to warn all Spiritualists and friends to be on the lookout for this son of Ireland. He is a very smooth fakir; he is well posted upon all phases of mediumship and knows of all our best mediums, and can talk as glibly upon the philosophy and phenomena of Spiritualism as the most learned of our cause. This human vampire came to Streator unsolicited, and he went away in disgrace, for we consider him a disgrace to our cause. I branded him as a fraud, and because I did so he tried to ruin my good name by falsely asserting to my friends that my reason for denouncing him was because he would not divide the profits of the fake seance with me. This I wish to brand as a contemptible bare-faced lie, for I was fool enough to give this cur, $3.50 of my good money before I fully realized what he was.

I presume he is now "Dr." some-one-else. So that others may not get beat by this money-grabber, I will try to describe him so that none may be deceived in his identity.

He could easily be taken at first sight as a gentleman; he is medium height; medium build; rather on the fleshy order; weight about 175 pounds; well educated; with somewhat of an Irish accent; rather full face; full beard (when here) trimmed in latest French style; dark hair and whiskers; gray-bluish eyes; high broad forehead; rather full eyes with sort of roguish twinkle in them. He is a bull-dozer in his talk, and if you mention "test conditions" to him he goes all to pieces and quotes places where he has given grand successful phenomena before Psychic Research Societies, etc., but is careful not to give any names, and has no letters of reference, or at least refused to show any here.

I want every lover of our cause who reads this grand progressive paper to keep a lookout for all such fakirs.

Do not patronize any of the mediums and "Doctors" who claim to be mediums unless they can show positive proof that they are what they claim to be. No first class medium will ever play the tramp upon any society, for if they be genuine they will ever find room to live and room to work and will get ample support from honest investigators, who are willing to pay honest mediums for honest work. I say, let us unite as a vigilance committee to drive such human drones, out of the lines; they are too lazy to work, and are afraid to steal, so they take the name of medium and start to live off of the too credulous, good, honest people who believe all should be honest and just, and true, and human, for that is the basis of our religion.

W. H. H. TUCKER.

Streator, Ill.

George III., so far from being the ferocious tyrant described in the Declaration of Independence, was as gentle as a child to all with whom he came in contact.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Postoffice address.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., New York

GENERAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 8.)

Mrs. G. Partridge, the psychometrist has changed her residence to that of a suburban instead of a crowded city place. She will be found by her patrons and friends in a much more commodious home at 54 North 52nd St. One block north of the Lake St. elevated road. A beautiful and restful ride.

Societies and camp-meetings wishing the services of A. E. Tisdale may address him at 547 Bank St., New London, Conn.

W. H. B. writes from Trafalgar, Ind.: "We are pleased to report a very successful conclusion of a course of five lectures by the guides of that indefatigable worker in the vineyard, Mrs. Julia Steelman-Mitchell. Many and lavish were the expressions of approval and delight heard on every hand. Her tests that followed each lecture was eminently satisfactory and spirit messages from sealed photos were peculiarly unique. Her lectures were the first ever delivered in our county on our grand philosophy, and we feel her stay was all too short. She went to Martinsville from here for two lectures; from there to Missouri for two weeks. On her return we contemplate organizing a society."

Secretary writes from South Bend, Ind.: "Geo. H. Brooks has just completed a very successful course of lectures for this, The First Spiritualist Society of South Bend, Ind. His lectures were of a very pleasing and edifying character. He made many converts for Spiritualism during his stay which was of a week's duration. We hope to be able to again have the pleasure of having him in our midst; also any other good speaker that may desire to serve our society. Mr. Brooks organized a lyceum for us, with a large membership."

Geo. F. Perkins writes from Anderson, Ind.: "I find a pretty town here with a great many Spiritualists, and so far as I have known them a very nice, social people. Their temple is a model-one, and has good influences. What a grand thing if the Chicago people had taken some of the rent money paid to outsiders and built a temple of their own. This is a busy time of the year and the farmers are getting in a hurry. Already camp-meeting talk is heard, the grouds being only about four miles from here. Every one is more or less interested."

Dr. Wilkins has removed to 54 North 52nd St. Near the Lake St. elevated road. The Doctor reports quite favorably of the change—from that of the business district to the residence portion of the city. He says "it is delightful and healthful."

We are glad to learn Emma E. Poucher is meeting with great success in her efforts to obtain materializations. She writes from Henderson Harbor, N. Y.: "For over a year I have steadily prosecuted my attempts at materialization. My dress has been prescribed by attendant spirits. My daily habits, my food, exercise and hours of rest, have all been carefully enjoined upon me by these unseen guides. I am now at the period in which the work is nearly completed. Every day I have an hour for sitting in my cabinet with one or two persons only in the room. As soon as I enter the chairs are moved from their places. Every article of furniture seems animated—a sofa, a large music box, and most wonderful of all, a friend who weighs nearly 200 pounds, is carried, chair and all, into the adjoining room. Everything movable is carried about—clothing, heavy boxes, sofa cushions, and from our person and pockets the articles we wear and carry are removed. Coats and vests are taken off and watches and jewelry removed and hidden in the next room. Voices are distinctly heard, a whole chorus keeping time with the music, and sometimes articulate words. The rappings are very loud and clear all over the room, loud and clear all over the room, and any questions are answered, although this is not the object of the raps, they being simply one step in the development of force. If there are any who have had a similar experience, I should be very glad to hear from them."

The Daily Express of Beatrice, Neb., says: ""The first of a series of meetings was held at Unity church Sunday at 3 p. m., following a few prefatory remarks by the chairman of the meeting. Mr. Leonidas Pethoud, son of our esteemed fellow-townsman, A. J. Pethoud, arose under control and made a short introductory address. He then asked for a subject or questions from the audience, either verbally or written. With deliberation a question was handed up to the chairman to read, "What is Spiritualism, and what good is it doing?" Combining the two questions into one, the speaker handled it rapidly and very satisfactorily to the large number of listeners. Mr. Pethoud speaks while entranced, not knowing a word that is said."

Theordore F. Price having just closed a two months' engagement at Grand Rapids, Mich., is serving the First Society of Buffalo, N. Y., as lecturer and test medium, during May. His fall season in October begins at Indianapolis, Indiana.; November, Pittsburgh Pa.; December, Milwaukee, Wis.; open dates later on in the season. Address during May, 248 N. Division St., Buffalo, N. Y., permanent address, Cape May, N. Y.

A musical recital was given by the West Side Choral Union directed by Prof. H. A. Tolman Friday evening, May 7, at the People's Institute. The program consisted of a great variety and was enjoyed by all.

SCHOOLS MUST BE SECULAR.

St. Cloud, Minn., April 27.—Judges Baxter and Searle of the district court to-day handed down a decision in the case of Oliver Rasnick vs. School District No. 60, Stearns county, and Miss Mary Tschumperlin, teacher, giving judgment to the plaintiff, who applied for an injunction prohibiting the defendants from using the schoolhouse for the purpose of giving any religious instructions or conducting exercises peculiar to the distinctive teachings, creeds or beliefs of any religious faith, and particularly from teaching the catechism of the Roman Catholic church.

The court says it fully appreciates the importance of the case and has made careful examination for the reason that it is the first judical determination in this state of the question involved. The provisions as construed, it says, apply to all religious creeds and to all schools supported by public moneys. It says exercises such as held in the Avon school are prohibited by the constitution because they violate rights of conscience; that such exercises constitute worship, and that any schoolroom where the same are conducted is a place of worship, and, therefore, the plaintiff is compelled to aid in the support of a place of worship against his conscience; that confining these religious exercises to the catechism is giving a "preference," as that term is used in the constitution.

The court, therefore, maintains that money appropriated and used for the support of such schools is used for the "support of schools wherein distinctive doctrines, creeds and tenets of a particular Christian religious sect are promulgated and taught," contrary to the provisions of section 3, article 8, of the constitution as amended in 1877.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

AN APOLOGY FOR MRS. CASSEL.

Like the pearl which is found at great depths, truth is only discovered at the bottoms of great heaps of falsehood. Thus truth is called the "Pearl of great Price." The diver does not see the precious gem while occupying the comfortable position on ship deck; he must take the chance of yielding up his life in pursuit of it, and he knows it can only be found at the bottoms of great depths of water through which he must penetrate to obtain it; and he dives days, weeks and months, and sometimes years, without accomplishing the object of his life, to find it. Then pause here, oh! searcher after truth, and learn that heaps of falsehood must be encountered and pressed aside before a single scintillation of this most precious gem will announce its presence, and that falsehood is its necessary environment, without which it cannot exist.

Then sound the light Timbrels! Jehovah is not here, but there is a human female entity, who for fifteen years has encountered the deep waters and high rubbish-heaps of falsehood's "perniciousness, disgust and unhygiene," pressed them aside, and has not "quit to give any one else her chance!"

Did not Socrates feel the perniciousness of the Greek judiciary's alternative? Was he not disgusted with their attitude on one side of him, and the nescient condition of the public mind on the other? Did he regard the hemlock as conducive to health—hygienic, as it were, and finally did he quit? No! And the immortelle of "unanswerable" entwines his memory today! And so all adown the ages human entities kept on investigating deep waters and almost unsurmountable rubbish-heaps of falsehood, and counted themselves well repaid if they yielded them but one feeble scintillation. Persistence, thou art a jewel!

How I sympathize with the writer of "Infidel's opinion" in your last issue, whose votaries, he avows, has no deep waters and high rubbish-heaps of falsehood to offer their students for investigation. How does he expect to unearth this precious gem? Lived there historically a great mind, who acclaimed his ability to procure it without delving, then would I enter their nescient camp, and repose. Let your watchword be, "keep out!"

Lima, Ohio. W. W. HAWKINS.

CATARRH INHALER FREE.

I will for a short time mail any reader of The Progressive Thinker my new scientific Aerial Catarrh Inhaler, much improved, and medicine for one year, on three days' trial. If it gives satisfaction, send me $1; if not, return it in the original package. Catarrh, asthma, headache, partial deafness, roaring, colds or pain in the head immediately relieved and speedily cured. Address DR. E. J. WORST, Ashland, O 395

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Bible and Church Degrade Woman." By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three brief essays, on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion; The Degraded Status of Woman in the Bible; The Christian Church and Woman; written in Mrs. Stanton's usual trenchant style. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail $1. For sale at this office.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"From Night to Morn, or An Appeal to the Baptist Church." By Abby A. Judson. Gives an account of her experience in passing from the old faith of her parents to the light and knowledge of Spiritualism. It is written in a sweet spirit, and is well adapted to place in the hands of Christian people. Price 15 cents.

"History of the Inquisition." Every citizen of our country should read this concise history of that Romish churchly institution known as the Inquisition. The animus of Romanism against all institutions, beliefs and parties not in conformity with the ruling powers of the Romish hierarchy is plainly shown in these statements of veritable history. The devilishness and murderous malignity of the "Holy Inquisition" is scarcely paralleled in all the world's records of inhuman atrocities. It is for sale at this office, and will be mailed postpaid for 25 cents.

"Mahomet, the Illustrious." By Godfrey Higgins, Esq. (Library of Liberal Classics.) No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbons' work. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Occult Forces of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. Three pamphlets are embodied in this volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

"The Relation of Science to the Phenomena of Life." By Prof Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE PSYCHOGRAPH
—OR—
DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means or developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings, been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Orient, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose gravestones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

WAS ABRAHAM LINCOLN A SPIRITUALIST?
—OR—
Curious Revelations from the Life of a Trance Medium.
—BY—
MRS. NETTIE COLBURN MAYNARD

Together with Portraits, Letters and Poems. Illustrated with Engravings and Frontispiece of Lincoln, from Carpenter's Portrait from Life.

This book will be found peculiar, curious, startling!—more so than any work issued since Uncle Tom's Cabin. It breathes forgotten whispers which the rust of time had almost covered, and which have been snatched from the very jaws of oblivion. It deals with high official private life during the most momentous period in American History, and is a secret page from the life of him whom time serves only to make greater, more appreciated, and more understood—"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

Cloth, 12mo, illustrated, pp. 264, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE.
IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 480 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual aliment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

HELEN HARLOW'S VOW;
Or Self-Justice.

By Lois Waisbrooker. Many have read this book, many have re-read it, and many others out to read it. It should be read by every man and woman in the land. It shows the falsities rampant in society in matters of moral and social import, and the wrongs that flow therefrom to innocent victims of social ostracism. It contains a fine likeness of the author. Fine cloth, 290 pages. Price $1.00

The Influence of the Zodiac UPON HUMAN LIFE.
BY ELEANOR KIRK.

This is the only book which states the simple principles of the Zodiac in simple terms, making the entire matter clear to the averge understanding.

This volume indicates the location, characteristics and influence of each sign of the Zodiac, giving the days which each sign governs, and the gems and astral colors associated with each.

The diseases of the body, how to cure them, and the faults of character incidental to the different domains.

The methods of growth for each human being.

The domains from which companions, husbands and wives be selected.

The characteristics of children born in different domains, and the conditions to be observed in their care and education.

The personal ability and talent of the individual with reference to domestic, social and business success.

This work is the result of profound research, and in its preparation the author has been largely assisted by J. C. Street, A. B. N.

Bound in Special Cloth. - - Price, $1.

For Sale at This Office.

Ingersoll's Great Address

On Thomas Paine, at the late Paine celebration in New York City. Price, 6 cents; ten copies for 50 cents.

God in the Constitution.

By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

Memorial Oration by Col. Ingersoll

On Roscoe Conkling. Delivered before the New York Legislature, May 9, 1868. Price, 4 cents.

Echoes From the World of Song.

A collection of new and beautiful songs, with music and chorus, in book form. By C. P. Longley. Price $1.25. Postage 15 cents.

POEMS FROM THE INNER LIFE

By Lizzie Doten. These poems are as staple as sugar. Price $1.00.

ROMANISM AND THE REPUBLIC.

A WORK THAT EVERY LOVER OF his country should have at hand for consultation. By Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, M. A. This is a most able work, consisting of a Discussion of the Purposes, Assumptions, Principles and Methods of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy. The work contains 447 pages, and may be considered a mine of valuable information for every patriot in the land. Price $1. For sale at this office.

SEERS OF THE AGES.

Embracing Spiritualism, past and present. By J. M. Peebles, M. D. An encyclopædia of interesting and instructive facts. Price $2.00.

The Religion of Humanity;

A Philosophy of Life. By J. Leon Benwell. A beautiful paper-bound pamphlet, with likeness of author. A most valuable publication to circulate among Christian people. Price 15 cents.

Bottlebinding.

You can't judge of the quality of a book by the binding, nor tell the contents by the title. You look for the name of the author before you buy the book. The name of Robert Louis Stevenson (for instance) on the back guarantees the inside of the book, whatever the outside may be.

There's a parallel between books and bottles. The binding, or wrapper, of a bottle is no guide to the quality of the medicine the bottle contains. The title on the bottle is no warrant for confidence in the contents. It all depends on the author's name. Never mind who made the bottle. Who made the medicine? That's the question.

Think of this when buying Sarsaparilla. It isn't the binding of the bottle or the name of the medicine that you're to go by. That's only printer's ink and paper! The question is, who made the medicine? What's the author's name? When you see Ayer's name on a Sarsaparilla bottle, that's enough. The name Ayer guarantees the best, and has done so for 50 years.

THE ELIMINATOR
—OR—
Skeleton Keys to Sacerdotal Secrets.
BY DR. R. B. WESTBROOK.

Profoundly reverent, but thoroughly radical; exposing the fabulous claims of ancient Judaism and dogmatic Christianity, containing many startling conclusions never before published, showing clearly the mythical character of most of the Old and New Testament stories, and proving that Jesus was an impersonation and not a person. A genuine sensation.

Price $1.50. For Sale at this Office.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.
For the Home, the Lyceum and Societies.
A Manual of Physical, Intellectual and Spiritual Culture.
COMPILED BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

A COLLECTION OF MUSIC AND Songs, Golden Chain Recitations, Memory Gems, Choral Responses, Funeral Services, Programs for sessions, Parliamentary Rules. Instructions for Organizing and conducting Lyceums. Instructions for Physical Culture, Calisthenics and Marching; Banners, Standards, the Band of Mercy, etc.; a book by the aid of which a Progressive Lyceum, a Spiritual or Liberal Society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. It supplies the wants of Spiritual Societies for fresh Spiritual songs, with music free from the dismal tone of the old hymnology. It furnishes a unique selection of choice readings and responses such as no other selection contains. It gives a practical system of graceful calisthenics, every step of which is made plain by engravings. It gives instructions how to make the badges and banners and instruments in marching. It shows how to establish a Band of Mercy as auxiliary to the Lyceum, and has all the most beautiful songs which have been gathered up by that movement.

The author and compiler of this Guide is eminently prepared for the task by years of devoted labor in the Lyceum. The book is the result of practical work and tested by the interest awakened in the actual session of the Lyceum.

While intended for the working Lyceum, the guide is admirably adapted to the needs of the family, supplying 76 pages of new spiritual music and words found nowhere else, except in sheet form at many times the cost. The book has been placed at the remarkably low price of 50 cents, sent postpaid.

For Sale by The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis St., Chicago. Also by Hudson Tuttle, Berlin Heights, Ohio.

GLEANINGS FROM THE ROSTRUM.
BY A. B. FRENCH.

This work is one that every one should read. It beams throughout with rare gems of thought, practical as well as profound. There is sunshine and beauty in every sentence uttered. The work is dedicated to the author's favorite sister, Sarah French Farr, now passed to Spirit-life. Hudson Tuttle, of Berlin Heights, Ohio, gives an interesting sketch of the author's life.

CONTENTS:

Dedication.
Sketch of the Life of A. B. French.
William Denton.
Legends of the Buddha.
Mohammed, or the Faith and Wars of Islam.
Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon
Conflicts of Life.
The Power and Permanency of Ideas.
The Unknown.
Probability of a Future Life.
Anniversary Address.
The Egotism of Our Age.
What Is Truth?
Decoration Address.

PRICE, $1.00, POSTPAID.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRITUAL INTERCOURSE.

This work contains an account of the very wonderful spiritual developments at the house of Rev. Dr. Phelps, Stratford, Conn., and similar cases in all parts of the country. This volume is the first from the author directly upon the subject of "Spiritualism," and has stood the test of many years. Cloth, $1.25. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE TEACHINGS OF JESUS

Not Adapted to Modern Civilization, with the True Character of Mary Magdalene. By Geo. W. Brown, M. D. Price, 15 cents.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This little book will be read with intense interest by thousands. Price 25 cents.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

The Science of Spirit Return.

By Charles Dawbarn. Price 10 cents.

THE SOUL,

Its Nature, Relations and Expression in Human Embodiments. Given through Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, by her Guides. A book that every one who is interested in re-incarnation should read. Price $1.00.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.
BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. - - - Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede moral confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

Outside the Gates, and Other Tales

and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price $1.25.

AN IMPORTANT OBJECT LESSON.

NEVER EXCELLED.

MOST MARVELOUS INDEPENDENT MATERIALIZATIONS—TWO OR THREE FORMS APPEAR AT A TIME—MEDIUM FULLY ENDORSED BY PROMINENT SPIRITUALISTS.

To the Editor:—A prominent Spiritualist residing in an Eastern city, some time ago, published in a Spiritualist paper, an article giving his opinion, as to the genuineness of the materializing of more than one spirit form at the same time through any medium. In his opinion if more than one spirit appeared in front or outside of the cabinet, to greet their earthly friends, at the same time, the extra spirit presented was either a confederate or the manifestation was a fraud. For the benefit of many readers of The Progressive Thinker, and those interested in this class of phenomena, with all due respect to the author of the assertion, I will show him to be in great error.

In this city is located a medium at 282 West Madison street, who has recently been interviewed by scores of earnest and critical investigators. This person is Mr. Harry Clifton—a gentleman of slight build, height 5 feet, 10½ inches, weight 156 pounds; former weight two years ago, 210; age thirty-eight years, light complexion and eyes of blue, slim features adorned with moustache, etc.

The subject of this sketch possesses remarkable phases of mediumship. The writer has attended six consecutive seances at his parlors. I went to interview not alone the medium, but his alleged (so-called, as the skeptic would call them) spiritual manifestations. I went diligently to ferret out the mystery (or trick) if any there might be, but completely gave up that theory at the conclusion of my personal investigation.

No trap doors, sliding panels, or other paraphernalia could be found. A black canton flannel curtain seven feet high stretched across one corner of a parlor, with black curtains tacked to two sides of a solid wall, were all seen. A committee was not required. A light in one corner of the room, some ten feet from the floor, was sufficient to emit good light. The medium, seated some six feet in front of the curtain requests all in the circle to give him their best thoughts, etc: The medium is entranced by a South Sea Islander. He stands outside of cabinet, back towards audience. His hand outstretched towards the curtain make passes in the air. Inside of a few seconds (while singing is going on, to create harmony) a beautiful female spirit emerges from the center opening of curtains. She advances towards the medium, by his side remains visible to all for a short time, then medium and materialized form are seen to enter the cabinet. Instantly there appears two and three forms at a time. While one or two stand, the other, center one, dematerializes outside, then reappears in a standing position. Presently the form rises and floats to the ceiling, some ten or twelve feet high, while "Shall we gather at the river" is sung by floating spirit, etc. The control gives friends in the circle the names of spirits about to materialize. A person is requested to come to the cabinet. The medium comes outside, and the spirit form by his side is recognized. A nun appears: persons are requested singly to come and look at face of spirit—the medium is seen at the same time with all forms that appear to their friends. Indians with costumes, feathers and copper hue! Arabians and Persians with Oriental garb and turbans; male and female; children, colored people as dark as erebus emerge from the cabinet. All that come in the presence of the medium, who leads them out, walk to and fro, converse etc. The medium is his own manager, and leads or causes the forms to appear by the waving of his hands. My Persian guide, nearly six or seven feet tall, dressed in fine costume walks by my side and leads out a female form. The curtain is lifted off the floor by spirits and two forms beside the medium are seen, distinctly seated on a chair. A beautiful female form appears out in the room, in elegant stage costume, purporting to be Mrs. Siddons, an actress. With hands manipulating the atmosphere, distinctly seen by all, she catches handfuls of roses, pinks, etc., in midair and passes them to the circle. Where do they come from? A pad (blank) examined by the circle prior to seance, and clear of any marks or writing, is taken in the spirit's lap, while she kneels on the floor, she tears off a sheet at a time, and are then passed rapidly to each person in circle. These contain from four to twenty or more beautiful faces in light and dark outlines, as pictures. Many are recognized. Where do the spirits sketch them so quickly? Messages also appear rapidly.

Beautiful lace is materialized on the carpet, and is touched by the members of circle. A trumpet is laid on the floor in front of the cabinet; a spirit, a male and a female alternately, sings, talks, laughs, etc. through it audibly. A spirit at the same time is seen in the entrance of curtain, standing. The medium brought outside, the trumpet talks all the same. Who controls the trumpet? Spirits are without veils that generally appear. Is it not all very strange, when at no time the medium is personating a spirit. Neither is he transfigured, consequently he must be an independent materializing medium. Go and visit his seances. See for yourselves. Solve the phenomena if you can. I give it up.

TESTIMONIAL.

We the undersigned having attended the seances of Mr. H. Clifton, held at his parlors, 282 W. Madison street, this city, on different occasions, cheerfully add our testimony individually as witnesses of the spiritual manifestations of the above medium occurring through his special phases, namely: The independent materialization of spirit forms. Therefore we subscribe our names to the correctness of the above article as follows: (names omitted—Editor.)

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 7, 1893.

The above was signed by a score or more of very prominent Spiritualists, who certified in emphatic language that the manifestations were what they purported to be—genuine manifestations of spirit power. We withold their names, for all are heartily ashamed of the fact that they were so easily deceived. At the time this communication was handed to us, we knew that the parties endorsing it had been imposed upon and under various pretenses withheld its publication. Clifton was a first-class villain, and never produced a genuine materialization. He took away $2,000 from the gullibles. He was the sleekest villain—Christ-like in appearance and language— that was ever in Chicago. He could almost deceive the very "elect."

The above communication constitutes a broad and comprehensive object lesson, and even parties who "swear" to the genuineness of certain manifestations may be badly deceived. Tricksters are abroad in the land, and some Spiritualists stand ready to endorse them in the same manner Clifton was endorsed in this city.

Every city in the United States has its "Cliftons." They are in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, and other large cities. Like the Clifton here, they are sustained by gullibles. Not a Spiritualist paper besides The Progressive Thinker but what is afraid of them, afraid of their trades of abuse and slander. And at the same time bear in mind, Spiritualists, that The Progressive Thinker is the only Spiritualist paper now published in the United States that is a success financially.

BASE TRICKSTERS.

The Worm Gnawing at the Root of Spiritualism!

PLAIN WORDS FROM AN HONEST WORKER—EFFECT OF THE BASE WORK OF TRICKSTERS POSING AS MEDIUMS—LET SPIRITUALISTS TAKE HEED—CURSE THE EDITOR IF HE DOES—CURSE THE EDITOR IF HE DOES NOT—AND WHAT IS THE POOR EDITOR TO DO?

My Dear Mr. Francis:—The distasteful duty before me, in writing you this letter, is one from which I would gladly shrink, as the giving of information, of a painful nature, is distressing to all good people, and knowing the very careful discrimination it has always been your effort to maintain in recognition, by publication, of matter sent you from all over the country, by parties unknown to you personally, I do say with you, when it comes to published doings, self-written, by parties whose paths have not run athwart yours, but in some parts of the country, or wherever they go, practice habitual fraud, obscenity, and knavery, in daily life, to the detriment of our cause, and the besmirching of our glorious philosophy, what, verily, is a poor editor to do?

The Spiritualists of a community should aid their press in downing these vile tricksters. When Spiritualists become sincere and fearless enough to do their plain duty as workers in a community; when they have common sense enough to look for one moment beyond their tiny local world, and a trickster comes among them and drags Spiritualism in the mire, it is the duty of those people duped, to send letters of warning and information to the spiritualistic press of the country, that it may cease to recognize in its columns the unworthy. These, with signature and address of all who may have viewed the spectacle of fraud and deception, will aid, in a clear and intelligent manner, our press, in eliminating the matter of unworthy ones from their crowded columns.

Let us have less moral cowardice among us, and if a hard, and disagreeable duty stands imperative, let us stand ready to perform it. The worm which is eating at the root of the tree of Spiritualism is Fraudulence and Imposition, attached like barnacles to its holy and beauteous principles. We must purge our ranks from their deterious influence. Many, no doubt, do send individual letters of information regarding these people. They forget how frail and weak a thing is the human heart, and that the editor of a paper cannot be swayed by any personal letter from one, defaming another. Though Truth might be spoken, yet spite-work would too often creep in, and the publisher be wholly at sea, a stranger perchance to both parties concerned. Yet the recognition in the crowded columns of a great weekly paper, of unfit people, proclaiming themselves at length, and thereby bringing anathemas on the defenseless head of the unwitting editor, from a thoughtless people who have been duped by the unworthy correspondent, is not a thing to be desired, and information, we repeat, should come from a body of people, not from individulas, from reasons stated above.

It will be a surprise to you, to learn that Geo. Brooks, some weeks since, put in one month of hard work, in his thorough and sincere way, among the Spiritualists of St. Joseph, in response to an actual summons, and yet so wild with disgust were the community, at Spiritualism, so-called, that Mr. Brooks received, not even the remuneration of replacing his actual expense, but, barring a paltry $2 or $3 at the hall, taken at collection, Sunday evenings, was compelled to realize, at the end of the month, that he was sans salary, sans railroad fare, sans justice—and why?: The spiritualistic people of St. Joseph had been trodden under foot by the exposition of the fraudulence of one May Goodrich, assisted by Wm. Langdon, a young man of St. Joseph, who is producing the same condition of affairs in Omaha, (from which city he wrote a lengthy eulogy to your paper of May 1st), these parties having so duped the people in their so-called materializations, that honest investigators with clear brains, are in despair as to the outcome. I enclose slip from St. Joseph Gazette. The party who turned on the light, to witness the shameful spectacle, is one of the veteran Spiritualist workers there, also J. R. Rackliffe, 1027 Felix St., St. Joseph, Mo. Mr. Bender's address is No. 329 N. 9th St., St. Joseph. He would give you other names I have forgotten.

We found it impossible to get people out, for a time, to attend a Spiritualist meeting, in that town—and this woman, and this Langdon, are plying the same games here, besmirching the sacred shrine of Immortal Truth, with the grime of immorality and deceit.

I love your paper and the good it is accomplishing. We need its far-reaching influence throughout the country as a people. We pray for its growth and prosperity. But we hard-working, conscientious toilers, our cheeks do blanch a little at the thought of these soiled names appearing among the doings, in the columns of the painstaking workers in our ranks. I know that the contingencies which beset the daily life of that hard-working unfortunate, an editor, are hard, indeed.

Forgive the encroachment of this letter. The stern voice of Duty bids me write it.

ELLA GIBSON MAGOON.

Following is the account in the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette, of the expose referred to by Mrs. Magoon:

Everybody was seated in the ary circle, and Langdon, the medium, took off his coat and was tied by the wrists to a chair in the dark cabinet arranged in one corner of the room, the only lamp in the room was turned low, and the audience waited. May Goodrich asked for a song, and the "Sweet By and By" was started. That didn't seem to bring the spirits, so more singing was asked, and the "Sweet By and By" was tried again.

The rendering of this song twice in succession occupied considerable time, and a light appeared behind the dark screen of the cabinet. Another verse was sung, and something white floated where the light had been. Then more lights—then the white "apparition" appeared again, only more of it. One more chorus of "The Land that is Fairer than Day," and the medium didn't do a thing but trot out a full grown "ghost," "all dressed up in his Sunday clothes."

That is, some of the folks thought it was a ghost, and the women began to wonder whose first husband it was, and the men wiped their eyes as they thought of their great-grandfathers, and the arrival of other invited ghosts was momentarily expected, and all was going off according to the bill of fare, when some of the delegation from the Wood Manufacturing company, spoiled the whole performance by too much familiarity with the visitor from across the Styx. They actually grabbed the angel by the petticoat, presumably with the intention of going back to heaven with him.

Anyway they took hold of the spirit, and stuck to him as though he was a long lost brother. A momentary scuffle, and then the light was turned on, and Mr. Sammy Langdon, with his white gauze robe half torn off, stood a convicted fake. A few partly burned fuses on the floor in the cabinet ended the expose, and those that paid twenty-five cents to see a ghost can hereafter go home and look at themselves before retiring at night and save their quarters.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Postoffice address.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., New York

PLACED IN AN IRON CAGE.

I have just returned from Omaha, where I assisted Mrs. May Goodrich and Mr. W. F. Langdon in public meeting at Patterson's Hall. On Saturday evening of last week, Mr. Langdon, who is a physical medium for light and slate-writing manifestations, accepted an invitation from Mr. O. C. Campbell to sit in an iron cage for a test. Mr. Campbell's cage for physical mediums has been a terror to most of the phenomenal mediums visiting Omaha. Mr. Langdon is a young medium, having entered the field but a few months ago. He was placed in the cabinet, and the cage put over him and nailed to the floor. Several slates were placed about two feet from the cage. The lamp was lowered, and we waited for results. The sitters did not have long to wait, when one of the slates was thrown over the top of the cabinet, falling to the floor and breaking it. The manifestations commenced in earnest. Many messages were written upon the slates by invisible hands, while Mr. Langdon sat in the cage in a deep trance, not being able to move in either direction more than six inches. Mr. Langdon has won for himself a reputation in Omaha that keeps him busy filling engagements. He has engagements for every night this week in that City. I am sure he will come to the front ranks as a physical medium. His address is 207 S. 24th St., Omaha, Neb.

DR. P. S. GEORGE.

AN IMPOSTOR ROUNDLY DENOUNCED.

To the Editor:—As I have not inflicted my pen thoughts upon the readers of your excellent paper for some time, I now want to thank our good sister, Mrs. Eva A. Cassell, for her timely revelations upon the subject of the inhuman vampires and fakirs crowding into our ranks under the blessed name of mediums, when in reality an orthodox hell would not be half hot enough to justify the punishment they deserve.

We have had experience during the last two weeks with one of those devils incarnate, whom Mrs. J. W. Kratz has mentioned as being at Evansville, Ind. I note she mentions a Hibernian who has the map of the old country stamped upon his countenance, and I believe we have had this same impostor in our midst during April, under the name of Dr. David Douglas, claiming to belong in New York. I want to warn all Spiritualists and friends to be on the lookout for this son of Ireland. He is a very smooth fakir; he is well posted upon all phases of mediumship and knows of all our best mediums, and can talk as glibly upon the philosophy and phenomena of Spiritualism as the most learned of our cause. This human vampire came to Streator unsolicited, and he went away in disgrace, for we consider him a disgrace to our cause. I branded him as a fraud, and because I did so he tried to ruin my good name by falsely asserting to my friends that my reason for denouncing him was because he would not divide the profits of the fake seance with me. This I wish to brand as a contemptible bare-faced lie, for I was fool enough to give this cur, $3.50 of my good money before I fully realized what he was.

I presume he is now "Dr." some-one-else. So that others may not get beat by this money-grabber, I will try to describe him so that none may be deceived in his identity.

He could easily be taken at first sight as a gentleman; he is medium height; medium build; rather on the fleshy order; weight about 175 pounds; well educated; with somewhat of an Irish accent; rather full face; full beard (when here) trimmed in latest French style; dark hair and whiskers; gray-bluish eyes; high broad forehead; rather full eyes with sort of roguish twinkle in them. He is a bull-dozer in his talk, and if you mention "test conditions" to him he goes all to pieces and quotes places where he has given grand successful phenomena before Psychic Research Societies, etc., but is careful not to give any names, and has no letters of reference, or at least refused to show any here.

I want every lover of our cause who reads this grand progressive paper to keep a lookout for all such fakirs.

Do not patronize any of the mediums and "Doctors" who claim to be mediums unless they can show positive proof that they are what they claim to be. No first class medium will ever play the tramp upon any society, for if they be genuine they will ever find room to live and room to work and will get ample support from honest investigators, who are willing to pay honest mediums for honest work. I say, let us unite as a vigilance committee to drive such human drones, out of the lines; they are too lazy to work, and are afraid to steal, so they take the name of medium and start to live off of the too credulous, good, honest people who believe all should be honest and just, and true, and human, for that is the basis of our religion.

W. H. H. TUCKER.

Streator, Ill.

George III., so far from being the ferocious tyrant described in the Declaration of Independence, was as gentle as a child to all with whom he came in contact.

GENERAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 8.)

Mrs. G. Partridge, the psychometrist has changed her residence to that of a suburban instead of a crowded city place. She will be found by her patrons and friends in a much more commodious home at 54 North 52nd St. One block north of the Lake St. elevated road. A beautiful and restful ride.

Societies and camp-meetings wishing the services of A. E. Tisdale may address him at 547 Bank St., New London, Conn.

W. H. B. writes from Trafalgar, Ind.: "We are pleased to report a very successful conclusion of a course of five lectures by the guides of that indefatigable worker in the vineyard, Mrs. Julia Steelman-Mitchell. Many and lavish were the expressions of approval and delight heard on every hand. Her tests that followed each lecture was eminently satisfactory and spirit messages from sealed photos were peculiarly unique. Her lectures were the first ever delivered in our county on our grand philosophy, and we feel her stay was all too short. She went to Martinsville from here for two lectures; from there to Missouri for two weeks. On her return we contemplate organizing a society."

Secretary writes from South Bend, Ind.: "Geo. H. Brooks has just completed a very successful course of lectures for this, The First Spiritualist Society of South Bend, Ind. His lectures were of a very pleasing and edifying character. He made many converts for Spiritualism during his stay which was of a week's duration. We hope to be able to again have the pleasure of having him in our midst; also any other good speaker that may desire to serve our society. Mr. Brooks organized a lyceum for us, with a large membership."

Geo. F. Perkins writes from Anderson, Ind.: "I find a pretty town here with a great many Spiritualists, and so far as I have known them a very nice, social people. Their temple is a model-one, and has good influences. What a grand thing if the Chicago people had taken some of the rent money paid to outsiders and built a temple of their own. This is a busy time of the year and the farmers are getting in a hurry. Already camp-meeting talk is heard, the grounds being only about four miles from here. Every one is more or less interested."

Dr. Wilkins has removed to 54 North 52nd St. Near the Lake St. elevated road. The Doctor reports quite favorably of the change—from that of the business district to the residence portion of the city. He says "it is delightful and healthful."

We are glad to learn Emma E. Poucher is meeting with great success in her efforts to obtain materializations. She writes from Henderson Harbor, N. Y.: "For over a year I have steadily prosecuted my attempts at materialization. My dress has been prescribed by attendant spirits. My daily habits, my food, exercise and hours of rest, have all been carefully enjoined upon me by these unseen guides. I am now at the period in which the work is nearly completed. Every day I have an hour for sitting in my cabinet with one or two persons only in the room. As soon as I enter the chairs are moved from their places. Every article of furniture seems animated—a sofa, a large music box, and most wonderful of all, a friend who weighs nearly 200 pounds, is carried, chair and all, into the adjoining room. Everything movable is carried about—clothing, heavy boxes, sofa cushions, and from our person and pockets the articles we wear and carry are removed. Coats and vests are taken off and watches and jewelry removed and hidden in the next room. Voices are distinctly heard, a whole chorus keeping time with the music, and sometimes articulate words. The rappings are very very loud and clear all over the room, loud and clear all over the room, and any questions are answered, although this is not the object of the raps, they being simply one step in the development of force. If there are any who have had a similar experience, I should be very glad to hear from them."

The Daily Express of Beatrice, Neb., says: "'The first of a series of meetings was held at Unity church Sunday at 3 p. m., following a few prefatory remarks by the chairman of the meeting. Mr. Leonidas Pethoud, son of our esteemed fellow-townsman, A. J. Pethoud, arose under control and made a short introductory address. He then asked for a subject or questions from the audience, either verbally or written. With deliberation a question was handed up to the chairman to read, "What is Spiritualism, and what good is it doing?" Combining the two questions into one, the speaker handled it rapidly and very satisfactorily to the large number of listeners. Mr. Pethoud speaks while entranced, not knowing a word that is said."

Theordore F. Price having just closed a two months' engagement at Grand Rapids, Mich., is serving the First Society of Buffalo, N. Y., as lecturer and test medium, during May. His fall season in October begins at Indianapolis, Indiana.; November, Pittsburgh, Pa.; December, Milwaukee, Wis.; open dates later on in the season. Address during May, 248 N. Division St., Buffalo, N. Y., permanent address, Cape May, N. Y.

A musical recital was given by the West Side Choral Union directed by Prof. H. A. Tolman Friday evening, May 7, at the People's Institute. The program consisted of a great variety and was enjoyed by all.

SCHOOLS MUST BE SECULAR.

St. Cloud, Minn., April 27.—Judges Baxter and Searle of the district court to-day handed down a decision in the case of Oliver Rasnick vs. School District No. 60, Stearns county, and Miss Mary Tschumperlin, teacher, giving judgment to the plaintiff, who applied for an injunction prohibiting the defendants from using the schoolhouse for the purpose of giving any religious instructions or conducting exercises peculiar to the distinctive teachings, creeds or beliefs of any religious faith, and particularly from teaching the catechism of the Roman Catholic church.

The court says it fully appreciates the importance of the case and has made careful examination for the reason that it is the first judical determination in this state of the question involved. The provisions as construed, it says, apply to all religious creeds and to all schools supported by public moneys. It says exercises such as held in the Avon school are prohibited by the constitution because they violate rights of conscience; that such exercises constitute worship, and that any schoolroom where the same are conducted is a place of worship, and, therefore, the plaintiff is compelled to aid in the support of a place of worship against his conscience; that confining these religious exercises to the catechism is giving a "preference," as that term is used in the constitution.

The court, therefore, maintains that money appropriated and used for the support of such schools is used for the "support of schools wherein distinctive doctrines, creeds and tenets of a particular Christian religious sect are promulgated and taught," contrary to the provisions of section 3, article 8, of the constitution as amended in 1877.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

AN APOLOGY FOR MRS. CASSEL.

Like the pearl which is found at great depths, truth is only discovered at the bottoms of great heaps of falsehood. Thus truth is called the "Pearl of great Price." The diver does not see the precious gem while occupying the comfortable position on ship deck; he must take the chance of yielding up his life in pursuit of it, and he knows it can only be found at the bottoms of great depths of water through which he must penetrate to obtain it; and he dives days, weeks and months, and sometimes years, without accomplishing the object of his life, to find it. Then pause here, oh! searcher after truth, and learn that heaps of falsehood must be encountered and pressed aside before a single scintillation of this most precious gem will announce its presence, and that falsehood is its necessary environment, without which it cannot exist.

Then sound the light Timbrels! Jehovah is not here, but there is a human female entity, who for fifteen years has encountered the deep waters and high rubbish-heaps of falsehood's "perniciousness, disgust and unhygiene," pressed them aside, and has not "quit to give any one else her chance!"

Did not Socrates feel the perniciousness of the Greek judiciary's alternative? Was he not disgusted with their attitude on one side of him, and the nescient condition of the public mind on the other? Did he regard the hemlock as conducive to health—hygienic, as it were, and finally did he quit? No! And the immortelle of "unanswerable" entwines his memory today! And so all adown the ages human entities kept on investigating deep waters and almost unsurmountable rubbish-heaps of falsehood, and counted themselves well repaid if they yielded them but one feeble scintillation. Persistence, thou art a jewel!

How I sympathize with the writer of "Infidel's opinion" in your last issue, whose votaries, he avows, has no deep waters and high rubbish-heaps of falsehood to offer their students for investigation. How does he expect to unearth this precious gem? Lived there historically a great mind, who acclaimed his ability to procure it without delving, then would I enter their nescient camp, and repose. Let your watchword be, "keep out!"

Lima, Ohio. W. W. HAWKINS.

CATARRH INHALER FREE.

I will for a short time mail any reader of The Progressive Thinker my new scientific Aerial Catarrh Inhaler, much improved, and medicine for one year, on three days' trial. If it gives satisfaction, send me $1; if not, return it in the original package. Catarrh, asthma, headache, partial deafness, roaring, colds or pain in the head immediately relieved and speedily cured. Address DR. E. J. WORST, Ashland, O 395

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Bible and Church Degrade Woman." By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three brief essays, on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion; The Degraded Status of Woman in the Bible; The Christian Church and Woman; written in Mrs. Stanton's usual trenchant style. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail $1. For sale at this office.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"From Night to Morn, or An Appeal to the Baptist Church." By Abby A. Judson. Gives an account of her experience in passing from the old faith of her parents to the light and knowledge of Spiritualism. It is written in a sweet spirit, and is well adapted to place in the hands of Christian people. Price 15 cents.

"History of the Inquisition." Every citizen of our country should read this concise history of that Romish churchly institution known as the Inquisition. The animus of Romanism against all institutions, beliefs and parties not in conformity with the ruling powers of the Romish hierarchy is plainly shown in these statements of veritable history. The devilishness and murderous malignity of the "Holy Inquisition" is scarcely paralleled in all the world's records of inhuman atrocities. It is for sale at this office, and will be mailed postpaid for 25 cents.

"Mahomet, the Illustrious." By Godfrey Higgins, Esq. (Library of Liberal Classics.) No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbons' work. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Occult Forces of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. Three pamphlets are embodied in this volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

"The Relation of Science to the Phenomena of Life." By Prof Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE PSYCHOGRAPH
—OR—
DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means or developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings, been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Orient, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose gravestones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

WAS ABRAHAM LINCOLN A SPIRITUALIST?
—OR—
Curious Revelations from the Life of a Trance Medium.
—BY—
MRS. NETTIE COLBURN MAYNARD

Together with Portraits, Letters and Poems. Illustrated with Engravings and Frontispiece of Lincoln, from Carpenter's Portrait from Life.

This book will be found peculiar, curious, startling!—more so than any work issued since Uncle Tom's Cabin. It breathes forgotten whispers which the rust of time had almost covered, and which have been snatched from the very jaws of oblivion. It deals with high official private life during the most momentous period in American History, and is a secret page from the life of him whom time serves only to make greater, more appreciated, and more understood—"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

Cloth, 12mo, illustrated, pp. 264, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE.
IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 480 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual aliment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

HELEN HARLOW'S VOW;
Or Self-Justice.

By Lois Waisbrooker. Many have read this book, many have re-read it, and many others out to read it. It should be read by every man and woman in the land. It shows the falsities rampant in society in matters of moral and social import, and the wrongs that flow therefrom to innocent victims of social ostracism. It contains a fine likeness of the author. Fine cloth, 280 pages. Price $1.00

The Influence of the Zodiac UPON HUMAN LIFE.
BY ELEANOR KIRK.

This is the only book which states the simple principles of the Zodiac in simple terms, making the entire matter clear to the averge understanding.

This volume indicates the location, characteristics and influence of each sign of the Zodiac, giving the days which each sign governs, and the gems and astral colors associated with each.

The diseases of the body, how to cure them, and the faults of character incidental to the different domains.

The methods of growth for each human being.

The domains from which companions, husbands and wives be selected.

The characteristics of children born in different domains, and the conditions to be observed in their care and education.

The personal ability and talent of the individual with reference to domestic, social and business success.

This work is the result of profound research, and in its preparation the author has been largely assisted by J. C. Street, A. B. N.

Bound in Special Cloth. - - Price, $1.

For Sale at This Office.

Ingersoll's Great Address
On Thomas Paine, at the late Paine celebration in New York City. Price, 6 cents; ten copies for 50 cents.

God in the Constitution.
By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

Memorial Oration by Col. Ingersoll
On Roscoe Conkling. Delivered before the New York Legislature, May 9, 1888. Price, 4 cents.

Echoes From the World of Song.
A collection of new and beautiful songs, with music and chorus, in book form. By C. P. Longley. Price $1.25. Postage 15 cents.

POEMS FROM THE INNER LIFE
By Lizzie Doten. These poems are as staple as sugar. Price $1.00.

ROMANISM AND THE REPUBLIC.
A WORK THAT EVERY LOVER OF his country should have at hand for consultation. By Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, M. A. This is a most able work, consisting of a Discussion of the Purposes, Assumptions, Principles and Methods of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy. The work contains 447 pages, and may be considered a mine of valuable information for every patriot in the land. Price $1. For sale at this office.

SEERS OF THE AGES.
Embracing Spiritualism, past and present. By J. M. Peebles, M. D. An encyclopædia of interesting and instructive facts. Price $2.00.

The Religion of Humanity;
A Philosophy of Life. By J. Leon Benwell. A beautiful paper-bound pamphlet, with likeness of author. A most valuable publication to circulate among Christian people. Price 15 cents.

Bottlebinding.

You can't judge of the quality of a book by the binding, nor tell the contents by the title. You look for the name of the author before you buy the book. The name of Robert Louis Stevenson (for instance) on the back guarantees the inside of the book, whatever the outside may be.

There's a parallel between books and bottles. The binding, or wrapper, of a bottle is no guide to the quality of the medicine the bottle contains. The title on the bottle is no warrant for confidence in the contents. It all depends on the author's name. Never mind who made the bottle. Who made the medicine? That's the question.

Think of this when buying Sarsaparilla. It isn't the binding of the bottle or the name of the medicine that you're to go by. That's only printer's ink and paper! The question is, who made the medicine? What's the author's name? When you see Ayer's name on a Sarsaparilla bottle, that's enough. The name Ayer guarantees the best, and has done so for 50 years.

THE ELIMINATOR
—OR—
Skeleton Keys to Sacerdotal Secrets.
BY DR. R. B. WESTBROOK.

Profoundly reverent, but thoroughly radical; exposing the fabulous claims of ancient Judaism and dogmatic Christianity, containing many startling conclusions never before published, showing clearly the mythical character of most of the Old and New Testament stories, and proving that Jesus was an impersonation and not a person. A genuine sensation.

Price $1.50. For Sale at this Office.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.
For the Home, the Lyceum and Societies.
A Manual of Physical, Intellectual and Spiritual Culture.

COMPILED BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

A COLLECTION OF MUSIC AND Songs, Golden Chain Recitations, Memory Gems, Choral Responses, Funeral Services, Programs for sessions, Parliamentary Rules, Instructions for Organizing and conducting Lyceums, Instructions for Physical Culture, Calisthenics and Marching; Banners, Standards, the Band of Mercy, etc.; a book by the aid of which a Progressive Lyceum, a Spiritual or Liberal Society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. It supplies the wants of Spiritual Societies for fresh Spiritual songs, with music free from the dismal tone of the old hymnology. It furnishes a unique selection of choice readings and responses such as no other selection contains. It gives a practical system of graceful calisthenics, every step of which is made plain by engravings. It gives instructions how to make the badges and banners and instructs in marching. It shows how to establish a Band of Mercy as auxiliary to the Lyceum, and has all the most beautiful songs which have been gathered up by that movement.

The author and compiler of this Guide is eminently prepared for the task by years of devoted labor in the Lyceum. The book is the result of practical work and tested by the interest awakened in the actual session of the Lyceum.

While intended for the working Lyceum, the guide is admirably adapted to the needs of the family, supplying 76 pages of new spiritual music and words found nowhere else, except in sheet form at many times the cost. The book has been placed at the remarkably low price of 50 cents, sent postpaid.

For Sale by The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis St., Chicago.
Also by Hudson Tuttle,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

GLEANINGS FROM THE ROSTRUM.
BY A. B. FRENCH.

This work is one that every one should read. It beams throughout with rare gems of thought, practical as well as profound. There is sunshine and beauty in every sentence uttered. The work is dedicated to the author's favorite sister, Sarah French Farr, now passed to Spirit-life. Hudson Tuttle, of Berlin Heights, Ohio, gives an interesting sketch of the author's life.

CONTENTS:

Dedication.
Sketch of the Life of A. B, French.
William Denton.
Legends of the Buddha.
Mohammed, or the Faith and Wars of Islam.
Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon
Conflicts of Life.
The Power and Permanency of Ideas.
The Unknown.
Probability of a Future Life.
Anniversary Address.
The Egotism of Our Age.
What Is Truth?
Decoration Address.

PRICE, $1.00, POSTPAID.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRITUAL INTERCOURSE.
This work contains an account of the very wonderful spiritual developments at the house of Rev. Dr. Phelps, Stratford, Conn., and similar cases in all parts of the country. This volume is the first from the author directly upon the subject of "Spiritualism," and has stood the test of many years. Cloth, $1.25. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE TEACHINGS OF JESUS
Not Adapted to Modern Civilization, with the True Character of Mary Magdalene. By Geo. W. Brown, M. D. Price, 15 cents.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.
By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This little book will be read with intense interest by thousands. Price 25 cents.

The Religion of Spiritualism,
Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

The Science of Spirit Return.
By Charles Dawbarn. Price 10 cents.

THE SOUL,
Its Nature, Relations and Expression in Human Embodiments. Given through Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, by her Guides. A book that every one who is interested in re-incarnation should read. Price $1.00.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.
BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. - - - Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede moral confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

Outside the Gates, and Other Tales
and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price $1.25.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

Mrs. Messina Ford writes from Penbroke, Mass.: "I am not a very zealous Spiritualist, but I do admire Mrs. Cassell's sentiments. I wish there were more who have the courage of their convictions, and dare to speak for truth and honesty. She has voiced the thoughts of many well-minded people beside Spiritualists, and should command sympathy and encouragement from all who want to see truth prevail. I like The Progressive Thinker because it seems to give both sides of a question a fair chance. I believe every word she has written is true, as I have seen enough of fraud among so-called Spiritualists, and believe she knows just what she is talking about. Hope I may sometime meet the brave, noble-minded woman."

W. H. Bach has removed from Springfield, Mass., to Lily Dale Camp.

Mrs. Lora Holton, phenomenal, musical test medium and clairvoyant, will accept engagements upon reasonable terms at the camps. Address her at 164 N. Harding Ave., 2nd Flat, Station E, Chicago, Ill.

E. H. Ferguson writes from Florence, Colo.: "The Spiritualists of Florence are progressing finely. Regular circles are held twice each week for development. We have four or five pretty-well-developed mediums here, and best of all we have secured the services of Mrs. E. F. Jay-Bullene to lecture for us. She gave us a lecture Sunday evening, which was highly satisfactory."

Mrs. H. L. Bigelow writes from San Jose, Cal.: "I looked in vain for the report of our Anniversary doings. We had a good meeting all day and in the evening also. Had a large attendance and an excellent program. Our society, 'The First Spiritual Union' of San Jose has been incorporated and working under a charter of this State for about sixteen years. It is also working as an adjunct to the State Spiritual Association. This month we have had Mrs. Irene Smith for our platform. She is a ready speaker, earnest, concise, and postive in declaring the truths of our philosophy, she also answers questions and reads articles from the audience. Mrs. Cowell, of Oakland, is engaged for the month of May and she will be welcomed to this place as she has many friends here and the outsiders also flock in to hear her. Dr. Coonley has opened a meeting in this place called 'The First Spiritual Church.' There is plenty of room in San Jose, and I presume some will go to one place that might not go to another. At any rate we hope that wherever the people congregate they will find that spiritual food that will satisfy the soul."

Miss Lucy Myer, a medium in need, writes: "I wish, by the kindness of the editor, through this paper to again present my case to the many friends of humanity and mediumship who read The Progressive Thinker. They will remember, some of them, my calls for aid kindly published in this paper, last winter, and I feel thankful to say, my plea for help was generously reponded to, and we were enabled to get along through the winter and up to the present time. But now we are in need of assistance again—our help has run out. Sister Carrie is suffering from a severe attack of acute bronchitis. We are all three aged and ailing. We have been faithful in our calling of mediumship. Please help the mediums in need, and the angels will be with you, for it is their work and office to alleviate suffering Humanity and to succor the distressed. For those wishing messages or answers, who will send letter enclosing a dollar, I will sit and try for them and send results. Please address, Miss Lucy Myer, Waynesville, Warren Co., Ohio."

Secretary writes from Auburn, N. Y.: "No doubt some of your readers will like to hear how the good work is going on in the Empire State. At the Syracuse convention Brother E. W. Sprague was sent out as State Organizer, and after starting a society in Syracuse, he and his good wife came on to Auburn and we started in with a society of twenty members. We have rented Pythian hall, and are holding regular meetings on Sunday evenings, with Mrs. Sarah L. Walters as our present speakers. Although it may be a little early to phophesy for the future of our society, yet our spirit friends give us good encouragement in many ways. Brother Sprague gave us two rousing lectures, and after organizing our society, passed on to do the same for the people of Moravia and Cortland. While here they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grant, who are old-time Spiritualists and charter members of our society, Mr. Grant being elected one of our trustees. They attended both of Mr. Sprague's lectures, and Mr. Grant seemed to be especially pleased with them, and also enjoyed their stay in his home: And now in less than a week from their departure he has stepped out and up to join his friends in the spirit world. Mr. Grant was a mechanic, and as he finished his day's work, he all at once gave out, and sat down and immediately expired. The cause is ascribed to apoplexy. I hope every Spiritualist will send a good thought to his devoted wife and daughters. The officers of our society are: president, Mrs. Sarah Comstock Ellis; vice-president, Mrs. Sarah L. Walters; secretary, Mrs. Mary S. Wheeler; treasurer, Mrs. Mary E. Dickerson. Trustees, Mr. Birch Ellis, Mr. Thomas Grant, Mr. Wm. F. Wheeler."

May F. Ayers writes from Lansing, Mich.: "Fred L. Hughes has appealed his assault and battery case to the Supreme Court, and all donations in behalf of the Michigan State Spiritual Association's appeal will be gratefully received by the secretary for that purpose."

Mrs. Willi R. Carriker writes from Nebraska City, Neb., that Spiritualism there seems in very crude condition and she would like to see it on a more elevated plane, where it belongs. She attended seances by Dr. Rothermel at a private residence, with very satisfactory results. After mentioning experience with mediums under improper controls, she says: "I may never have clairvoyant vision, nor any of the phases some claim and practice, but I do mean to help others to a higher plane of Spiritualism."

The Pueblo Press of a recent date says: "Mrs. Bullene must not be classed with the "hands all round trumpet mediums" that give the general public its idea of Spiritualism, but on the contrary she is a representative of the highest intellectual growth, and the thoughts she enunciates are replete with the most devout sentiments of spiritual and moral purity, besides being an intellectual treat not often listened to by our people."

Mrs. Edith E. R. Nickless has just closed a very successful engagement with the Spiritual Society at Anderson, Ind. She goes from there to Boston, Mass.

L. A. Marble writes: "Every issue of The Progressive Thinker is worth a quarter."

Wm. F. Langdon writes from Omaha, Neb.: "I sent you some time ago a notice of our future movements, and asking for engagements in New England, but we have changed our plans somewhat and decided to remain in the west. We would like engagements for societies or camps in Middle or Western States. We refer all inquirers to Dr. P. S. George, secretary of the State Spiritualist Association of Nebraska. His residence is at Lincoln. We also refer to all prominent Spiritualists in Omaha and vicinity. Wm. F. Langdon, physical-medium; May Goodrich, test medium. Rooms 207 S. 24th St."

Geo. Chafee writes from Belvidere, Ill.: "I cannot say my views accord with all the views expressed in The Progressive Thinker, but I highly appreciate its liberal views and principles of progression. You come as square upon the creed of Thomas Paine as any paper I read. Here I will say no other person ever lived in America to whom we at this day owe a greater debt of gratitude than to Thomas Paine for his services rendered in gaining the independence of our United States; and farther, no other man ever trod American soil has been maligned, abused and slandered as much as he has, only for speaking his views of right and justice. This spite or malice all vented and forced upon the people by a class of persons claiming to be servants of God. Servants of God! what nonsense!"

Thomas M. Locke, president of The Philadelphia Spiritualist Society, writes: "During the month of April we have had the pleasure of listening to the lectures delivered through the organism of our Brother A. E. Tisdale, to the very great delight of all who enjoyed that privilege. His discourses were logical and instructive, and were listened to with marked attention. We have no hesitation in saying that as an instrument in the hands of the spirit world in demonstrating our beautiful philosophy he has few equals. He has our best wishes wherever he may go. In addition, we have had Miss Maggie Gaule, of Baltimore, for the last two Sundays of the month, on the platform with him. Only those who have had the pleasure of witnessing spirit messages given through her organism can fully appreciate what a wonderful instrument she is in the hands of the spirit world. Her tests were so marked that large audiences gathered at each service to learn something of the life beyond and hear from their loved ones. So convincing were the tests she gave the people during her stay with us, that in obedience to their request we have secured her services for two months next year."

Geo. L. Barrus writes from Beloit, Wis.: "Will C. Hodge delivered two lectures in Beloit recently, subjects: 'Spiritualism, and what is has to offer in place of theological dogmas,' and 'The Phenomena of Modern Spiritualism.' The audiences were greatly interested in the spirit portraits which Mr. Hodge procured through the Bangs Sisters of Chicago. Such an able and interesting talker as Mr. Hodge should be kept in the field constantly."

Dr. P. S. George writes from Lincoln, Neb.: "Mr. Amae Wheeler, the well known medium for physical manifestations, is for the fourth time in this city holding seances. He expects to remain here until the opening of the camp season. I attended one of his trumpet seances last night. He uses seven trumpets for manifestations, all in active use at times by different intelligences. Mr. Wheeler is doing a grand work in this section of Nebraska. His address is General Delivery, Lincoln, Neb."

Mrs. S. E. Hudson writes from Bay City, Mich.: "The quarterly meeting of the Saginaw Valley Spiritualists Association at Bay City, May 1 and 2 has just closed. It was a success in every way. The meeting was conducted by Mr. M. A. Root, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Eva Paine Hopkins, of Owosso. Address by Lyman C. Howe, of Fredonia, N. Y. Mrs. M. E. Root wecomed the visitors. The evening meeting was closed by Mrs. Hatfield Pettibone giving fifty or seventy-five names of spirits, all recognized. Sunday, lecture by Mrs. M. E. Root and Lyman C. Howe, and short addresses by delegates and officers. Mrs. Pettibone gave sixty-five tests in the closing. Miss Marshal, of Chesaning, Mich., entertained the audience with seven beautiful songs. Prof. P. O. Hudson sang some of his beautiful spiritual songs. An orchestra of six pieces rendered some fine music. The Ladies' Aid served refreshments. Bay City never does anything half-way. It was never so alive to Spiritualism as it is to-day, at least five hundred people attended the meeting in spite of the inclement weather. Mrs. Anna L. Robinson, of Port Huron, has been with us for the last month, and has the people thoroughly stirred up."

A. T. Honeyman writes: "I do not know whether you know anything about The West Side Spiritualists of Grand Rapids, Mich., or not, but if not it is high time you did, for I assure you your paper is well known to us. Our first meeting as an organized association commenced Oct. 4th, 1896; but we held meetings in our hall, corner West Bridge and Scribner streets long before that time. The originator of it is Mrs. Lindsey, wife of our worthy president, Mr. John Lindsey. As a medium, clairvoyant, and psychometric reader, this lady commands the respect of not only our own membership, but also the whole city. Our local speakers attract the attention of the most gifted intellects. Our discussions are unsurpassed for truth, depth and interest. Our circles under the mediumship of Mrs. Lindsey and Mrs. E. A. Payne fill the length and breadth of our place of meeting. The president and wife are not only officers, but rather the father and mother of this society, which promises still greater success, and prosperity."

J. H. T. writes: "Mrs. Maggie Waite commenced a series of Test seances at Army and Navy Hall, Cleveland, O., Sunday evening, May 2nd. Notwithstanding threatening bad weather, the hall was well filled with a very intelligent audience. As usual Mrs. Waite gave some very remarkable tests, to the great satisfaction of the large audience. The prospect is good for a very successful engagement during the month of May."

Mrs. L. M. Steel writes from North Amherst, O.: "With the good influence of your valuable paper, and the ministration of the spirit world through the mediumship of Mrs. C. C. Bacon as an inspirational speaker, we have been greatly blessed and many have come to see the light of truth in this place."

Dr. Adah Sheehan has December, January and Febraury of the winter season open for engagements, and societies can address her for terms as follows: Elsinore Gate and Russel streets, Cincinnati, Ohio. Mrs. Sheehan gives excellent satisfaction wherever she lectures.

The Secretary writes from Springfield, Mo.: "The annual meeting of the South Side Spiritual Society took place last Sunday evening, resulting as follows: M. Theresa Allen, who has served the society as president since its formation, was unanimously re-elected; De Charles Everett was chosen as vice-president; Julia A. H. Colby as secretary; E. R. Huxley as treasurer, and Henry A. Eckas, Mary A. Ingram and E. R. Huxley as trustees. The South Side Society represents the older, or original portion of the city. It has some special features. It never transacts business before the public. It has a certain rule or system for the admission of members, receiving only after a unanimously favorable vote. In all matters of vital importance, including amendments to constitution, a unanimous vote is required; spirituality, enlightened mediumship, self-cultude and mutual improvement throughout the membership, to be the first and utmost impoortance—rather than rapid growth in numbers, through questionable sensational methods, which are sure to result in trouble. Too much cannot be said in commendation of the unselfish and untiring devotion of our regular speakers, Prof. and Mrs. Allen, in connection with our society not only, but as officers and missionaries of the State Association as well as in organizing a State camp, the Silver-chain developing circle and spiritual culture classes," etc.

E. W. Baldwin, of Chicago, writes: "The meeting at Forest Ave., Mrs. Ada Foye, Pastor, on Sunday the 16th inst. will be held at No. 77, 31st street, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. and continue permanently at this latter place."

(Continued on page 8.)

Items Suggested by, or Gleaned From, Spiritualist Exchanges.

Any religion or religious system which requires the civil power to aid and enforce its doctrines must be a false religion, a false system. Spiritualism needs no such aid.

Any system which resorts to coercion and legal penalties to establish its dogmas, by such very act demonstrates it is not of divine origin.

Spiritualism builds its tabernacles upon a foundation of knowledge.

The timbers of the house of Spiritualism are often rough-hewn, but are substantial and deeply mortised, fitted and spiked together.

Spiritual existence is the alpha and the omega of being.

Matter is one of the forms in which spiritual existence becomes individualized.

The link between matter and spirit is force, and the exhibition of force is motion in all its infinite varieties.

Spiritualism teaches that there are realms of pure spiritual life, endless in number, infinite in extent, where spiritual essences dwell—beings without passions, vices or virtues—the Adams and Eves of inconceivable paradises, whose genius is innocence.

Spiritualism needs no methods to propagate her teachings, no creed to throttle the engine of progress and blind the eye of reason, for the sake of a power over man, it needs but the understanding of human beings to make it great, and grand and powerful for good.

Spiritualism needs no legislative enactments to stay the broken timbers of a soulless dogma, or to prevent an overthrow of false doctrines. Truth will take care of itself without legal enactments.

The philosophy of spiritual existence teaches that the instant a spirit has passed through the embryotic life of human maternity, its incarnations through matter are accomplished, and it is born on earth with the new function of self consciousness, or conscious individuality.

There is no such thing as annihilation, a being is not, until formed, an existent entity, then it is eternal, whether animate or inanimate.

Self-consciousness is the function of the human soul, and individuality is the result of self-consciousness.

There is a line being drawn between Spiritualism and Spiritism, in that Spiritualism applies to a condition of the mind and is defined as alluding to spiritually-minded persons and organizations, while Spiritism alludes more strictly to the science of spirit and can exist without spiritists being spiritual.

Spiritualism has no snake stories to relate, no Jonah and the whale stories, no Lot's wife stories, no Elijah's ascent yarns to spin, but presents many more wonderful and awe-inspiring proofs of a superhuman power in the multifarious phases of manifestations accessible to every investigator who really wishes to know a future state, a life of immortal.

If Spiritualism is the work of the Devil, then his satanic majesty is gaining ground rapidly over his mighty foe—Christianity and the Christian God.

The vast good that Spiritualism does or can do is to prove an eternal existence—a future life. That has been the incentive to all past religions and the query of every mind allowed to think for itself; to know there is no death and that we will recognize and be recognized by our departed friends over there.

Spiritualism challenges honest investigation—courts the profound research of the world's greatest scientists—and measures not the means, nor suggests the conditions, but demands justice and that demand will some time result in complete vindication of its truth.

Spiritualism comes into the world with arms surrounding a cradle of civilization full of love, and on its brow we see the faded laurels of ancient Spiritualism struggling for a new life of expression.

Spiritualism means the past, present and future, the then, now and the hereafter. We think of dying and going into eternity, but this is eternity, the past is a part of eternity, and is not lost; its values are carried forward into the present and the future.

Spiritualism teaches that man should learn to live now; not that there should be no retrospection, but that the retrospection should influence our present, our now, and finally the future.

Nothing can withstand the power of spirit. Onward it ever sweeps, breaking into fragments all that would retard its progress.

The religion of Spiritualism, has gone forth into the world, commanding for itself recognition on the part of the more intelligent because of its inherent worth.

The hope that is planted within us, growing stronger through man's intellectual and spiritual advancement, is most surely a valid hope, a portent of that reality which Spiritualism reveals as the destiny of man.

In the light of Spiritualism death becomes the silent warder by the gate that swings inward to reveal the glories of the celestial life.

What good does Spiritualism? The impress of its revelation must tend toward uplifting even the lowliest of the earth.

"Talleyrand's Letter to the Pope" will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts he states, and his keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Sold at this office. Price 25 cents.

From The Freethinker, London, England.

FROM THE DAYS WHEN CHRIST is supposed to have lived, down to the present time, the views entertained of him by his admirers have been both varied and conflicting. At first he was regarded by some as a mere man, by others as a combination of God and man, and by others again as a phantom having no real existence,

THREE STANDPOINTS.

To-day Christ is looked upon from three standpoints. First, he is worshiped by the orthodox party as a divine being; in the second place, he is extolled as a great Socialist reformer; and, thirdly, he is revered as the most exalted "Ideal" of all time. Now, the present writer does not share any one of these views.

ENTHUSIASTIC SPIRITUALIZER.

Supposing such a person as the Jesus of the New Testament to have lived (about which I have grave doubts), he appears to me to have been an enthusiastic spiritualizer, a man in many respects well intentioned, but destitute of those qualities which constitute true greatness. Considered as a man possessing but limited education, surrounded by unfavorable influences for intellectual acquirement, belonging to a race not always remarkable for literary culture, retaining many of the failings of his progenitors, and having but little regard for the development of mundane duties, an impartial observer can recognize many commendable traits in his character.

EXAMPLE OF VIRTUE.

When, however, it is claimed for him that he was an example of virtue and wisdom, surpassing anything previously produced by any age or country; that he presented to the world a unique career, and that he furnished a code of ethics superior to all others, I am bound to designate such a claim as extravagant, and destitute of any foundation in fact.

CHARACTER AND TEACHINGS.

As with his character, so it is with his alleged teachings. The orthodox believers in Christ are so indiscriminate in their adoration of him that they regard his recorded sayings and doings as the very quintessence of wisdom and utility. True, there are some notable exceptions to this hero-worship among men of ability, both in and out of the Church. For instance, the late Bishop of Peterborough wrote: "It is not possible for the State to carry out all the precepts of Christ. A State that attempted to do so could not exist for a week.

JOHN STUART MILL

also observes, in his work, On Liberty (pp. 28, 29), in referring to Christian morality: "I do not scruple to say of it that it is, in many important points, incomplete and one-sided, and that, unless ideas and feelings, not sanctioned by it, had contributed to the formation of European life and character, human affairs would have been in a worse condition than they now are."

RENAN, IN HIS LIFE OF JESUS,

remarks that Christ had "no knowledge of the general condition of the world" (p. 78); he was unacquainted with science, "believed in the Devil, and that diseases were the work of demons" (pp. 79, 80); he was "harsh" towards his family, and was "no philosopher" (pp. 81-83); he "went to excess" (p. 174); he "aimed less at logical convictions than at enthusiasm;" "sometimes his intolerance of all opposition led to acts inexplicable and apparently absurd" (pp. 274, 275); and "bitterness and reproach became more and more manifest in his heart" (p. 278; American edition, published by Carleton, Madison-square, N. Y.)

NO GOD FINALLY INSANE.

Even the Rev. Charles Voysey admits that Christ could "not have been God, because he was not a perfect man. He had faults which neither I nor my readers would venture to imitate without loss of self-respect. His mind gave way, and he was not responsible for what he said." Instead of regarding Jesus as an impostor, the reverend gentleman said that "he was simply mistaken, and finally insane." (Fortnightly, January, 1887).

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

THE CRAFTY CONSPIRATORS

saw in the new doctrines of Christianity a moral power which was lacking in Paganism; and they planned to amalgamate all the essentials of paganism with the elevated sentiments of Christianity and carry the whole through the world by the power of the Papal Church, insisting upon creeds, demanding submission and threatening death to all heretics, St. Augustine in the 4th century having proclaimed that heretics ought to be burned.

THIS PAGAN CONSPIRACY

suppressed Christianity and its gospels for a hundred years, carrying on the Church work without a Bible, and near the end of the second century presented its masterpiece, a Bible in which Paganism and Christianity are welded into one compact system. Of course, this statement will astonish the world, but it will not astonish the students of these questions.

THE FOUR GOSPELS.

The profoundest theologians of this country have ascertained and published the fact in their learned essays, that the gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John were never known to be in existence until near the end of the second century, and that they had been unable to detect the authorship of any. In short, that there is no satisfactory evidence that the evangelists had anything to do with these writings brought out a hundred years after their death, but they do not denounce the fraud as other forgeries are denounced; and the pulpit pays no regard to their revelations, and continues to present the Bible as the Word of God.

AUTHENTICITY.

Twenty of our ablest theologians have shown that the New Testament has no authenticity whatever, the latest and best of their histories of the Bible, by the Rev. J. T. Sunderland, of this country, says explicitly that the gospels had no authors, but were mere compilations by unknown men. And yet the Christian church to-day stands upon this anonymous foundation.

SYSTEMATIC FORGERIES.

But that is not the worst. The foundation is not Christian, but Pagan. Nearly everyone of the leading doctrines of the Church is antagonistic to the doctrines of Jesus Christ, but is fathered upon Jesus and St. Paul by systematic forgeries and interpolations in the New Testament.

ANCIENT PAGANISM.

I repeat that every one of the leading doctrines of the Church is a reproduction of ancient Paganism, and if anyone doubts this, I would refer him to that comprehensive work "Bible Myths," by T. W. Doane, which in its fulness of demonstration places it beyond all doubt, that what are called Christian doctrines to-day, are merely a rehash of ancient Paganism.

20,000 YEARS OF AGE.

The Pagan doctrines of Egypt, Persia, China, India, Scandinavia, and Mexico, probably more than 20,000 years of age, were combined with the myths of the Jewish church and stolen fragments of apostolic writings to give the whole a Christian exterior, while every essential of Christianity is conspicuously absent. The trinity of the Pagans was substituted for the Monotheism of Jesus and the Pagan theology followed throughout.

THE SIX DAY CREATION,

the garden of Eden with its four rivers and its tree of knowledge, its tempting Devil, talking snake, and seduced woman, expulsion from Paradise and sinful condition, wrath of God promising Hell, the virgin-Savior to be sacrificed on earth, to return and call the world to judgment, having after His death descended into hell three days and three nights, but being a part of God, and mysteriously called "The Word," he administers justice, after which the world is set on fire. This whole creed was gathered from the common doctrines of Pagan antiquity—a thousand years before the advent of Jesus.

THE SURVIVAL OF PAGANISM.

Not only these essential doctrines, but all the details, emblems, and ceremonies of Paganism survive in the Roman Church. The cross is the most ancient of sacred religious emblems. The Eucharist, or Sacrament of The Lord's Supper—eating and drinking their God, the rite of baptism, the establishment of religious orders, monasteries, monks, and nuns, peculiar dress, rosaries, and other ceremonies, which I need not enumerate any farther, were compacted into a system under the name of Christianity, which was well known in the first centuries to be the old Paganism in a new dress with a new name, and was so recognized by the early fathers of the Church down to St. Augustine, the great mouthpiece of the Church in the 4th century.

From Light, London, Eng.

IS BROTHERHOOD IMPOSSIBLE?

Not many days ago, "The Daily Chronicle" gave a most kindly notice of "The Brotherhood Church," all the more kindly because there are only three congregations belonging to it, and these by no means strong. As their name indicates, their main profession is brotherliness: but what do we find? "The Chronicle" made some innocent reference to Tolstoy, and identified the Brotherhood Church with his teachings, because, as a matter of fact, one of the three congregations publishes his books. Whereupon the editor of "The Chronicle" is requested to make it clear that the Brotherhood Church at Hoxton does not agree with the Brotherhood Church at Croydon; and it feels called upon to publicly "protest." True, it also recognizes much that is beautiful and sound in Tolstoy's teaching, but it does not go so far as the Croydon Church; and then the protestor goes into refinements whither we cannot and do not want to follow him. So here at the start, the Brotherhood is kept from being "at sixes and sevens" only because there are but three!

PATH OF BROTHERHOOD.

There is another Society which started out, not long ago, on the path of Brotherhood. It was to be a standing rebuke to the world, as it shone forth, an example of charity and goodwill. In a seething world, mad with its materialisms and stung with its selfishnesses, it should stand out, calm, self-denying, wise, elevated, spiritual, divine. Its name was "Theosophy." What do we see now? Its great founder's memory under a cloud: the camp broken up amid cries of "forgery," "treachery," "self-assertion," "ambition;" a grand Theosophical "Crusade" descending upon London and ignoring the English head of Theosophy, or openly lowering her, and still phrasing the old messages of charity and love!

GOSPEL OF SOCIALISM.

A short time ago, little clusters of strong men and women lifted up the Gospel of Socialism. The curse of the world, they said, is competition. The cure is co-operation, or more than co-operation—community of interests and the sinking of Individualism. And now already these clusters are driven apart, not only in isolation but in antagonism, and a Socialist Congress in London presents the spectacle of persons and gangs scarcely held back from flying at one another's throats.

IMMENSE PROGRESS.

Really, when we turn to the old sects and parties, we feel inclined to say that after all, we may go farther and fare worse. Time has, at all events, taught them something; trouble has drilled them into at least continence; and experience has made them amenable to reason and open to progress. But these green beginners, with their immense program of universal benevolence, have all to learn: and the world which is not sad and sorry—laughs.

TRIFLING THE ADVANCE.

What then? Is Brotherhood impossible? Tennyson gave the idealist's answer, fifty years ago, in the dream of "the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world." But how trifling is the advance we have made towards that! One needs to be optimistic in order to avoid the suggestion whether we do not seem farther off from it than ever. All the world over, there are fresh crops of "roots of bitterness," and there are millions who would scream with delight to see even freedom-loving England come to harm.

And yet we have the most perfect faith in the COMING OF THE BROTHERHOOD.

But it can come only in one way—by the slow evolution of the spirit-self, gradually dominating the merely animal-self. Constitution, rules, declarations of principles, saying so, will not much help.

LET US LOVE ONE ANOTHER.

Who was that celebrated schoolmaster whose teaching of the higher law took some such form as this—"Boys! let us love one another. Do you hear what I say? Love one another! If you don't, I'll thrash you!"? That will not greatly help on The Brotherhood. But how much wiser are some churches and societies who make as much of rules and officials and discipline as The Brotherhood, when it arrives, will make of freedom and self-restraint and charity?

PURE SPIRITUALSM.

What we all want is a strong advance on the lines of pure Spiritualism, in the sense of spiritual unfolding. That would be a real "well of water" "springing up unto everlasting life;" and The Brotherhood must come in that way or it will not come at all. We very much doubt, indeed, whether any special Brotherhoods or Theosophies or Socialism: and, just in proportion as it is is often a hindrance to say, "Lo, here!" or "Lo, there!" It must be "within" us—within us, in the spirit-self, and then within us as one complex social organism: and, pust in proportion as it is within us, it will manifest itself everywhere—in the Stock Exchange as in the Church—in founding a colony as in founding a college—in regulating a savage tribe as in regulating the affairs of a diocese. Surely this is the only way by which we can arrive at it,—the only way, too, by which the great prayer can be answered—"Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven." And truly, that is what The Brotherhood means.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

MILLIONS UPON MILLIONS of pounds have been spent in providing bibles which speak of a life or a world to come. On the authority of that book tens of thousands of preachers have warned the people "to flee from the wrath to come," which is the consequence of their spiritual transgressions; they have talked of heaven for the good, of hell for the bad; they have deplored the condition of the rich man in hell; they have built costly cathedrals and churches for worship, inwhich to proclaim the wrath of heaven against the wrongdoer; they extol "the meek and lowly Jesus who had not where to lay his head," while they themselves live in palaces of well-apportioned houses. Of such, Jesus might well say, "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchers, which indeed appear beautiful outwardly, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity."

The question now be asked: What better are we

THAN THOSE WE CONDEMN?

Perhaps none. Then so much the worse for us. Have we accepted the gospel that returning spirits bring. "As ye sow, so shall ye reap?" Do we realize the transitory things of the flesh and the eternity of the soul?

CONSCIOUSNESS NEVER ENDS

Do we remember that consciousness never ends, so far as the spirit is concerned, and that that implies knowledge of wrong done as well as right done; peace of mind or pain of mind; of time wasted or profitably employed in spiritual development; of neglecting the opportunity to do good whenever that is presented to us; that we should be ever watchful over our weakness, and bring our wills to bear in the building up of a true spiritual character?

SCHOOLHOUSE OF EXPERIENCE.

This world is the schoolhouse of experience, in which we should be daily fitting ourselves for the duties that devolve upon us in each succeeding day, so that when our purpose here has been served we may be ready to go up higher, to commence the ascent of another Alps in the spiritual world.

"The heights by great men reached and kept,
Were not attained by sudden flight;
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."

CONSIDERATION OF DEMONS.

This is another term that has been corrupted by Christian bigotry into quite a different meaning than the ancients gave it. It is like bringing the rose, or violet, or lily into contempt, by some foul name, and then condemning it. But, like these flowers, names do not change their nature.

BETWEEN GODS AND MEN.

"Demons, says Plato, are of a middle nature between the Gods and men. The correspondence between heaven and earth is carried on by them. The things of this world they represent and convey from men to the Gods, and divine things from the Gods to men; for instance the prayers and sacrifices of the one; commands, religious rites, appointments, and ordinances from the other. The nature of them being of a middle kind between both, fills up the whole, and, as a link in a chain, connects the Universe with itself. By this all kind of prophecy is carried on, to this is owing the diligence and application of priests about sacrifices, expiations, incantations, and Divinations. The God indeed has no communication of intermixture with human nature; but by this canal a commerce and correspondence is maintained betwixt the Gods and men. Whoever is versed in these matters is called Daimonios; that is, a happy and wise man."

DOCTRINES OF PYTHAGORAS.

Diogenes Laertius gives us of the doctrine of Pythagoras: "The whole air is filled with spirits, or souls of men, we call them demons and heroes; 'tis from the impressions which they make upon us, that our dreams proceed, and those forebodings which we have of our health or bodily indispositions; which is an office they perform not only unto men, but to the rest of the animal creation. To them likewise is owing our skill in lustrations, vaticinations, and our other abilities of a like nature."

From The Mystical World, London, England.

When we speak of the morality of another, we mean that they do not do as we do. They may be much nearer divine truth, but if not like us they are "immoral," "damn 'em."

God opens the way for all who wait, and he not only prepares the way, but he prepares the one who waits to fit the way.

The white lily is the voice of God; the voice of silence. It plainly says, "Let your life be pure and true." Cease all worry about worldly clothing and seek rest in God.

When a student will listen to the wise man, who clearly defines the listener's ignorance, he will be able to see it, and improve himself accordingly.

The moment a man offers an "opinion," spot him as an ignoramus, for he does not know. An opinion is another word for guess, and a fool can guess.

Why is it that ignorance always becomes angry when a mirror is so held that it can see itself?

The sin is not in the doing, but in the motive that prompts the doing.

We say that a plant is "tender." This is a libel on the plant. Man's greed brought it from its native habitat to a land foreign to its nature.

True faith never enters a church. Credulity assumes itself to be a faith in church matters.

I know that the unreasoning bigot will condemn me as ignorant when I say that there is more godliness in a faro bank than in a church. Nevertheless, "godliness" never enters a cathedral or church.

"The Universe." What Force Is. The Beginning of Creation. What Matter Is. The Creation of the Earth. The Beginning of Life. Immortality. The Substance of Its Environments. Psychic Science. What the "Soul of Things" Is. Song of Psyche. A pamphlet by L. M. Rose. Contains 71 pages of interesting matter. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

HUMAN CULTURE AND CURE

MARRIAGE, SEXUAL DEVELOPMENT, AND SOCIAL UPBUILDING.

BY E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D.

A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc.

Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

RIGHT LIVING

—BY—

SUSAN H. WIXON,

Author of "Apples of Gold," "All in a Lifetime," "The Story Hour," "Summer Days at Onset," "Sunday Observance," etc., etc.

"Living is an art, a method of expressing great conceptions; in fact, the highest method, the noblest of the arts."—THOMAS STARR KING.

This book gives an admirable course of study in ethics, and supplies a long-felt want of an ethical text-book especially adapted to the comprehension of children, as well as older persons whom it is wisely and appropriately designed to interest while teaching them valuable ethical lessons.

The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principles of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in children's lyceums. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. It is a most excellent book and should be widely circulated.

CONTENTS:

Right Living. What Is Morality? What is Ignorance? Knowledge the Great Treasure. Concerning Education. Conduct; or Right Doing. Virtue, the Illuminator of Life. Prudence, an Economy of Life. What Know Ye of Justice? Fortitude a Noble Possession. Temperance and Intemperance. Is the Use of Tobacco Dangerous? Cultivation of Individuality. Character, a Jewel of Great Price. Idleness, Another Name for Loss. Industry, the Stuff of Life. Value of a Trade. Recreation a Necessity. Games of Chance. Truth and Falsehood. What is an Oath? or the Worth of a Promise. Fraud a Crime. The Poison of Slander. What Is Hypocrisy? Conscience, or Moral Sense. Selfishness, the Menace of Society. Gratitude, a Fragrant Flower of Life. Is Reverence a Duty? Self-Reliance. Self-Control. Self-Respect. Foolish Pride and Silly Prejudice. Anger, the Distorter. The Angel of Forgiveness. Observation a Great Faculty. Perseverance, the Friend of Man. Punctuality, a Promoter of Success. The Difficulties of Life. Temptation, the Demon on the Highway. Habit, Second Nature. Power of Will. Courage, a Necessity to Right Living. In Regard to Concealed Vice. Beautiful Charity. Fidelity, the Giver of Strength and Honor. Value of Wealth. Avarice, Not a Means to Life's Best End. Good Nature, One of Life's Best Blossoms. Reason and Free Inquiry. Free Speech. A Free Press. Rights of Animals. Rights of Children. Human Rights; or the Equality of Man. Moral Cleanliness. Politeness—The Gentleman. Politeness—Continued—The Gentlewoman. Best Society. Progress; or Enlightenment. Wisdom.

Price, Cloth, $1. Sold at this Office.

TWO IN ONE

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a careful comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

To Advance Humane Education in All Its Phases.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Lyceums and Societies that wish to get up elevating, interesting and paying entertainments cannot do better than to have a Prize Contest. The entire plan, with full directions, is in the book, and may be easily managed. Nothing kindles enthusiasm more quickly than an Angell Prize Contest! Nothing is needed more. Any individual may organize one in his own town and reap a financial reward.

TRY IT! PRICE, 30 CENTS.

Address

EMMA ROOD TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

JESUS AND THE MEDIUMS,

—OR—

CHRIST AND MEDIUMSHIP.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Real Life in the Spirit-Land.

Given inspirationally by Mrs. Maria M. King. You will not become weary while reading this excellent book. Price 75 cents.

WHAT WOULD FOLLOW

The Effacement of Christianity? By George Jacob Holyoake. This is a most valuable contribution to Freethought literature. Bound in paper with good likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

CHRISTIANITY A FICTION.

The astronomical and astrological origins of all religions. A poem by Dr. J. H. Mendenhall. Price 50 cents.

The Myth of the Great Deluge.

By James M. McCann. A complete and overwhelming refutation of the Bible story of the Deluge. Price 15 cents.

A VALUABLE WORK.

Researches in Oriental History,

Embracing the Origin of the Jews, the Rise and Development of Zoroastrianism and the Deification of Christianity; to which is added: Whence Our Aryan Ancestors? By G. W. Brown, M. D. One of the most valuable works ever published. Price $1.50.

APOLLONIUS OF TYANA.

Identified as the Christian Jesus.

A wonderful communication, explaining how his life and teachings were utilized to formulate Christianity. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"THE WATSEKA WONDER."

To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum, of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds, of Venango county, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

NEW THOUGHT.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. By MOSES HULL. Price only $1.50. For sale at this office.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents. By MOSES HULL. For sale at this office.

EDITH BRAMLEY'S VISION.

A thrilling appeal to all who are interested in learning how the great forces of the Roman Catholic Church are seeking to control all movements pertaining to human progress that are in opposition to their dogmatic religious teachings. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

Paine's Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 432 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

M. S. C., Dundee: Q. (1) Can one become a medium by himself?

(2) Are all phases possible, and which is the best?

(3) How can we distinguish a bad spirit?

A. (1) The best conditions for the development of mediumship are the circle, but it is quite possible to gain valuable results alone.

(2) All phases of mental manifestations are possible to the same sensitive. Physical manifestations require different conditions, which may or may not be compatible with the mental.

(3) The old adage, "by their fruits ye shall know them," is most applicable here. An evil tree cannot bring forth good fruit. But great care should be taken to distinguish between intentional misstatement or falsehood, and failure in giving messages correctly, and ignorance. A very small part of what passes as the work of evil spirits is such, and few cases of reported obsession are anything more than organic disturbances, either physical or mental.

F. L. S., Philadelphia, Pa.: Q. (1) In The Progressive Thinker of Sept. 5, 1896, you say: "The growth of a child in spirit corresponds to what its growth would have been had it not left the physical body." Do you not think it highly probable that the matured growth of such a child in spirit life is less in size than its matured growth in the form would have been? Is it not growth made under less favorable conditions, and therefore smaller?

(2) How many developed mediums agree with you, substantially, in Spiritualism?

A. (1) All communications I have received agree that there is "growth in heaven," of a spirit child, identical in its spiritual complement to its growth had it remained connected with the physical body. Of the departure of such a child it is said: Why should we regret? Life is the complement of death, and death a necessity of life. Death unlocks the eternal gate and swings it open wide for the ascending spirit. True—"out of our hands she passed," but into gentler hands than ours. The waiting angels received her in their tender arms, arrayed her in new robes of their sphere of light and she knew not of the change. She received her angel mother as her own, and after the pain of this second birth (death) had passed, her life became a perfect joy. She will perfect herself in future life, as she would have done had she remained, and if our spiritual perceptions are sufficiently quickened, we shall see her from day to day and year to year in her ascending course. We shall see her sweet spirit taken from earth unsoiled and spotless as a calla's bloom, mature so delicately and spiritually, that we shall be glad her feet were not called to press the flinty pathways of earth-life; that she was not called to drink its bitter cup of pain, nor bear its heavy burden of cares.

(2) Spiritual teachings have a wonderful unity amidst their great diversity. The communication received in the lumber camp of Northern Michigan expresses identical truths with that received by the refined medium of New York, London, or Australia. The expression may be uncouth, yet the thought is the same. The great and fundamental ideas of the spiritual philosophy have come through so many mediumistic channels, with such a flood tide, that no one can claim priority or exclusive expression. Thus the exposition of spiritual phenomena in these columns has been by means of recognized laws, and not as one medium is impressed, but a consensus of all.

When differences arise, such in the main grow out of difference of expression rather than confliction of the basic ideas. Except in the one item of reincarnation, I am not aware that the principles stated, and explanations made, have received other than the endorsement of Spiritualists and mediums.

Optimist: Q. Is it true that "whatever is is right?"

A. It would be nearer the truth to say that, whatever is is wrong, to be made right in the future. Either statement confuses thought, and if accepted leads to a passivity which receives the most distorting error with approving smile. Tolerance and commendable charity become a weak excuse for a supine indifference to error. There is, it is claimed, no absolute right nor wrong. What is wrong for one may be right for another; what is wrong in one age may be right in a succeeding. Even our ideas of right and wrong, it is claimed, are gained through selfishness. Whatever affects us unpleasantly or disadvantageously we consider wrong, and the reverse right. As every individual's impressions are different, these qualities vary, and hence have no absolute value. Whatever is, must be. It is always imperfection struggling upward to the perfect.

Right and wrong are absolute qualities, states and conditions, existing outside of moral beings, and not subjective dependencies on the mind. The recognition is keener in civilized than savage man, tending to an absolute right toward which all are attracted. Hedged in by expediency, and endeavoring to tread the treacherous path of compromise, the mind feels that beyond its best efforts is an absolute which admits of no comparison. Every moment of life it asks what is right, and its answer seals its destiny. The good of others is our own supreme good. Benevolence is never in error. It is a keynote in the octave of spirit.

Skeptic, Cambridge, Mass.: Q. Is the story of Jonah a lie?

A. It is far from a lie, but an ancient version of a solar myth. It is the story of darkness devouring the light, the winter's death of the year and its return. It is told by all nations in varying forms, and in the nursery tale of Little Red Riding-Hood and the Wolf.

Received, however, as a divine inspiration, it has another aspect, and become as incongruous as one of Esop's fables would be in the midst of a poem of Tennyson. It has been a bone of contention, and its absurdity when taken literally, has provoked a skepticism which has extended to the whole Bible.

While Moody, who is emotional and nothing more, is preaching the literal understanding of every text, the learned Dr. Lyman Abbott has awakened a storm of criticism by calling the Book of Jonah a humorous or satirical sketch. The writer was a Hebrew Dickens or Mark Twain. Even so, what becomes of the claim for the infallibility of the Bible? If a whole book which for ages has been regarded as inspired by God himself is to be relegated to "funny literature," to-morrow other books may be dismissed with equal curtness, and the whole Bible become no more than any other compilation. This end of its career must come, and is hastened by the over-zeal of its would-be friends. The disgust of Talmage is well expressed in a recent sermon, where he confesses the impossibility of coming to an understanding and satisfactory exposition of the Bible, and practically shouts amidst the breakers on which the theological scheme is wrecked, not to wait a moment expecting that the old ship will be or can be repaired, but every one seize the first available plank, and pull for the shore. Take anything that will float; a broken spar, a coil of rope, or a hen-coop; anything if it will bear you up and pull for the shore! This is good, sound advice, for the present, but if skepticism follows with the double quick step it has taken of late, and discoveries continue to be made, there will not be even a spar, plank, or a hen-coop left on which to go ashore!

Arthur Kline: Q. Will you give the strength of the various sects into which the Christians are divided in the United States?

A. On the most reliable authority there were in the United States in 1896:

Baptists, 33,993 ministers; 4,153,857 members.

Catholics, 10,878 ministers; 10,000,000 members.

Christian Scientists, 3,000 ministers; 25,000 members.

Congregationalists, 5,475 ministers; 622,557 members.

Disciples, 5,360 ministers; 1,009,672 members.

Jews, 2,000 ministers; 139,000 members.

Lutherans, 5,993 ministers; 1,420,905 members.

Methodists, 35,237 ministers; 5,653,289 members.

Presbyterians, 11,154 ministers; 1,460,346 members.

Episcopal, 4,705 ministers; 645,566 members.

Salvationists, 2570 ministers; 40,000 members.

Spiritualists, 334 churches; 45,030 members.

Unitarians, 525 ministers; 70,000 members.

Universalists, 797 ministers; 49,025 members.

The total number of churchmembers in round numbers is 27,000,000; number of churches, 183,000; number of ministers, 136,960.

The Catholic church is not comparable in membership with the Protestant, for children of Catholics are born Catholics. The family is counted, whereas in Protestant churches, the age of choice and subscription to the creed is necessary for membership.

The Spiritualists are represented in this census by those actually belonging to organizations, which is not a tithe of the number.

In the study of these statistics we are met with stupendous facts. That there are 10,000,000 Catholics in this country, to every intent and purpose a foreign empire in the heart of this republic, ten millions, under Jesuitical control, having sworn allegiance to the Pope, and priests against the government which protects them, is a menace to liberty.

Then there are 136,960 ministers of the gospel supported at public expense. The cost of their establishment cannot be placed at less than an average of $800 a year, or one hundred and ten millions of dollars. There are 183,761 churches. Many are cathedrals worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, many country churches costing from two to ten thousand dollars. There is no doubt that the buildings, parsonages attached and other properties exceeds one billion of dollars. The tax on this vast property at the average of 2 per cent. would be twenty millions a year, and this sum the tax-payers are forced to pay in extra taxes, for the support of the churches, which the Constitution declares shall not be maintained by the State!

ALL CREEDS CALLED.

(Continued from page 1.)

world from those who have promised to take part in the great congress.

C. C. Bonney, general president of the World's Congress at the Columbian Exposition, writes:

The proposal is in perfect harmony with the purposes and plans of the World's fair congress of religions, and I therefore heartily approve of the proposal, with the understanding that the congress will be governed by substantially the same rules as those under which the marvelous success of the World's Parliament of Religions at Chicago was achieved.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, writes:

I shall make a note of the proposed meeting and shall be very glad if you will keep me advised of the progress made toward realizing this idea.

Others who have expressed the intention of going to the congress from America are Mrs. L. N. Coleman of New York, Dr. Paul Carus, editor of the Monist, La Salle, Ill.; Rev. A. H. Bradford, editor of the Outlook, Montclair, N. J.; Rev. Caroline J. Bartlett, People's Church, Kalamazoo, Mich., and G. W. Brown, M. D., Rockford, Ill.

Arrangements will be made for the printing and promulgating of the knowledge gained by the coming together of so many wise men from all parts of the world, and a special committee will be appointed to receive copies of all lectures and select from them those which will be of most benefit to the world.

PERSONALITIES ARE BARRED.

No peronal criticism will be allowed. Everything is to be done with a view to separating from religion the hopelessly entangled part which consists only of dark tradition or observances beyond human solution, and carrying to the outside world the pure, fundamental doctrine that will be the marrow of all sensible religious teachings. It will surely be a great gathering, and should go a long way toward harmonizing the discords of the religious world and bringing all races to recognize one common creed based on spiritual facts, with all fictions eliminated.

This meeting cannot fail to produce highly beneficial results. The world is loaded down with religions, the most of them being of a grotesque character, without a particle of foundation in truth. Each of the 1,000 religions and religious cults should be present producing a medley of contradictions unsurpassed in the world.

DIVINE WRIGHT.

STATEMENT OF FACTS.

(Continued from page 1.)

ing took steps to provide for the funeral.

He had great difficulty to learn where the wife had been buried, but finally discovered that her remains were in the receiving vault at Oak Hill.

He telegraphed to the sons in Texas and Florida, and they could not come; he then completed the arrangements, and buried the bodies of the Doctor and his wife, in Oak Hill, paying all the expenses, $195, out of his own pocket.

It should be added that the money has since been refunded by the boy in the Treasury employ.

A few days after the experience of Dr. Hinds at the Oxford he met Mr. Edmondson on F. street, near the Ebbit House, and said: "Edmondson, I have a message for you; come in here, I want to tell you."

"A message for me; who from; are you giving me taffy;" said Edmondson? "No," said Dr. Hinds, "you shall hear for yourself;" and then related his experience at the Hotel Oxford.

It is needless to add that both gentlemen, Dr. Hinds and Mr. Edmondson, are astonished, and have no explanation. They are sensible men and accept the statement of the medium. The exact substance of the facts are here given.

Washington, D. D., April 3, 1897.

BEAUTIFUL WEDDING.

On Monday, April 12, one of the most beautiful weddings of the season took place in the Pettis Hall, First avenue, Seattle, Wash. The contracting parties were Samuel F. Thompson, Esq., and Laura Duval Horne, both of Tacoma. The wedding was unique in its character, it being a Spiritualist one in the true sense of the word, the happy bride and bridegroom being Spiritualists.

The ceremony was performed by the ordained minister of the society, Mrs. Esther Thomas, of Seattle, and the majority of the audience were Spiritualists. It being the first of its kind ever performed on Puget Sound, great interest was manifested, and it brought together a large congregation. At 3:30 the bridal party entered the hall, keeping step to the sweet strains of the wedding march played by Prof. Darling.

First came the minister, Mrs. Esther Thomas with the groom, then the pretty little maids of honor, Misses Lillian D. Madison, of Tacoma, and R. Thomas, of Seattle then the bride, accompanied by her brother, Mr. Harry F. Johnson, the bridegroom changing places with Mr. Johnson on reaching the platform. After the legal form of marriage had been gone through and the wedding ring been placed on the bride's finger, Mrs. Thomas gave a very excellent address on marriage ties, based on the principles of true love, being divine and so ordained of God; the benediction and blessing following.

The bride wore an elegant train, cream-colored pearl silk dress, trimmed with gold braid and Chantilla silk lace. She carried a lovely bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She also wore lilies of the valley in her hair, and looked very beautiful.

The maids of honor looked very pretty—Miss Madison being a blonde, was prettily attired in light blue cashmere, and Miss Thomas, a decided brunette, wore a pink of the same material. Thus the bride and little maids of honor made a lovely picture for all eyes to gaze upon.

The groom, of course, was at his best, and looked the very picture of happiness as he gazed upon his lovely bride.

The hall looked like a garden, so profuse were the decorations of palms, ferns and flowers. On the way to the platform, the bridal party had to pass under an archway of evergreens and ferns, with a wedding bell hanging in the center, made of beautiful white flowers. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents and received the hearty congratulations and good wishes of their numerous friends.

Mr. R. C. Mulligan, of 606 Second avenue, took a very excellent photo of the bridal party, showing also the platform decorations, some persons claiming that they see three forms in the picture that were not in the party. Spiritualists will understand what this means.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, with many friends, retired to Mrs. Lemont's home, and partook of refreshments, and enjoyed very much that lady's hospitality. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will make their future home in Tacoma.

W. C.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"The Dead Man's Message," an occult romance by Florence Marryat. The author's wide experience in Spiritualism and her study of occult science have prepared her to write this romance, which will be found laden with gems picked up in the course of her investigation and studies. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Mahomet, His Birth, Character and Doctrine." By Edward Gibbons. This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. Price, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

"Poems of Progress." By Lizzie Doten. In this volume, this peerless poet of Spiritualism may be read in her varied moods, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." It is a book to be treasured and richly enjoyed by all who love genuine poetry, and especially by Spiritualists. The volume is tastily printed and bound. Price $1.

"Progression, or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-life." "The Evolution of Man." Two papers, given in the interest of spiritual science, by Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

PARIS LETTER.

PROFESSOR PIERRE JANET ON FIXED IDEAS IN THE SUBCONSCIOUS SELF AS ENTAILING AUTOMATISM.

Professor Janet has given a series of lectures at the Salpetriere, illustrated by experimental demonstrations with subjects. These lectures are of value to readers of this paper, as showing the identity of the subconscious or subliminal aspect of the self of the psychologists and psychical researchers, with the somnambulic and hypnotically or mesmerically induced secondary aspect of the self; consequently also with the mediumistically induced self of the Spiritualists and the astral self of the Occultists. These deductions were not drawn by Professor Janet, but will appear from the context to every thoughtful reader who is acquainted with these several schools.

Suggestion, said the lecturer, can only be imperfectly effected in the normal, waking state. The full phenomena of complete suggestion only occurs, he considered, in hysterical subjects. A varying period of time may intervene between the determination by suggestion and post-hypnotic realization; but at the time of realization, the symptoms pertaining to the hypnotic state temporarily supervene; showing that when the subject executes the post-hypnotic suggestion, she is in the hypnotic and not in the normal state. The suggested idea carries greater dynamic intensity and entails a state of monoideism, as compared with normal realization. Generally speaking, suggestible subjects are weak-willed; incapable of consecutive attention; cannot read a page of a book uninterruptedly; are incapable of synthetic judgment. The last stages of consumption; the weakened state which follows after typhoid fever; alcoholic delirium, present analogies with the suggestible state.

If temperamental resistance to a suggested idea is presented by a subject, the idea may remain fixed in the subject's mind, till a suitable occasion occasion arises, either emotionally or by weakness, when it will then be expressed. Such ideas have remained unexpressed in the mind of subjects, for days, and then suddenly been expressed on unexpected occasions.

Exceptionally strong emotions or sudden shocks in suggestible subjects, said the lecturer, may penetrate into his subconscious self and there leave an impression, described as a "fixed idea" which emerges into action when the subject is tired or weakened, when he thereby becomes an automaton, to that extent.

A subject was presented who had suffered keenly from the sudden loss of her child. She duly resumed her normal life and duties however. Six years later she was enfeebled by typhoid fever. The scene of the death of her child then began to haunt her as a delirium. She subsequently lost her sleep and remained insomniolent for two years, losing her memory and power of attention, and of reading, simultaneously. She became utterly helpless and incapable and was brought to the hospital. There it was found by hypnotizing her, that is by inducing somnambulic sleep artificially and making her describe while in that state the cause of her insomnia, that the scene of the death of her child emerged from her subconscious self on every occasion that she was just dropping off to sleep and awoke her by the shock. This state had lasted for three years.

Another subject was presented who, when fifteen years old, had been frightened by a bull. The emotion had impressed itself into her subconscious self and emerged during sleep, causing the girl to somnambulically dream the scene over again nightly. She would then jump up, run around her room trying to escape, and even jump through the window. When awakened by the shock of her jump, or other accident, she would then know nothing as to the cause of what had led her there. The dream gradually altered in the course of years, and other animals took the place of the bull, but their eyes remained unchanged. This had gone on for seven years, when she was brought to the hospital. The somnambulic state was then artificially induced. She was questioned and the disturbing cause discovered.

Another case of a man was given who every night got up while asleep, ran around his room, seized his clothes and hid himself under his bed, where he would go to sleep again. By hypnotically inducing the somnambulic state, it was found that he had been frightened by burglars and the fright repeated itself nightly.

In each case curative action was effected by suggestion; i. e., the secondary self was treated with psychic medication. The consideration arises by association that probably "hauntings" are similarly constituted, but with the supplemental projection of apparitional objectified thought-forms, or doubles. The dreaming becomes objectively represented.

Another case of a guard was presented, who was collecting tickets from the footboard of a moving train when the train entered a tunnel. The intense fear of being crushed against the sides of the tunnel produced a nervous shock which paralyzed one of his legs. The sudden movement of the paralyzed limb still revives the mental picture of the tunnel and the accompanying terror.

In most cases the impression produced reacts in the normal self for some time. The evidence of its having penetrated into the subconscious self only appears when the symptoms pertaining to its action in the normal self disappear. The impression or fixed idea then emerges into action when the subject is tired, or when she is just going off to sleep, when it produces somnambulic action on the one hand, or on the other entails insomnia by awakening the subject with a start. But when awakened the subject no longer recollects the cause of the start which awakened her and consequently cannot explain what occurs. This action may persist for years and appear incomprehensible.

These cases show the identity of hypnotic or mesmeric sleep with somnambulism and the reactive effect of somnambulic dreams in entailing insomnia. The subconscious self in which such impressions are retained, was not defined, but appears from the above to be identical with the somnambulic self (whether spontaneous or artificially induced), which again is identical with the secondary self induced in hypnotism or mesmerism, and would further appear consequently to be identical with the secondary state induced in mediumistic control. This subconscious self is again identical with what the Cambridge experimenters have defined as the subliminal self and what the occultists call the astral self. These many definitions might preferably be embraced in the one relatively simple and comprehensive definition of intra-normal consciousness.

It is to be observed that ideas are here defined as originating in sense impressions, or the reaction entailed in the mind by sense impression. The mind appears to register these impressions as a phonograph does, and under a temporary stimulus these impressions emerge as images or ideas, even as a phonograph reproduces its impressions in sounds. The mind appears to be a phonograph which not only registers sound impressions, but visual and emotional impressions also, all of which impressions may be reflected again as images, or ideas, or as what have been called hallucinations.

A curious illustration of the simultaneous double functioning of the normal and subconscious self was given. A young girl was made to sleep by the simple laying of the operator's hand over her eyes (she was a trained subject and a hysterical patient). The suggestion was then made to her that after awakening she would see that the audience were all wearing tri-colored hats, after he had hit the table ten times. She was then awakened by blowing on her eyes, and the speaker proceeded with his lecture, addressing remarks to the subject from time to time, to which she replied normally. During his conversation the lecturer hit the table at irregular intervals, in an unnoticeable manner, with his paper knife, from time to time. When this had occurred ten times, the subject commenced to laugh. Asked why, she protested that the public should not behave in such a disrespectful manner as to come to a lecture in carnival hats.

A similar experiment but of a different character was made with another subject. She was told when asleep to turn her hands over each other after awakening, when the lecturer had named numbers which added together, would make ten. After awaking her, Mr. Janet carried on a trivial conversation with her, quietly introducing the words four, two, four, at intervals into his remarks. She then suddenly began to turn her hands over each other. Asked why she did that, she did not know why she did it. The subconscious self had been counting while the normal self was conversing and then made the normal self rotate her hands and arms, while aware that she was doing something without apparent reason.

A converse illustration was given showing that suggestion to the subconscious self caused the latter to inhibit the visual perception of the normal self, in part. Under that determination the subject saw all the numbers placed before her, with the exception of the number three, which remained invisible to her.

From these illustrations it would appear that hypnotic suggestion may determine the subconscious self to act simultaneously with the normal self in post-hypnotic realization. The normal self is determined to do things by the subconscious (secondary, astral, mediumistic) self. It executes them without knowing why, as the determination pertains to the secondary self and to the memory-chain pertaining to the secondary self. Thus the normal self may be determined by the secondary self, but the normal self cannot determine the secondary self.

The physiological relations of the secondary self were not touched upon by the lecturer. It is of course recognized that the consciousness of the normal self is related with the cerebrum, cerebellum, and with the sensor-motor nervous system. The writer of this article will show in a subsequent letter, that the subconscious, subliminal, secondary, astral, or mediumistic self, pertains to the sympathetic system, i. e., the solar plexus with its ganglionic brains.

QUAESTOR VITAE.

"Thomas Paine: Was He Junius?" An interesting pamphlet by Wm. H. Burr. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

A REMARKABLE DOCTOR BOOK

HAS JUST BEEN ISSUED, ENTITLED

THE NATURE CURE

BY PHYSICAL AND MENTAL METHODS.

A BRIDGE FROM THE OLD TO THE NEW; THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY IN MEDICAL PRACTICE. A CLEAR, SHORT-CUT TREATISE ON THE CAUSE AND CURE OF DISEASE.

By MARVIN E. CONGER, M. D.
Assisted by ROSA C. CONGER, M. D.

The title page is suggestive of important changes in the methods of curing the sick and maintaining health.

THE NATURE CURE is divided into twelve chapters, as follows:

First—Introductory.
Second—Cause of Disease.
Third—Food and Drink.
Fourth—Exercise.
Fifth—Fevers; Cause and Treatment.
Sixth—Disease Inflammatory.
Seventh—Epidemic and Chronic Disease.
Eighth—Baths.
Ninth—Women and Children. (By Rosa C. Conger, M. D.)
Tenth—Useful Recipes.
Eleventh—Object Lessons and Tables.
Twelfth—Miscellaneous Health Suggestions.

Read their definition of medicine: "Any method or remedy that will remove or modify pain without injury, and restore the sick to a normal condition is practical medicine."

The new and better methods of curing the sick and preventing disease, have never been so clearly stated in plain English, for the plain people, as in NATURE CURE.

It is claimed for this book that it is the most complete doctor book ever published, and sold at the lowest price. It is claimed that disease is not a technical, mysterious, theoretical condition or subject, but only a fact that all may understand. More experience, study and time have been expended to evade and pervert the truth, and deceive the people for obtaining money, than to teach the truth and save life and health. THE NATURE CURE reaches the case of this important subject.

The book has 370 pages, is strongly and handsomely bound in cloth for $2.00, and will be mailed upon receipt of price.

ADDRESS THIS OFFICE, 40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

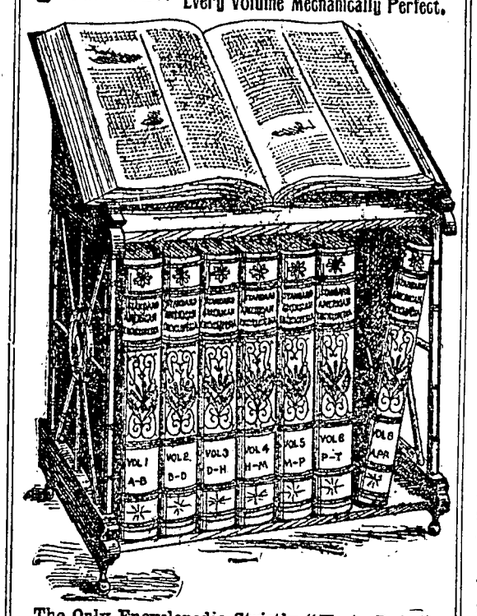
"THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS."

A Primary Course of Lessons in Celestial Dynamics.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT."

This important primary work is the first practical exposition of the Astro-Magnetic forces of Nature—in their relation to man—that has yet been issued by the American press. It contains fourteen special lessons, embracing each department of human life, in such plain, simple language that a child can understand the elementary principles laid down. And in addition to these lessons is an Appendix, containing a full explanation of all technical and scientific terms in general use upon the subject, thus forming a brief, yet practical Astro Dictionary. This work is illustrated with special plates.

For Sale at This Office. Price, Fifty Cents.



SEE WHAT ONE DOLLAR WILL DO

It will secure for you immediate delivery of a complete set of eight superb volumes (nearly 4,000 pages, magnificently illustrated) of the latest, most practical and in every way the best general reference library in the English language—the

STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA

You have a whole year to pay the balance in monthly amounts, so small you will not feel the outlay.

8 LARGE VOLUMES. Nearly 4,000 pages. Over 300 Colored Maps, Charts and Diagrams. Every Volume Mechanically Perfect.

The Only Encyclopedia Strictly "Up to Date."
SIZE OF VOLUME:
2 ins. Thick. 8½ ins. Wide. 11½ ins. Long.

A COMPLETE LIBRARY

For daily use in your home or office.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN is prepared by

JOHN CLARK RIDPATH, LL.D.

author of "Ridpath's Histories," etc., assisted by a large corps of editors and over 100 eminent scholars and specialists.

A SUPERB REFERENCE WORK

treating over 60,000 topics (10,000 more than any other encyclopedia), covering the entire field of human knowledge, thought and endeavor.

FRESH FROM THE PRESS

The NEW STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA is brought down to the present time, and contains hundreds of articles on subjects not treated in any other reference work. Another important feature in which it stands absolutely alone is its very full Appendixes, which embrace over 100 sub-divisions, including a Biographical Dictionary, a Dictionary of Technical Terms, a Gazetteer of the United States, Statistics of Presidential Elections, State and Territorial Elections, Religious Summaries, Statistics of the Population of the World, and a Veritable Mine of Other Information on thousands of subjects of universal interest and importance, written in such simple language that even a child can readily understand.

THREE GREAT AUTHORITIES SAY:

"There is no work in the world that can compare with it."—New York Herald.

"It stands ready to answer any question."—Bishop JOHN H. VINCENT, D.D., LL.D.

"The Standard American Encyclopedia is especially suited to private families. Its tables, maps of countries and cities, Summaries of Useful Knowledge, etc., make it a most valuable book of reference. I cordially commend it to the public."—EDWARD BROOKS, Superintendent of Schools, Philadelphia.

For a Limited Time Only—Just to Introduce the work ONE DOLLAR secures IMMEDIATE POSSESSION of the entire set of 8 volumes. Balance payable $1.50 monthly for one year.

You thus at once secure this splendid set of books for continued use and enjoyment. It is the One Great, Practical Reference Library for the Professional and Business Man, the Teacher, the Student, the Farmer, Artisan, and Mechanic.

MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRATED THROUGHOUT

With over 3,500 engravings, of superb quality and wonderful variety, including numerous engraved portraits of distinguished Poets, Authors, Physicians, Chemists, Philosophers, and Scientists, and with over 300 new maps and charts from the VERY LATEST EXPLORATIONS and SURVEYS, delineating Continents, Empires, Countries, States, Cities, Towns, Citadels, Solar, Lunar, and Planetary Systems, and every portion of the known world, and forming a Complete and Indexed Atlas of the globe. THE STANDARD AMERICAN is the best illustrated and the best mapped Encyclopedia in the English Language.

OUR GREAT INTRODUCTORY OFFER

To secure widespread and favorable publicity for THE NEW STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA, we have decided to place a few introductory sets in each community throughout the country for comparison with all other reference works as to plan, scope, lateness of treatment and general practical and educational value. We feel that every set will create a demand for others. While the distribution will be general in extent, it will last for a limited time only, after which our regular subscription sale will begin, at prices ranging from $48 to $72 a set, according to style of binding. Now, however, to quickly and thoroughly introduce the work, as above stated, we make the price merely nominal (about the cost of paper and printing), the distribution being LIMITED TO A VERY FEW WEEKS, reserving the privilege of withdrawing the offer at any time when we consider a sufficient number of these introductory sets, at the special price, have been distributed.

OUR GREAT SPECIAL OFFER.

SEND $1.00 to THE ENCYLOPEDIA PUBLISHING CO., 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and a full set of eight volumes of THE NEW STANDARD AMERICAN ENCYCLOPEDIA, in cloth binding will be forwarded to you. The balance is payable at the rate of $1.50 monthly for one year, or about 5 cents a day. If you prefer the half-Morocco binding, the monthly payment will be $2.00, and for full sheep, $2.50 per month for one year. We recommend the half-Morocco style, which is particularly elegant and serviceable, and will last a lifetime. If not entirely satisfactory any set may be returned within ten days and money will be promptly refunded. Owing to the nominal price at which these introductory sets are supplied, transportation charges must be paid by the purchaser; but our entire confidence that the volumes will be gladly received and cheerfully paid for is shown by sending a $48.00 set of books on an advance payment of only $1.00. We also feel that you will thoroughly appreciate this great work and speak favorably of it to others. Each set weighs boxed nearly 50 pounds, and will be shipped by freight unless otherwise ordered. We refer you to the publishers of this paper. Please mention it when writing.

Send two-cent stamp for postage on twenty-two page illustrated pamphlet with sample pages, colored map, and portraits of famous inventors. Address

The Encyclopedia Publishing Co., 156 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK, N. Y.

GENERAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 6.)

A member of the Breedsville, (Mich.) Spiritualist Society writes: "We have discontinued our meetings for a while, but Mrs. E. W. Williams is holding some meetings in the country, with grand success. She would engage with other societies and will also attend funerals."

Isaac Perry writes from National Military Home, Kansas: "You will find inclosed a circular published by Dr. Alex Hume and Mme. Beausant as mediums. They are only frauds of the first water. I was present at the meeting and was chosen by the audience as one of the committee to investigate the proceedings, and I must say in all candor and truth that they failed to produce a single manifestation as advertised, or anything that could be called spiritual. You will also see that they are sailing under the auspices of the Lyceum Bureau of Boston, which I am confident is another falsehood, for I know the Spiritualists in Boston would never think of sending out any such frauds. The people here have come to the just conclusion that they want no more of such Spiritualism. The spiritual cause is dead here in Leavenworth, and all on account of the fraudulent mediums, and unless Spiritualists will go to work and clear themselves of those sharks, they need not look for prosperity."

W. W. Hawkins writes from Lima, O.: "The calmness of contrast offers a deep and close study, while vehemence can be better contemplated through distance; but vigor is a gift of the Gods, and what an endowment of it must the Egyptian Hebrew, Moses, have had. I believe it is estimated that at least one fragment of the slates was found a Hebrew's day's journey away from the place of dissolution. Can it be possible that our Moses inherits through name analogy a "hull" lot of it. Of course, while I don't know it, I certainly must believe it? However, his last Sundays lectures elicited this from a closely attentive student of the orthodox version: 'My, the vigor of your speaker will leave us only the covers of our sacred book.' 'Well,' I replied; 'that's about all of it that your past use of it entitles you to.' Silence ensued."

W. S. Eldridge, M. D., medium and speaker, is now ready for duty after a long illness. He speaks for the First Society of Spiritualists of Portland, Maine, Sunday, May 9th, will answer calls for funerals, societies and camp-meetings. Address him at 72 Brown St., Portland, Maine.

Frank T. Ripley, speaker and platform test medium, goes to Moravia, New York. He can be engaged for lectures and tests in the State of New York for May and June. Address letters in care of Dr. B. L. Robinson, M. D., McLean, N. Y.

S. F. Gray writes from Lexington, Ky., that one of their little band had passed to spirit life, and he officiated at the funeral. He says: "The people here have learned that while we are not of the orthodox, we practice and teach Primitive Christianity, as the Nazarene and his disciples taught it. This being the first funeral ever conducted by Spiritualists in our city, drew a very large attendance of all classes. Salvationists, Catholics, and Protestants were in full force, filled with a curiosity to see and know what could be said of one who had followed the teaching, and done the work of the Devil. And from what I can hear from all sides these Spiritualists are a pretty good lot after all. It is hardly necessary for me to say, that your paper is considered here the best and most readable Spiritualists' sheet published in America. And that letter from Dr. Peebles, in your last issue, is of itself, worth a whole year's subscription."

Bishop A. Beals writes from Summerland, Cal.: "We are having delightful weather here, and yesterday, May day, we celebrated it with picnic in the woods, under gnarled oaks, and by a beautiful stream of crystal water; green clad mountains on one side, and old ocean on the other. Your paper keeps me well posted in things spiritual and intellectual, and I am through its columns brought in touch with the best minds that grace our cause."

The following comes from Long Beach, Cal.: Miss L. M. Cummings home was at one time in Boston, but after a lecturing tour of, perhaps, years, will locate west of the Rocky Mountains, and will not return East at present.

L. E. B. writes from East Homer, N. Y.: "E. W. Sprague and wife have just organized a society of twenty members in Cortland. The names go for the charter to-day. It is something I have long-wished for in Cortland."

J. B. Dow, attorney at law, writes from Beloit, Wis.: "Our friend, Will C. Hodge, spoke here in "orthodox Beloit" recently, two successive Sunday evenings, to fair-sized audiences. He made a very good impression indeed, and incited a number of people to do a little thinking for themselves. Mr. Hodge is very fair in the discussion of his topics. He asks no one to believe, simply upon his say so, but urges all to investigate for themselves and be convinced. Contrary to the scripture affirmation that 'a prophet is not without honor,' etc., as Mr. Hodge was a Beloit boy and lived here the major part of his life, he was accorded very much credit for the forcible and fair-minded way in which he presented that which he himself knew, by personal observation and experience, was the truth. If we had more men who were as fearless in their utterances of what they know to be true, the world would be better and wiser." Mr. Hodge will answer calls to lecture. He can be addressed in care of 40 Loomis street, Chicago, Ill.

Oscar A. Edgerly has engagements at the following named camp-meetings: Niantic, Conn.; Lake Pleasant, Mass.; Queen City Park, Vt.; Vicksburg, Mich.; and Devil's Lake, Mich. Mr. Edgerly's engagements as made for the season of 1897 and 1898 are as follows: December, 1897, First Spiritual Temple, corner Exter and Newbury streets, Boston; February, 1898, with Boston Spiritual Temple, Berkley Hall, Boston; March, 1898, Norwich, Conn. Mr. Edgerly solicits correspondence from secretaries of Western Societies who may desire the service of a trance speaker and test medium for the months of October and November, 1897.

Mrs. G. G. Cooley writes from Salt Lake City, Utah: "Mr. Cooley and myself arrived here from Summerland, Cal., last week and find a work to do in the way of harmonizing the followers in our ranks. We found what had once been a flourishing society, in a very weak state at present, although a few earnest workers have managed to hold together so as to retain their charter. The town has been visited by a number of frauds in the past year, who have naturally left their impression on the minds of the new investigators, but much of the prejudice has been overcome, since the work done by the Brockway family several months ago. They remained three months, doing good on every hand. An excellent work was also done here by Mrs. Loe F. Prior, who organized the society about a year and a half ago. From here we go to Minnesota to attend the N. W. Camp; thence to Clinton, Iowa. I would like to form engagement for first two weeks in August at camp in or near these places. Address Georgia Gladys Cooley, 161½ S. State St., Salt Lake City, Utah."

(Continued on page 5.)

IMPORTANT!

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

G. E. WATKINS, M. D.,

AYER, MASS.

DR. C. E. WATKINS' GREAT WORK.

We dislike to publish testimonials, that is, we feel that it is not just the way we would like to conduct practice. But as we treat only chronic cases, we find that printer's ink is the only medium that we have by which we can reach the sick, and discouraged. We always have tried to say nothing that would reflect on the honesty or skill of any other physician But feeling that we can greatly help and cure chronic cases where others have failed to cure, or help, we feel that we must do as others do—advertise the fact that we are meeting with great success. We have no doubt but what there are others who are just as successful, and perhaps more so, but still we have faith in our guides, and we therefore advertise.

We write these few words because one dear old friend wrote us telling us he disliked to see us advertising so extensively. The last two years we have cured five times as many sick folks as we ever did any other two years. Have we not, therefore, done more good? Some one might say, "But, Doctor, do you only work for the good of others? Do you not work for money?" Yes, we do, and we work fifteen hours a day lots of days, and at the end of the year the money earned is put to a good use. For further particulars write us, and we will cheerfully tell you how we squander our money. Below are a few letters taken out of a box of letters, just as we reached them, one at a time.

Shows Interest in Patients.

My Dear Dr. Watkins:—I feel that you have done me much more good than all the others before you, who have taken about all I could raise to pay them. I believe you take more interest in my case than anyone ever did.

D. W. FRARY.

Prescott, A. T., May 1.

Takes No Medicine Now..

Mr. Davis takes no medicine now. Is well, I am glad to say.

MRS. J. C. DAVIS.

Lake Crystal Minn.

A Letter From England.

Dear Doctor:—I do not think I need any more medicine. I feel very much better. You are doing a great work. God bless you in your efforts to do good.

EMANUEL CAMPBELL.

30 Atlas Road, Darwin Lane, Eng.

Dr. C. E. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I am feeling so much better now that I do not think I need any more medicine. I feel very grateful to you for the benefit I have received from your treatment, after suffering so much as I did from my complaints. I can recommend you to all who need medical attendance. Wishing you success, I remain, yours truly, MRS. ELLA BUCHANAN.

Haverhill, Mass.

Dear Doctor:—My good right arm you saved for me when all other doctors said I must lose it. God bless you.

WILLIAM S. BROWNSON.

Haverhill, Mass.

Sleeps Well, Eats Well and Feels Well.

C. E. Watkins, M. D.—My Dear Sir:—I feel to rejoice that I am again in good health so far as I can see, as I sleep well, eat well, and feel well. And I can in confidence recommend you to my friends as a most skillful physician. May you live long to bless mankind. Kindly yours, W. E. BROWNE.

120 Burrington street, Providence R. I.

My Dear Doctor:—I am still on the improve; have not had a bad day this month, and worked some every day; and oh, how happy one feels to be able to work, after so long forced idleness. God bless you. W. L. GAGE.

Kane City, Pa.

(Continued next week.)

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS.

SUCCESSFUL SPECIALISTS.

Any good medium can correctly diagnose your case; but very few of them know how to cure the diseased organs which they see. They must be acquainted with medicines and their action upon the system, or they will do great injury to your body.

WE GUARANTEE A CURE

of every case which we pronounce curable. The following letter is like thousands of others which we receive each month:

Silver City, N. M., April 8, 1897.

Dear Doctors—I write you to night to let you know how your little patient is getting along. As I write she is sitting up in bed, talking and feeling so much better. I cannot find words to express myself to you. The doctors here had given her up; had told me she could not live 24 hours, when your box of medicine came. But from the first dose of your medicine there has been a steady improvement. She has a good appetite and sleeps well now, especially after your psychic treatment.

MRS. ARTIE GALLOWAY.

Do not endanger your life and throw away your money on uncertainties. Write us; give name, age, sex and a leading symptom and receive by return mail an absolutely correct diagnosis and medical advice free. No guess work, experiments or poisonous drugs.

Drs. Peebles & Burroughs,

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

730 Lemcke Building.

NEW BOOKS.

The Old and The New; or the World's Progress in Religious Thought. By Moses Hull.

Readers of spiritual literature will be glad to welcome a new brochure by the veteran writer and speaker, Moses Hull. No matter how rapid the world's advance along liberal and radical lines of thought and reform, Moses Hull will ever be found in the van—ever a leader, never a laggard. Hence, no one more fit than he to write of the progress of the world in religious thought. He recognizes that "the law of progress is fundamental, universal and eternal; there is no place where it does not apply."

In this spirit he depicts the change in religious teachings, in the direction of more humane and liberal doctrinal views and scripture interpretations—in the which the churches have largely outgrown their old-time cast-iron creeds.

Mr. Hull does not enter into a fight with any part of the Bible; indeed he says, "a fight with the Bible would be too much like kicking my mother." In this respect he sets a good example for those Spiritualists whose spirituality is too nearly gauged by their unremittent activity and vim in "kicking their mother."

Mr. Hull takes under review the old idea of God, the old ideas of man, the old Hell, the old Heaven, and supplements each of these chapters with the more recent and advanced ideas on the same subjects, thus indicating the trend and degree of progress made in these matters of religious thought and belief. The chapters are enriched with apt quotations from orthodox sources, past and present, which illustrate the points under discussion. It is hardly needful to recommend to the readers of The Progressive Thinker, any treatise written by an author so well known. This instructive little pamphlet can be procured for the sum of 10 cents at the office of The Progressive Thinker.

The Strike of a Sex. By George N. Miller. A novel with a purpose—and that purpose the great and needed one of lifting from woman the burden of undesired maternity—and that in a manner that will result in the betterment and increased happiness of man and woman alike. For sale at this office. Paper. Price 25 cents.

After the Sex Struck, or Zugassent's Discovery. By George N. Miller, author of "The Strike of a Sex."

In the form of pleasing fiction, in part, the author treats of the important subjects of the marriage relation and the best means to secure enduring marital love and the best and highest physical, mental and spiritual development, by proper self-control of natural functions. In this consists the gist of Zugassent's discovery. A valuable book, and worthy of commendation. It is for sale at this office. Paper. Price 25 cents.

"Letting Go," a booklet by Nancy McKay Gordon, published by the Hermetic Pub. Co., 4006 Grand Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., is an unmixed concentration of practical and beautiful advice. Its teachings are clearly, and logically put, that we suffer much of the disaster and worries of life, because we will not let go. We must clear away the old ideas, musty, and befogged, of life as opposed to death and take hold of the new theorem, that there is no death, but we are passing on a constant cycle of eternal living, sometimes visible and sometime invisible, but all preconceived ideas of "love and hate, spirit and matter, must also be cleared away. We must attach ourselves to that ideal which is the God image, if we desire surcease from all sorrow. For sale at the above address. Price 10 cents.

TO THE SPIRITUALISTS OF NEW YORK STATE.

The first act of the board of trustees of the New York State Spiritualist Association was to appoint E. W. Sprague State Missionary and organizer, and he has been doing a grand work since the Syracuse convention, holding one or more meetings a day (assisted by his wife), and has succeeded in organizing three new societies and has sent me their applications for membership in the State Association.

On June first Brother Sprague and wife go to Michigan where he is to take charge of the Banksons Lake cammeeting for the entire month. During the remainder of this month Brother Sprague is open for engagemnts.

Fellow Spiritualists of our Empire State, can we allow our brother's usefullness to the cause to be lost for want of a field in which to labor?

We should have a good local society in every section of our State, and our organizer and missionary is just the man to do the work for you. I can recommend both him and his wife as excellent test mediums, and his terms are most reasonable: railroad fare, entertainment, a suitable hall and the collections.

It is time for Spiritualists to organize for more effective work and for protection from the persecutions of bigotry and intolerance.

Ours is the grandest philosophy ever presented to the world, and has for its basis truth. It is the religion of facts that can be proven, and universal love, the demonstration of the principle of the brotherhood of man.

Are you not willing to assist us in this work for humanity, even if it should require a little sacrifice on your part? Anyone wishing the services of Brother Sprague and his good wife can address him at 965 Grove street., Meadville, Pa.

Brother Sprague did very effective work while missionary for the National Spiritualist Association and his efforts were of the greatest value in making our late Syracuse convention a success. Keep him at work brothers and sisters.

HERBERT L. WHITNEY, Sec.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL! . . . . .

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly,

REBECCA LEVY.

3381 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free.]

Passed to spirit-life, May 1, 1897, Edna E. Sutherland, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Sutherland, of Evansville, Ind. This is the third child to pass to spirit-life in just two weeks, between the ages of four months and six years. Funeral service was conducted by Mrs. Dr. Noyes.

At his residence in Noank, Conn., March 17, 1897, Mr. Daniel Searls passed to immortal life, aged 85 years. He was a life-long Spiritualist and an honest man. R. S. WHITE.

Arthur E. Crowell, of Dexter, Maine, passed to spirit-life April 21, at the age of 31 years, 6 months and 5 days.

Mr. Crowell was a native of Garland, Maine, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He had been sick for nearly a year with consumption and was a great sufferer, but bore his suffering verp patiently. Everything was done to make his last days pleasant. The funeral was held April 23 at his father's in Garland, at 2 o'clock p. m. Not securing Mrs. M. J. Wentworth, an inspirational speaker, of Knox, Maine, Rev. W. H. Gould officiated in her place.

IMPORTANT OBJECT LESSON.

There is trouble brewing in Minneapolis, Minn. S. N. Aspinwall, who is always on the alert, writes:

"Our time has come to have a trial with the officers of the law to uphold our religion and the cause of liberal thought. Chief of Police Smith in his annual report recommended that an effort be made to try and get a bill passed giving the police power to deal with all mediums as they saw fit, but I headed that off and he now is trying to get the power conferred upon him by the council. I have seen and talked with Alderman Long on the subject, and expect a conference with the committee."

One of the papers in Minneapolis says:

"Mr. Smith also called attention to the fact that clairvoyants, astrologers, fortune-tellers, and all of that ilk, paid no licenses of any kind, and that no restrictions were thrown about this business, which he regards as not much better than a pure confidence game in many cases. He related several instances in which the most bare-faced fraud had been practiced on trusting victims, and complained because the police had little authority to interfere. He urged that a license of at least $100 be fixed and some restrictions made. The members of the committee and other aldermen who were present concurred heartily with the chief and Alderman Long promised to introduce an ordinance covering the ground."

Here you have the whole actuating impulse: "He related several instances in which the most bare-faced fraud had been practiced on trusting victims." It is the fraud that is in our ranks, that causes all the trouble. Banish fraud, drive it from our cause, and there will then be no incentive to pass legal restrictions.

CHARGED WITH HERESY.

Right Rev. David Sessums, of New Orleans, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church of Lousiana, has been charged with heresy by fifty of the leading ministers of the city in the following points:

1. Explicit denial that Christ has redeemed us by his blood.
2. Denial of future punishment of the wicked.
3. The assertion of the final restoration of all men to the favor of God in a state of probation after death.
4. The sinking of religion into mere humanitarianism bounded only by the second table of the law, and in which God has no right through the practical abolition of the first table.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Bishop Sessums had better now confess, like Paul, that after the manner which his accusers call heresy, so he worships the God of his fathers, etc.

Pope Adrian lamented that he was not free to do good. It is a pitiable state of society when a bishop cannot speak the truth as it appears to him in this age of progress, without a theological howl being raised against him. That the second table of the law— humanitarianism—is being brought into prominence, is one of the best signs of the age, and will sometime result in the millennial condition of the world, of which theology is the deadly enemy.

It is said that the bishop has not replied to his accusers. We hope that when he does it will be by a vigorous maintenance of his convictions.

Since the above was written, Bishop Sessums, in reply to his critics, says that he is trying to teach nothing new; that what he taught was being taught all over the world to-day. He said that the only part of the attack on him the least bit just was the statement that he was a pantheist.

It appears that Bishop Sessums is a young man, thirty-eight years of age, and, of course, ought to be "up to date," and if the conservative element in his own church rejects him the world will hear and justify him; and before he is an old man his doctrine will have ceased to be called heresy.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75c. For sale at this office.

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Causec and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

PUBLICATIONS — OF — HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.

This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.

Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.

The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.

English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.

Containing the latest investigations and discoveries, and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.

This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.

A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 30 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

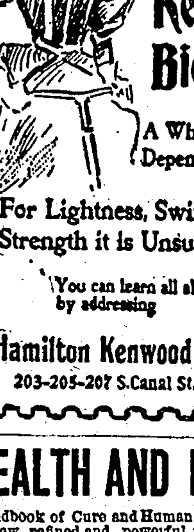
How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.

By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents, Express charges unpaid.



ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

For humane Education, with plan of the Angell Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address

HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

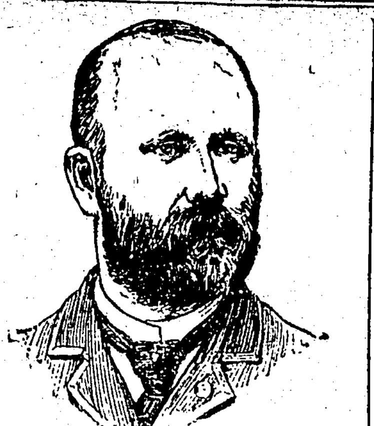
HEALTH AND POWER.

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 35 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

THE GODS.

By Col. R. G. Ingersoll. A pamphlet of 40 pages. Worth its weight in gold. Price 20 cents.

THE AGE OF REASON.



By Thomas Paine. Being an Investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

INTERVIEWS WITH SPIRITS.

By Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. Price 30 cents.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 80 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

FORSTER, DR. W. M,

THE NOTED

MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT

OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkables success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,

1059 Market Street. - San Francisco, Cal. 333

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,

Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER,

SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

Dr. Mansfield.

Homeopathic Treatment compounded clairvoyantly for each case. Send name, age, sex, leading symptoms for FREE DIAGNOSIS AND "METHODS OF CURE." H. D. Barrett, Prest, N. S. A. and all endorse

W. A. MANSFIELD, M. D.,

152 Cedar Ave. - - Cleveland, O. 386tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 394

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 6-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 390

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily, 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street. Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN, CHICAGO, Ill. Clairvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 392

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. Address 54 52nd st. Lake st, elevated to 52nd st., north block and a half, Chicago, Illinois. 377tf

PSYCHOMETRY—CONSULT WITH PROF. A. B. SEVERANCE in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address North Chicago, Illinois. 383tf

YOUR FUTURE prospects revealed by astral science, Good and bad days, months and years accurately calculated by Professor Geo. W. Walrond, Astrologer, Denver, Colo. 390

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped, addressed envelope to J. C. F. GRUMBINE, Station P, Chicago, Illinois, for terms, reading, circulars, for development in psychometry, clairvoyance, inspiration, healing. The inspirational teachings by correspondence are just what you need. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Psychiscopes $2. 379tf

MRS. ESTELLE F. HOWES, BUSINESS MEDIUM and Psychometrist. Six questions answered for 50 cents (silver) and stamp. P. O. Box 312, Friendship, N. Y. 390

HALL FOR RENT—978 W. 12TH STREET—TO Mediums any night except Wednesday. 386eow5t

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS AND HOW WE ASCEND THEM.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

MIND READING AND BEYOND.

By Wm. A. Hovey. 200 pages, with illustrations of the subjects treated upon. Price $1.25.

BIBLE OF BIBLES.

By Kersey Graves. It will well pay perusal. Price $1.75

Researches in Oriental History.

BY G. W. BROWN, M. D.

One Vol. 12mo, 407 Pages, Cloth, $1.50.

GENERAL DIVISION.

1. RESEARCHES IN JEWISH HISTORY.
2. RESEARCHES IN ZOROASTRIANISM.
3. DERIVATION OF CHRISTIANITY.
4. WHENCE OUR ARYAN ANCESTORS?

The whole comprises an earnest but fruitless search for a Historical Jesus.

In this volume the Jews are clearly shown not to have been the holy and favored people they claim to have been. The Messianic idea is traced to the Bactrian Philosopher, 2350 years B. C., and its history is outlined, following the waves of emigration, until it is fully developed into Christianity, with a mythical hero, at Alexandria, in Egypt, soon after the commencement of the Christian era.

The book demonstrates that Christianity and its central hero are mythical; that the whole system is based on fraud, falsehood, forgery, fear and force; and that its rites, ceremonials, dogmas and superstitions are but survivals of so-called paganism. It shows vast research among the records of the past; its facts are mostly gleaned from Christian authority; and no person can read it without instruction and profit, whether he reaches the same conclusions with the author or otherwise. For sale at this office.

ASTROPATHY

THE ART OF HEALING UNDER PLANETARY LAW.

Something new and startling. This knowledge is from a higher source and is fully explained in the "ASTRAL GUIDE," which will be sent FREE to any address upon receipt of a two cent stamp for postage. Astrological students, Physicians, Healers, Nurses, Everybody must have the "Guide."

L. J. SHAFER, Chemist,

31 Calkins Ave., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

422 E. D. BABBITT. M. D. LL. D., Dean

A WONDERFUL OFFER

.. BY ...

DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but was readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and band, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

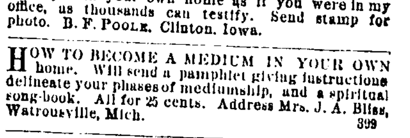
342tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1825 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O. M.,

509 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.



Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

HOW TO BECOME A MEDIUM IN YOUR OWN home. Will send a pamphlet giving instructions delineate your phases of mediumship, and a spiritual song-book. All for 25 cents. Address Mrs. J. A. Bliss, Watrousville, Mich. 399

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair, 605 West avenue, Jackson, Mich. 391

Spiritualism Triumphant!

Biblical theology demolished and original Christianity restored. An exposition of the fraudulent origin of the church, and the ancient origin of spiritual religion, with the long lost lives of Jesus and the Apostles, the authentic gospel of St. John, and authentic portraits of Jesus Christ, the Apostle John and John the Baptist. This work, just issued with a solid historic basis, is sent by mail for two dollars. Address the author, DR. J. R. BUCHANAN, San Jose, Cal. 388

Periodicity the Law of Life.

Just issued. A scientific discovery revealed. Prof. Buchanan the author. It enables one to understand the law of life in himself and friends; the times that are favorable or unfavorable for success; the harmonies and discords of persons due to a law; the dangerous periods for health and business; giving warnings against calamities. Price, 75 cents. Address E. S. BUCHANAN, Publisher, San Jose, California. A good agent can make $5 a day. 388

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

MANSILL'S ALMANAC — OF — PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

OCCULT FORCES!

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces.

Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to be interested in it and 12c. in stamps. Circulars free.

OCCULT PUB. CO., 3574 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

SPIRITUAL SONGSTER.

By HATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price 10 cents, or $7 per hundred. For sale at this office.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT — AND — THE SPIRIT WORLD.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Its value is recognized and acknowledged all over the world. Price, cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

GOSPEL OF NATURE.

By M. L. Sherman and Wm. F. Lyon. A book replete with Spiritual truths. Price $1.00.

THOMAS PAINE.

Was He Junius?

By Wm. Henry Burr. Price 15 cents.

Self-Contradictions of the Bible.

One hundred and forty-four propositions, theological, moral, historical and speculative; each proved affirmatively and negatively by quotations from Scripture, without comment. Price 15 cents.

THOMAS PAINE'S

Examination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old, and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cents.